Members of the Executive Committee will be hostesses at this meeting, and they are extending a special invitation to all prospective new members to attend. The Executive Committee consists of Mrs. J. Leedy Baer, past president; Mrs. Joseph T. Morris, Jr., president; Mrs. Arthur Reibel, first vice-president; Mrs. E. H. Leedy, second vice-president; Mrs. W. Richard Wood, third vice-president; Mrs. Arthur Stiel, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Kenneth Heininger, recording secretary; and Mrs. Louis J. Hollow, treasurer.

Anyone needing a ride to the meeting, or who wants someone to accompany them, is asked to call one of the above women. Membership books containing the year's programs will be distributed at this time.

The October Meeting will be a Fashion Show and Dinner on the 8th at the Weatherline Inn, to which members may invite husbands or gentlemen friends as guests.

The November 15 meeting will also be an evening affair. Mrs. Edward Thurston will speak on quilt design and will have some of her quilts on display. Life members will also be honored at this meeting, to be held at LaCroft. Christmas will be celebrated at the December 8 afternoon meeting, to be held at the home of Mrs. Morris. Mrs. Robert C. Tollas will furnish the music and Mrs. Leedy will speak on "The Aloof Owl".

The 1978 schedule will begin on January 17, at 1:30 p.m. in the Community Room of the First State Bank. Mrs. Elaine Martin will speak on "Your Financial Needs."

In February, on the 21st, at 8 p.m., Johnson K. Wright, M.S., will speak on "Dermatology - the Aesthetics Thereof" at the home of Mrs. Richard Georgi. The Art Group of the Women's Club will present the March program on the 21st at 8 p.m. in the library.

The April meeting, to be held at noon on the 18th at Leutheuser's Restaurant, will be the annual meeting. Mrs. Shirley Lusk of the Charlevoix Floral Company will present the program.

Members of the Women's Club are looking forward to a busy season and hope that all women who can attend even a few of the afternoon or evening meetings will join them.

Pearls celebrate 55th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pearl celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary in Kolkaska Sept. 2 at a family gathering at the home of their niece Mr. and Mrs. Carl Leach.

The celebration was hosted by the Leaches and their daughter Betty Zipp.

Ma Bell to offer free emergency calls on area pay phones

Charlevoix' first pay phones to handle free emergency calls were activated last Monday, Michigan Bell has announced.

The new "Dial Tone First" service allows callers to reach an operator ("00") without depositing coins.

Lei Johnson, local manager for Michigan Bell, said the start-up of Dial Tone First will see team members beginning the on-site visits necessary to activate the 52 pay phones the Charlevoix exchange.

As the Michigan Bell conversion team makes each pay phone ready to handle the new service, an instruction card will be placed on it to inform the caller that all he or she has to do to get a dial tone is to lift the receiver.

A special sticker will also be placed on each outdoor phone booth as an aid in identifying those that have been converted.

Miss Johnson described the final on-site rewiring of the individual telephones as the "tip of the iceberg" when compared with the scope of the over-all conversion job that is expected to run at least $15 million for Michigan Bell's 51,000 pay phones across the state.

The outside work must be preceded, she said, by extensive central office modification and the addition of new equipment by Western Electric, the manufacturing and supply unit of the Bell System.

By contrast, she said, the conversion of pay phones from 10 up to 20 cents was a relatively simple operation that required modification of the instruments only.

Working under a timetable agreed to by the Michigan Public Service Commission in January, Michigan Bell will convert virtually all of its 51,000 pay phones by the end of 1977.

Interesting facts discovered about author's family

By Peg Ohle

While making plans for celebrating the 100th anniversary of the birth of local author Rex Beach, Ed Beutner, president of the Charlevoix Historical Society, found some interesting information about Rex's father, H.W. Beach.

Several mentions of the senior Beach are contained in Ross Nettleton's compilation of stories from the Charlevoix Sentinel during the 1870's and 1880's. The compilation can be found in the Michigan room of the Charlevoix Public Library.

Some insight into the type of family from which the author came may be gleaned from the following excerpts:

April 30, 1931 (60 years ago - 1871):

"H. W. Beach of Banks, Antrim Co., made this spring, with 600 buckets, 3,500 pounds of maple sugar."

February 25, 1932 (60 years ago - 1872):

"H. W. Beach, Esq., of Antrim proposes in the coming spring to concentrate the resources of about 700 maple trees in the manufacture of syrup which he will sell in airtight cans and transport west where he is confident he will realize fully $2.50 per gallon. Mr. Beach has in previous springs made large quantities of maple sugar which has been disposed of in the same way, bringing a high price. This shows that sugar-making when conducted in a business-like manner is the most profitable resource of the farm."

October 17, 1929 (50 years ago - 1879):

"A horse belonging to H. W. Beach of Banks fell through the uncompleted approach to the bridge on Wednesday but was hurt but little." (ED. NOTE: See picture of bridge in this week's issue.)

November 26, 1931 (50 years ago - 1881):

"Elmer F. Beach, son of H. W. Beach of Banks, is a student in the Literary Dept. of the University, where he will take a four year course. (An older brother of Rex Beach.)"

December 31, 1931 (50 years ago - 1881):

"H. W. Beach of Antrim has shipped from Norwood dock 100 tons of pressed hay to Harbor Springs, Petoskey, and St. Ignace, and expects to ship 100 tons more if weather is favorable."

January 14, 1932 (50 years ago - 1882):

"At the family gathering of the Rex Beach Homestead executed in 1977. These consisted of a framed oil painting by Louise Beutner which has been sent to Rollins College to be housed in the new Art Museum there; a watercolor by Toni Beutner; and another oil by Ivor Menzies. The latter two paintings will remain in Charlevoix and be placed in the Charlevoix Historical Museum when it is built.

Following the program the history-minded audience of seventy people enjoyed the Rex Beach birthday cake and punch served by Mary Margaret Geiken, Buena Kohler, and Bernice Weststaff. The Charlevoix Historical Society gratefully acknowledges the fine work of its local historian Mrs. Weststaff who was the guiding spirit in making the Rex Beach Centennial observance a reality.

ED BEUTNER, president of the Charlevoix Historical Society, holds a painting by his wife Louise, of the Rex Beach homestead. The painting was sent to Rollins College to be housed in the art museum. Behind it are paintings by Ivor Menzies and Tom Bounner of the same house.

Historical society honors memory of Rex Beach

By Louise Beutner
Charlevoix Historical Society

The September meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society honored the centenary of the author Rex Beach whose birthplace was a farm near the present community of Atwood.

Should any author of today have his record of published novels and moving pictures made from them we would call it phenomenal, and so it was for him. And all this without the use of four-letter words, though he was extremely gifted in portraying "he-man" action of violent and heroic proportions in primitive scenes, many of them in Alaska where he lived several years as a young man. Apparently all he had to do was visit such scenes, and his pen flowed. His first big novel "The Spoilers" was filmed four times.

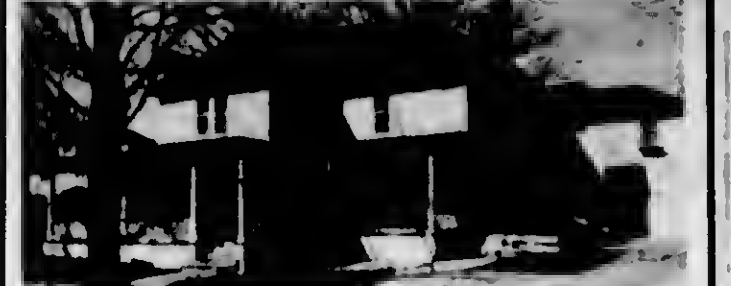

Past youth, he spent much time in Florida, was a supporter of Rollins College, and engaged in agricultural research.

Altogether, his life was larger than life, and was demonstrated by a book review of his memoirs "Personal Exposures" by Mrs. Eleanor Carson, his own humorous and occasionally ironic account of his life.

A display of memorabilia included:

1. Exhibit of novels from the Charlevoix Public Library and private collections.
2. Autographed portrait which was sent to Alfred Brooks by Rex Beach. The Brooks family acquired the beach homestead property in 1928, and Alfred Brooks still lives there.
3. Copies of James Montgomery Flagg drawings of Rex Beach donated by Rollins College.
4. Three conceptual paintings of the Rex Beach Homestead executed in 1977. These consisted of a framed oil painting by Louise Beutner which has been sent to Rollins College to be housed in the new Art Museum there; a watercolor by Toni Beutner; and another oil by Ivor Menzies. The latter two paintings will remain in Charlevoix and be placed in the Charlevoix Historical Museum when it is built.

Following the program the history-minded audience of seventy people enjoyed the Rex Beach birthday cake and punch served by Mary Margaret Geiken, Buena Kohler, and Bernice Weststaff. The Charlevoix Historical Society gratefully acknowledges the fine work of its local historian Mrs. Weststaff who was the guiding spirit in making the Rex Beach Centennial observance a reality.

This attractive northside home has been completely modernized and features 4 bedrooms, 2 full baths. Living room with fireplace, dining room, family room, plus a one bedroom apartment. Natural workwood has been maintained throughout including this unique staircase. All this situated on a large city lot.

Rayders open season with win

By BILL MERCER
The Charlevoix Red Rayders notched their first victory of the 1977 football season on a windswept Kalkaska Blue Razor field Friday night.

The 35-0 defeat of the Kalkaska 11 featured scoring by six Red Rayders including: a 78-yard interception run back, a safety, and a punt return 60 yards to paydirt. After playing to a 0-0 tie in the first quarter, the Rayders' Greg Krueger started the second quarter with a 22-yard run to the Kalkaska 38-yard line. From there, following a line play, Krueger plunged to the 12-yard line, where Kalkaska took over following a holding penalty against Charlevoix.

Aided by two penalties, the Blue Blazers charged up the field to the Charlevoix 45-yard line where they fumbled. The fumble was picked up by Greg Loper on the Kalkaska 31.

With 5 minutes and 12 seconds remaining in the second quarter, Krueger blasted over from the 16-yard line for the first Charlevoix score of 1977. The kick was good by Guy Carter, and Charlevoix had the lead 7-0.

On the first play following the Charlevoix kickoff, the Blue Blazers' quarterback was captured on the 1-yard line by a host of Charlevoix tackles. On the fourth down play of this series, the Rayders' Kip Cinnamon, playing heads-up defense, caused a safety. This made the score Charlevoix 9, Kalkaska 0.

The free kick to Charlevoix resulted in Red Rayder possession of the football on the Kalkaska 40. Charlevoix promptly lost the football on a fumble which was picked up on the Red Rayder 49.

The Blue Blazers drove to the Charlevoix 22-yard line, where Pat Klooster grabbed an errant Kalkaska pass and returned the ball 78-yards for a Rayder touchdown. The point-after-attempt was a pass from Jim Alger to Neil Dziedzic, good for the 2-point conversion. With 1 minute and 30 seconds left in the first half, Charlevoix had built the lead to 17-0.

Action picked up in the third quarter, when Barney Way intercepted a Kalkaska pass, bringing the ball back to the Charlevoix 30-yard line. To complete the exchange, Charlevoix recovered a fumble on the first play from scrimmage, taking over on their own twenty three.

From here, the Rayders began a drive which resulted in the fourth Charlevoix score of the evening. Featured in this 77-yard scoring drive were runs by Krueger, Bob Tilden, and Kevin Kraft. With 10:59 remaining in the fourth quarter, Alger carried over from the 1-yard line for the tally. The conversion attempt was not good, and the score stood Charlevoix 25, Kalkaska 0.

The fourth quarter saw Coach Don Carey substituting freely, and the Rayder defense stopping the Blue Blazers attack cold.

Charlevoix's Neil Dziedzic offered the frosting on the cake by taking a Kalkaska punt on his own 40 yard line and scampering 60 yards for a score at the 4:58 mark. Again, the point-after failed, and with the game near end, the Red Rayders had their victory evening, 35-0.

This starts the 1977 football season with a convincing victory. This week, the Benzie Central eleven will visit Charlevoix for the Red Rayder's first home game, and the second warmup game before starting into the Michigan-Huron Shores League play. Charlevoix should be a contender for the league crown this year, so come out and support the squad at Kipke field this Friday evening.

Flag football season to open next week

Following organizational meetings for flag football leagues sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreation Department, teams will be practicing this week in preparation for the opening of the 1977 schedule next week.

The Junior League will open the schedule with the Dolphins, coached by Jiggs Whitley and Paul Parrish, meeting the Lions, coached by Des Milligan and Sam Supernaw at 6 p.m. and the Steelers, coached by Bob Holtzman, and the Chargers, coached by Dick Putman and Don Potter, clashing at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 20.

The Senior League will play Thursday with the Rams and the Patriots playing at 6 p.m.; the Cowboys and the Vikings at 7:15 p.m. and the Raiders and the Buccaneers at 8:30 p.m.

The Rams are coached by Doug Hawley; the Patriots by Don Trimmer; the Cowboys by Curt Ayres; the Vikings by Mike Reinhardt; and the Buccaneers by Denny Youngdyke and the Raiders by Roger Fischer and Dan Gillespie.

The Benzie Central Huskies are looking forward to their game against the Charlevoix Rayders this coming Friday night.

The contest will be the first home game of the season for the Rayders and both teams are coming into it undefeated. Charlevoix romped over the Kalkaska Blazers 35-0 last week and Benzie blitzed Scottville 18-0.

"We've always had a good rivalry with Charlevoix," Benzie Coach Mike MacDonald said. "I think Charlevoix has taken six out of the last seven games, but they've been close games, and I expect the game this Friday will be a close one, too."

Charlevoix defeated the Huskies 14-6 last year in a game that saw the Huskies have a touch down called back due to a penalty. The Huskies remained winless last year, but Coach MacDonald said the team's record wasn't a true slanting of its talent.

"Six of the eight games had scores that were extremely close," MacDonald said. "Our team was better than the record looks."

The coach said 14 members of the 21 member squad were returning lettermen. He said the size of the team was good, too.

"It's the biggest team we've

JV squad runs over Kalkaska Blazers

It was a great season opener for the Charlevoix High School

Junior Varsity football squad last week.

The young Rayders romped over Kalkaska 54-6.

Scoring by the young Rayders started almost immediately in the first quarter with Scott Morgan running up six points on a two-yard drive. Tom Mielke added another six points when he fell on a blocked punt in the end zone.

Morgan continued his scoring ways in the second quarter when he ran five yards for his second touchdown of the game. Jack Carlson passed to Steve Daylong for a two-point conversion and the score was 20-0.

However, the lone Kalkaska score also came in the second quarter. A pass was intercepted and returned 70 yards for six points. At half time the score was 26-6.

In the third quarter the Rayders added another 20 points to the score board. Bob Russell went 12 yards for six and Scott Kerridge received the two-point conversion. Dave Elzinga raced seven yards for another six points and Russell followed for his second touch down of the game receiving a 50-yard pass from Carlson.

In the final quarter, Nick Anderson raced 32 yards to the goal line. Kerridge hit Daylong for the two-point conversion bringing the score to 48-6.

Russell finished the scoring blitz with his third touchdown of the game coming off a 42-yard run.

Coach Ilni Evans used his entire squad of 23 players during the game and singled out Russell, Ken Ottumowski and Morgan as some of the top players during the game.

BOSS INSULATION

FOAM AND CELLULOSE

Heat loss in a typical home

The percentage figures on the drawing tell the story. The roof is important, but the walls are the single largest source of temperature transfer.

Why Foam Insulates Best

It has the highest R-Factor of any available insulating material. It is stable, non-combustible and resistant to moisture and pests. Most important, it seals around the points of air leakage that other insulations miss...and it can be applied to any type of construction at any time. Even homes already insulated with batts can be improved with the addition of foam. This sort of efficiency can make dramatic savings on fuel compared to an uninsulated structure.

Golf team takes first match Monday

The Charlevoix High School golf team posted its first victory of the season when the Elks Rapids Elks at the municipal course here Monday.

Next Monday the team will be at Charlevoix with St. Ignace at 4 p.m. in the first Michigan-Huron Conference match of the season.

In Monday's meet Charlevoix had 157 points to 176 for the Elks.

Mike Custer had the best score of the meet, a 37; team scores Pat Paul and Bob Ranger posted scores of 39 each and Steve Schuch had a 42.

Marty Merrill had a 38 score; Church Stephan a 41; John Peterman, a 47 and Steve Shoemaker a 50 for the visitors.

Christine Dillon, 5, wasn't nervous at all when she first crowd drew up in a matter of seconds.

After demonstrating how well they could swing on the bars, Roger Houghton and his friend Mark Wojan, both 5 years old, agreed that they liked their teacher Mrs. Smith and were quite pleased with her teaching ability.

Did I ever feel old when she said that!

Obituary

Beatrice Gerten Wagner Word has been received of the death of Beatrice Gerten Wagner, 78, of Ludington. She was the mother of William D. Gerten of Charlevoix.

Mrs. Wagner was born Feb. 18, 1901 in South Bend, Ind. She was married to Howard Gerten on April 30, 1921. He died Sept. 4, 1934. She remarried Franklin S. Wagner, who preceded her in death on Oct. 28, 1976.

She had been a resident of Ludington for 20 years.

Besides her son, survivors include three grandchildren, two brothers, Frank MacDonald of South Bend and Allen MacDonald of Texas, two sisters, Mrs. D.J. Weimer of Mishawaka, Ind., and Mrs. Benjamin Ogborn of South Bend.

Funeral services for Ruben E. Oliver, 62, former resident of Charlevoix, Wis., following a long illness, were held Saturday at the Greensky United Methodist Church. The Rev. Austin Regier officiated. Interment was in the Greensky cemetery.

Born in Charlevoix June 23, 1915, Mr. Oliver had served with the U.S. Marine Corps in Alaska and the South Pacific during World War II. In recent years he had resided in Escanaba where he had been employed as a gardener and caretaker and in Sheboygan and Rhinelander, Wis. At Rhinelander he had taught Indian Art at the Rhinelander branch of the University of Wisconsin. He was a member of the Greensky United Methodist church here.

Surviving are a son, Robert of Chicago; a sister, Mrs. Marion Anderson of Sheboygan, Wis., and two brothers, Leonard and Jay J., both of Charlevoix.

The Winchester Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements here.

to play football."

Since he doesn't know all the rules of the game, Pedro is content to be a kicker and he attempted to extra points in last Friday's game against Kalkaska.

Since his arrival Aug. 23, Pedro has tried many new things and he especially likes the fishing. He caught a 12 pound trout in Lake Charlevoix not too long ago.

"It was great," he beamed. "At home you have to drive six hours in order to fish so I can't do it much."

He also enjoys American food especially pizza, hamburgers, Coca Cola, which he claims tastes different in Mexico, and ice cream. He also likes to eat fish that he has caught himself.

Pedro will be taking draft- ing, American History and government, English, gym and study hall while he is a student in Charlevoix.

Upon his return home he will complete one more year of schooling and then plans to study to go into management of industry.

Coaches' Comments

Elk Rapids is looking forward to evening up the score when the girls varsity basketball team meets the Charlevoix Raiders Thursday. The junior varsity game will begin at 6:30 p.m. with the varsity game starting at 8 p.m.

Of the three games Elk Rapids has played against Charlevoix, the challengers have won one and lost two. A win on Thursday by Elk Rapids could even up the score. Coach Tom Witte said, "In preparation for its meet with the Raiders, Elk Rapids is playing arch rivals Glen Arbor. Glen Arbor took the Northwest Conference title last year with Elk Rapids right behind them with a 19-3 record. Elk Rapids won the first game of its season 71-20 against Northport. Witte said, "The coach said he had five of the seven top starters back again this year and he is looking forward to another winning season with his 14-member squad.

The team has some height this year with two girls in the front line standing at 5 feet 10 inches. Witte said the strength of the team was the speed of the guards and the rebounding.

"We've always been a running team and we will be that way again this year," the Elk Rapids coach said.

This is Witte's fourth year as coach of the varsity basketball squad at Elk Rapids.

Future of Little League discussed

The future of the Little League program in Charlevoix will be decided at a meeting of interested persons called for 8 p.m. Monday in the community room at the City Hall.

Officers and a board of directors will be named.

It's hard to imagine what more you could ask for, a panoramic view of Grand Traverse Bay from this newly redecorated three bedroom home with fireplace & water softener. Located in one of the north's most attractive developments, the sportsman will appreciate the availability of the 18 hole golf course, tennis courts, cross country skiing, Lake Michigan access & club house and proposed airstrip. Charlevoix student enjoys summer

It was a summer of sun and fun in Acapulco, Mexico, for Jeralyn Goss, Charlevoix High School senior.

It was also a summer of learning.

Jeralyn participated in the Youth for Understanding (YFU) program during July and August and learned a lot about the Mexican culture as well as enjoyed it this summer. She was one of about 50 American students staying in Acapulco on the YFU program.

"I understand Mexico so much better," Jeralyn said reflecting on her trip. "The people are so nice and so warm."

"And my responsibilities have become clearer to me and what my responsibilities are," she added.

"I definitely want to go back."

She stayed with a family in an apartment in the residential section of the famous resort city. Her adopted family consisted of three sisters, Estela, 20, Maria, 23, and Esther, 26. She also has another sister and five brothers in her adopted family, but they were all married and living away from home.

The high school student said she did all of the things a normal tourist would do on a trip to Acapulco. She also had some experiences that tourists don't get.

She visited the hotels where her sister worked and had a chance to see the resort operations from their point of view. She also went dancing with her sisters in local night spots and even attended a Mexican wedding.

"I spoke Spanish all the time," the student said. "I had to only one sister could speak English and she would only do it when I didn't understand something, or, when we didn't want anyone to know what we were saying."

Jeralyn said that after the first month she was proficient enough in the language to go out on her own.

"I took Spanish in high school during my freshman and sophomore years," she said. "But you learn so much more when you have to speak it every day."

She said she found herself thinking in Spanish and she had trouble getting back into English when she would speak with her mother in Charlevoix on the phone or to other Americans in the city.

Jeralyn had visited Mexico for a week last February when she was on vacation with her family, but she said there were still many things that surprised her about the country.

"I was surprised that my sisters didn't wear more dresses," she commented. "I had heard that they were more formal."

"I was also surprised that they didn't go to church more often. I had heard the Mexican people were very religious, too. The church did offer five services a day."

The Charlevoix student said she enjoyed the food very much. She said she ate a lot of chicken and that the food was as spicy as the rumors make it.

"I even put the chili sauce on the various dishes. I liked it. I didn't use as much as everyone else, though," she said.

Jeralyn said after breakfast there wouldn't be any meals until 3 p.m. when the family would gather for its big meal of the day. Then they would have a snack at 8 or 9 p.m.

The student came home loaded with gifts and souvenirs from her trip. She brought back a serape, pottery, wooden platters and things made out of bone and silver.

JERALYN GOSS, who recently returned from Mexico, and Pedro Armengol, who is a Mexican exchange student staying with the Goss family, will have plenty to talk about this school year in English and Spanish.

Make your appointment now to view this exceptional duplex on Charlevoix's northside. Two full size apartments under one roof with 2 bedrooms in the downstairs unit and 3 upstairs. Excellent condition top to bottom. A sound investment at $59,900.

Mexican exchange student joins Charlevoix schools

Spanish phrases will be ringing in the halls of Charlevoix High School this year.

Pedro Armengol, of San Luis Potosi, San Luis Potosi, (it's like New York, New York) in the central part of Mexico, will be attending the high school this year as an exchange student with the Youth for Understanding program.

The 18-year-old student is staying at the home of the Gerald Gosses.

Michigan is not new to Pedro and neither is the Goss family. Pedro's brother was an exchange student in Mantion last year. Before he returned home last spring, he made a trip to visit the Gosses here.

And Jeralyn Goss visited Pedro's family for a week while she was in Mexico this summer on an exchange program. She also acts as part time translator for the visit.

Pedro said he decided to be an exchange student because he wanted to learn more about the American people their customs and their way of life. And he is anxious to try a little of everything while he is here.

"I want to try it all," he said smiling broadly. "I want to play football, I want to play basketball, I want to snowmobile, I want to fish, I want to play tennis. I want to do it all."

And according to his plan, Pedro has gone out for the Rayder football team.

"I had watched the Dallas Cowboys play on TV at home," he explained. "And I said I'd get the chance I want to do it all."

FURNITURE

TIM O'BRIEN, store manager of Gatelly's, stands before the new sign at the store's new location on U.S. 31 north of Charlevoix.

Gatellys moves to Charlevoix

A new furniture store has made its home in Charlevoix. Gatelly's, formerly located in Petoskey, is now in business in the former location of Don Brown's House of Furniture.

"We're glad to be in Charlevoix," Tim O'Brien, store manager, said. "We've had lots of customers from Charlevoix in the past and we hope we will be able to serve them as well as possible."

O'Brien said the furniture company decided to move to Charlevoix after losing its lease in Petoskey.

"It was a question of availability," he explained. "This location met our needs."

"We are also planning to open another Petoskey store as soon as possible, but we're planning to stay in Charlevoix, too."

"This is a permanent location for us."

The furniture company is a part of a chain whose main offices are in Saginaw along with two stores. Stores are also located in Alpena and Ishpeming. The company opened its Petoskey store in 1964.

The company is not planning to expand its line but will continue offering such brand names as Kroehler, Simmons, Mt. Clair, Broly Hill.

Need a rooming house? Here's your chance. Very lovely, well kept guest lodge on Charlevoix's north side. Could be converted into apartments. Completely furnished, you have the option of maintaining it as a guest lodge or using it for your family and friends.

A CLASS ACTION suit for tenants of these apartments located on May Street over a rent hike instituted last March has been filed in U.S. District Court in Grand Rapids. Some of the defendants named in the suit are the owners of the apartment complex, Frank Vaydik, Roger Pierce and Betty Frey.

City council nixes land swap proposal

A parcel of land in the Belvedere Club has been ruled out as a possible location for a senior citizen housing complex for the City of Charlevoix.

Charlevoix Common Council turned down a proposed swap of five acres of Belvedere Club property for parts of Belvedere and Ferry-avenues in a resolution adopted Monday night.

"It's not feasible to trade any property for major streets in Charlevoix," Alderman Jeanne Wallace said. "It's not feasible to even consider it."

"I don't feel we have a right to consider closing any street."

Council also ruled out holding a public hearing on the issue saying that according to the facts available to them it would not be feasible to close the two streets in order to complete the swap.

The Charlevoix Housing Commission had approached the Belvedere Club Board of Trustees in the spring about purchasing some land and the trustees offered recently to swap the land in question for the portions of Belvedere and Ferry avenues running through the club.

The trustees felt the swap would solve two problems—it would provide a location for the badly needed senior citizen housing complex and it would provide additional privacy and security for Belvedere members.

The housing commission is considering several other locations within the city as alternative sites for the housing complex.

In other action, the council approved the expenditure of $1,144 for the installation of aluminum window frames and windows in the club house at the golf course.

The present windows have wood frames which have rotted out. Council felt the installation of the aluminum windows would eliminate any further problems and would also reduce maintenance of the windows at the club house.

Council members also discussed the proposed new zoning ordinance and the site plan review ordinance currently in existence.

Mrs. Wallace said the Police, Fire and Ordinance Committee had reviewed both ordinances and felt some action should be taken by the council toward establishing a planning commission to assist the council in reviewing site plans and handling other zoning matters.

Too Much Tax Charged

I think that something ought to be done about the merchants who charge too much sales tax. I've been shopping at a local establishment this last summer and usually the bill is around $1.50, with a 14 sales tax. Last night, the owner or manager happened to be there, and waited on me and charged me $1.50 sales tax. When I asked him about it, he said that's what the chart shows. So, today I went to the Charlevoix County State Bank and picked up a chart. It shows that it should be $1.14. I think it's kind of low for merchants to do this. A penny doesn't mean a lot to many individuals and they don't make a fuss about it, but when he continues to do this with all his customers, he's collecting more than he should. We're supposed to be paying a 4 percent sales tax and he's trying to get away with adding a little more. Why doesn't he just raise the prices if he wants that extra money? A lot of us would be willing to pay that.

P.S.

Relief may be on the way for tenants of Charlevoix Apartments who have been fighting rent hikes instituted at the complex last winter.

A class action suit on behalf of the tenants of the apartment complex on May Street has been filed in U.S. District Court in Grand Rapids by Gregory Justis of Legal Services of Northern Michigan.

The suit was also filed on behalf of tenants in any of the other rural low and moderate income rental projects within the state constructed with Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) funds.

Defendants named in the suit are Frank W. Vaydik, Roger N. Pierce and Betty Frey, owners of the apartment complex. Also named in the suit are Bob Bergland, secretary of the U. S. Department of Agriculture; Gordon Cavanaugh, acting administrator of FmHA; and Robert Abbott, acting state director of FmHA.

In the suit, Justis claims that tenants of Charlevoix Apartments were denied due process of law as provided under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments of the U.S. Constitution when their rents were increased 25 percent March 1. The legal services attorney explained that before rents can be increased in rural low and moderate income housing complexes funded under the rural housing program, applications must be made to the FmHA office describing why the rent hike is necessary.

"Under the present scheme, it is not necessary to give the tenants any notice of an application to seek rent increases or to give them a chance to participate in the decision on the rent increases," Justis said.

"Our complaint seeks to establish a system that gives the tenants a chance to participate in the approval or disapproval of rent hikes."

If the tenants win their case, a system will have to be set up where tenants will be notified of any application to FmHA for a rent increase.

The tenants of the rural low and moderate income housing units will also be given the opportunity to inspect the application for rent hikes and any supporting documents and a chance to offer written comments and objections.

In addition the tenants must be informed of the decision made in the case and the reasons surrounding the decision.

Justis said a hearing on a motion for a preliminary injunction rescinding the recent rent increases will be held Sept. 28 in Grand Rapids.

The injunction asks that the rent increases be returned to the tenants of Charlevoix Apartments, and that the FmHA be restrained from granting any further increases in rent to any of the rural housing complexes it has funded.

Shirley Roloff, spokesperson for the senior citizens living in Charlevoix Apartments, said the tenants decided to file suit because they couldn't get help anywhere else.

Mrs. Roloff got involved in the rent dispute through her volunteer work for the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services. Some of her clients were residents of the apartment complex. Many of them were living on social security incomes and could not pay the rent hike.

All of the tenants were under the impression that rents at the apartment would not be increased if they could not afford to pay them.

Following the first notice from Vaydik that the rents would be increased, Mrs. Roloff attempted to seek help for the tenants from the county prosecutor's office, the common council and her state legislators and U.S. congressmen in no avail.

When we started working on this, nobody had any answers," Mrs. Roloff explained. "And then I heard about the new legal services office and I went to them for help."

When contacted about the suit, Vaydik, a defendant and part owner of Charlevoix Apartments, said that he was not aware that it had been filed. He said, however, that if the suit was similar to one filed in U.S. District Court in Saginaw, the tenants wouldn't get very far.

A similar suit has been filed with the U.S. District Court in Saginaw by the Eastern Michigan Legal Services attorneys. The suit names Roger N. Pierce, owner of Parkside Apartments in Coleman, as a defendant. Pierce is also named in the Charlevoix case.

In the Saginaw suit, attorneys claim tenants were hit with a 45 percent hike without due process of law.

County officials find appeal of property valuation costly

By PEG O'LE

"I am glad the County Commissioners won their case and personally think it's very unfair that the taxpayers had to pay a considerable amount of money for this case when the (Melrose) Township had no just cause to appeal their equalization."

These are the words of County Equalization Director Joan Blanchard upon which ruled in favor of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners in the case of Melrose Township.

The opinion, received by the County Commissioners last week, stated that "there is no credible evidence to support the contention that (Melrose) Township was treated in an arbitrary, unjust or discriminatory fashion, or that as equalized the values of the unit were equalized in excess of 50 percent."

The "considerable" amount of money, to which Mrs. Blanchard refers is at least $1,690 out-of-pocket expenses incurred by the four County Commissioners and three County employees who attended the four-day hearing. In addition, many hours of extra work were put in by employees who attended the four-day hearing. In addition, many hours of extra work were put in by employees of the Equalization Department and County Prosecutor's office in preparing for the hearing, and the four County Commissioners had to take time away from their income-producing activities.

The cost to Melrose Township has not yet been determined. It was represented at the hearing by Attorney Stephen B. Graham of Petoskey. An official of the Township has stated that Graham's estimate of his cost was $1,500 for one-and-a-half days of work. Since the hearing lasted four days, it is possible his fee could be as much as $4,000.

Melrose Township Supervisor Harry Griffin, who spearheaded the appeal, was the only other representative from the Township to attend.

"The taxpayers of Melrose Township are paying double for this hearing," representing Charlevoix County at the four-day hearing were County Commissioners Clyde Cunningham, Delbert Ingalls, Larry D. Matthew, and Richard A. McKinnon, Jr.; Equalization Director Blanchard and Carla Spencer from the department; and county Prosecutor Hayes.

Morehouse Township has 20 days in which to appeal the Tax Tribunal opinion. However, Mrs. Blanchard pointed out that it could not appeal the valuation, that the appeal could only be based on error of law, wrong principles, or fraud in the case. If any of these can be proven, then the case could be remanded and heard again, which would cost the taxpayers that much more money.

Representing Charlevoix County at the four-day hearing were County Commissioners Clyde Cunningham, Delbert Ingalls, Larry D. Matthew, and Richard A. McKinnon, Jr.; Equalization Director Blanchard and Carla Spencer from the department; and county Prosecutor Hayes.

High Kickers

EVEN POURING DOWN RAIN could not dampen the high spirits and the high stepping of the Charlevoix Rayder Marching Band. The band opened its show season at the Charlevoix Benzie Central game last Friday with a new look. In addition to the flag corps, a color guard has been added. The marching band will be performing again this Friday at Kipke Field.

Medusa plans expansion, pollution control

"We're committed to the road, we're committed to the $50 million expansion program and we're committed to improving the environment," Scott Rogers, president of the Medusa Corporation and chief executive officer, said following the announcement of the conversion of the existing kiln at the Charlevoix Cement Plant from wet process to dry process during a civic dinner at the Grey Gables Inn last week.

The dinner was hosted by Medusa officials from the home office in Cleveland and the Charlevoix plant and guests included city, township, county and school officials as well as industrial representatives.

The conversion program is expected to begin in April 1978 and to be completed by the spring of 1980. It is estimated that upwards of 800 workers will be needed in the construction phase, Rogers said that Medusa intends to hire as many local firms and workers as is possible. The company will spend approximately $50 million on the project, or double what it spent to build the plant in 1967.

It is anticipated that after the project is completed between 12 and 20 new workers will be added to the plant force which already employs about 100 people.

Rogers said that the additional employees would also be hired from the Charlevoix area.

In addition to the conversion of the kiln, the company will also be attempting to reduce pollution from the plant. The new process will reduce emission of dust and other particles by about 20 percent. Sulfur oxide emissions, which create the rotten egg odor that residents of the Charlevoix area can smell on certain days, will be cut in half, according to company officials.

New dust collection equipment that will be installed as a part of the expansion and modernization project will cost in excess of $5 million.

As another means of controlling dust in the plant area, Medusa has agreed to fund the paving of Bells Bay Road.

The plant area will take on a new look as additional structures are built on the grounds. The noise from the area is expected to drop considerably as the various processes become housed in the new buildings.

Also, because of the conversion from wet to dry process, the familiar plume that can be seen pouring from the 220-foot stack at the plant will become a sight of the past.

When the Medusa plant opened in Charlevoix 10 years ago, it was touted as one of the most efficient and pollution free wet process plants in the country. So what made the company decide to convert the plant?

Higher energy costs and pollution, W.G. Irmischer, president of the cement division of Medusa Corporation, explained.

After studying other processes in Germany, Japan and Greece, the company found that wet process plants were not as energy efficient as the dry process ones, he said.

So the company decided to convert to the dry process or flash calciner-preheater process. This will not only save money but will also help the corporation meet the Federal Energy Administration's goal of reducing fuel consumption 18 percent by 1982.

Conversion also allows the Medusa plant to double its production as well as improve the quality of the cement it produces, Irmischer said.

All this will be done at less cost per ton of cement produced and will help Medusa better compete with other U.S. cement plants and with Canadian plants as well, he said.

"This plant will be a feather in Medusa's hat and a credit to the cement industry when we are done," Rogers said.

"With this new process we will be able to have more cement, less odor, and less pollution," he continued. "It comes pretty close to having your cake and eating it, too."

Local officials enthusiastic about plans for conversion

The expansion plans for the Medusa Cement Plant in Charlevoix were greeted by the most part with enthusiasm by local officials.

Township, city, county and school officials all seemed to agree that the $50 million expansion, which promises to increase production and decrease pollution, will be an asset to the community.

Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud said he was particularly pleased that the company had agreed to pave Bells Bay Road.

"That's something I've been trying to get done for a long time," Stroud said. "I think that paving the road will help cut down on the amount of dust in the air. Health department monitors show that most of the dust out there is road dust, not cement dust. I think this will help a lot."

provement and it will be a boon to the economy," Hansen said. "I have no concerns and no apprehensions about the project."

The mayor said that he didn't think the additional people that the project would bring to the area would be any strain on the city. In fact, the mayor thought the extra population might work to the city's advantage.

Charlevoix County Commissioner Don Meggison was also pleased with the proposed expansion.

"I have no concerns about the pollution and I never have had," Meggison said. "There might be a little bit out there, but for what they are doing for the area, I think we can stand a little."

Meggison said he also had no concerns about the tax break the company was seeking for the expansion and improvements.

"The tax break was designed to help companies expand and to create jobs," he said. "Companies across the country are asking for getting these tax breaks and I think that's the least we can do."

Charlevoix School District Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren also was impressed with the expansion plans, but he expressed some concerns about the influx of people to the area during the construction phase and the effects that would have on the school district.

To East Jordan resident Sheriff gives citizen award

An East Jordan man has received the first certificate of appreciation through the Charlevoix Sheriff's Department Citizen Award program.

Sheriff George Lasater presented the certificate to Steven J. Wittfogel, 24, for his assistance in recovering stolen goods.

Wittfogel, who works at the East Jordan Iron Works, said he came across the stolen goods when he was testing the four-wheel drive on his new pickup truck on Labor Day on Dutchman Bay Road. He came across a blanket which was covering a pile containing skis, ski boots, camera equipment and personal effects.

The East Jordan resident returned to town and called the city police, who contacted the sheriff's department.

Wittfogel said he was sure the items were stolen when he came across them in the woods.

Registration still open for adult ed. classes

Registration is still open for adult education classes at the Charlevoix High School.

There are openings in both the high school completion courses and in the adult enrichment courses, Roy Fortin, adult ed. director, said.

Fortin said people who missed the formal registration last week may sign up for classes by calling the high school at 547-4491 or by going to the high school office. Registration will also be accepted the first night of class. Classes will begin the week of Sept. 26.

A broad variety of courses is being offered through the adult education program this semester. U.S. history, sociology, deaf awareness and macramé will be offered on Monday nights, typing, consumer math, G.E.D. prep, basic woodworking, needlepoint and introduction to art will be offered on Tuesday, biology, will be offered on Wednesday and English, dry floral arranging and fabric painting will be offered on Thursday.

Medusa seeks tax break as part of expansion

As a part of its expansion program in Charlevoix, the Medusa Corporation will be seeking a tax break from the Charlevoix Township Board.

Under Public Act 198, governmental units are allowed to create an industrial development district which provides a property tax exemption for manufacturers proposing to expand or rehabilitate their plants.

The law was passed by the State Legislature in 1974 to encourage industry in Michigan to expand and to make it lucrative for the company to do so. The law is a means of combating the competitiveness of other states in attracting business away from Michigan.

Under the state statute, the company exempted the tax break is granted from one-half of the property taxes that would normally be levied on the new addition for 12 years. Medusa is planning a $50 million expansion, however, $5 million will be spent on pollution control equipment which is untaxable.

Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud said the township board is still considering Medusa's request for the property tax exemption. He said an informal poll of the board members indicated, however, that the board was in favor of granting the tax break.

Even with the tax break, it is estimated that by 1981, the Charlevoix plant will be paying approximately triple or $50,000 in property taxes to the township. This year the plant paid $200,000 in property taxes.

Several other plants in the Charlevoix area have applied for the property tax exemptions on expansions and received them. These plants include Lexallite Corporation of Charlevoix and Courter, Inc., of Boyne City.

School board sets date for public budget hearing

By FRANK MARTIN

Monday, Oct. 17, was set as the date of the hearing on the 1977-78 budget by the Charlevoix Board of Education.

The budget hearing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the high school study hall.

The certification of taxes for the townships and the city was made. For the townships, the levy will be as follows: Voted, 17.25 mills; Allocated, 8.1 mills; public library, 4 mill; 1958 debt retirement, .7 mill and 1968 debt retirement for 1.4 mills for a total of 2.85 mills. In the city of Charlevoix, the residents pay summer taxes or 30 percent of the winter taxes levied in December. This levy will be as follows: Voted, 9.125 mills; allocated, 4.55 mills; public library, 4 mill; 1958 retirement debt, .35 mills; and 1968 debt retirement, .7 mills for a total of 15.125.

Editorials/Opinions

School officials should keep voters informed of expenditures

Charlevoix School District officials are breathing sighs of relief this week following the approval of an additional one mill for operations by school district voters Sept. 12.

It could have been a long winter for the school district without the additional mill and the extra $86,000 it will add to the 1977-78 school year budget.

Because of the high property valuation in the area, the Charlevoix School District will not be getting any state aid for operational purposes this year and the school district officials were looking at a deficit budget to start the school year because of unanticipated cuts in state aid funding last year.

The newly approved mill will ease the strain that had been placed on this year's budget.

The administration and board of education have already begun to plan for the use of the additional mill in three areas: for eliminating the budget deficit, for starting much needed maintenance programs at the three schools, and for ordering materials needed for a special reading program at the middle school.

School Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren and various school board members have expressed their appreciation to the voters for the support of the school system they showed at the polls. The superintendent has also pledged he will keep the voters informed of what that mill is used for as it is split among various projects throughout the school year. Superintendent Van Wieren should be applauded for his pledge and encouraged to not only keep the voters informed about how the one additional mill is being spent but also to show how the entire 27.45 mills the school district is operating on are spent.

For far too long the financial operations of school districts have been a mystery to many of the people who vote to support it. School financial operations have not been secret because school officials have tried to make them that way, but due to the complexity of the funding formula and the lack of interest by citizens.

But as people continue to tighten their belts in light of every increasing utility and gasoline costs and with spiraling inflation, citizens should become more familiar with the budgets of schools and city government, just as they are familiar with their own household budgets.

After all, voters know how tough it is to make ends meet and they may have suggestions to aid the various governmental bodies in being as efficient as possible.

Keeping close track of the budgets will also help voters become familiar with the reason why increases are needed.

Letters to the editor

Berrien prosecutor thanks county for hospitality

To the Editor,
Recently, my Chief Assistant, Jeffrey Long, and I tried a change of venue Murder case in the Charlevoix Circuit Court. The defendant, David Purcell Murder and was last week sentenced to life imprisonment for the second time. My purpose in writing this is to thank the people of Charlevoix County for the exceptional hospitality and courtesy with which my staff and I were treated during our stay. Special thanks from the people of our county go to these jurors and prospective jurors who gave of their time to assist Berrien County in the administration of our Criminal Justice System.

Other than a most interesting afternoon at the Polish festival and rodeo at Boyne Falls, we did not get a chance to see much of your beautiful County, but all of us have resolved to go back sometime in the near future to do just that.

You see, I find it hard to believe that the legislators of at least three of the remaining states won't approve an amendment that will help end discrimination against over 50 percent

Very truly yours,
John A. Smeltanka,
Prosecuting Attorney

...Speaking Her Mind

This is a column about a $10 bet and women's rights. Now it may be hard to see what the two things have in common, but the connection between the two is the Equal Rights Amendment, which is commonly referred to as the ERA.

The Equal Rights Amendment resolution was passed by both houses of the U.S. Congress in 1972 and sent to the states for ratification. Two-thirds or 38 states must approve the amendment before March 22, 1979 in order for it to become a part of the U.S. Constitution. The amendment represents an attempt to remove the last bastions of discrimination against women from the constitution and from the daily lives of Americans.

Back in 1972, the amendment must have seemed like a good idea because 22 states, Michigan among them, ratified the amendment during the first year after Congress had approved the resolution.

And now only three more states are needed to make the ratification complete. But unlike the votes of the first 22 states, the last three votes are not cast easily. In fact, many women think the amendment is doomed.

That's where the $10 bet comes in. I have a cousin who is very active in women's rights activities. She's not a bra burner, but she does believe in myth buring. The more myths about what women can and can't do that she can burn out of people's minds, the happier she is.

She believes, needless to say, in the ERA. She feels that it will help both women and men. But she's not happy about way people are looking at the ERA. In fact, she bet me $10 that the amendment wouldn't be ratified by the deadline. I bet her it would be.

You see, I find it hard to believe that the legislators of at least three of the remaining states won't approve an amendment that will help end discrimination against over 50 percent

There is bad news, unless you are a duck.

Waterfowl hunters have been ordered to get the lead out, and substitute steel shot. But steel shot is expensive and hard to find. As a result, when the shooting season opens in October, there is the terrifying possibility that many ducks will not be shot and will escape the marshes and invade the cities to attack a defenseless population.

If such a disaster occurs, it will be the fault of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service which has ruled it OK to shoot the heads off ducks and geese, but it is not nice to poison them.

In the past, hunters have killed ducks by shooting clusters of lead pellets at them. Shotgun is remarkable efficient weapons, requiring minimal skill to operate successfully. This is because the shooter's aim need not be straight in a wide pattern, thus guaranteeing a Michigan hunter a hit if he shoots at the sky at the same time there is a bird flying in Michigan.

The trouble is, millions of the lead pellets don't hit birds but simply fall to the ground, not harmlessly. Wildfowl of the population in this country. I find it hard to believe that even though most of these legislators are men, that they can't see the advantages of raising such an amendment. I can't believe that they haven't already seen some wonderful things happen as a result of other changes in rules and regulations to end the discrimination against women.

One small example, which I find quite exciting, is in the world of women's sports. Women's sports have grown because of a law requiring that they be funded equally with boys sports. At first it looked like a dismal prospect and like the death of boys sports in most people's eyes.

But instead everyone got a pleasant surprise as they found that girls not only enjoyed sports but that many of them were excellent athletes. They also found that slowly but surely the spectators would come to watch girls games and now they believe eventually the women's sports events will pay for themselves.

This is just a small example out of the many that exist in the country. Many other examples can be found in the work world where women are making significant contributions in every phase of business and industry.

The legislators should remember that ending discrimination against women will help everybody. Women are becoming an important part of the system and have important things to offer. As the barriers that have prevented women to participate on a meaningful level in the past dissolve, the pressures that these barriers have put on men will also dissolve making the world a better place for everyone.

So don't disappoint me, you legislators out there that have yet to vote on the amendment. It is a vote for a better world.

And it will save me $10.

"If you can't beat 'em, join 'em!" That seems to be the battle cry of Michigan Republicans who convened this weekend on Mackinac Island to chart a new course into the 1978 elections.

In the past, the Republican party has been largely associated with business interests and the well-to-do, so far as Joe Factoryworker is concerned.

The image has not been preserved entirely, but enough stuffed-shirts have embraced the Republican philosophy to make it plausible.

Of course, over the years the party has had a comfortable cushion of blue-collar support, folks who believe in a fair day's work for a fair day's pay. They also believe able-bodied men and women should work rather than receive welfare. They believe free enterprise and laissez-faire are important adjuncts of American democracy, regardless of their own rung on the economic ladder.

I suppose many of them hope one day to be numbered among the coupon clippers of America.

Others, undoubtedly, have been spurred to support the GOP through altruistic motives. Spare, lean, Spartan Republican policies have a powerful appeal to the rugged individuals among us. Such policies smack of pioneer days and hearty independence.

But the days of conservative Republicanism apparently are over. At their off-year pep rally, Michigan Republicans practically gave the boot to Ronald Reagan and his ilk, while at the same time opening the door to minorities, blue collar workers, the poor and women. It was a matter of survival.

Illinois Rep. John Anderson told his fellow Republicans that over the years "the GOP has witnessed the growth of a

Erma Bombeck

People in my age bracket (commonly listed as over 40 on surveys and job applications) grew up with the following timetable:

College: 18-22
Marriage: 22-Infantry
Babies: 23-35
Retirement from scouting, car pools, plastic seat covers, live-in plumber: 39
Retirement from PTA, ironing, high school reunions, and taking a number to use the bathroom: 51

Over the past 10 years, the timetable has undergone some alterations and frankly, I wonder how all of it is going to work out.

Surveys now show the norm to be: College: 22-34
Marriage: 36 to later than evening
Babies: Later... much later.
None of it necessarily in that order. There's nothing wrong with this timetable except the concern that bodily changes are not necessarily keeping pace.

The way it stands now, a woman says goodbye to her teenager drivers one day and hello to hot flashes the next. The other way around - even one day - faction which seeks to impose its will on the party as a whole, a faction bent on driving out of the party anyone who does not ascribe to its philosophy."

"I'm speaking of those who call themselves Republicans, but whose real allegiance appears to be with organizations outside the party, whose apparent goal is to rob the party rather than revivify it, whose devotion to doctrine outstrips their dedication to party."

Farwell, Ronald Reagan.

Gov. Milliken put the new stance this way: "Any political party to win across the country has to be a so-called moderate party," he said. "That is not to say the Republicans should not have the whole range-conservative, moderate and liberal-but its strength comes from the middle."

And so it went throughout the convention, as speaker after speaker opened doors and windows to the winds of change.

My only question is what is going to become of the Old Guard Republicans? Will they form a new party? Will they conceal their conservatism under false colors? Will they make an attempt to outmaneuver their moderate brothers when it comes to hammering out party policy?

What the Mackinac Island Republicans have done, in effect, is organize a new party-slightly right of center but a giant step left of their conservative colleagues.

Perhaps in fairness to their colleagues, it is the new Republicans, not the Old Guard, who should assume a new name.

How about "Repuberats"?

Meet Charlevoix

...Jennifer Brindel

Jennifer Brindel is Director of Probation for the 90th District Court, which covers Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. This week the Courier talks with her about her job.

COURIER: What are your duties as Director of Probation?

BRINDEL: Supervision of probationers, pre-sentencing investigations, coordinating alternative sentencing programs, and making referrals to service agencies.

COURIER: Let's take these one by one. What about probationers?

BRINDEL: We supervise their activities. They report to us once a month or more often. If they have been referred to an agency, they bring us proof that they have been in contact with the agency for counseling. We make sure they keep up payments to the court if they owe money. We are generally concerned with their welfare and employment. We work closely with the Corrections Employment Agency. We are concerned that they stay out of trouble with the law.

COURIER: And pre-sentencing investigations?

BRINDEL: We interview the defendant and the plaintiff and other parties involved. We take the defendant's social and medical history, employment history, and check his past criminal history. We attach the police report to all this information, review the facts, and make a recommendation to the judge for sentencing.

COURIER: What types of cases are sent to you for pre-sentencing investigation?

BRINDEL: The more serious crimes - substance abuse. If special circumstances are involved, if restitution is involved.

COURIER: What are alternative sentencing programs?

BRINDEL: The biggest one is the county work program, where the defendant is sentenced to work for a specified number of days in lieu of going to jail. This saves the taxpayers money by eliminating the cost of jail lodging and provides a service to many non-profit organizations.

Examples would be jail maintenance, where he works under the supervision of the Sheriff; Grandview Medical Care Facility, where he works under the supervision of the Director; and this summer, the soft ball diamonds in Charlevoix.

COURIER: What do you mean by referrals?

BRINDEL: We refer people accused of alcohol-related crimes to the Counseling, Place of the District Health Department, to the Native American Recovery Center, and sometimes to the Chip Counseling Center. The same is true of those involved with drugs. Those accused of impaired driving, we refer to the structured classes at the counseling clinics, where they meet once a week for four weeks.

COURIER: What happens to people who violate probation or fail to appear for counseling?

BRINDEL: They usually receive jail sentences.

COURIER: What ages do you deal with mostly?

BRINDEL: Mostly 17 to 25, then it seems there's a jump to an older group.

COURIER: How many of them are women?

BRINDEL: Perhaps one in 10, though that may be a little high. The greatest number of women are picked up for larceny.

COURIER: Over all, what are most of your defendants charged with?

BRINDEL: Crimes in which alcohol is involved - driving while under the influence of alcohol, being drunk and disorderly, assault and battery, malicious destruction of property, etc.

COURIER: For how long are people put on probation?

BRINDEL: Six months, one year, two years. We become well acquainted with, and sometimes fond of, our probationers. We put people on probation, whom we feel need direct supervision. They are trying to prove to us that they are trying.

COURIER: How many people does your department handle in Charlevoix County in a year?

BRINDEL: Last year we had 196 people under our supervision.

COURIER: Who works with you?

BRINDEL: Debbie Dye works here in Charlevoix and Marcia Farley works in Emmet County.

COURIER: Do you have any new programs planned?

BRINDEL: Several. We are starting alcohol awareness classes for alcohol related offenses, personal insight classes for persons charged with larceny (shop lifting), and self awareness classes for violators of the Substance Control Act. Self awareness and insight deal with such laught by the Counseling Place. It is a psychological approach to the problem. We are also making a slide presentation on delayed sentencing for driving while under the influence of alcohol. This will be shown to organizations.

COURIER: How long have you been Director of Probation?

BRINDEL: Since the first of the year.

COURIER: What did you do before that?

BRINDEL: I worked part time in the Char-Em Intermediate School District as a teacher in the alternative education program for pregnant teenagers, as a substitute teacher in the Charlevoix School District, things as self-defeating behavior - anger, for instance, and stress values clarification. The classes are and as a counselor at the Friendship Center in Petoskey.

COURIER: What is your training for this type of work?

BRINDEL: I have a bachelor of science degree in secondary education with a major in psychology from Central Michigan University.

COURIER: Do you have a family?

BRINDEL: Yes, my husband, Gerry, is a school social worker in the Char-Em Intermediate District, and our son, Jason, is in the fourth grade.

Hubert Humphrey expresses concerns about rural areas

Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota recently expressed to the United States Congress what everyone in Northern Michigan knows.

Speaking before the Joint Subcommittee on Economic Growth and Stabilization, Humphrey said: "By almost any measure of economic, well-being - housing, transportation, energy, jobs, incomes - rural Americans are worse off than their urban counterparts.

"Part of the problem is that rural areas do not receive an equitable share of Federal assistance. They do not have highly paid lobbyists, the well-known mayors, or the media

"Congress and the administration do not hear about rural problems, because rural areas are not as well organized.

PICKETERS REPRESENTING the MEA services staff picketed the Weatheravane Inn last week during a Northern Michigan Education Association meeting.

MEA picketers march at Weatheravane Inn

A group of six picketers from the Michigan Education Association (MEA) services staff union amass outside the Weatheravane Inn for about four hours last week.

The picketers came from as far away as Dimondale, a small community outside the state capital of Lansing, to make their protest known to teachers and professional staff members attending a Northern Michigan Education Association meeting at the restaurant.

The services staff members, who work for the MEA in secretarial and maintenance positions, have been on strike since Aug. 31, when their contract expired.

The union and MEA negotiators are currently deadlocked over contract negotiations, Marty Smith of Traverse City, explained.

This is the first time that the services staff has struck in the nine year history of union organization. The professional staff struck three years ago and also this year for approximately two hours.

Ms. Smith said the basic disagreement between the services staff and the MEA negotiators is over seniority rights. She said the MEA has set up an affirmative action program and they are trying to get rid of the seniority system so that minority staff members can be promoted over employees with more seniority.

Chuck Barris, a picketer from Dimondale, said he was concerned about what giving up his seniority would do to his salary and the salary schedules for all employees. Barris has worked for the MEA for nine years.

Ms. Smith said there were five other major issues that the two sides could not reach agreement on. She said that if the two sides could reach agreement on the seniority issue the other five issues would probably fall into place and a contract agreement would be reached.

Charlevoix school district joins protest against unemployment benefits

The Charlevoix School District has joined with other school districts from across Northern Michigan in opposing Senate Bill 714, which deals with extending unemployment benefits for non-certified school personnel.

Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren joined superintendents of public schools and intermediate school districts from 52 communities in Gaylord recently to sign petitions addressed to state representatives and senators advising them about the problems that would be created if S.B. 714 is passed.

S.B. 714 was introduced into the Senate to meet federal unemployment requirements. The federal law gives state governments the option of making noncertified school employees eligible for unemployment benefits between school terms and during Christmas and Easter breaks or denying them these benefits.

The federal unemployment requirements specifically exclude teachers and administrators from being eligible for unemployment benefits during vacations and between school terms.

The state senate bill, as it is currently written, would provide unemployment benefits for noncertified personnel during vacations and in between terms.

Superintendent Van Wieren said that if the bill is passed as it currently stands, the Charlevoix School District will be required to pay up to $114,188 in annual unemployment benefits to its present noncertified employees. It would take approximately 1.5 mills to cover the additional benefits.

The superintendents are also urging citizens to write to their legislators about the problems and asking them to support the amendments proposed to S.B. 714.

"We need to have input on this from citizens as well as schools," Vince Olach, Charlevoix school's business manager, stressed.

Sen. Bob Davis, D-Gaylord, who represents about 60 school districts, said that he is opposed to the bill and is working to amend it to deny unemployment benefits during school year breaks.

Ruppe rep to visit county on Sept. 21

Jerry Newhouse, lower peninsula district representative for Congressman Philip E. Ruppe, will hold office hours in Charlevoix September 21 from 12 noon to 1 p.m.

He will be in the County Building to discuss any matters regarding the Federal government that citizens wish to learn about. No prior appointment is necessary.

By LAURA GLASS

Katrineholm, pronounced like it looks, is the home of Maria Aronson, a Swedish Exchange student who is staying here in Charlevoix.

Maria, 18 and a senior, is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Bean. This is the first time Maria has ever been to the United States and she said it was quite different from her home.

The school she goes to in Sweden is a lot different from Charlevoix High School, where she will be attending classes this year—for one thing it's much larger.

"There are about 800 students and 150 teachers," she explained.

And instead of going to public school for 12 years like Americans do, in Sweden, students go to school for nine years. Then the students have the option of either getting a job, which is difficult with such little training, or going on to what Swedes call Gymnasium—we call it college.

Gymnasium offers up to 15 different subjects and a student goes for two to four years, Maria said.

Maria has one year left to complete in Gymnasium, then she is going into business and banking.

At Charlevoix High School, played in her first game last week against Elk Rapids and did well, Coach Toni Felter said.

Maria said she became interested in being an exchange student after she talked to a girl who had just returned from the United States. Maria said our country is very interesting and she likes it very much.

Maria is taking U.S. government, typing, gym, Spanish II, behavioral science and accounting.

Sports also differ in Sweden, Maria said. What Americans call soccer is Swedish football. They also play ice hockey and a similar game called Bandy.

Maria is interested in sports and is a member of the Charlevoix High School Girls Varsity Basketball Team. She Laura is assistant editor for the "Flash," the high school newspaper, and a member of the yearbook staff. She is also a student council representative and is active in forensics at the high school.

Following graduation she hopes to attend Central Michigan University and major in communications.

She is the daughter of Dale and Janis Glass.

Owners and Managers Can We Help You Fill Vacant Units?

The Michigan State Housing Development Authority (MSHDA) is seeking the participation of owners of quality rental housing units for a new Rent Allowance Program.

Under the program, qualified tenants will live in housing units owned by participating landlords, and will pay a predetermined percentage of their monthly income to the landlords for rent. The difference between the amount paid by the tenant and the actual cost of rent and utilities for units will be paid directly to the landlord by MSHDA.

To participate, a landlord must execute a MSHDA approved lease with a participating tenant, and enter into a one year contract with MSHDA. Under the contract:

- * MSHDA automatically pays a substantial portion of the rent and utility cost of the unit directly to the landlord.
- * MSHDA guarantees 80 percent of the rent for up to 60 days to cover vacancy loss resulting from violation of the lease.
- * MSHDA guarantees a security loss of up to one month's rent.
- * MSHDA refers qualified applicants to the rental vacancy.
- * MSHDA provides for rent increases made necessary by legitimate cost increases.

Cindy Ager weds Edward Whitley

Cynthia Ager became the bride of Edward Whitley September 10 at St. Francis Church in Petoskey.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Ager of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James Whitley, also of Charlevoix.

The double-ring afternoon ceremony was performed before some 300 guests. Professor August Haybrecht provided the organ music, and vocal numbers were sung by friends of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long white empire style gown of polyester crepe fashioned with scalloped lace.

Sherry Withers served the bride as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Debbie Ager, Sue Cross, and Linda Foster. Their gowns were of peach nylon with scoop necks. Their bouquets were of peach, white and brown dried flowers.

Mrs. Ager wore a long navy blue gown for her daughter's wedding, and Mrs. Whitley wore a long turquoise gown. Following the wedding, a reception was given by the bride's parents at the Argonne Supper Club. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at Jullieret's of Petoskey.

Following a wedding trip through the west, the newlyweds will be at home in Charlevoix, where both are employed. The bride is a computer operator at a Fredman Artcraft, and her husband is an electrician for the City of Charlevoix.

Ma Bell lowering pay phone height

Michigan Bell is now in the process of lowering the height of its pay telephones to make them more accessible to handicapped persons, children, and others who have difficulty using standard-height pay phones.

She noted there are about 60 pay phones in the Charlevoix area.

Michigan Bell is also phasing out enclosed telephone booths, which can be a hindrance to some handicapped people, by mounting more pay phones on walls or metal poles, Miss Johnson says.

At present, she added, the company has about 3,000 enclosed telephone booths in the state, mostly outdoor booths along the highways.

Assembly of God members hold groundbreaking

Preparation for the construction of the new Charlevoix Assembly of God Church got underway last week at the church's property on N-46.

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new building were held Sept. 18 and excavation began last week.

The new building, which is expected to cost $300,000, will feature a sanctuary with seating for 500 people, plus classrooms and offices. A multipurpose room will also be included in the church and will be able to double for a fellowship and social area as well as a gymnasium.

Daniel Blechel promoted

Coast Guard Yeoman First Class Daniel L. Blechel, who wife Kathleen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Miles of 110 E. Upright St., Charlevoix, Mich., has been promoted to his present rank while serving at the Coast Guard Air Station, Cape Cod, Mass.

He joined the Coast Guard in August 1971.

Nursery school fun for parents

When 68 three, four and five year olds head for their first school experience at the Charlevoix Co-operative Nursery School next week, it will be a new experience for some other people, too—their parents.

As a part of the organization philosophy of the co-op nursery school, parents work right in the classroom along with the nursery school teacher.

The idea behind a co-op nursery school is to keep the cost of sending your child to nursery school down by having the parents assist the teacher in the classroom and with preparation work.

In addition to working in the classroom, parents may serve on a host of committees including a maintenance committee, a preparation committee or a scrum committee, Mrs. Puhl said. "The nursery school program is only as good as the parents that get behind it," Mrs. Puhl said. "Parents do all the day-to-day things and the teachers co-ordinate what's going on."

The president said that most parents find the days they spend assisting in the classroom very rewarding. "It's kind of funny, but the day I worked at nursery school I just loved it," she said, recalling her first days in school last year. "The day you work in just a ball, but you are so tired by the end of it that you can hardly stand up—and the class is only two and one-half hours long."

Mrs. Puhl said state laws require that two parents must assist the teacher each day in order to have the proper adult-child ratio. The parents just generally assist the teacher, but they also have their own small groups and activities that they center on during the day.

"Children adore the fathers when they come in," she said. "They really like to have the dads come in and work. In fact, if you are working on the day that a father comes in, you can count on having an easy day because most of the work is just a ball, but you are so tired by the end of it that you can hardly stand up—and the class is only two and one-half hours long."

The school, located in a classroom at the Charlevoix Elementary School, has 68 enrollees at this time. The school meets for three three-day sessions and two two-day sessions.

Mrs. James Miller is the teacher for the morning sessions and Mrs. Charles Taylor for the afternoon sessions. Parents also assist in the classroom as there is one adult for every four students at all times. Both fathers and mothers of students assist. There are presently 17 children in each session.

Classes are held from 9 until 11:15 a.m. and 1 until 3:15 p.m.

Shirley Roloff has received the award for her work with senior citizens. In addition to raising five children, baby-sitting for a host of others and participating in many community activities, Mrs. Roloff works with 12 senior citizens as an advisor. She has helped senior citizens with shopping and budgeting and even with moving. This last year she has been active in fighting rent hikes at the Southside Apartments on May Street which caused many senior citizens to move from the apartment complex due to lack of funds.

Floyd Jones has volunteered his time to the social services department transporting youth to and from Charlevoix. And as he has taken youth from Charlevoix to other areas he has found ways to counsel the youth and help them with their problems, too.

Janet Walter worked as a social services volunteer doing anything she could while she completed her high school studies and held down a full time job.

Richard Tilden, director of the Charlevoix social services department, said that throughout the year the 67 volunteers in this county had helped 600 clients and put in

Band members taking orders for community calendars

It's fall and that means football, color tours and marching band calendars. Members of the Charlevoix High School Marching Band will have their annual Community Birthday Calendar Drive on Saturday. Band members will be marching to door taking orders for the calendar which feature a color picture of the entire band and the birth dates and anniversary dates of Charlevoix area residents.

It's the biggest money raising project of the year for the band and the proceeds will be used to pay for the instruments used by band members and for the future purchase of uniforms, Joan Graves, chairman of the drive, explained.

If band members do not reach area residents or if people are not at home when the band members come, people may order calendars by filling out the following coupon and mailing it to Joan Graves, 206 Petoskey Ave., Charlevoix 49720, by Sept. 27.

All calendars will be mailed directly to the homes.

Any more than seven listings are free

Gospel businessmen to meet in Boyne City

The Northern Michigan Chapter of the Full Gospel Businessmen's Fellowship International will meet at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 26 at the Boyne City Elementary School.

Willie Murphy, co-pastor at Omega Fellowship in Santa Ana, Calif., and a gospel singer will head the program. He will present songs and testimony.

Interested people and their families are invited to attend.

This 3 bedroom modern home. Natural gas heat with basement and many additional features. You'll find this home clean and ready to move into. And it's priced at only $25,000.

BENZIE'S TONY DUTT (22) just barely gets the pigskin in his grasp when a Charlevoix defender reaches out to grab him. The Rayders took their second game of the season 35-6.

IT WAS AN interception for the Rayders as this player picked the ball out of the air in front of waiting Randy Wright (16). Rayders won the game 35-6.

CHARLEVOIX'S Darrin VanLoo (62) gets five from his teammate Erik Lundteigen (49) following a fine play by Lundteigen.

BALL CARRIER Neil Dziedzie (88) doesn't get too far on this play as the Benzie linemen are right there to stop the interception.

BENZIE'S RANDY WRIGHT (16) runs dejectedly away as Charlevoix's Kevin Kratt runs into the end zone for his second touch down of the game.

DAVE FOWLER came prepared for the bad weather with a rain suit and umbrella. No rain water was going to mess up his statistic sheets.

Strong defense takes Rayders to Victory

By BILL MERCER

Charlevoix swept to their second victory of the young season last Friday by defeating the Benzie-Benzie Central Huskies 35-6 on a rain soaked home field.

A strong defense anchored the victory.

A fumble recovery by Jim Alger at 10:30 in the first quarter opened the door for the initial Rayder tally. Strong defensive work by senior Joe Left caused the Huskies to misplay the pigskin.

Taking advantage of the miscue, quarterback Alger led the Charlevoix 11 to the Benzie three yard line, where he connected on a flare pass to Neil Dziedzie for a score. The point after attempt failed and barely five minutes into the game Charlevoix was on top, 6-0.

It didn't take long for the Rayder defense to once again show its superiority, as seniors Tom Jones and Kip Cinnamon twice caught Huskie runners in the backfield, forcing a punting situation.

Dziedzie then did his stuff, returning the punt to the visitor's 14-yard line.

Charlevoix penetrated to the Benzie three-yard line, when a home team fumble stopped the drive.

Again the defense came roaring in and with 2:06 remaining in the first quarter, Left caused the opposing quarterback to run out of the end zone. The 2 point safety made the score Charlevoix 8, Benzie 0.

Still in the first quarter, following the free kick to Charlevoix, Greg Krueger skirted the right side for 23 yards and the third Rayder tally. Guy Carter's kick conversion was good and with only seven seconds remaining it was Charlevoix ahead, 15-0.

The rain came in the second quarter and neither team was able to score. Both teams mounted drives, but were stopped by good defensive play and less than ideal conditions.

Junior Wayne Hoffman was instrumental in halting a Benzie drive when he picked off an errant Huskie pass and returned it to the visitors 44.

The Rayders were unable to capitalize on this miscue however.

Pat Klooster also intercepted a Huskie aerial just as the half ended.

Aside from the excitement of the Charlevoix 11, the home fans were treated to a fine performance by the Rayder Marching Band at half time. Despite playing in pouring rain, band director Gary Stutzman's troops put on an entertaining intermission program.

Taking the second half kick-off, Charlevoix's Kevin Kratt broke for a score. Heally, Guy Carter's kick conversion was good and with only seven seconds remaining it was Charlevoix ahead, 15-0.

Later in the fourth quarter, Dziedzie picked off a Benzie pass, giving Charlevoix the ball. The Rayders got to within seven yards of paydirt; but coughed up the ball on a missed hand off.

Benzie moved to their own 21 and returned the ball to the Rayders with a fumble. Charlevoix capitalized this time, as senior Bob Tilen carried three times to the four and Kratt handed the final two dives for the score. The through and downed the Huskie runner in the end zone for the second Charlevoix safety of the evening. Score: Charlevoix 23-Benzie Central 6.

Coach Don Carey's squad took the free kick and mounted another Rayder scoring drive. With the help of a Benzie penalty, the pigskin was carried to the four-yard line. From there Kratt busted out of the right side of the line for the touchdown. The defense tallied only four points this week, but they continually put the ball in good field position for the offense with timely fumble recoveries and pass interceptions.

Playing with a fervor reserved for victors, the defensive squad made the play extra exciting.

This week begins the Michigan-Huron Shores League play, as Charlevoix hosts Gaylord. The Blue Devils from the middle of the north appear to be top contenders for the league championship, so the game should provide a good look at how the home 11 will do against league competition.

Girls basketball team off to slow season start

It was a slow beginning for the Charlevoix High School Girls Varsity Basketball Team during their first home game of the season last week. The Rayders dropped their opener to the Elk Rapids Elks 40-20 in a nonconference play.

Coach Toni Felter said her team was cold almost the entire first half of the game.

"They only put up three shots the entire first quarter," Coach Felter said.

The Rayders were scoreless in the first quarter and only had 8 points in the second quarter. The Elks, on the other hand, were hot from the beginning putting in 12 points the first quarter and 14 points the second for a total of 26 points in the first half.

"They really pressured us," the coach explained. "And their turnovers were almost always turned into fast breaks. When they stole the ball they capitalized on it."

"They had one player, Barb Lundy, who scored 14 points the first half and about 10 of those points were scored in layups."

Miss Lundy was the game high scorer with 16 points total.

For the second half of the game, the tide changed however, as the Rayders came out of the locker room fighting.

"They really started playing ball the second half," Mrs. Felter said. "We matched them point for point in the third quarter and we were only behind by two points in the fourth quarter."

The coach credited Kris Fiedler with sparking the team and really opening the game up. Miss Fiedler was the high scorer for the Rayders with 12 points, most of them coming in the second half.

"I was really proud of the team the second half," Coach Felter said. "They really hustled and began getting the rebounds and working for the steals."

"They were really fun to watch. If they hadn't been so far behind, I think they would have done real well."

"If this is the type of team I'm going to have all year, the way they played the second half, I'm really going to enjoy coaching them."

The Rayders play at Central Lake Sept. 20 and then have their first conference opener Oct. 6 at Grayling.

JV girls take game 49-20

The Charlevoix High School Girls Junior Varsity Basketball Team opened their season on a bright note taking the Elk Rapids Elks 49-20.

"The JVs looked super," Varsity Coach Toni Felter said. "They ran fast breaks and played aggressive ball."

"They also played good team ball."

Everyone was off the bench and had a hand in the victory, she said.

Teresa Nolrot was the top scorer with 18 points and she was followed by Melinda Klooster with 14 points and Melanie Kertridge with 11 points.

The Junior Rayders led the entire way scoring 10 points in the first quarter, 15 points the second quarter, 12 points the third quarter and 12 points the fourth quarter.

Elk Rapids players scored 4, 4, 10 and 2 points in respective quarters.

The Junior Rayders are coached by Henry Wagner.

JIM WILLIS, commander of the Leslie T. Shapton Post 226 of the American Legion and Harold Thorne, Charlevoix Township recreation director, hoist a new flag at the township softball field. The American Legion donated the flag to the township. The legion donates flags to the sheriff's department, public schools, and other groups in the area as part of its community service. The flag pole was donated to the township by Impact Tool and Haggards Plumbing and Heating.

Against East Jordan

JVs take second game

The Charlevoix High School Junior Varsity Football Team continued in its winning ways last week with a 12-0 victory over the East Jordan team.

It was a battle of the defenses during the first quarter, but Bobby Russell opened the game up during the second quarter with a 55-yard run off tackle to make the score 12-0.

Russell, Scott Morgan and Phil Morrison had the interceptions.

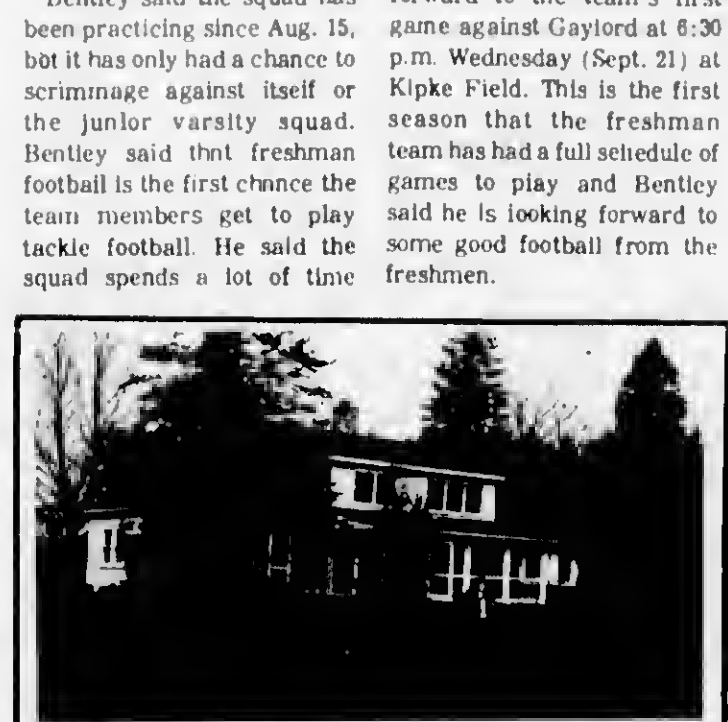

Evans said numerous penalties stopped the offense. Referees called 110 yards of learning about blocking and tackling and the basics of the game.

"We're not so concerned with winning and losing but with how the players are coming along," Bentley said. "And the squad did most things right during the scrimmage."

Bentley said in general overall play and spirit that Ben Shores, Pete Dunkelberg and Denny Morgridge impressed him the most during scrimmage play.

The coach said he is looking forward to the team's first game against Gaylord at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday (Sept. 21) at Kipke Field. This is the first season that the freshman team has had a full schedule of games to play and Bentley said he is looking forward to some good football from the freshmen.

Small, but quick is how the Gaylor Blue Devils coach described his team.

Coach Dutcher said his 35-member squad was small, but he felt maybe that gave the team some advantage.

"We're small but that is our strength because it gives us a little more quickness," Dutcher said.

The coach said he had done a little comparing of the Blue Devils and Rayder lines in preparation for this Friday's contest and he found that the Rayders had quite a bit of weight on their side.

"Man for man, Charlevoix outweighs our line by about 35 pounds," Dutcher pointed out. "You've got got those big guys like (Kip) Cline and (Tony) Jones weighing in at 230. That's quite a bit more than our line."

The Blue Devils are coming off a 1-6 league record and 2-7 overall season this year under their new coach, however, their record so far this season indicates great improvement.

The Blue Devils are 2-0 with wins against Ogemaw Heights and Onaway. So far the Blue Devils have not been scored against this season.

He felt the team's weakness was that it wasn't a fast, running team.

"But we do play fine defense," he added.

So far this season the Trojans have a 2-1 season and they also captured the Central Lake Invitational Tourney crown.

Last year the team finished with a 15-7 record.

George Washegic, 35, who died Saturday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital where he had been a patient for three weeks, were held at Brookside Cemetery Tuesday morning.

The Rev. Robert Behan, O.P.M. of St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey officiated. The rosary was recited in the Winchester Funeral Home Monday evening.

Mr. Washegic was born at St. James, Beaver Island, Dec. 2, 1882. He was a commercial fisherman and had lived at various ports along Lake Michigan. In recent years he had lived in Charlevoix.

He was married to the former Sarah Peters, who preceded him in death in 1929. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. William (Mary) Moore, of Benzonia, two sons, Alex and David of Charlevoix, 30 grandchildren, 44 great-grandchildren, 13 great-great-grandchildren and a brother, James Washegic of Charlevoix.

4,000 hours of volunteer time. The volunteers had also transported clients more than 22,000 miles.

In terms of dollars, at the minimum wage, volunteers donated $45,500 in free services last year through their volunteered time and material contributions.

At a statewide level more than $50 million has been donated by volunteers to the Department of Social Services.

John Dempsey, head of the State Department of Social Services, addressed the volunteers at the special luncheon and thanked them for their efforts.

"Volunteerism is more than 'do goodism'. It is an important part of the operation of the social services department," Dempsey said. "It is a means through which the state can better help the individual."

Obituary

Lillian Bartholomew
Funeral services for Mrs. Floyd Bartholomew, 96, who died Sept. 15 at Beverly Manor Convalescent Home in Petoskey where she had been a patient for 3 1/2 years, were held Saturday at the Winchester Funeral Home. The Rev. Austin Regier officiated. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

Mrs. Bartholomew, the former Lillian Smith, was born in Hayes township May 18, 1881. On Dec. 5, 1900 she was married to Mr. Bartholomew. They made their home in Hayes township until Mr. Bartholomew died in 1928. Mrs. Bartholomew preceded her husband in death in September 1962. She was a member of the United Methodist Church and the Thoburn-Nagler circle.

She is survived by a son, Clair J. of Horton Bay; three grandsons and 14 great-grandchildren.

George Washegic
Graduate services for George Washegic, 35, who died Saturday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital where he had been a patient for three weeks, were held at Brookside Cemetery Tuesday morning.

The Rev. Robert Behan, O.P.M. of St. Francis Xavier Church in Petoskey officiated. The rosary was recited in the Winchester Funeral Home Monday evening.

Mr. Washegic was born at St. James, Beaver Island, Dec. 2, 1882. He was a commercial fisherman and had lived at various ports along Lake Michigan. In recent years he had lived in Charlevoix.

He was married to the former Sarah Peters, who preceded him in death in 1929. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. William (Mary) Moore, of Benzonia, two sons, Alex and David of Charlevoix, 30 grandchildren, 44 great-grandchildren, 13 great-great-grandchildren and a brother, James Washegic of Charlevoix.

Steffes plans athletic club

Tennis and swim buffs take heart.

Once again plans are being considered for the construction of indoor tennis courts and a swimming pool in the Charlevoix area.

Ron Steffes, developer of the Dunes Condominiums on Michigan Avenue, is considering constructing an athletic club on property on M-66. The property, which Steffes owns, is currently being used as the site of a driving range and miniature golf course. He has operated it for two years.

Steffes, who has been coming to the area since 1949, said that over the years his thoughts have been that Charlevoix could use indoor tennis courts and an indoor swimming pool.

"Part of the reason people choose to live in and visit Charlevoix is because of the water and the outdoors," Steffes pointed out. "But because of the short summer season, they don't get a chance to enjoy it for too long."

"An athletic club would give people the opportunity to do the things they enjoy doing in Charlevoix all year long," Steffes said he is tentatively planning a facility that will include four indoor tennis courts, four indoor handball and racquet ball courts, an Olympic size swimming pool, locker rooms, a small dining room and meeting rooms.

Steffes said the property on M-66, which is a 81-acre parcel, would be an ideal location because it was easily accessible and had city water and electricity.

"I do think the idea of an athletic club will become a reality eventually," Steffes said. "But I don't know when I would like to begin construction next year."

"However, it is a rather extensive project and it may be two early in history for this type of thing."

Steffes said the whole project hinges on public response to the idea of the construction of an athletic club.

"If it is constructed or not depends on the popularity of the idea, the number of members we could attract and whether or not the meeting rooms would be used," he said.

The contractor said he may just build tennis and racquet ball courts without the swimming pool and other rooms. If he can't get the support he needs.

Steffes did approach the Charlevoix Board of Education recently about having the schools use the athletic club for gym classes during the days.

"I felt something could be worked out where the school would use the swimming pool and courts for gym classes for a rental fee," the contractor explained.

He said this would also insure him of enough usage to keep the facility operating.

"I see it as an opportunity for the Charlevoix school system to provide facilities without having to pass millage to acquire them," he said. "If I had the cooperation of the schools, together we could provide a service and a facility for the community."

Superintendent Gordon Van

Wieren said this board could not commit future school boards to the use of the facility.

For the privacy seeker. This three bedroom one and a half bath home offers all the advantages of one of Charlevoix's most unique areas. Close to Lake Michigan (2 blocks) and close to the city. Maximum privacy on this heavily wooded lot. This attractive package priced at $229,500.

City council may adopt new zoning ordinance

When Charlevoix Common Council meets next Monday night, the proposed new zoning ordinance is expected to again appear on the agenda.

The proposed ordinance has appeared on the council's agenda for at least two public hearings and numerous work sessions over the last two years, but next week it finally may be adopted as the new zoning law for the city.

One of the main reasons for the council's revived interest in the proposed ordinance is the section that sets up a planning commission for the city, according to Ivan Whitley, chairman of the Ecology, Development and Land Use Committee.

"We're getting more and more of these site plans to review and it's taking up too much time," Whitley said. "We can't get anything else done."

"If we had a planning commission, they could listen to the problems and work them out and all we would have to do is approve or disapprove the plan."

Under the proposed ordinance, the planning commission would work as an advisory body to the common council handling the site plan reviews and any rezoning requests. The planning commission would study the various proposals, do the leg work and then make recommendations to the common council. Council would then vote to accept or reject the commission's suggestions.

Council would still have the power as the zoning board of appeals and would hear all variance requests.

"I think most members of the council agree that we need a planning commission in this city," Alderman Jeannine Wallace said concurring with Whitley. "It's something I've been after for four years."

"The council can't always be out on the site checking out things and making sure the proposed development will fit into the area. We have too many other things we're supposed to be doing," Mrs. Wallace said explaining her stand.

"If you have a planning commission, that's all they have to do. That's all they have to think about and they have the time to really consider what ramifications a proposed development will have on the city."

The proposed ordinance is a refinement of many ordinances that have been discussed in the past several years. It combines suggestions made by the Regional Planning Commission, which was composed of members from the city as well as Charlevoix Township; Bill Mercer, former county planner, and current common council members. The proposed ordinance, if adopted, would replace zoning law written in 1943 for the city.

The ordinance has several new sections including one on Planned Unit Development (PUD). The PUD zoning recognizes there are unique parcels of property within the city where mixtures of uses such as commercial, residential and recreational could be placed side by side in such a way so as not to be harmful to each other.

However, due to objections at public hearings most of the land classified as PUD has been removed from the zoning map.

The ordinance also establishes a single commercial zone and a special central business district.

"It tightens up a lot of loopholes we have in our current ordinance," Mrs. Wallace said.

"And it takes care of a lot of dead trap areas in the city that need attention as far as proper zoning is concerned," Alderman Joe Morris added.

More on Sales Tax

The sales tax overcharge reported by a writer last week is not an isolated case. I have noted for many years that numerous merchants make an overcharge. Usually it is only a penny and most people are not aware of it. The sales tax on the first $1.50 is more than 4 percent.

1 to 12 cents	0 cents
13 to 31 cents	1 cent
32 to 54 cents	2 cents
55 to 81 cents	3 cents
82 to 1.08 cents	4 cents
1.09 to 1.35	5 cents
1.36 to 1.62	6 cents

Over $1.50 the tax is a straight 4 percent, a penny being added at each 13 cents over 25, 50, 75 and $1. Some merchants read the tax from two different figures, from the dollar amounts and then go back to the cents sales for the balance of the tax amount. This is wrong. The tax is on one sales figure. Last week the writer stated the purchase was $3.55. The tax is 14 cents.

When the tax law was originally passed there were many sales of 5 cents and 10 cents and this variance was put in to compensate the merchants. Now there are few items sold under 13 cents. I think the legislature should renovate this part of the sales tax act.

Road Mess

What was the bright idea behind the spending of all that good money to chop up U.S. 31 (in town and out) and fill it with bumps?

Assessors Can Help

The Courier pointed out this week that because we are in an area of high property assessment, our schools don't get any state aid. This is one reason why we are constantly being taxed more and more for school support. If our assessed valuation could be lowered to a reasonable level, our taxes would go down, and our schools would get state aid. It seems to me that the assessors could do a valuable unwinning of this vicious circle. Thank you.

Question Sign Placement

Sometimes I question the intelligence of Charlevoix officials. At the end of Mason Street they placed a brand new dead end sign. If anyone can't see that the lake is at the end of the street then they deserve the bath they get. I think the sign is a useless expense of money.

P.S.

WEATHER

Through September 23, there were 2.13 inches of rainfall, which fell on 18 of the 23 days of the month.

Rain puts damper on shopping center plans

Rainy weather for the last 18 out of 23 days has done more than put a damper on the spirits of Charlevoix residents. It's dampened the efforts of construction crews at the site of the proposed new shopping center, too. The watery down pour has turned the construction site for the new shopping center on M-66 into the largest mud puddle in the city.

"We're two to three weeks behind schedule because of the lousy weather," Rick Walker, of Weatherford / Walker Developments, developers of the shopping center, explained.

"The type of construction work we've had to complete is mostly underground and this type of weather really affects it."

Walker said the steel for the construction of the buildings was moved to the site via bulldozer Monday. The trucks hauling the steel to the construction site were ready to roll a week ago but were held up due to soft ground conditions at the site.

Walker said no new leases had been signed by businesses interested in becoming a part of the shopping center. However, representatives of Family Federal Savings, which now has offices on Bridge Street, did approach the Charlevoix Common Council Monday night at its committee of the whole meeting with a tentative site plan and a request for a building permit.

The bank is considering constructing a free standing buildings at the shopping center site.

Walker said he expected to meet with a druggist Tuesday to discuss leasing space at the shopping center and that leases had also been sent people considering opening a family restaurant and a children's clothing store.

In the past, the developers have also talked with people interested in opening a card shop, a sporting goods store, men's clothing store, women's clothing store and a music store in the shopping center. However, none of the deals were ever finalized.

Glens Markets and Ben Franklin were the first two businesses to sign leases with the developers.

Weatherford / Walker had originally planned to open the shopping center Nov. 15, but the developers are not sure how much the bad weather will delay the opening.

LOUSY WEATHER has put a damper on construction plans at Captain's Corners, the proposed new shopping center on M-66. However, steel trucks and bulldozers did move steel beams onto the site Monday so that construction of the building can begin.

Many Charlevoix residents self-employed

How strong an urge does the average Charlevoix County resident have to become self-employed, with a business of his own?

How many men and women, locally, have taken that step and are now their own bosses, for better or for worse?

According to the Labor Department, embarking on such a course can be risky, rewarding or disastrous, depending upon a number of factors. The mortality rate among new business is very high.

However, the hazards involved do not seem to faze would-be entrepreneurs. Each year an additional number of them take the plunge.

They put whatever savings they have and whatever money they can borrow in to making the big move. Some succeed, some don't.

Many of those who have set out on their own in the last few years had been out of work for a long time and had become tired of waiting for jobs to materialize.

In Charlevoix County, the latest figures indicate, the proportion of the working population that is self-employed has been on the rise since 1970.

Approximately 780 men and women in the area now derive their chief income from their own business, profession, farm or trade.

They are the storekeepers, the doctors, the farmers, the barbers, electricians, gas station operators and the like.

What this means, in terms of the total number of employed people in Charlevoix County, is that close to 11.6 percent of them are self-employed.

The proportion is somewhat greater, it is found, than in many parts of the country. In the United States a total of 8.8 percent are self-employed and, in the East North Central States, 7.6 percent.

Throughout the nation as a whole, in line with the overall increase in the population, there has been a growth in recent years in the number of non-farm businesses. Off-setting this rise, however, has been the decline in the number of farm operators.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reports that there are now more than 7.8 million people in the United States who are self-employed, compared with 8.8 million in 1970. It is an increase of 14 percent.

Clark station hit by armed robber

An apparent armed robbery occurred at the Clark Gas Station at 943 State St. in Charlevoix early Tuesday morning.

The robbery took place at approximately 4:40 a.m. when a male dressed in a red ski mask and armed with a handgun entered the station, according to Police Chief Jack Mol.

Eric Erickson, 19, was on duty at the station which is open 24 hours a day.

Erickson was not hurt during the robbery.

The thief, who was described as tall and slim, took between $10 and $50. His means of escape is not known.

Charlevoix City Police are continuing their investigation with the assistance of the Michigan State Police and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

Rayder band marching into great season

They're proud, they're talented and when they march out on the football field on Friday nights, they're spirit personified.
 They're the Charlevoix High School Rayder Marching Band, a group of 98 dedicated kids who want to make half time and before and after the football game every bit as exciting as the game itself.
 And this is the band that can do it, according to Gary Stutzman, director of bands.
 "We've got an exceptional group of kids in the band this year," Stutzman said. "Musically they're super and as far as marching is concerned they're at mid-season form now."
 "When I assessed the band at the beginning of the year, you know, like a coach assesses his team, I was depressed. I just didn't think we'd have much this year. But the kids have already far and away exceeded what I expected. I'm prejudiced I'm sure, but I feel I could put this band up against a lot of college bands and they would hold their own."

 Stutzman attributes the success of the marching band this year to the effort, the 80 musicians and 18 special corps members have put into the performances.
 "Everybody is working hard and giving 100 percent," the band director said. "They have come to 7 a.m. practices and just about everybody shows. They're really working hard."

For instance, during Friday's show the marching band used a drill during one of the songs from the drum and bugle corps style of marching. The band learned the corps style from its student teacher Dave Riley, who is from Central Michigan University.
 "The corps style has a very fluid motion," Stutzman explained. "More time is spent with the sound and a majestic flow of the music." In the past the band has followed a military style of marching which is precise marching with methodically counted out drills. Stutzman plans to incorporate the two styles of marching to make the Charlevoix band a show band.
 "A show band does a lot of dancing and the flag corps and other special corps do a lot of dancing," Stutzman explained. "Basically the band is there to entertain the people. And that's what I think the band should do."

To provide more color for the band this year, Stutzman has added a color guard consisting of four rifle bearers. The flag corps, Golden Girl and drum major are also back for this season.
 "The special units add more color, more movement and more excitement to the band," Stutzman explained. "They're out there for visual effects and they help the band provide something for everybody."
 The band director said he likes to keep an element of surprise in the show that the band gives and the special units can help provide that. It keeps the audience on their toes and gives them something they didn't expect, he explained.
 Stutzman said the band will not be performing the same show every week, but will repeat some numbers from week to week. One number that band supporters can look forward to is a show that will be done to the music from the science fiction movie, "Star Wars."
 He said the best way to enjoy the band's shows is to watch that part of the band the viewer likes best and take in a little of what the rest of the band is doing, too.
 Stutzman said the band is also working to create more unity within the student body as well as to be top performers.
 "The music department and the athletic department can work together to pull the school together," Stutzman said. "We can get the students to pull together and aiming in one direction."

Parents enjoy attending classes

The Charlevoix Public Schools were filled with oversized students for three nights last week as parents attended the same classes their children are taking during the day.

The parents participated in mini-sessions where they learned about the content of each class, how the students will be graded and what type of homework assignments their children will be receiving during the year.

The parents followed the same class schedule as their children, only classes were abbreviated to fit the entire school day into one hour.

Following the class visitation, parents were invited to talk informally with administrators over refreshments.

"I've heard nothing but positive things about the mini-sessions," Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren said. "We're pleased with the way the sessions turned out."

Roy Fortin, assistant principal at the high school, said the turn out of parents in his building wasn't as large as the staff would have liked, but the evening went very well. "Parents were enthusiastic about the program and they appreciated having it early in the year so that they could learn about the classes now," Fortin said.

Approximately 175 parents visited the middle school during the mini-sessions, Vice-Chair, middle school principal, said.

"I heard a lot of good comments about the sessions and we got a lot of good suggestions from parents," Chew said.

Superintendent Van Wieren said the staff and administrators would be evaluating the mini-session program before they determined if it would be held again. VanWieren invited parents who attended the sessions to call him with any suggestions or comments they had about the program.

Middle school windows replaced and recycled

Workmen began installing new window panels at Charlevoix Middle School last week.

The new windows are part of an overall maintenance and renovation program funded at the school through a special mill approved by voters last spring for five years.

Elementary school plans Grandparents Day Oct. 7

The Charlevoix Elementary School will hold its fourth annual Grandparents Day Oct. 7.

Grandparents are invited to visit the K-5 school located on Division Street between 9:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. and to attend classes with their grandchildren.

The visitors are also invited out to school district residents. If there are any windows left over they will be divided between interested people.

Van Wieren said no windows would be handed out for resale purposes. Interested people should contact the superintendent's office at 547-6573.

to have lunch with the students in the school cafeteria. The lunch menu will consist of spaghetti, rolls, buttered corn and chilled pears. Lunch will cost 60 cents for visiting grandparents.

Students to have Oct. 5 off for area wide inservice day

Charlevoix School District students will have a day off from school Oct. 5.

All teachers from the school district will be participating in an area wide inservice training program with teachers from throughout the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District on that day.

The inservice program is a general one based on recommendations from the teachers in the intermediate district. The keynote speaker will be Cliff Telling of Minnesota who will discuss humanizing education.

Mini-session topics that teachers will discuss range from career education and education for the gifted to Title IX and sex discrimination to math, art and music.

Marching band festival set Saturday in Harbor

Oct. 1 will be a special day for area marching band lovers.
 The third annual Northern Michigan Marching Band Festival will be held that day at the Harbor Springs Ottawa Stadium.

The Charlevoix High School Marching band will be participating in the festival along with 12 other marching bands from throughout the area.

Starting at 8:30 a.m. the bands will perform a show for three clinicians. Their performance will be taped and the clinicians will give band members and their directors some tips on how they can improve their performances.

Historical society plans informal meet

The next meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society will feature an informal program with members and friends recalling events of childhood.

The meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, October 4, at 8 p.m. in the Community Room of the First State Bank of Charlevoix. Remembrances may relate to the Charlevoix scene or elsewhere. "Many present residents of the Charlevoix area were born in other parts of Michigan or outstate," comments Ed. Reuter, Society president. "As in the early years of settlement, high schools and the kids learn a lot, too."

Clinicians participating in the festival this year are Ken Smeek from Bridgeport High School, who will work with the bands in general; Tom Bennett from Central Michigan University, who will work with the percussion sections; and Pam Worlth from Ohio, who will work with the color guards.

Bands participating in the festival besides Charlevoix are: Harbor Springs, Potoskey, Elk Rapids, Manistowish, Kalkaska, Forrest Area, Boyne City, Glenn Lake, Benzie Central, Frankfort, Grayling and East Jordan.

Three paintings of early Charlevoix scenes by Captain Ray Knight will be exhibited at the meeting. They were acquired for display in the proposed historical museum.

Congratulations Medusa on open approach to plans for area

Medusa Corporation should be congratulated on its proposed new expansion program at the Charlevoix plant. The company has certainly gone to great lengths to improve things for the community as well as for itself. In its announced plans, the company stressed that the expansion and conversion from wet process to dry process will help it double its production and improve the quality of the cement coming from the plant—all with less energy use and at less expense. This puts the company in a more competitive position in the cement industry, which after all is good business.

And let's face it, Medusa is in the cement business to make money. Any expansion or change that can help the company do that is a good move for it to make. But, in addition to improving its position in the cement market, the company is trying to improve its position in Charlevoix. A cement plant will never make a good neighbor. The nature of the business—quarrying, dust, odor—just doesn't allow it.

The company has pledged to cut down on the dust, the odor and the noise. Various officials in the county seem satisfied that the corporation will keep its pledge. Township officials have been working with Medusa on the expansion and conversion plans as have other officials in the county.

Medusa officials have also met with a group of private citizens called the Charlevoix Citizens Committee to explain the company's plans and to listen to the citizens' concerns.

and comments about the expansion. As Scott Rogers, president of Medusa Corporation, said: "We have plants in 61 communities across the country and they are all the size of Charlevoix or smaller. When you have that you get to know how to live decently."

"We hope to bring all of that expertise to bear on any problems that you might experience here."

So far, Medusa has done a good job of trying to get along in the community. If the company continues to be as cooperative and open to suggestions and criticisms as it has in the past, Charlevoix and the cement plant will remain good neighbors.

But citizens should not hesitate to take Rogers up on his pledge. If they feel the company is not living up to its end of the bargain they shouldn't hesitate to complain. But they should also take time to listen to the reasons for the problems and what the company is trying to do about them.

Other industries in the area would do well to model themselves after Medusa. The time to be concerned about the environment is now and the time to start becoming good neighbors is now, too.

Charlevoix cannot survive without its industries, but it cannot survive without its super environment, either. Both the residents and the industries can work together toward that goal.

Medusa has taken a step in that direction and should be applauded for its concern.

Letters to the editor

Shrine group looking for children to help

Dear Editor,
First, let me state that I represent the Northwest Shrine Club and that our membership is drawn from Emmet, Charlevoix, Antrim and Kalkaska Counties.

Next, this same letter is being sent to editors in each of these counties because the response and the needs are the same in all. Please do not regard this as just another form letter.

For several years our Shrine Club has promoted a Fall Concert, involving the talent of the Million Dollar Shrine Band from Saladin Temple, Grand Rapids. Our success has been gratifying and we are proud of the people of our communities for the support and cooperation they give.

Now, to the main purpose of this letter—would your readers help our Shrine find a lost child anywhere in their county area? The lost child is under fifteen years of age, may be crippled, disfigured, scarred or burned; and may possibly need orthodontic care. Would any of your readers take a moment to tell any Shrine about such a child? Everything possible will then be done to bring comfort and relief to the child who truly needs and can benefit from our help.

If I have failed to complain or be critical of anything I am not one bit sorry. I do want to thank you and your readers.

Sincerely,
Keith R. Annear, P. Pres.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

Perhaps it was a mistake to go to Canada this summer. I had grown so accustomed to the taste and texture of factory-baked bread laced with preservatives that I was fairly content with my lot in life.

It didn't matter that the chemical arena would fairly knock me over when I opened a loaf of bread fresh from the grocery store. That is the way bread is supposed to smell, isn't it? Like a drug store?

And it didn't matter that the texture was so soft that it rejected kindly applications of peanut butter or braunschweiger. Apply any pressure at all and the bread flattened out like a pot-holder. But isn't bread supposed to be soft and spongy, with a whipped texture? I think that's what the ads say.

Then came our week-long vacation in Canada in mid-August—seven solid days of golden, down-home loaves that convinced me Americans are being short-changed in the bread department.

Now mind you, I'm not talking about the end-products of small, neighborhood bakeries which are uniformly fine if expensive on both sides of the border. I am referring instead to the stock-in-trade of large commercial bakeries which supply giant supermarkets with thousands of loaves of bread a day. Loaves which, in Canada, are every bit as good as the home-baked variety and in some instances better.

The major difference I noticed is that Canadian bread comes in paper bags upon one end, rather than in plastic wrap, sealed tight. Of course, you have to slice it depending on how hungry you're going to use it. Fat slices for hungry kids' lunches; thin slices for breakfast toast; medium slices for sandwiches.

Unfortunately, the bread we brought home with us from the Canadian Soo was soon gone and I looked forward to a dismal winter of factory-baked bread redolent with the aroma of calcium propionate, which, the label tells us, is added to "retard spoilage."

Then suddenly, about three weeks ago I decided to boycott calcium propionate, which I can hardly pronounce and certainly don't want to eat.

I got out the cookbook, assembled my tools and ingredients and set to work. I would become a baker in my spare time.

Since then I have turned out a half-dozen batches of bread each one better than the one before. I have been largely self-taught, although Judy has been able to offer me a little advice on the fine points of the business, like turning the loaves upside down and thumping the bottom for a "hollow" sound to see if they are done.

My first bread took most of one Saturday morning to complete. But now I have the process fairly fine-tuned to about three hours. Of course, you have plenty of time on your hands while the dough is variously "resting" or "rising."

I also have found that our trusted cookbook can't be trusted in the bread department. For example, two hours is recommended for the first rising. If my dough rose two hours it would force us all into the attic.

I also have found that spare evenings are a better time to bake bread than weekends, since I'd only fritter away the time anyway. Furthermore, there is less confusion around the house on weekdays and it's easier to time the various phases of bread-making more precisely. Besides, when the dough is rising, you get a chance to sit down and read with a clear conscience. After all, aren't you busy baking bread?

Incidentally, Egyptians baked bread 20 centuries before Christ, and the earliest Europeans, the Lake Dwellers, practiced the art in Switzerland before that. It's no big deal; but it sure tastes good.

Remember that judge who said the United States is being destroyed by selfish citizens who would rather go to the bathroom than build a courthouse? He really started something.

It was 2 months ago that I wrote about District Judge John Spies of Lapeer County. He was outraged by the results of a local newspaper poll which showed that, by a 3-to-1 margin, taxpayers wanted a public rest room downtown more than they wanted a new courthouse. The judge made his outrage public in a letter to the editor which said many incredible things, including this:

"...Human beings are, for the most part, incapable of seeing beyond their own little egotistic world. They cannot take the broad view, looking to the best interests of their community and the nation. They sit on the throne of their water closets and see only the contents of the bathroom, with no conception of things beyond these 4 walls. And it is this shortcoming of human nature which will ultimately lead to the destruction of our democracy."

There is no intention here to mount a prolonged crusade against Judge Spies. I have known him for many years and he is a nice man. He used to sing in the church choir with my wife.

He is devoutly sincere when he warns that this nation will crumble under the weight of too many johns and too few courthouses. And he is correct when he says Lapeer County's ancient courthouse is woefully inadequate, and a new one is needed.

I wouldn't be taking a second run at the controversy except for the strong reader reaction to my first column on the subject. It isn't only Lapeer County shoppers who are unhappy because they have no place to go. The Detroit area is full of people who are angry at merchants who offer their customers no relief.

According to my mail, supermarkets and banks are the worst sinners. There isn't the space here to relate all the horror stories, and I'm not sure you would want to read them anyway.

Suffice it to say that apparently the only way to get a store manager to show a little compassion is to threaten to instruct your child to make a mess on his floor.

On the positive side, it can be noted that many elderly people and mothers with children speak warmly of downtown Hudson's for providing large, clean rest rooms. A Grosse Pointe Park woman wrote it this way:

"I am an elderly senior citizen and no longer drive, but the SEMTA bus stops just 3 doors from my home, and I'd go downtown often if I didn't have to worry about you know what. After I shop Hudson's I'd like to explore downtown—I'm not afraid; I like downtown Detroit—but I can't go any distance from Hudson's for fear I can't make it back in time."

It was my suggestion to Judge Spies that, in a democracy, the people are supposed to decide what is most important to the people.

He shouldn't be surprised—let alone outraged—at the result of that newspaper poll. Taxpayers without a public john will always vote to build the john instead of an office for a judge who already has an office.

The trouble is that taxpayers usually don't decide these things. No election is held, and government officials scoff at public opinion polls. The officials know what's good for the public, even if the public is too dumb to know for itself.

The government big shots say public rest rooms are impractical because people are pigs, and vandals are rampant. Bureaucrats always have a problem for every solution. They don't want to hear how those problems have been solved in other towns.

It is always a matter of priorities, and the boys at City Hall want to establish their own. A top priority is getting the names of city councilmen engraved on the cornerstone of a $6 million courthouse. A low priority is getting those named pointed on the side of a $30,000 public toilet.

So it is no surprise that Lapeer County commissioners recently agreed to construct a court building. It will cost $2.5 million. As of this writing, no one is planning to build a public toilet. Do not cross your legs until it happens.

County commissioners recently allotted space in the planned building. They balked at plans for Judge Spies and the other district judge.

The commissioners think the 2 judges could share one john. But the blueprints give each judge his own private bathroom. Spies said two is the architect's idea, not his. Darn architect.

When it comes to judging selfishness in the water closet, a lot depends on who has to go.

...Speaking Her Mind

The number of movies and television programs about the journalism profession that has cropped up since the Watergate scandal never ceases to amaze me.

Last week I saw the tail end of yet another television show about life on a big city newspaper. That brings the count, I believe, to at least one movie and three television shows that have reporters or editors or photographers or all three as the main characters.

I can't even begin to count the number of shows where reporters, editors, television newspaper, etc., etc., are important supporting characters. We're just in vogue I guess.

I've been pretty impressed with the accuracy of the portrayal of the reporters and editors. In the movie, "All the President's Men," those two wonder reporters Woodward and Bernstein, who broke open the Watergate case were shown up at all hours and working hard to get the facts so they could write stories that were as accurate as they could possibly be.

We're pretty impressed with the accuracy of the portrayal of the reporters and editors. In the movie, "All the President's Men," those two wonder reporters Woodward and Bernstein, who broke open the Watergate case were shown up at all hours and working hard to get the facts so they could write stories that were as accurate as they could possibly be.

The Lou Grant Show accurately describes the crusty old city editor in his quest for truth and superbly written stories. He is firm in his convictions and doesn't take any guff from young upstart reporters.

In my limited experience, I would say that these shows are really giving the public a good look at what newspaper people are like and at what the journalism profession is all about. But these shows are still a little sugar coated. They don't really let the people see the frustrating little things that journalists have to deal with during their day-to-day operations.

I would like to dispel a few myths. For one thing, in the movies and television shows, they never deal with the problems reporters have with their typewriters. They never show a typewriter breaking down 45 minutes before deadline, but believe me I've seen it happen.

And they never show reporters changing the ribbons on their typewriters. I have seen grown reporters cry when they have to change the ribbon on their typewriter. Have you ever seen a reporter up to his or her elbows in typewriter ribbon on television? No, but that doesn't mean it doesn't happen.

Or how about the reporter who is sipping a friendly cup of coffee during an interview when he suddenly discovers that the fly he had been swatting in the air is now floating in his cup. An hour television show could be spent on just telling the reporter out of that sticky situation.

And of course a TV or movie reporter's only pen never runs out of ink and the pencil lead never breaks right in the middle of the most important quote that was ever uttered, but it happens. Why I've heard of reporters resorting to writing in blood when they are faced with that situation.

So take that Lou Grant.

Erma Bombeck

About ten years ago, a couple of boys were looking for a "snap course." They infiltrated a home ec. class.

It became so popular throughout the country special classes were formed and named "Bachelor Survival." In the past three years, the male enrollment has not only doubled, but in some high schools the males outnumber the females at the stoves.

What impact has this new breed had on our life styles?

I'll tell you what impact it's had. This country is producing (at an astronomical rate) what women who live in the kitchen refer to as "Domestic Jocks."

They're the Super Stars of the souffles... the dazzlers of the micro waves... the weekend headlines at the outdoor grills.

But they're stars. They don't do pans, spots, stains or ovens. They don't touch charcoal, dripping beaters, dirty blenders or skillets that have to be soaked. When they cook, it's first class all the way—fresh garlic, fresh lemons, fresh parsley and fresh mushrooms.

My husband never cooks out that I don't feel like I am assisting a surgeon at a double valve by-pass.

"Tongs! Quick! The tongs!" he commands. (I slap them professionally in his hands.)

"Good Lord, woman. I'm not plucking a baby bottle out of the water. I need tongs for steaks."

Next, "The pepper mill. Wipe. I press a dishcloth to his forehead. "Not the perspiration, you turkey—the sauce from my cute apron."

After hours of intense concentration, the Domestic Jock speaks. "Are the plates and forks for the salad chilled? Good. The potatoes done? The vegetables cooked just to the peak of flavor? Good. You sprayed for bugs? Fine. Because we are ready to eat....NOW!"

No warning. No time to socialize. No second drink. Just like that. When he says the steaks are done, we are expected to have our forks poised for the first bite.

The other night he wandered into the kitchen, peeled off his asbestos mittens and threw them into the clothes hamper. "Well, I pulled another one through," he said. I looked at the kitchen sink, piled high with dirty pots, pans and dishes, the countertop with melted butter, dirty utensils, leftover rolls and wilted salad. The grill was corroded with barbecue sauce.

"Next weekend I think I'll do my kabob number of the grill," I gave him a fetal oval.

Meet Charlevoix

...Jean and Stan Fiodorek

Jean and Stan Fiodorek are owners and operators of the Paul Buayan Lanes, the only bowling facility in Charlevoix. This week the Courier reporter learns something about bowling from them.

COURIER: How long have you been operating the lanes?

FIODOREK: Seventeen years. We moved up here from Kalamazoo and built them.

COURIER: Are you both bowlers?

FIODOREK: Stan bowls in two men's leagues and one mixed league. Jean bowls in mixed, but that's all, because of her arthritis.

COURIER: How did you happen to open a bowling alley?

FIODOREK: Stan was tired of his job in Kalamazoo and wanted to do something he liked. It was either a bowling alley or a golf course, and we couldn't afford a golf course.

COURIER: What kind of work did you do that you wanted to get away from?

FIODOREK: Worked in a machine shop and a paper mill, and spent some time in the service.

COURIER: How does a person learn to bowl?

FIODOREK: We give lessons and we also have a kid's league. Many of our adult bowlers have come up through the kid's league.

COURIER: When is the best time for kids to start bowling?

FIODOREK: About the sixth grade, when they are big enough to handle the ball.

COURIER: How much do bowling balls weigh?

FIODOREK: The lightest is eight pounds and the heaviest 16 pounds. It used to be that the lightest ball was 12 pounds. Some are made of plastic and others of hard rubber. The manufacture is regulated by the American Bowling Congress. They regulate about everything having to do with bowling. They check our lanes every year. The pins are made under strict specifications, too.

COURIER: Do your pin setters work out?

FIODOREK: We've gone through one set of pin setters. The set we have now we bought in Japan. Bowling has not been successful in Japan because they did not organize leagues, just had open bowling. Many of the lanes closed up, so we were able to use equipment that we would not otherwise have been able to afford.

COURIER: What are your hours for bowling?

FIODOREK: Our winter hours, which will go into effect soon, are: Open bowling, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. In the afternoon and after 9 on Friday evening; 1 p.m. to 12 on Saturday; and 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday. League bowling is every day from 6:45 to 11 p.m.

COURIER: How many leagues do you have?

FIODOREK: Four each of men's, women's, and mixed, and two kids' leagues.

COURIER: How many teams in a league?

FIODOREK: Some leagues have eight teams and some 16. There are four or five persons on a team. We have about 500 bowlers a week, including those who bowl more than once.

COURIER: What is the best way for a person to get into a league?

FIODOREK: Contact the league secretary, or leave their name at the alley. We just furnish the facilities. Leagues are organized and run by league officers.

COURIER: Do you take reservations for open bowling?

FIODOREK: No, it's all on a first come, first serve basis.

Stan Fiodorek

COURIER: How are team sponsors found?

FIODOREK: Each team finds its own, and has its own sponsor fee, usually about $20. Sponsors can also buy shirts for the team if they want to. Some do and some don't. The sponsor fee goes into the league prize fund. Prizes are cash and trophies, but they're getting away from trophies a little now because so many bowlers have them.

COURIER: Do you have a bar in connection with the lanes?

FIODOREK: No, we just sell pop, candy, cigarettes, things like that. We also sell balls, shirts, and shoes, mostly through the catalog.

COURIER: Do you have baby-sitting facilities?

FIODOREK: No, and most leagues have rules against children being in the alley during their games.

COURIER: Can people bowl until they're well up in years?

FIODOREK: Some have bowled until they're 100. We have a man here now who is well up in his 70's, and we had a woman who bowled until she was 73.

COURIER: What's so good about bowling?

FIODOREK: It's good exercise, social, a way to meet new people, competitive, and a way to take out frustrations.

COURIER: Has bowling changed much since you started?

FIODOREK: It's harder to score now because of better lanes and pins.

COURIER: Do you have any hobbies other than bowling?

FIODOREK: We enjoy golf and fishing. We've belonged to a league at the Charlevoix Golf Course for about 16 years.

COURIER: Do you have a family?

FIODOREK: We have two sons and two daughters. Paul works for Consumers Power and lives in Charlevoix. Lynn is a registered nurse, and lives in Sacramento, California. Kay teaches math in the Charlevoix Middle School. John is in the 10th grade.

Ambulance attendants begin EMT course

Volunteer ambulance attendants from Charlevoix, Torch Lake, Boyne City and Belle Isle began a high school level course Thursday evening, toward becoming certified Emergency Medical Technicians (EMT).

The course, a joint effort of the Michigan State Department of Health, Charlevoix Area Hospital, and the ambulance crews, has been organized by Anita Kane, office manager for Dr. Harry Custer, advisory physician for the class.

The course text is approved by the American College of Orthopedic Surgeons and is recognized by the United States Department of Transportation. The instruction of Wayne McKenna, Division Chief for Emergency Services, Michigan State Department of Health, explained that the course is designed to meet standards set by recent legislation requiring that at least one EMT be present on all ambulance runs, by January 1, 1979.

Among the subjects to be studied are: fracture care, cardiac care, auto accidents, hunting and snowmobile accidents, bleeding, cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), delivery of babies and how to handle complications, head and eye injuries, ambulance driving techniques, medical record keeping, proper radio communication, and extrication from autos.

Clinical observation at the Charlevoix Area Hospital will consist of up to ten hours.

"The old concept of picking up a victim and rushing him to the hospital is gone," McKenna explained. "Physicians demand greater health care at the scene."

"We teach Emergency Medical Technicians how to stabilize a patient and then to take time and care getting to the hospital."

Joy Mudge dispels myths about librarians

By LAURA GLASS

When you hear the word "librarian" what is your first reaction?

Do you think of the quiet, demure "Marian the Librarian" type?

If so, then you have never met Joy Mudge, head librarian for the Charlevoix Public Schools.

Mrs. Mudge, who has been named in the "Who's Who in American Women" and "Who's Who in the Midwest," who has had her children's stories published in leading children's magazines and who is now working on a historical novel, is about as opposite from the usual stereotype of a librarian as possible.

Mrs. Mudge has been library director for the Charlevoix Public Schools for eight years and says she likes to keep busy and on top of things.

She is, of course, an avid reader, but she also has the entire high school library catalog memorized. Just ask her for any book at the almost certainly all you want number it is, and she'll find it for you.

"I love to read. I'll almost a disease with me. If I'm home and run out of books, I'll pick up the phone book or the Sears catalogue," she said laughing.

"But really, I feel it's my job to know what books are about so I can help both students and teachers," she added.

Many a student can tell you that whenever you need help writing a research paper or need help finding debate evidence, Mrs. Mudge is always there.

"The reason I can help kids is because I was an English and history teacher and when I was in school I was in the debate team," the librarian explained.

Mrs. Mudge has written several children's stories including "Indian Brother" and "City for Help." Her stories have been published in many children's magazines including the popular "Junior Scholastic."

She is now working on the 11th chapter of a historical novel.

All this work combined with her work with the Girl Scouts of America, did not go unnoticed. It was through these works that Mrs. Mudge was named in the "Who's Who" books.

The librarian also enjoys gardening and farming. In her spare time, she loves to hook rugs. She says in the summer she reads a lot to keep up on the new books and it helps her write.

Before she came to Charlevoix, Mrs. Mudge worked in Oak Park and at Wayne State University. She has been an advisor for yearbooks, and school newspapers and worked on herself when she was a student.

Nowadays complaints are often heard that students don't respect their teachers like they used to, but in Mrs. Mudge's case, that's not true. Whatever Mrs. Mudge says is law and she has everyone's respect.

Interested people are invited to attend.

STARTING FROM Charlevoix an enjoyable color tour route to follow takes the viewer south to East Jordan and around Lake Charlevoix through Boyne City and Walloon Lake north to Petoskey and circling through Emmet County.

Color season expected to peak this week

By PEG OHLE

Northern Michigan is about to burst into full color! The peak of the season will arrive within the next few days, a week or ten days earlier than usual, according to Mike Edson, local Forestry Technician.

In spite of the summer dryness and more recent rains, the color is expected to be good, although the reds may be somewhat subdued. Mel Keelling of Michigan State University explains the turning of leaves as follows:

"As long as trees get sufficient moisture, warm temperatures and sunlight, leaves manufacture the green pigment chlorophyll. This green color masks the yellow and orange pigments that are also present in the leaf all summer. When the leaves stop producing chlorophyll, the other pigments show through."

In some areas of the state, drought has already caused many trees to turn color, because lack of moisture interfered with chlorophyll production. Severely affected trees are suffering leaf browning around the edges.

When fall weather is wet and cloudy, as it has been, the fall color displays will lack the brilliant reds. Without lots of sunlight, the sugar in the tree leaves is not converted into the red pigment, and only the yellows, oranges, and browns are visible.

Because of the dry weather this summer, the leaves are probably not rich in sugar, so the red leaf colors will probably not be prominent. Other leaf colors, such as purple, represent combinations of the ever-present yellow and orange pigments and the manufactured green and red ones. They do not reflect the presence of a purple pigment.

The color of leaves affects at least one industry. Sugar maple growers use the redness of maple leaves in the fall as a rough index of the probable sugar content of the sap next spring. High sugar content means it takes fewer gallons of sap to make a gallon of syrup. That means fewer trees have to be tapped and less time spent boiling down.

Color tours on ferry begin Saturday

The annual Color Cruises around Lake Charlevoix aboard the Beaver Islander are scheduled for October 1, 2, 8, 9, and 15.

Sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and the Beaver Island Boat Company, the cruises feature a "party atmosphere," with snacks and beverages served on board.

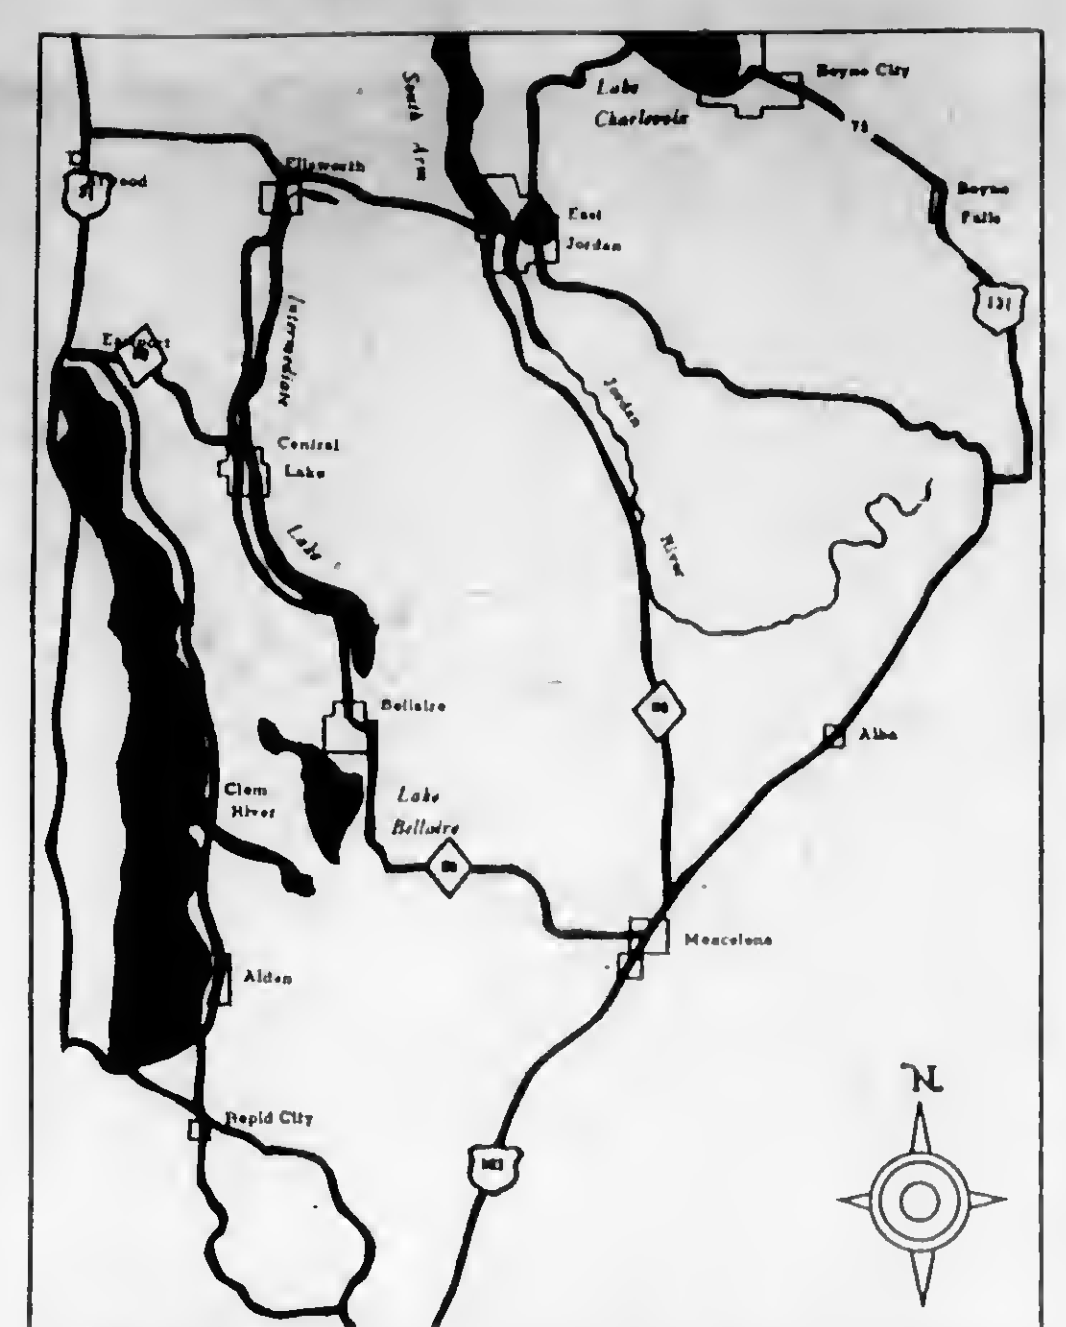

The boat leaves the Charlevoix dock at 1 p.m. Since it has a protected cover, it will sail rain or shine.

Tickets are limited to 200 per cruise and are on sale at $6 for adults and $3 for children at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Freshmen lose opening game to Gaylord 37-12

The Charlevoix High School freshman football team had a tough opening game last week against the Gaylord Blue Devils. The Raiders lost to Gaylord 37-12.

The Raiders made the first and last touchdowns of the game, but they couldn't get it together for the score in the middle. Coach Chuck Bentley said, "I think we'll be a different team when we play at Charlevoix next week."

Bentley said a good crowd showed up for the freshman's first game.

"That game will start at 8:30 p.m. at the Charlevoix field."

Bentley said his top offensive players this year were Jeff Daylong and Merrigide and Drury. Top defensive players were Ben Shores and David Herboldshamer.

"I think we'll be a different team when we play at Charlevoix next week," Bentley said.

"That game will start at 8:30 p.m. at the Charlevoix field."

Denny Merrigide scored the first touchdown on a four-yard run. The second TD was scored halfway through the fourth quarter on an 80-yard pass play from Joe Sladok to Jeff Drury.

Obituary

ARNOLD COPELAND
Funeral services for Arnold Copeland, 81, who died Monday at the Charlevoix Area Hospital where he had been a patient for ten days, will be held at the Winchester Funeral Home at 2 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. Raymond Giffin of the First Congregational Church will officiate. Interment will be in Brookside Cemetery.

Born at Ironton July 22, 1886, Mr. Copeland had lived in this area for many years. He had made maintenance work at Mackinac Island and more recently was employed by the Charlevoix County Road Commission. He had retired in 1934. He was married to the former Ellen Yennans. He attended the First Congregational Church. He is survived by his wife; one daughter, Mrs. Richard (Arletta) Foster of Greenfield, Wis.; a son, Gregory of Charlevoix; five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Parent, parish support keeps St. Mary's running

Parent support is important to any school. At St. Mary's Catholic School in Charlevoix it's vital.

During times when private schools have been consolidated or closed because of ever increasing costs and dwindling enrollments, St. Mary's continues to operate, offering an education alternative for Catholics in Charlevoix.

St. Mary's has been faced with the same problems as other private schools. Although the student enrollment increased by one child this year, overall in the last five years enrollment has dropped. Sister M. Josine, school principal, said.

The school which used to offer classes through the eighth grade level, dropped its top grades and concentrates on the elementary classes of first through sixth grades. Currently the building, with a capacity for 130 students houses 81 in its five classrooms.

Has there been talk of closing the school due to small enrollment. No, not really, Sister Josine said.

"The families that are here and that have children in the school would like to see it go on as long as the church is financially able to do it," she explained.

And so far, there haven't been any problems. The school, operating on an annual budget of about $45,000, is completely funded by the parish.

And St. Mary's is one of two Catholic schools in the state that doesn't charge its students any tuition. The other school is Holy Childhood in Harbor Springs.

"The only charge the students have to pay is a $25 book bill," Louis McKenzie, school board president, explained. "The school is strictly funded through contributions of the church."

"And as long as the parish collection can take care of the school as well as the church, nuns' and priest's house, we won't charge tuition."

McKenzie, a graduate of the school and the father of four other St. Mary's graduates, said tuition was never charged so that no family would be discouraged from sending its children to the school.

In addition to the money the school receives from the church, the Little Flower Guild has many fundraising projects with the proceeds going for equipment needed at the school. And parent support helps, too.

Parent volunteers supervise the lunchroom, the library and they also help with some gym classes. In addition, parents also serve as volunteers in the Bucket Brigade helping to tutor students who need extra help.

Sister Josine said the school's goal was to reach every child on his or her own level and to meet the needs of each child. The school also strives to lead its students to be good Christians in their future lives.

"We want to develop good Christian citizens not only for our church but for the community as well," Sister said.

McKenzie said the school board, composed of himself, Connie Pischner, Mary Lou Spiegel, Fritz Allard and Gene Dziadko, is proud of the fact that it has a complete curriculum following state guidelines. The school board president said the board has 100 percent cooperation from the public schools.

St. Mary's students are allowed to use the middle school gym and also participate in many special programs at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

The school is also offered the use of the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District staff and resources.

McKenzie said the school board would begin working on attracting more students to the school this year.

"We feel increasing the enrollment is like missionary work," McKenzie said. "We feel it is important to get the kids started in basic Christian education during their first four years and that's what we offer here."

SIXTH GRADE STUDENTS Neill Wimmer, Mike Pischner and Kay Scharenroch observe a hermit crab changing shells in their classroom.

Proposed zoning to get further study

FALL IS HARVEST TIME. The frantic season of summer growth comes slowly to an end as the frost settles on the pumpkin and farmers begin to bring the remains of their crops in for the long winter ahead.

The Charlevoix Common Council has tabled action on a proposed new zoning ordinance for further study and discussion.

The council was expected to approve the new ordinance Monday night, however, following a lengthy discussion with several concerned citizens, the council members delayed their decision until several property owners could be contacted and asked their opinion of the proposed changes in the new ordinance.

The main objection expressed by the citizens attending council meeting was to the changes in the zoning map. James Hiller and Paul Osterberg both opposed changes that had been made in the commercial zones on the map.

Osterberg owns property along Park Avenue which falls into a Planned Unit Development zone under the new ordinance. He would like the property to remain in the commercial zoning designation.

Hiller's property, the site of the former Charlevoix Lumber Co., also falls in PUD zoning. Both men contended that other property owners in the area proposed for PUD zoning would also like to have their property remain under the commercial designation which it currently has. Council members agreed to poll the other property owners and get their opinions before making a final decision on the zoning map and the proposed new ordinance.

Some objections were also raised to the establishment of a planning commission as provided for under the proposed new ordinance. Oscar Ward cautioned the common council against giving up some of its responsibility to an appointed body.

One of the main reasons council has been interested in approving the new ordinance was so that a planning commission could be appointed, Ivan Whitley, chairman of the Ecology, Development and Land Use Committee, explained. Whitley said site plan reviews and zoning considerations were eating away at the council's time and preventing it from getting other things done.

In other action, common council approved two site plans for new development in the city. A site plan for Family Federal Savings was approved for a new building at Captain's Corners shopping center on M-66. The savings and loan association would like to move out of its Bridge Street offices into a separate building at the shopping center so that it can expand its services to area people.

Council also approved a site plan for the expansion of the Weatherhane Terrace by the Charlevoix Development Company.

Dick Georgi, a representative of the development company, explained that 38 new units would be built on the site which would be expanded to Dixon Avenue. The expansion would bring the total number of units to 75 on the site. Under the expansion, Georgi proposed to add 42 new parking places for the units, which would be used as motel units and not condominiums.

Many of the new parking spaces will be located along Dixon Avenue. However, Georgi has agreed to install a new type of brick in the parking area which would allow grass to grow in the area and would prevent it from looking like one expansive piece of asphalt.

The council also ordered $2,333 worth of fertilizer for the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course and discussed a beer and wine take out license for the new Glen's Market which will be located at Captain's Corners. Council decided not to object to the new license.

TV special scheduled on PBB

The controversial television program, "The Poisoning of Michigan," will be aired over Public Broadcasting Station Channel 6, Alpena, and Channel 14, Mt. Pleasant, at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday (Oct. 4).

The program will also appear on the two PBS stations at noon Thursday and 8 p.m. Saturday.

The documentary chronicles the events leading up to the discovery that the fire retardant chemical PBB, also known as Firemaster, had been mysteriously mixed up with an animal food additive called Nutraminer.

Following the hour-long presentation at 10:30 p.m. will be the program, "Local Follow-up: The Poisoning of Michigan." The follow-up program was produced as a result of the controversy surrounding the national telecast of the PBB documentary film.

The PBB program, produced by John Fielding and the Thames Television "This Week" team was aired on British television last March and has been the subject of much discussion since then.

Members of Gov. William Milliken's staff have called the program distorted and inaccurate. Milliken's staff members also attempted to block the showing of the film in this state.

Participating in the follow-up program will be Gov. Milliken, B. Dale Bull, director of Michigan Department of Agriculture, Dr. Maurice Reisen, health department director, Elton Smith, president of the Michigan Farm Bureau, Dr. Lee Shull, MSU dairy scientist, and Dr. Steve Aust, MSU biochemist.

The program will follow a format of a brief statement from each guest followed by a question and answer session.

Dan Bliss of TV 6 and 14, estimated that approximately 14 million viewers will see the PBB documentary. However, only Michigan residents will be able to see the follow-up program, which was produced in East Lansing at WKAR-TV.

Ms. Bliss said she thought the PBB documentary was one sided and that the follow-up gave the viewer a more rounded look at the PBB situation in the state.

Commission seeks election

It's on to round two for the Charlevoix Charter Commission.

The charter commissioners have decided to seek a second vote on the proposed charter in a special election on Dec. 12.

According to law, the charter commission can bring the proposed charter to a vote of the people up to three times before it must dissolve. Dick Fochtman, charter commission chairman, explained.

Fochtman said because the vote was so close during the first election and because there were relatively few objections raised against the charter during the public meetings about the document, the charter commission has decided to put a revised charter on the ballot for the voters' consideration.

The first proposed new charter was defeated by 40 votes in an election held last July.

Fochtman said the charter commission had selected a December vote on the issue so that it could catch all the people who would be leaving for the winter following the holidays.

He said the charter commission also wanted to have the December vote so that the charter could be put on the spring primary ballot for the third and last time just before the charter commission expires in April.

The charter commission chairman said some revisions had been made in the proposed charter to meet the main objections raised against the document.

In the revised document, the mayor will be elected at large by all voters in the city. In the first document, the council members elected a mayor from among themselves.

Under the new document, the mayor will be nominated for the position through petition instead of during a ward convention.

The city clerk position will also be filled by nominating petition instead of through nominations made at ward and city conventions.

The charter commission chairman said the rest of the document had remained relatively unchanged.

The charter commission sought approval from Charlevoix Common Council Monday to hold another election on the document, but council tabled action on the request until they received copies of the revised new charter and copies of the wording for the ballot.

Judge considering claims in tenant rent hike dispute

Tenants of the Charlevoix Apartments on May Street should know within 30 days if their battle to reduce rents at the complex has a legal leg to stand on.

Greg Justis, an attorney with Legal Services of Northern Michigan, said Judge Wendell Miles of the U.S. District Court in Grand Rapids had taken the tenants' case under advisement and would issue an opinion within the next 30 days.

Justis appeared before the U.S. district judge last Thursday asking that the rent increases be returned to the tenants and that no further rent increases be allowed at the complex until the suit filed by the tenants is settled.

Earlier this month, Justis filed a suit on behalf of tenants living in the apartment complex claiming that the tenants were denied due process of law when their rents were raised 28 percent

March 1. Justis claims that the tenants' rights as provided under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments of the U.S. Constitution were violated because they were not given a chance to comment on an application for a rent hike at the complex which was constructed with FMHA funds under the rural low and moderate income rental project program.

Currently applications must be made to the FMHA office by landlords of the rural rental projects describing why a rent hike is necessary before a rent hike can be put in effect.

However, the tenants do not have to be notified of the application for a rent hike and they do not have a voice in the actual granting or denial of the application. Justis believes the tenants should have the right to comment on the applications for the rent increases.

Justis said that during the 30-day waiting period, Judge Miles will be deciding on a point of law as to whether or not the tenants have a right to any input on rent hike applications.

"In effect, Judge Miles will be presenting us with a quick final judgment when he issues an opinion on the point of law," Justis said.

If the judge decides the tenants do have a right to some input, then further hearings will be held to determine what sort of input the tenants are entitled to.

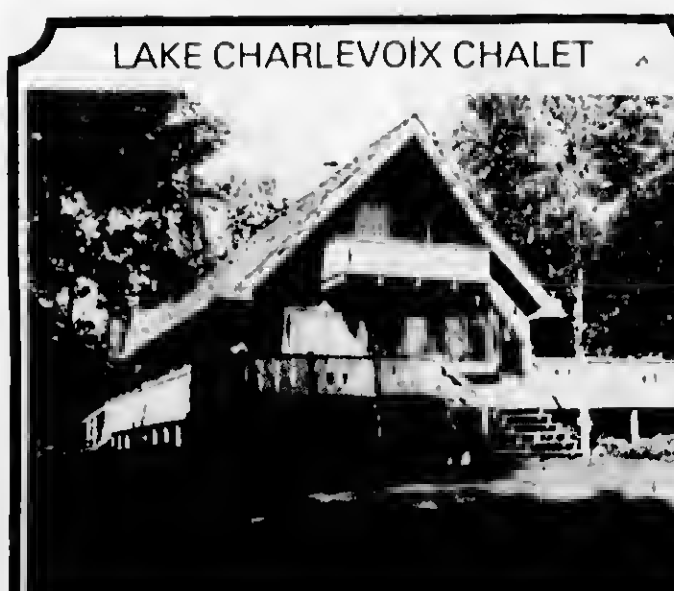

If, on the other hand, the judge decides against the tenants the rent hikes will not be ruled unlawful and the tenants won't be allowed any input during the rent hike application process.

Justis said that if the judge ruled against the tenants, he would take the case to the Sixth District Appeals Court for another hearing.

The next step after the appeals court is the Supreme Court.

School board ratifies contract with personnel

By FRANK MARTIN
 The Charlevoix Board of Education, ratified a two-year contract with the MEOA representing custodial, maintenance and culinary personnel, approved a bid for the high school. With the approval of the 10 mill in a special election last month, the board found it possible to do the work and asked for the same price. The contractor, however, advised that steel prices made it necessary to increase his bid to $21,500. The bid will now include heavy duty locking devices and other special equipment. The doors will be of steel construction with a single long glass and special locks. All doors will be replaced with exception of those at the exterior and lobby doors in the gymnasium.
 He also reported that the new windows in the middle school building were being installed and should be completed by the end of the week. The company is installing them after school hours and working into the night.
 Roy M. Fortin, assistant principal in charge of Adult Education, reported that 28 students are enrolled in four different high school com-

Oh, those magnificent flying machines. There's something about flight and those flying contraptions, also known as airplanes, that has always intrigued man. Being able to soar like a bird across the sky in a sleek jet or a stodgy bi-plane is a dream held by many. But only a few actually become pilots. Others, however, have an interest in aircraft and flying may soon find themselves a part of one of the fastest growing hobbies in the country—model aviation.
 Groups of people interested in remote control or U-control operated aircraft are banding together throughout the nation to share their ideas, their skills and their love of flying and aircraft.
 And Charlevoix is no exception. A group of about 35 people, ranging in age from 8 to 88 and covering every profession from upholsterer to police officer to plumber, meets once a month to discuss the high points and pitfalls of the model aviation.
 "Anyone who gets bitten by the model aviation bug really begins to put a lot of time into it," Vince Brewster, one of the organizers of the model aviation group called, Charlevoix Area Buys (Bunch of Ugly Flying Foals), explained.
 "For me, that's how I unwind," Brewster continued. "I either work on my plane or I take it out and fly it."
 Brewster said that getting into model aviation is like getting into any other hobby, the initial investment is expensive, but it even out in the end.
 "Once you consider the time it takes to build the plane and the entertainment that you are getting out of that, the cost isn't so high," he explained.
 And Brewster said that model aviation enthusiasts can pick and choose how involved they want to be with their aircraft.
 "You can put less than $50 in a plane or you can go up to $200-$300 depending on the scale you use," he said.
 Brewster said some kits can get very detailed such as a kit for a military plane which even has scale size rivets patterned after the type used in an actual military aircraft.
 "Everything is the kits is identical to the real craft except the size," he said.
 "And when you fly it, it's just like being in a real plane only you're on the ground."
 Most people get hooked on the model aviation bug early in life. They start out small and then move on to bigger, better and more detailed planes, John Kintz of Bay Shore, who is also a member of the Buys, explained.
 "I started out with a small free flight plane," he explained. "And I liked it and thought I would try something bigger."
 Kintz' latest project was a one-quarter scale Cessna 310. The model plane has a wing span of 10 feet and is constructed out of wood. It is operated by a set of twin engines.
 "The kit caught my eye," Kintz said grinning sheepishly. "I wanted to try it for I could do it."
 For Mel Renaud of Charlevoix, a 1933 Jere Sport bi-plane is his scale size joy. Renaud's plane has an eight-foot wing span and 3,000 square inches of wing surface. "I just really like bi-planes," Renaud explained shrugging his shoulders. "I saw this kit at a show in Cadillac and decided to make it."

Renaud has about 90 hours into the construction of the model airplane and is about one-third the way through the project.
 The Charlevoix resident got his start in model aviation with the rubber band powered planes and the U-control planes. His daughter Karrie is following right in his footsteps with a small plane of her own.
 For Jack Giga, model aviation was also an outgrowth of his love of other types of plane models.
 "I've built models all my life," Giga explained. "My first plane cost 10 cents. This is my first remote control plane, though I've only had it a few weeks."
 A U-control plane is flown with a hand-held control attached to a wire attached to the plane. With remote control or radio control models, the operator controls the action of the plane through radio signals. The more channels on the radio, the more things you can make the plane do.
 "You even have to have an FCC (Federal Communications Commission) license to operate the planes," Brewster explained. "It's the same application you would fill out for a CB radio."
 Brewster said occasionally a remote-control operator will experience some radio interference and lose control of the aircraft, but he said it doesn't happen very often. A U.S. Air Force helicopter was damaged at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport during the team's Club Fly-In when a remote-control plane got out of control and flew into the helicopter's tail.
 Brewster said model aviation is a hobby for all seasons. Although most people spend the winters constructing their models, many put skins on their planes and fly them in the winter, too.
 "It's actually easier on the plane," he said.
 The Buys fly their planes at their own airport located on Sequoia Road. The field is 250 feet long and 50 feet wide. It has been graded and seeded in much the same manner as a grass runway at any airport would be.
 Brewster said the land for the field was donated by Bill Marne and Bob Mousseau and try Barry helped the club members clean the field up. "With all the help we've had we're really expanded," Brewster said. "We're just a bunch of people having a good time."

MEL RENAUD keeps busy working on the construction of his 1933 Jere Sport bi-plane. The plane, which has an eight foot wing span, will be sported with the motor of a chain saw.

Expansion program, finances discussed Directors elected to board

Five directors were elected to the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors during the recent annual meeting.
 Elbert Kaiser was elected to fill out the remaining one year left in the term of Bernard Hammond, who had resigned. Kaiser had been appointed to fill out the term earlier this year, but the hospital association members were allowed to vote on his appointment at the annual meeting.
 Also elected to the board for three year terms were: Pat Hawley, June Cross, Lou Hollow and Jack Grubaugh. Hawley and Mrs. Cross were re-elected to their positions and Hollow and Grubaugh are new members.
 During the annual meeting, Tom Carey, board president, reported that the board had committed itself to the expansion of the hospital. He said there was a need for more space for out patient services, laboratory, X-ray, medical records and storage space.
 Carey said the hospital would not be needing any additional patient beds at this time, however.
 Richard Krueger, hospital administrator, explained that the board had been working with an architectural firm for the hospital but it has not settled on how and where the hospital should expand.
 "No definite time table has been established yet for the expansion program," Carey told the members of the hospital association and interested public attending the annual meeting. "But progress is being made in an effort to establish one."
 The financial condition of the hospital was also discussed during the meeting. Revenues were $29,191 under the total expenses for the year. The hospital had expenses of $1.98 million and collected revenues of $1.95 million during the fiscal year which ended June 30.
 For 1976, the hospital had revenues of $1.8 million and expenditures of $1.7 million.
 Krueger said the 7 percent drop in the number of patient admissions and the 5 percent drop in the number of days of care given to patients last year were the contributing factors in the decrease in revenues.
 There were 1,812 patient admissions to the hospital during 1977 for 9,261 days of care while there were 1,731 in 1976 for 8,870 days of care.
 Krueger said the decrease in the number of patients also reflected a change in the type of medical care patients are receiving. More and more diagnostic tests are being conducted on an out patient basis and that was reflected at the hospital in a 7 percent

Preparation can remove fears

When your child goes to the hospital, it can be pretty frightening for both you and your youngster. The homework that you do before the actual hospital stay can make the whole thing a lot more comfortable for both of you.
 A new booklet from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare talks about what you can do to prepare, from choosing a hospital to answering your child's questions to preparing for the child's return home. For your copy of When Your Child Goes to the Hospital, send 65 cents to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 127E, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

 It's important to know the right questions to ask about hospital policies. That way you can make plans and prepare your child. Here are some good ones:
 Do you have any pre-admission hospital tours for kids and their families?
 Do you send out any information booklets about the hospital? Any special booklets for children?
 What are your policies about staying overnight with children in the hospital? What kind of sleeping arrangements are there for parents?
 What are the rules about visiting?

Charter deserves study by residents before second vote

The Charlevoix Charter Commission is once again seeking a vote on the proposed new charter.

Following last summer's narrow defeat of the proposed charter, the commissioners sat down to analyze what it was that the voters wanted in a new charter.

The charter commissioners knew the voters wanted a new charter because the people had voted to have one written and they had elected commissioners to participate in the writing of a new charter.

But very few residents of Charlevoix attended any of the charter commission meetings during the 20 months that the commission met and worked on the proposed charter even though all the meetings were open to the public.

So after months of reading, listening, observing and studying, the charter commissioners using their best judgment came up with a document they thought would please the citizens of Charlevoix.

But as it turned out the citizens did not like the charter, although less than half of the registered voters participated in the election and the document was rejected by a very narrow margin.

So it was back to the drawing board for the commissioners. And it has been rough going. The commissioners know people want the charter because of what they voted on earlier, but no one would tell the commissioners how they could improve the proposed document.

The commissioners have made some changes based on the few comments they received at public hearings on the proposed charter. They have made the office of mayor and clerk elected at large and they have set up a process where the mayor and clerk are nominated by petition.

But the commissioners have retained the business approach the new charter takes to operating the city and they have retained the ward conventions because they believe in these two things and the improvements they can bring to city government.

The charter commissioners have more than done their part in writing the document that Charlevoix residents seemed so interested in having. Now it is time for Charlevoix residents to do their part.

Residents should take time to study the charter and find out what's in it and what it can do for Charlevoix.

If residents have a question about the charter they should call one of the charter commissioners and ask them about it. That's why the charter commissioners were elected to their positions.

Voting against something because a resident doesn't understand it is not good. Finding out about the charter so that intelligent votes can be cast in the upcoming election is good.

And it's the least the citizens can do for the charter commissioners who have donated a lot of their time, their energy and their thoughts to the preparation of the new proposed charter.

Letters to the editor

Charlevoix House resident enjoyed slo-pitch games

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letter is from a resident of Charlevoix House on Belvedere Avenue. Many of the residents at the home enjoyed attending the slo-pitch games throughout the summer. The letter expresses the feelings of most spectators at the games.

Dear Citizens: I would like to say that I enjoyed the Charlevoix Slo-pitch League, both the men and women's division.

Because of a lot of good action by Kit Carson, Beebe G Men, and Erbers mens team and on the other side Kentucky Fried Chicken, D.Q. and VIP the games provided a lot of fun and excitement.

Also a big thanks to our great recreation director Mr. Boss who somehow kept the field in super fantastic shape despite all the rain we had.

I would also like to thank the umpires like Jim Willis, Charlie and Terry Blissett and Bill Joy for a lot of good calls at a lot of the games. I hope we have a way to have inter league play soon like between the Charlevoix City league and the Charlevoix township league during the regular season.

Thanks again for a great summer. Sincerely yours, David Lee Vaughan

...Speaking Her Mind

I was glad to see the sunshine for a few days last week. People were really beginning to go bananas because of all the rain, gray skies and just generally dreary weather.

And when you consider that for 25 out of the last 30 days it has rained, that's pretty dreary weather except for ducks and other wild birds.

I first noticed that many people in town were going a little nuts when I was downtown shopping. Several people seemed to be a little gun shy as they were preparing to go outdoors.

They would cautiously approach the store door, peer out and then clutching their coats up about their throats and taking a deep breath they would dash wildly out on to the street.

That was the only burst of energy I had seen from anyone, myself included, during the entire week. I bet new track records were set nearly every day as people ran from one place to the next trying to avoid getting wet.

The next thing that made me begin to take note of what this lousy weather was doing to people was a little comment from a middle school teacher I met on the sidewalk in front of the school early one morning.

"You know, I think we will all get vitamin D deficiency if the sun doesn't come out soon," she said a faint smile crossing her face.

She's probably right, I found myself muttering as I looked forward to another day of grayness.

And when I got to the office, sure enough, I was greeted with even bleaker faces and rain beaten brows. It was indeed the sign of a truly dreary day.

But as we stood looking out the window at the gray Lake Michigan waters, the gray Northern Michigan skies and at the in general rain drenched gloom, a little spark of hope cut through the gloom.

"Look, what's that I see in the grass," one person asked.

"Peering through the window for the raccoon, bird or rabbit that we generally see in the lawn, I was disappointed to find nothing but water drops on blades of grass.

"No look," the person insisted. "I think it's a ray of sunshine sitting in the grass."

Everyone sat up straight and began examining the grass and then there was a rush for the door to check out the rest of the sky.

But by the time we got there the sun was gone and so were our hopes for a break in the weather.

The Lapeer County Bank & Trust Co. recently installed an escalator. In light of Bert Lance's troubles, it is only natural to wonder if the president of the Lapeer bank is allowed to use the escalator for non-business purposes, such as going to football games.

While president of a Georgia bank, Lance used the bank's airplane frequently. In testimony before a U.S. Senate committee, he conceded that many of the trips were to such pleasurable destinations as college football games.

Lance said he saw no reason why the bank shouldn't pay for these trips because he felt he always was on bank business while traveling, no matter where he went.

Rod Parsch is president of the Lapeer County Bank & Trust Co. The Lapeer bank does not own an airplane, which would be a little much. Townspeople were awed enough by the escalator, the only one in the county.

Nevertheless, several parallels can be drawn between the 2 banks and the 2 bank presidents. I will now draw those parallels, and if I should overdraw, wouldn't that be ironic?

Calhoun, Ga., and Lapeer, Mich., are both small towns. Lance started at the Calhoun bank as a messenger. Parsch started at the Lapeer bank as a janitor. Both men rose to become presidents of their banks, and more.

Lance became Jimmy Carter's buddy and was appointed director of the Office of Management and Budget. Parsch played poker with me and was elected president of the Independent Bankers Association of America.

This is no joke about Parsch, a point I stress so you will realize that as Lance is no ordinary country banker, neither is Parsch.

More than 7,000 banks belong to the IBAA, and Parsch was their national leader in 1971-72. He has served on countless IBAA panels and several times has testified before congressional committees, although never in such a hot seat as that recently occupied by Lance.

For more than 20 years Parsch and I played in the same poker club. He whistled when he was winning, and he was a heartless banker when I was light in the pot.

To this day, Parsch must admit that the fact I never stop him for behaving in such an annoying manner made it possible for him to become president of the IBAA. Anyway, in view of all these parallels, it is not surprising that I thought of Parsch when I heard Lance's defense against charges that he was a less-than-ethical, perhaps even dishonest, banker.

Lance's critics seem most dismayed by the bum checks he and his family cashed at his bank. They totaled around $700,000. Lance explained with an aw-shucks. That's the way business is done in friendly country banks, he said, and you city fellows just don't understand.

This didn't square with my experience at Parsch's country bank. For 25 years I worked in a newspaper office next door to that bank.

This made it hard for the tellers when I wrote a bad check. They simply brought it to my desk and stood there until I made it good.

I always figured that check overdrafts were nothing except non-interest loans and therefore a criminal waste of the bank stockholders' assets. But here was a big shot, Lance saying I was foolish to cover guiltily before those damning tellers. I should have reminded them that they worked at a country bank where rubber checks were friendly fun. As Lance seemed to be winning his argument with the Senate, I phoned Parsch and demanded an explanation. "Lance is full of malarky," said the past president of the nation's largest association of country banks. "And if I caught one of my bank officers writing overdrafts the way Lance did, I would castrate him."

OK, but what about the escalator? In Parsch's allowed to use it when leaving the bank for non-business destinations? To get an objective answer, I skipped Parsch and put this question to a director of his bank.

"Our escalator is for the use of a general public," the director answered. "They don't even have to be customers."

If Parsch uses it on his way to a football game, he is doing it as a member of the general public, not as president of the bank. If Bert Lance had allowed everyone to use his bank's plane free, there would have been no fuss, although there would have been an awful crowd lined up at the airport.

Case closed. I declare Lance the loser and Parsch the winner. My office is now 60 miles from Parsch's bank, but I think I hear him whistling.

Isn't it funny, I can remember the exact day I first heard the word "portable." It was Aug. 16, 1966, at 3:35 p.m. when my husband presented me with a "portable" sewing machine. (It's probably a coincidence but that's the exact day he got his first slipped disk by lifting the "portable" sewing machine to the table.)

I didn't think much about it again until we bought a "portable" air conditioner for the den. That was—let's see—Thursday evening, the 20th of March, 1967.

(I remember saying how great it was that the warranty covered the damages to the unit when my husband dropped it on my foot.)

Frankly, I don't know what we did before American ingenuity discovered that if you put a handle on something or a set of wheels it became "portable." It has opened up a whole new world for those of us "on the move."

We thought a swimming pool was out of range until we found a "portable" pool we could put out ourselves. That was...I got it. Memorial Day, 1971, to November of that same year. (I remember saying to my husband he couldn't have swum in it anyway until they took the stitches out of his hands that he cut on the fence.)

And who could forget our portable boat that made a dent in the roof of the car, the portable microwave oven that we took apart to transport, the portable stereo that took five boys to carry, and the portable picnic table that we carried in the portable trailer.

Neither of us will ever forget the excitement of owning my first portable typewriter. At first, I worried because it hurt my arm to lift it off the floor. Within a matter of days, however, my arm stretched out about five inches and the typewriter slid comfortably across the floor while my hand steered it.

A lot of people bad-mouth "portables." However, when our neighbors had their house ripped off and the portable TV was missing, they found the thief and the set within a couple of hours.

The guy was checking into a local hospital for emergency hernia repair just as the police were checking the cars in the emergency lot. Isn't that a coincidence? (Copyright 1977 Field Enterprises, Inc.)

Whom are we to believe?

On one side stands the mighty American Medical Association thundering that the drug Laetrile is ineffective as a weapon in the war on cancer because it has never proven itself in laboratory tests.

On the other side stand a growing army of cancer patients and members of their families who claim that Laetrile does indeed stop cancer in its tracks, letting many former patients lead productive, happy, pain-free lives.

In the middle stands the American public, listening first to one side and then the other with equal discomfort. We would like to believe our learned doctors who have their offices papered with medical degrees from impressive universities. After all, it's their business to know what works and what doesn't work against the myriad ills that plague mankind.

But we also lend a hopeful ear to the Laetrile people because their stories are almost too good to be true: A drug taken orally or by injection that shrinks the tumor without any noticeable side-effects other than increasing vigor and good health.

Because it ranks no higher than any other "quack" medicine, Laetrile has been banned by the Food and Drug Administration, although it is readily available at a handful of Laetrile clinics just across the U.S. border at Tijuana, Mexico.

Several states, however, recently have approved the use of Laetrile despite opposition from the medical profession and the FDA. In theory, the drug shouldn't be crossing state lines because of FDA involvement, but these things are pretty hard to monitor. I imagine Uncle Sam's boys in blue transport as much Laetrile as they do marijuana in their postal trucks.

The Michigan Legislature is holding hearings on the question of legalizing Laetrile, and the controversial drug derived from apricot pits may soon be available for your friendly local druggist, providing he can find a Michigan manufacturer or a friendly smuggler.

I have only known one cancer patient who experimented with Laetrile, liver cancer was well advanced and local doctors had all but given up hope. So, against the better judgement of her family, she made the long trip to Mexico for treatment. Unfortunately, the effects of the Laetrile treatment were negligible. She returned to Charlevoix and survived only a few months.

Yet folks helped by Laetrile keep cropping up in the news.

One fellow, hopelessly ill with lung cancer, ran to meet his doctor in the hospital corridor the other day after only five injections of Laetrile.

A Detroit boy puts in a full day at school and then works at a part-time job. Six months ago—before Laetrile—he was dying of Hodgkin's Disease.

From here it appears that although Laetrile may be totally worthless for most patients, it should be approved for use in Michigan—if only for the hope it offers to help cancer patients.

I don't think any of us—including the AMA—knows enough about cancer in A.D. 1977 to rule out psychosomatic medicine as part of the treatment.

Mind you, known, effective cancer medicines, radiation and surgery should be used, too. But if the patient insists on Laetrile, he should be allowed to have it—no questions asked. Perhaps the boost to his morale will be sufficient to trigger his immune mechanisms into fighting back. I don't know, and I don't think the AMA does either.

There is always the outside chance that Laetrile is an effective anti-cancer drug among selective patients and against selective cancers. This would explain why the drug has such a miserable track record in the laboratory, but performs so beautifully in the misty arena of hope.

Meet Charlevoix

...Todd and Vicky Warner

Local artist Todd Warner and his wife Vicky ran one of the most unusual businesses in Charlevoix. This week the Courier talks with them about their work and how they got started.

COURIER: What do you call the type of sculpturing you do?

WARNER: It is stoneware sculpture, and the figures are mostly whimsical.

COURIER: How long have you been in business, and how did you get started?

WARNER: I started while still in school at Central Michigan. I studied the technical aspects there, but the style is totally original. The first Art Fair at which I ever showed was in Midland while in school. I sold my senior exhibit there to make a car payment. We've been in business now about 11 years.

COURIER: When did you go into business seriously?

WARNER: Shortly afterwards we became enthused by money so Vicky, my mother-in-law, father-in-law and I built a gypsy wagon to tow behind a Mustang. We did a show at Harrisville but sold nothing from the wagon.

Instead of giving up, we drove to Charlevoix and went to the Mayor's office to get a peddler's license to sell our work. We were turned down but they suggested we come back and show at the Art Fair. We did that for several years before moving here, and still do.

COURIER: Was coming up for the Art Fair what caused you to move here?

WARNER: That was when we first became enthused about the area.

COURIER: What did you do after you finished school?

WARNER: I taught art in the Fremont Junior High School, and loved it. We also started a business in our kitchen. The Potter's wheel was in the dining room and we worked on counter tops.

COURIER: Then what?

WARNER: Then we became involved in more shows and galleries. Our first experience was the Middle Earth Gallery in Green Town in Detroit. An off-shoot was the Lafayette Park show in Detroit.

COURIER: And next?

WARNER: We moved to Midland, where I taught art in the Senior and Junior High Schools and started to work on my Master's degree, which I never got. We set up our business in the basement of our house. It was a terrible house and the basement flooded all the time. We had to put boards down to keep from walking in water. We worked ungodly hours and finally went to part time teaching and part time working. Eventually we quit teaching and started selling our work through shows and galleries. We found that if we made one good contact, others followed.

People appreciated the lightness of our work.

COURIER: You (Todd) did the sculpturing. What did Vicky do?

WARNER: She did the glazing, pricing, packing, and book work. I don't know how she did it with a child to take care of, too.

COURIER: How many children do you have now?

WARNER: Two. Jay is seven and Jeff is four. We had one child and were expecting our second when we quit teaching. Everybody thought it was a foolish thing to do before Jay started school. We believe in smaller schools.

COURIER: What was your impression of Charlevoix when you first moved here?

WARNER: People were great. The bankers, real estate people, and others were receptive to our way of life and business. Up here, the arts are becoming an important part of the economy.

Artists are drawn to the area because they appreciate the aesthetics of the area—it is a beautiful place to live. Right now we're making an effort with the Brumms, Staffels, and Bolts to promote artists in the area, to make people aware of the type of talent we have. We are proud of it and believe it behooves everyone to help us in this promotion.

COURIER: Do you produce any type of artwork other than stoneware sculpture?

WARNER: We make wooden toys, including an adult rocking horse, and are designing three-dimensional items for Hallmark for gifts.

COURIER: Do you sell only through art shows and galleries?

WARNER: Yes, we pick up orders that way. We have customers from Provincetown, Massachusetts to Key Largo, Florida. And we do have a small retail shop in Bay Shore, which is open only on weekends. It's called the Tree Toad and we opened it this summer.

COURIER: How many employees do you have?

WARNER: It fluctuates from three to six, depending on the season. They do the glazing, wrapping, packing, and shipping, and paint the toys. The toys are manufactured by Rick Wiles and finished at the Tree Toad by the staff.

COURIER: We see and hear several animals around here. How many pets do you have?

WARNER: Three cats, one cockatoo, two parrots, two doves, one dog, three hermit crabs, six goldfish, and maybe some other things lurking around.

COURIER: Where did you grow up?

WARNER: I grew up in Farwell and Vicky in Lincoln Park. She moved to Farwell when she was 16 and we started dating then.

Commissioners plan to expand civil defense office

The Charlevoix County Office of Civil Defense may soon become a full time operation.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners approved a motion making Alice Tunison the full time civil defense director beginning January 1 during its recent meeting.

Keith Amear, chairman of the committee, explained that an increasing burden has been put on the civil defense office because of the acquisition of property. Amear said also that shelter, food and water supplies and radiation detectors are not checked as regularly as they should be because the civil defense office only operates on a part time basis.

Mrs. Tunison has been working part time in the civil defense office and part time as a secretary in the prosecuting attorney's office.

The civil defense office is funded jointly by the federal government and the county government. The federal government picks up all of the office expenses and half of the director's salary while the county picks up the rest of the expense.

County orders insurance survey

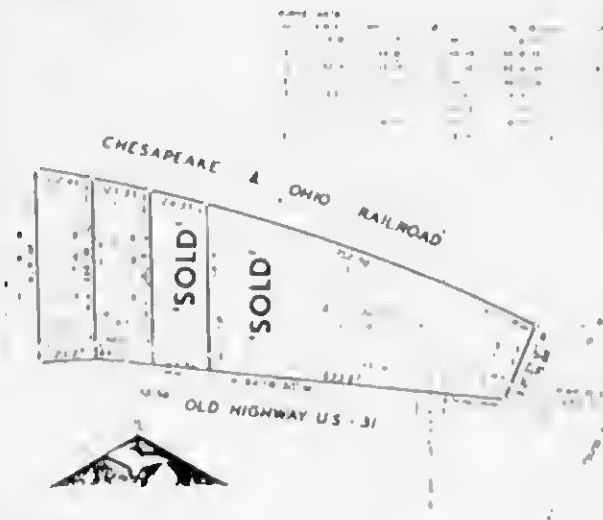

A survey of insurance needs for Charlevoix County will soon get underway.

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners recently approved the hiring of an insurance consultant from Lansing to survey the county's current insurance policies and to recommend any changes that should be made.

The commissioners are considering combining the Charlevoix County Road Commission and Grandview Medical Care Facility Insurances with the total county package.

New playground completed on middle school grounds

The weather may have been damp and dreary during the last month, but that hasn't bothered students at the Charlevoix Middle School.

Students have been able to play outside almost every day thanks to the new playground that has been developed on the middle school grounds.

Construction of the new playground including a track, basketball court and ball diamond, was recently completed and even the grass seed has begun to take.

The project, designed by Manson, Jackson and Kane, Inc., and constructed by D & L Contracting, Inc., cost $35,880 approximately $10,000 less than the Charlevoix Board of Education had estimated it would cost.

"The board had approved $45,000 for the project because of anticipated problems with drainage and tree removal," Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren explained. "But through cooperation with the City of Charlevoix in the tree removal and because the drainage was not the problem we thought it would be, the project cost less than that."

Funds for the development of the new playground came from the levy of a special one mill approved by the voters for five years for the maintenance and updating of the middle school.

Some school district voters have questioned how the development of a new playground can be classified as maintenance or updating, Max Novak, school board president, said the development of the new playground fits into a five-year scheme for improving the middle school.

"One of our biggest problems at the middle school was with the service entrance," Novak explained. "We had trucks driving right over the center of the playground to deliver things."

Novak said the school was also forced by building and health codes to correct a drainage problem from the school grounds to the property of surrounding neighbors.

"We decided to fix these things up properly as long as the taxpayers have decided that they want to maintain and operate the building for several more years," Novak said.

The school board president said the new playground eliminates many of the grounds problems at the middle school.

He also pointed out that the five-year plan, which included the playground construction had been discussed extensively at school board meetings.

"The board would be glad to have anyone that is interested attend board meetings and ask questions about the plan for the middle school," Novak said. "We're going to spend this money prudently."

New playground

STUDENTS AT THE Charlevoix Middle School are enjoying their new playground which includes a new track and ball diamond as well as a resurfaced basketball court.

It's official, enrollment down by 79 students

The official Fourth Friday count for the Charlevoix School District showed the enrollment had dropped by 79 students for the 1977-78 school year. Enrollment had increased by 35 students during the 1976-77 school year.

The biggest drop in enrollment came at the Charlevoix Middle School where the total enrollment for the present school year is 412 students or 38 less students than last year.

The Charlevoix Elementary School was right behind the middle school with a drop in enrollment of 35 students for a total of 661 students this year. The Charlevoix High School had a decrease of six students for a total of 440 students, according to the official count.

The Fourth Friday Count is important to school districts because it determines the amount of state aid the schools will be getting. Membership state aid is divided among the school districts according to a formula which includes enrollment as one of its factors.

The drop in enrollment does not mean a loss of funds for the Charlevoix School District, Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren said. The school district's total property valuation is too high to qualify the district for membership state aid funds.

Van Wieren said if the school district had 120 more students it could qualify for membership state aid funds under the formula, but the school district would only receive a very small amount of money.

The superintendent said he does not anticipate any more drops in school enrollment in the Charlevoix School District. Van Wieren said a study of birth rates in the school district showed that they were remaining pretty much the same.

In 1976, there were 99 new babies born in the school district while 116 were born in 1975 and 99 were born in 1974. The birth rate in the county has also remained pretty much the same with 288 births taking place in 1976, 307 in 1975 and 267 in 1974.

Van Wieren said the 79 student decrease in total enrollment also did not mean the school district would have to lay off teachers.

National PBB conference slated at MSU on Oct. 24

Scientists from throughout the United States will gather at Michigan State University's Kellogg Center for Continuing Education, Oct. 24-25, to present their findings on the effects of polychlorinated biphenyls (PBB) on man, animals, and the environment.

The two-day session is intended as an exchange of highly technical information between scientists, relates Dr. Lee R. Shull and Dr. Steven D. Aust, MSU scientists and conference coordinators.

Peanut Butter Cookies

Preheat oven to 350°. Mix peanut butter, honey, and oil together until smooth, then add vanilla and salt and mix again. Add flour a little at a time and mix well. Form dough into cookies with hands and place on an oiled cookie sheet, flattening each with a fork. Bake for about 10 minutes, watching closely to avoid burning. Makes about 2½ dozen.

Chamber color cruises successful, expect even better color this week

The first two color tour cruises of the year, sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, got off to a good start.

More than 192 people participated in the first cruise Saturday while 65 attended the second cruise on Sunday.

"Sunday's cruise was a new Tel It To The HOTLINE!! 547-6559 after 6 P.M. selected opinions are published each week."

cruise so I thought we had a pretty good turnout," Jackie Merta, executive director of the chamber, said.

Mrs. Merta said the two cruises seemed very successful and she is looking forward to two more cruises this weekend.

"I think the color will be good this coming weekend, too," she said.

Magazine names Charlevoix top spot

Yet another magazine has named Charlevoix as a top travel and vacation destination in the state.

The October Motor News magazine, a publication of the Automobile Club of Michigan (A.A.C.), describes Charlevoix's magnificent old homes, quaint stores, rolling hills and breathtaking display of fall color in an article entitled, "Charlevoix, the Beautiful."

"There is a multitude of things to see and do around the city dubbed 'the place where the cruises will leave the Beaver Island Boat Dock in Charlevoix at 1 p.m. for an approximately three hour cruise along the south arm of Lake Charlevoix. Since the boat has a protected cover, it will sail rain or shine.

Tickets are on sale at the Chamber of Commerce office at $6 for adults and $3 for children.

the four seasons vacation," the article said listing the fine fishing, skiing at nearby resorts, the annual Venetian Night festival and the fall color cruises.

The article, by Bill Carroll also talks about fudgies and

"Fudgie is an endearing term used by the townies to describe tourists," the article explains. "A fudgie usually can be recognized by his white pants, and shoes and the small box of Mordick's fudge tucked under his arm."

Richard Pajtas named new co. administrator

A local attorney has been appointed as public administrator for Charlevoix County.

Richard M. Pajtas, who has offices at 301 Michigan Ave., was appointed to the position by Irvine B. Feldman, state public administrator, on the recommendation of Frank J. Kelley, attorney general.

As county public administrator, Pajtas will handle the estates of people in this county who die leaving no known heirs or who have heirs residing in foreign countries as well as estates of people who have disappeared or who have been missing for a period of seven years and have left property.

Former resident celebrates 90th

Charles Emrey, former resident now living in Glendale, Calif., will observe his 90th birthday on Oct. 12. For friends who want to remember him on this memorable occasion his address is 1314 North Central Ave., Glendale, 91207.

A native of Charlevoix, Emrey served as county treasurer at one time and later operated a clothing store here.

Sen. Bob Davis

Sen. Davis discusses welfare with social agencies representatives

Welfare reform was the topic of discussion when Sen. Bob Davis, R-Gaylord, addressed the Council of Social Agencies last week.

Sen. Davis, a long-time advocate of welfare reform, discussed the provisions of President Jimmy Carter's proposed welfare program with representatives from county departments of social services, the mental health clinic, alcoholism recovery centers, planned parenthood, Hergmann Center and many other agencies.

"I think President Carter's proposal is one of the best that I have seen at the federal level," Davis said. "I like the principles and the philosophy of the proposals."

Davis said that he and many other state legislators firmly believed that if there was going to be any type of effective welfare reform, the first steps would have to be taken at the national level. The state senator said that he believed that the President's proposed program was a step in the right direction.

Under Carter's proposed welfare reform program, people who can work will be working and will be able to find jobs—either subsidized jobs which the government provides or jobs in the private sector.

"These jobs are meaningful jobs, too," Davis pointed out. "They are not the WPA type jobs that you think of when you think of these programs."

The jobs in the proposed program include the areas of public safety, recreational facility, child care recycling.

Carter's proposed new program would also cut the disparity between states and the amount of benefits each state's welfare residents would be receiving. This was done to cut down on welfare recipients moving from state to state for the highest benefits.

Following his discussion of the welfare reform bill, Sen. Davis fielded questions from the audience including several pertaining to sex education.

A bill will soon be before the state senate which seeks to allow contraceptive education in the schools. Sen. Davis said he was not familiar with the bill and could not take a stand on it.

However, he did say he would support such a bill if the class was not mandatory and if it was left up to the local school board and a parent's committee to decide what materials should be used in teaching the course.

"I think the philosophy of intent of such a bill is good," Davis said.

Social services department starting new rental program

A new rental supplement program aimed at lower income families and individuals not presently eligible for supplements is being started through the Department of Social Services.

Funded under the federal department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and administered by Social Services for the Michigan State Housing Development Authority, the program will help those living on Social Security or small pensions as well as low income working people.

People need not be clients of Social Services to be eligible for the program. Eligibility is based solely on income and size of family. Those whose income is 80 percent of the median income for the county pay no more than 25 percent of their income for rent, and those whose income is 50 percent or less of the median income for the county pay no more than 15 percent of their income for rent.

Social Services has set up a formula by which the fair market rent is determined in each county and any rental unit for which they pay a supplement must meet conditions of the formula.

Presently it is planned that 30 percent of the rental supplements go to elderly persons, 30 percent to those with a very low income, and 40 percent to those with an income no more than 80 percent of the county median.

People who feel they might qualify for these supplements may obtain a preliminary application form at the offices of the Charlevoix Social Services Department. When it is filled in and returned to the Department and if the applicant is determined to meet necessary qualifications, an appointment will be set up with a representative of Social Services.

After eligibility is determined, the applicant will be given a certificate of family participation, which he can use in locating housing or use in his present housing. It is up to him to find his own place.

Rent supplements are paid by 12-month periods. The renter must sign a 12-month lease, and the landlord and the State will sign a 12-month contract. At the end of a year, the renter will be contacted to determine his continuing eligibility.

People with housing units to rent may also obtain forms from Social Security on which to indicate unit availability, and complete information about the program.

Charlevoix residents receive checks

What proportion of the income that Charlevoix County residents receive each year comes from Government sources? How many in the area are getting so-called "transfer payments?"

These are defined as payments made to persons who are not working for them at the time they receive them. The recipients are, for the most part, people who are retired or are disabled or are unemployed.

Included in the payments are social security benefits, pensions to former Government employees and veterans, medicare, educational assistance, unemployment insurance, welfare, food stamps and other direct relief to individuals and families.

Partly because of inflation and partly because of the recent recession, the amount involved in these transfer payments has zoomed in the last few years, according to figures for each state compiled by the Commerce Department's Bureau of Economic Analysis.

In Charlevoix County, on the basis of figures for the State of Michigan, transfer payments constitute approximately 13 cents of every dollar of income locally.

The major source of these payments is retirement and disability benefits, which include social security and veterans pensions. Close to 49 percent of the total is so derived.

Included in the payments are social security benefits, pensions to former Government employees and veterans, medicare, educational assistance, unemployment insurance, welfare, food stamps and other direct relief to individuals and families.

New new county planner looking forward to job

By PEG OHLE

John Hess, new Charlevoix County Planner, assumed his duties this week and will attend his first Planning Commission meeting Thursday evening.

Hess comes to Charlevoix from Marquette County, where he has served as Assistant Planner for two and a half years. His duties at Marquette have included such facets of planning as land use, recreation, housing analysis, population projections, and building codes. He has also assisted county officials in setting up new departments, and with personnel and budget problems.

Unlike Charlevoix, Marquette has county-wide zoning. However, Hess plans on attending at least one meeting of all the township and city commissions in the county to become acquainted with officials and their planning situations.

Asked about the similarity and differences between Marquette and Charlevoix counties, Hess pointed out that Marquette is much larger (the largest county east of the Mississippi). Also, unlike Charlevoix, Marquette has a larger mining industry. Both are fast growing counties and both are tourist counties, although Marquette has the edge over Charlevoix in population growth — it is the fastest growing county in Michigan. On the other hand, Charlevoix is more of a tourist county than Marquette.

Prior to taking his job with Marquette County, Hess was a lab instructor in cartography at Northern Michigan University, from which he received his bachelor's and master's degrees. He also served six years in the Navy, where he worked with nuclear plants on submarines.

Hess grew up in Harbor Springs but graduated from Saginaw High School when his father was transferred there. His grandparents, Frank and Laura Hess, still live in Harbor Springs, as does an uncle, Wayne Perry.

Hess says he is happy to return to Northern Lower Michigan, especially to Charlevoix, where everyone he has met has been so friendly and cooperative. Hess, his wife Phyllis, two sons, John, two, and Erik six months old; and their niece, Patty Hoffeling, a ninth grade student, live on 414 Meach Street.

Area fuel oil distributors expect adequate winter supplies

Fuel oil distributors in the area expect to have adequate supplies to get through next winter. However, most of them can't guarantee that the price won't go up.

"We're sure we won't have trouble getting fuel. We've had no bad news from the supplier. But we can't guarantee price," says Clara Martin of the Charlevoix Oil Company.

Betty McKenzie of Total Petroleum, Inc. has much the same story, but she's more optimistic about price: "As far as we know, we will have plenty of fuel oil this winter. The price has held its own during the spring and summer and is steady to far," she says.

Jack Radt of the Ptokeay Oil Company sees a possible delivery problem: "We see no problem whatsoever with either gasoline or fuel oil. The pipelines are full and the tanks are full. The only problem might be if they have to go to double-bottom transports. They carry only 9,000 gallons instead of the 1,000 gallons we get now. As a price, nobody really knows. I'm not really concerned."

Three women attend 4-H conference

Three Charlevoix County 4-H leaders recently attended a human ecology training session held in Gaylord.

Lucy Stolt, Nancy Brooks and Claudia Grutsch participated in the session which featured new training materials developed over the past several months by the campus based specialists of the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service.

The three women shared exercises with the program staff which can be used to teach 4-H members skills in personal appearance, foods and nutrition, management, family and child, health and African heritage as well as many other topics associated with human ecology.

The leaders were selected by the county 4-H youth agent Bob Bellairs to attend the seminar with other key leaders from neighboring counties. In the next few months, the women will be sharing their new skills and information with other leaders in the county.

State crafts council sets convention for Oct. 14-16

An internationally renowned architect will be the keynote speaker at Interaction '77, the biennial conference of the Michigan Crafts Council, Oct. 14-16 at Sugar Loaf Village.

Paolo Soleri, architect better known among crafts lovers for his cast bronze bells, will address all craftspeople and interested people attending the conference. Soleri is director of the Cosanti Foundation, a group experimenting with urban reorganization of complexes called archeologies which combine architecture and ecology to improve the physical, psychological and aesthetic qualities of life.

The purpose of the conference is to provide discussion and demonstration of various crafts media, to give information about galleries, grants, health hazards, to see current works by Michigan craftspeople, to exchange ideas and to expand knowledge through various speakers.

People wishing to exhibit should contact Ruby Glick, 30435 West Ten Mile, Farmington, Mich. 48024. For more information about conference costs contact Gawnine or Jane Dart, 41855 North Drive Canton, Mich. 48188.

Dave Goodeman receives sheriff's citizen award

David Glen Goodeman of Charlevoix is the latest recipient of the Citizen's Award from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, this year.

In July of this year, Goodeman was instrumental in this department apprehending a subject from Wayne County that had two valid warrants for his arrest.

"Without his quick thinking and Mr. Goodeman reporting this suspicious acting person to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, this fugitive would have escaped the attention of the authorities."

Goodeman is employed as manager of Muma's Service Station No. 2.

J. Ferguson certified as surveyor

John E. Ferguson of Charlevoix received a certificate of registration from the Michigan Board of Registration for Land Surveyors September 24 at a dinner meeting in Lansing.

Ferguson, who is self-employed, was one of several newly registered land surveyors receiving a certificate.

Jeanne Belfy gets degree at Ball State

Jeanne M. Belfy of Charlevoix received a master of music degree from Ball State University at the school's summer commencement exercises. She was one of 1,227 students receiving graduate, bachelor's, and associate degrees.

Two Students get degrees from CMU

Two students from Charlevoix were among 2,876 to be awarded degrees from Central Michigan University at the end of the winter session in May.

Ronald G. Bindi received a bachelor of science degree in education with a major in social science, and Linda Ruth Kaiser received a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration.

WHAT'S FALL?

It's time to visit Charlevoix the Beautiful

Kathy Jodway marries Steven Edgerton here

Kathy J. Jodway and Steven L. Edgerton were joined in marriage during recent ceremonies at the Charlevoix United Methodist Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Jodway of Boyne City and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Edgerton of Kalamazoo.

Rev. John Gurney officiated at the ceremony in the presence of 200 guests. Arrangements of yellow and white gladioli graced the altar for the service.

Mrs. Brendan LaBlance played a program of traditional wedding music and sang "The Wedding Song," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride chose a floor length gown of white jersey accented with pearls and lace for her wedding. She carried a bouquet of yellow carnations, white roses, daisies and baby's breath.

Margaret Savory of East Jordan was the maid of honor and Mrs. Dean Mikulski, sister of the bride and Mrs. Joey Skop were bridesmaids.

The attendants wore gowns of yellow crepe with sheer bodices accented with daisy trim. They carried bouquets of yellow carnations.

Steve Essling of Hastings was the best man, Craig Bocknek and Rob Dendel were groomsmen, Thomas Jodway, brother of the bride, Dean Mikulski, brother-in-law of the bride, Joey Skop and Gregg MacNaughton seated the guests.

A reception followed the wedding at the Charlevoix Yacht Club. Mrs. Everett Griggin, the bride's aunt, cut the cake, Debbie Edgerton, groom's sister, served the cake, Mrs. Lloyd Andrews and Mrs. Joseph Gregg, bride's aunts, served coffee and Susan Griffin, bride's cousin, served the punch. Laura Loose attended the bride's book.

Following a wedding trip to Missouri, the couple will make their home in Elgin, Ill.

The bride attended North Central Michigan College and is employed at Safety-Cleen in Elgin. The groom, a 1976 graduate of Ferris State College, is employed at the American Honda Motor Co. in Elgin.

The grooms parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Grey Gables Inn.

St. Marys to start new program of youth ministry

A new program in youth ministry will begin at St. Mary's Parish, Sister Lucy Ann Drzewicki, O.P., parish religious education coordinator, has announced.

The program will open with a special meeting on communications between adults and teens from 1 to 4 p.m. Oct. 16 in the school hall.

The afternoon program will emphasize the need of parents and youth to listen to each other. Teens will have an opportunity to voice their concerns and take an active role in the planning of parish programs for youth. Adults will be able to express to the students what they would like to see the students give to the parish community.

The session will also include a Sunday liturgy celebrated by Rev. Dale Mason. Father Mason will also preach the homily and take part in the program.

"High school youth are full members of the parish," Sister Lucy said. "We need the service they can offer in order to grow closer together as a community of believers in Jesus."

"We want to know what our youth want from us as a parish and we also want to invite them and challenge them to become fully active in the service of others both within and outside of our parish."

Crooked Tree photo contest set for middle of month

Down To Earth

"I GUESS WE COULD ALWAYS HAVE A GARAGE SALE OF VEGETABLES..."

Share vegetables

Planting too many vegetables—like zucchini, pumpkin, okra or peas—can lead to storage problems. Rather than waste the food or can and freeze more than you need, find a way to share it.

Check your neighborhood first. See if you can set up a system of sharing crops which others didn't plant. Some church groups have set up a system for sharing garden products. You might join one of these or start one in your own church or other organization.

Or give some vegetables to an older person nearby who doesn't garden anymore. Offer only smaller amounts that the person can use in a short time. You might volunteer to help a senior citizen can or freeze some.

Also, consider canning some extra produce to give friends and relatives for Christmas gifts. To give your personal touch, you might add a decorative label to each jar.

A COMMITTEE OF STUDENTS from Mary Ann Chew's 1976 fourth grade class talk with Marian Kohn about the painting her husband completed. The students gave the painting to the school.

Elementary students donate art

A new piece of art work has been added to the ever growing collection at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

Painting by a former local artist, Dr. Harold E. Kohn, was unveiled during special ceremonies at the K-5 school last week.

The art work was a full color painting of an owl named "Sammy," selected by a committee made up of members of Mary Ann Chew's fourth grade language arts class from last year.

Each year, Mrs. Chew's class prints and sells a newspaper for all students in the school called "Chew's News." The money the students raise throughout the year is then used to buy something for the school, which is selected by a committee of students with Mrs. Chew's guidance.

In the past, the fourth grade students have given the school a Brumm sculpture, a Neff seagull and Ivor Menzies painting and a collection of Laura Ingalls Wilder books.

Attending the presentation ceremony was Marian Kohn, the widow of the artist, who tanked the children for selecting one of her husband's paintings. She also answered many questions about her husband and his art work. "My husband would have been very happy to know that you picked one of his paintings for your library," Mrs. Kohn said.

Dr. Kohn died in May 1975 following a long illness. He had served as minister of the First Congregational Church and later as a counselor for the Hidden Foundation.

A talented writer and artist,

Kohn wrote and illustrated eight books. He also wrote numerous pieces which appeared in such magazines as "Quel" "Church and Home," "The Christian Herald," and "Readers Digest."

He also had small Christmas books published for several years.

Mrs. Kohn said her husband started painting when he was a young boy and especially liked to paint and draw animals. She said her husband enjoyed Northern Michigan because he was able to enjoy the outdoors and see the animals that he liked to draw so well.

The members of the committee who selected the painting were: Dave Fortin, Deanna Loder, Stephanie Balch, Eric Green, Wendy Knight and Ann Wagner.

SPECIAL PRESENTATION CEREMONIES were held at the Charlevoix Elementary School last week as members of the 1976 fourth grade language arts class gave a painting to the school.

Introducing

FORD'S BETTER IDEAS FOR '78

featuring the new Fairmont...the Ford in your future.

Fairmont 2-Door Sedan

Fairmont Squire Wagon

Fairmont 4-Door Sedan

The Fairmont idea.

Fairmont... a new car built for today, but designed for the years ahead. Fairmont combines fuel efficiency, space efficiency and cost efficiency. It's trim outside, and easy on gas, yet it's roomy inside. Stylish, but it doesn't cost a lot. Designed for driver efficiency. With impressive ride and handling. And excellent visibility all around. That's Fairmont—a whole new line of better ideas.

Fuel efficient.

Fairmont sedans offer the best mileage ratings in its class. Surprisingly, Fairmont's mileage ratings are the same as the little VW Rabbit when both are equipped with automatic transmission.

4 Speed Manual	Automatic Transmission
33 MPG (Hwy)	33 MPG (Hwy)
33 MPG (City)	22 MPG (City)

*EPA estimates with 2.3 liter engine. Your mileage may vary depending on your car's condition, optional equipment, and how and where you drive. California and Wagon ratings are lower.

Space efficient.

More than 90% of the head room, leg room, shoulder room of most large cars. Even with its excellent mileage ratings, Fairmont is not a little car. It's engineered to be space efficient with 90% of the room in the key areas of most large cars. And Fairmont's roomy trunk has a flat floor, so it holds ten assorted pieces of luggage.

Cost efficient.

Fairmont base sticker prices are lower than some little economy cars like Toyota Corolla. Fairmont is designed to keep scheduled maintenance costs down, too. 20,000 miles between scheduled engine tune-ups, 12 months or 10,000 miles between scheduled oil changes. Compare Fairmont's excellent combination of high mileage ratings, roominess, and low sticker price with any other car sold in America.

More new 1978 ideas to brighten your future driving.

1978 Thunderbird.
The new Thunderbird is ready for takeoff. With all the styling, luxury and fine engineering that you expect in a Thunderbird.

New Granada ESS.
Can you tell its looks from a $20,000 Mercedes-Benz 280SE? Our new ESS is styled in the tradition of expensive sports sedans. With special luxury inside and exquisite touches throughout. It's the flagship of our popular Granada line.

All-New Bronco.
The first 4-wheeler that puts it all together. With a big cube 351 V-8, family-size comfort, a choice of part-time or full-time 4WD with the optional automatic, rear footwell, choice of front bench seat or bucket seats, and many other features.

New Ford Fiesta.
Europe's most successful little new car... Imported from Germany. During Ford Fiesta's first six months of sales, it outsold every new nameplate ever introduced in Europe. Engineered to give its driver dramatic performance. With front-wheel drive, room and comfort for four.

1978 Ford LTD.
The roomy Ford that many families need. If you're one of the millions of people who need a standard-size car, the Ford LTD could be just the car for you. It has a deep-well, easy-to-load trunk. And stretch-out comfort for six that you expect from LTD.

When America needs a better idea, Ford puts it on wheels.

Junior flag football league opens season last week

The Junior League of the flag football program opened its season last week with the Steelers and the Dolphins.

The game on a 38 yard kick return before the Lions swung into gear with Mark Trimmer passing to Tony Towles for 15 yards to tie the score and Ken Carson putting the Lions ahead on a 15 yard run.

In the second half Thad Morgan scored twice, when he fell on the ball in the end following a blocked punt and again in the final period on a five yard run. Trimmer scored the conversion.

Lions 19 Dolphins 0

It was Thad Morgan again the following night who scored on runs of six and 20 yards and Doug Milligan on a 15 yard run that gave the Lions their second win of the season. Mark Trimmer made it 19 with a conversion as the Lions swamped the Dolphins.

Chargers 18 Steelers 0

A 25 yard pass play that saw Brent Cole pitching to Dan Buday and a conversion by Cole put the Chargers on the scoreboard in their game with the Steelers.

A line plunge from one yard out by Mark Lignell who also scored the conversion put the Chargers ahead 14-0 before Mike Roebuck scored a safety late in the game.

Vikings, Bucs tie while Patriots win in senior flag play

In the second night of play in the Senior League of the Flag Football program, the Vikings and the Buccaneers played to a 14-14 tie while the Patriots dumped the Raiders 19-0.

A third game between the Harms and the Cowboys will be played Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. The game was postponed because of the heavy rain.

Vikings 14 Bucs 14

In the Vikings-Bucs game, the Vikings jumped to a 14-0 lead before the Bucs fought back in the final period to tie the score.

Ross Carey had scored on runs of seven and four yards in the second quarter and n safety in the third period to put the Vikings ahead 14-0.

However, in the final period the Bucs stormed back to score on runs of one and 21 yards by Mark Beaudoin who also scored the conversions to knot the score as time ran out.

Patriots 19 Raiders 0

Playing in a downpour, the Patriots did not get on the scoreboard until the third period when Jeff Trimmer scored on runs of 18 and 10 yards and Tim LaBlance on a 36 yard run. Curt Pulpfaff added the extra point on the conversion.

Rayders come from behind to down Chiefs

By BILL MERCER
Fans from both high schools were treated to an exciting evening of football in Cheboygan this past Friday as the Charlevoix Rayder defense gave up a total of 202 yards and 14 first downs.

Cheboygan took the opening kickoff from their own 35-yard line and using a full-house backfield, moved for five first downs and a touchdown. Cheboygan Quarterback Rose carried for the last yard to score.

Greg Krueger blocked the point after kick and Charlevoix found itself trailing for the first time this season, 6-0.

Also for the first time this season, an opponent had successfully moved the ball on the ground against the big Rayder defensive line. Excellent blocking by the interior line of Cheboygan opened big holes for Chief backfield men Don Lange, Jeff Lassalvie, Lenny Melberg and Louis Rose. The Rayder defense gave up a total of 202 yards and 14 first downs.

Fortunately for Charlevoix, the offensive line was able to find weak points in the Chief's defense. Quarterback Jim Alger directed the Rayders to a quick score following the kickoff. Using the running of Krueger, Kevin Kratt and Jim Elzinga, Charlevoix picked up one first down. Krueger then took a handoff 48 yards down the home sideline for the touchdown.

Girls Varsity loses close one to Rogers

It was a close game, but it still ended in defeat for the Charlevoix Rayders Girls Varsity Basketball Team.

The Rayders were handed their third defeat of the season by the Rogers City squad 48-42.

"The game was very close the first quarter," Coach Toni Felter said. "But we let them get away from us in the second quarter."

Coach Felter said bad passes and turnovers worked against the Rayders in their drive against the Rogers City team.

Charlevoix scored six points in the first quarter of Rogers City's nine. However, in the second quarter, the Rayders added only nine more points to the score while Rogers City pumped in 22.

The Rayders scored 27 points in the second half of the game as did Rogers City.

"We really looked good during the game," Coach Felter said. "We're starting to look like a ball team now."

"We shot a little more in the first half than we have in the past, but not as much as we should have."

Coach Felter said she substituted many players during the game and that each unit looked good together and played well together.

Sherri Selassen was top point maker for the team with 14 points. Kris Fiedler had 8 and Laurie Gibbs had 6.

The top scorer for Rogers City was Claus with 15 points and Bellmore with 14.

The Rayders travel to Grayling for the next game on Thursday.

Head Coach Don Carey and assistant Presnell obviously had a brief talk with the defense at the intermission and using their coaches' advice, the defense stopped the Chiefs rushing game on three straight plays. Going on fourth down, Cheboygan's

Guy Carter's point after kick was through the uprights and Charlevoix had a short lived lead, 7-6.

Cheboygan again opened wide holes for their running backs as they returned the kickoff. Crucial to their drive was an attempt at a first down on a count of fourth down and two at the Rayder 33-yard line.

Lange carried over left tackle for the important yardage, giving Cheboygan possession of the Charlevoix 29-yard line. Three plays later, Rose carried the final yard for the score.

With 7:06 remaining in the first half, Charlevoix again was behind.

Both offensive units were forced to punt on successive drives. Following this the teams exchanged interceptions. Lange grabbed a Rayder pass and on the first Cheboygan play, Elzinga returned the favor. The Chiefs stopped a Charlevoix drive as the half ended by picking off a second Alger pass.

Charlevoix was forced to punt on its first possession of the second half. The snap from center was low and Rayder punter Krueger dropped to his knee to retrieve the ball. This maneuver gave Cheboygan possession on Charlevoix's 12-yard line.

Head Coach Don Carey and assistant Presnell obviously had a brief talk with the defense at the intermission and using their coaches' advice, the defense stopped the Chiefs rushing game on three straight plays. Going on fourth down, Cheboygan's recovery and another march down the field.

JV Coach Hal Evans said the Cheboygan team was well disciplined and played a steady game.

Evans singled out several Charlevoix players as contributing to the game. On offense Mark Drenth and Kurt Williams played well while Tom Mielke, Phil Morrison and Mark Price worked hard on defense.

The JV squad will face Grayling next at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at Kipke Field.

Girls JV loses first game to Rogers City 34-33

The Charlevoix Junior Varsity Football team dropped its second game of the season to the Cheboygan Chiefs last week.

The Rogers City JV squeaked by the Rayders 34-33.

Coach Henry Waxner said turnovers hurt the Rayder team the most. He also said bad passing contributed to the loss.

"We had more turnovers than we had points," Waxner said. "You expect 10 turnovers a game, but not 38."

"We just weren't playing our brand of ball."

Melinda Klooster was the high scorer for the Rayders in the game with 18 points and 12 rebounds.

The JV plays Grayling next Thursday on the Viking's home court.

Freshman team drops game to Cheboygan 14-8

Another defeat was handed to the Charlevoix Freshman Football team last week as the Rayders lost a close one to the Cheboygan Chiefs 14-8.

Cheboygan completed the first scoring at take of the game on a 42-yard run. The extra point attempt failed.

The Rayders came back to score on a 18-yard pass play from Jeff Daylong to Gerry Thompson. Dennis Morgridge ran for the two-point conversion leaving Charlevoix ahead 8-6 in the first quarter. Cheboygan came back to score in the second quarter on a 30-yard pass play and the team completed the extra point leaving the score 14-8 at the half.

It was a scoreless second half as both teams fought hard defensively. Both teams had the opportunity to score, but they couldn't put scoring runs together.

Coach Chuck Bentley singled out Jeff Daylong, Dennis Morgridge and Dave Krueger as outstanding offensive players during the game. The coach said he couldn't single anyone out from the defensive team because all of the players did an excellent job. The coach said he is now being assisted by his duties by Ken Wojan, Sr. a former all state lineman for the Charlevoix Rayders.

The freshman team plays its next game Wednesday against Petokey at Kipke Field.

Rayders come from behind to down Chiefs

The Charlevoix team stands at 4-0 on the season with their Michigan-Huron Shores League record 2-0. This puts them in a tie with Petokey for the conference lead. Next the Grayling team in a Friday afternoon, 4 p.m., game in Grayling.

Strong defensive play by Barry Potter, Pat Klooster, Erik Lundeligen, Erik Hoffman and Kip Cinnamon helped the Rayders to their victory.

Two first downs later, Cheboygan was again close to a score. With time running out, the ball was on the Charlevoix 16-yard line. The defense held for two plays and using their last time out, the Chiefs set up for a field goal attempt.

Darrin VanLee then saved the day, as he came in and blocked the kick. Charlevoix had to merely run out the clock to preserve their victory 20-18.

For the final Cheboygan possession, both sides of the field were in an uproar. Chief fans wanted a score and Rayder rooters called on the defense.

Benjamin Beach promoted to rank of captain in Army

Benjamin (Sandy) Beach, Executive Officer at the U.S. Coast Guard Support Center at Kodiak, Alaska, was promoted to the rank of Captain recently.

A veteran of 28 years in the U.S. Coast Guard, Captain Beach is on his third assignment to Kodiak.

A native of Sharpsburg, Maryland, Capt. Beach calls Wilmington, Del. home. He enlisted in the Coast Guard following graduation from high school and for the next 10 years served as a TT (Telephone Technician) mostly on the east coast and in the Ninth Coast Guard District where he met and married the former Billie Douglas of Charlevoix.

When he reached the rate of TTI, he attended Officer's Candidate School, which at that time was at Groton, Conn., and received his first commission. After a tour of duty aboard the Cutter Ketchikan, he went on to Flight Training School at Pensacola, Fla., and received his wings in 1968. His first duty station as a Coast Guard pilot was at Salem, Mass., where he served three years before going to Kodiak in 1961 for the first time. After an assignment at the Air Station at Traverse City, he returned to Kodiak for a second time in 1969, this time for a two year tour of duty.

Assigned as Chief of Personnel at the Ninth District Office in Cleveland, Beach was out of aviation and into a desk job in a position he held for three years. In the position as Support Center Executive Officer, Capt. Beach will serve as a liaison between Coast Guard personnel and their families and the Support Center Command.

Capt. and Mrs. Beach have two children, Sandy, 25, and Gary, 22, who reside in California.

Included in his studies were seamanship, close-order drill, Naval history and first aid.

A 1977 graduate of Charlevoix High School, he joined the Navy in June 1977.

Larry Rhine takes training in San Diego

Navy Seaman Recruit Lawrence L. Rhine, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Novotny of 408 W. Garfield, Charlevoix, Mich., has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in his studies were seamanship, close-order drill, Naval history and first aid.

A 1977 graduate of Charlevoix High School, he joined the Navy in June 1977.

John Pidek completes Navy training

Navy Seaman Apprentice John R. Pidek, son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Pidek Sr. of Old M-66, Box 69, Route 2, Charlevoix, Mich., has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in his studies were seamanship, close-order drill, Naval history and first aid.

A 1977 graduate of Charlevoix High School, he joined the Navy in June 1977.

Lucy Wiklanski finishes course on jet engine

Navy Airman Recruit Lucy J. Wiklanski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wiklanski of P.O. Box 326, Bayshore, Mich., completed the Basic Aviation Machinist's Mate Jet Engine Course with honors.

During the five-week course at the Naval Air Technical Training Center, Millington, Tenn., students received introductory instruction on the characteristics and operating principles of jet engines. Their studies included engine lubrication, ignition and fuel systems. Additionally, they studied the procedures for refueling and defueling aircraft; for removal and installation of aircraft engines and for the operation of aircraft ground handling equipment.

She joined the Navy in April 1977.

David Bowman completes recruit training in Florida

Navy Fireman David M. Bowman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy O. Bowman of 101 Anstie St., Charlevoix, Mich., has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Orlando, Fla.

During the eight-week training cycle, trainees studied general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in their studies were seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid.

A 1977 graduate of Charlevoix High School, he joined the Navy in April 1977.

Dennis Peterson takes part in army exercises in Calif.

Army Private First Class Dennis L. Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon L. Peterson, 710 N. Maple St., East Jordan, Mich., recently participated in exercise Brave Shield XVI in Southern California and Nevada.

Some 25,000 Army, Air Force, Marine and Navy personnel took part in the exercise. Brave Shield was designed to provide an opportunity for joint service training in tactics, techniques and procedures.

Pfc. Peterson, who is regularly assigned as a forward observer with the 8th Field Artillery at Ft. Ord, Calif., entered the Army in October 1976.

The private is a 1975 graduate of East Jordan High School.

David Bricker graduates

Airman David G. Bricker, son of Mrs. Norma G. Bricker of 706 Division St., East Jordan, Mich., has graduated at Lowry AFB, Colo., from the U.S. Air Force technical training course for weapons mechanics.

Airman Bricker, who was trained to load and inspect weapons used in Air Force aircraft, is being assigned to Davis-Monthan AFB, Ariz., for duty with a unit of the Tactical Air Command. Completion of the course earned the individual credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman is a 1974 graduate of East Jordan High School.

Edna Miller attends Navy promotion rites

A Charlevoix resident recently attended U.S. Navy promotion ceremonies at the Pentagon in Washington D.C.

Edna Miller of 114 Upright St., was in Washington to attend the promotion ceremonies of her son-in-law LCDR Sidney Emery and his brother CDR George Emery. The ceremonies were held in the office of the Secretary of the Navy W. Graham Claytor.

LCDR Emery is married to Mrs. Miller's daughter Vicki. Emery is currently serving as a special assistant to the Secretary of the Navy. He is a surface warfare officer having served aboard the gunboat Gallup in Vietnam and the guided missile cruiser Haney. He was graduated first in his class at the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis. In 1973 he earned his Ph. D. in Industrial Engineering from Stanford University.

His brother is also assigned to Washington D.C. area as the officer assignment coordinator for Admiral H. G. Rickover, director of naval reactors. He was also a honor graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy. The brothers are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Emery of Springvale, Me.

County board considers 10 percent hike

The 1978 proposed budget for Charlevoix County amounts to $1,841,423. A public hearing on the budget is scheduled for today (Tuesday) at 2:30 p.m. in the Commissioner's Room of the County Building Annex.

Due to change in the system of accounting, it is not possible to compare each department's figures with those of last year. However, the General Fund

Council sets Dec. 12 for charter vote

A second election on a proposed new charter for Charlevoix will be held on Dec. 12.

In making the request for the special election, John Michael, charter commission member, pointed out city residents are allowed three votes on a proposed new charter. Michael indicated that if the second election were to be held at a later date than Dec. 12, there would not be enough time for the commission to reevaluate the charter and hold a third election if it were necessary.

Charlevoix Common Council approved a request from the Charlevoix Charter Commission for the special election at a special meeting Monday night by a 3-1 vote. Ivan Whitley opposed the action with Sue Erber and George Plumm absent.

Ann Landers to visit

Nationally known advice columnist Ann Landers will be in Charlevoix next month for a special fundraiser and public lecture.

The Charles "Chip" Ransom Counseling Center Board of Directors has invited Miss Landers to visit Charlevoix Nov. 3 as part of a kickoff campaign to raise funds for an additional counselor at the center to assist Oren Schroeder. A dinner and reception for Miss Landers will be held at the Grey Gables Inn followed by an 8:30 p.m. Public lecture at the Charlevoix High School gymnasium. Gus Franczek, board member, said.

Golfers take conference

The Charlevoix Bayder golf team captured its first Michigan Huron Shores Conference golf title in the league, finished second with a 345 followed by St. Ignace with a 364; Cheboygan with 371 and Boyne City with 426. Gaylord was disqualified.

The Bayder team, coached by Barry Anderson, covered the course with a low of 336. The Pottery Northmen, who have dominated the golf scene in the league, finished second with a 345 followed by St. Ignace with a 364; Cheboygan with 371 and Boyne City with 426. Gaylord was disqualified.

Why Pay for Cottage Patrols? I would like to know why the taxpayers of Charlevoix have to pay for cottage patrols through the Sheriff's Dept. when we have 3 or 4 men in the county that do that as a business. I believe that it's a crowding private enterprise a little bit and the taxpayers are paying for it and I'd like to know the reason why.

Need Saturday Matinee I just wonder why the Charlevoix theater does not have a Saturday matinee with movies for children. A lot of people that I know would love to have their children be able to go to the movies on the weekends, but there is no place for them to go here in Charlevoix.

Opinion on Library, Skating Rink I think it's a shame that the library parking lot is always filled with cars. If you have a book to drop off and wanted to go in, every parking spot is filled. They seem to be there from 9:00 a.m. in the morning before the library is open to 6:00 p.m. In the evening and you still can't find a parking place. These cars should be ticketed or find out who is using the parking lot all day when there is a 2-hour limit parking for library business only. I would also like to state my opinion about putting the skating rink next to the skating area. I think that they should move it back down to the Middle School or somewhere where more children can use it that have to walk to the ice rink. When they moved it to Ferry Beach, they lost half the ice skaters. When they moved it to the high school parking lot, they gained some back, but I think that the majority of the children that are ice skaters are not people that will use the ski area. There is little parking there and what there is, is so bumpy the skaters can hardly park. If they really want to do something for the children, I think they should put it in the valley, or maybe in the park at Michigan Beach, not at Ferry Beach, where the amount of young children that go ice skating are so few.

Fall fishing better than ever and that's no fish story

When fishermen get the bug to get out the rod and reel, they really get the bug. And all it takes for Charlevoix area fishermen to get that bug is the word that the fish are running. Last week, the pier along the Pine River channel was carpeted with hopeful anglers in search of their limit. And not too many of them were disappointed.

"I've been here 15 minutes and I've caught three fish," George Ebenhoeh, a businessman dressed in fisherman's clothing said pointing at a pile of good sized fish on the pier.

"This is the best year we've ever had. Last year the fish were much smaller and there were fewer of them."

Ebenhoeh got in his fishing during the hour before he was due to open his office as Charlevoix County Friend of the Court at 9 a.m. He came to the pier dressed in his fishing clothes with his business clothes underneath.

Along with Ebenhoeh on the pier was Richard Chasc, a Plymouth chiropractor. "I've been coming here for years," he said. "It's the best fishing spot in the country."

And Myrl Keller, biologist in charge of the Charlevoix Fisheries Station for the Department of Natural Resources, agreed.

"It's been the best year by far for Charlevoix," Keller said. "The fishery has been building for the last three years and this is the best year yet."

Keller said he has heard fishermen say they've caught their 42nd fish of the year off the pier already, which is unusual this early in the season. According to Keller, that's one good thing that can be attributed to the almost constant rainfall the area has been experiencing.

"The run has started much earlier than normal this year," he said. "I suspect the rains have had a lot to do with it."

"There's been so much water flow from the rains and the heavy winds that we've had that it has attracted the fish earlier this year."

In addition to Chinook, fishermen are also hooking lake trout, Steelhead and Brown trout from the pier now, Keller said. The fishing will be good from now until Dec. 1 with the peak coming around deer hunting season.

"There's a tremendous amount of fish taken off the pier," Keller said. "We've counted between 60 and 100 Lake trout taken during the day time and who knows how many at night."

"It makes me feel good because for people who can't afford a large boat or the price of a charter, the pier is a chance for recreation and some good fish to boot."

Keller pointed out that many of the fishermen taking advantage of the run along the pier are retirees.

"It's just a wonderful thing," he said. "We see people coming down here with their waders and their crutches to fish. We're kind of tickled about it."

GEORGE EBENHOEH, a businessman in fisherman's clothing, shows off the three fish he caught in less than 15 minutes.

Homecoming festivities underway this week

By LAURA GLASS. Next to graduation, Homecoming is the most exciting time of the year for high school students.

Charlevoix High School is getting into the homecoming spirit this week in preparation for the big game Friday. Construction of the floats has already begun. The theme set for the floats this year is "Movies" and so far the ideas are great.

The freshmen have chosen the movie, "Pink Panther Strikes Again," for their float and will be calling it "The Itayders Strike Again." The sophomores chose the movie "Star Wars," and plan to call it "The Force is with Us."

Junior class students voted for the movie "King Kong," for their float and will be using the slogan, "The Itayders are King Strong," and the senior class voted for the movie, "Gone With the Wind," and their slogan will be "Hurons are Gone With the Wind."

Yes, if there is something that gets school spirit fired up, it's making floats, attending pep rallies and—the sound of the band playing. Early in the morning and even at night this week, the Charlevoix Bayder Marching Band will be heard practicing for the half time show. Jancen Boal, a member of the flag corps, said: "The practices are hard and sometimes a pain, but we always feel great during the show."

Another important part of Homecoming is the Queen and her court.

Mary Faculak, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Faculak, is a 17-year-old senior who is very interested in horse racing. In fact, she recently won the Northwestern Championship in barrel racing. Besides this award, Mary was named in the Who's Who in American High School Students and she is co-editor of the Bayder Yearbook, senior class secretary, a member of the Spanish Club and secretary of the Homecoming Committee.

In the future, Mary hopes to attend Michigan State University and become a veterinarian.

Another member of the court, Terri Bradley, is also a 17-year-old senior. Terri is a member of the Bayder Marching Band Flag Corps and is also on the senior class committee. She works part time at Dapper Dick's Deli.

In the future, she plans to attend either Western Michigan University or Central Michigan University. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bradley.

Karen Sell, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sell, is co-president of the senior class, along with another court member Peggy Hosmer. Karen, 17, also works part time at the Clothing Company.

Karen plans to attend college and enter the field of social work spending most of her time helping underprivileged children.

Kim Lehman, 17, has been a CHS cheerleader for all four of her high school years. She also attended Girls State.

Kim hopes to attend Western Michigan University and enter the field of occupational therapy. Kim is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lehman.

Another court member is Peggy Hosmer, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Hosmer. Peggy is a member of the Bayder Marching Band Flag Corps and a member of both the ski and tennis teams.

Next year Peggy would like to attend Michigan State University and study interior and window design.

This year the Homecoming schedule will be a little different from the past years. Instead of the usual snake dance and bon fire, Thursday night, there will be a pep assembly at the end of the school day at the high school.

The 1977 queen will be announced at that time. The reason for the change is due to the fire hazards and the lack of interest in the snake dance.

Friday, will be the parade and the judging of the floats. The parade will begin at the Charlevoix Middle School at 6:45 p.m.

Replacement of windows at middle school finished

The replacement of the windows at the Charlevoix Middle School is now complete. Inter-Lake Industries, Inc., of Novi, completed the job last week installing 137 new windows at the school. The contractors had been on the job for about two and one-half weeks.
The windows had to be replaced because many of the wooden frames holding the windows had begun to rot, Vince Olach, business manager, explained. Also the windows were replaced as an energy saving measure.
The complete project cost $12,823 and was funded through voter approval of one mill for five years for improvements and maintenance at the school.
Olach predicts that the new windows will save between 15 and 20 percent on heat energy use.
"That means our utility bills will probably be the same as last year's," Olach explained. "With the utility rates increasing each year, the savings ought to cover the increase."
Olach said the new doors at the high school would also result in a savings and help to keep the utility rates at the school under control.

THE NEW WINDOWS have all been installed at the Charlevoix Middle School. The windows were paid for out of the special one mill approved by the voters last spring for renovation and improvements at the school.

Volunteers help organize meetings between parents and teachers

Setting up parent-teacher conferences for the Charlevoix School District is a mammoth job and it couldn't be accomplished without the help of volunteers from the school district.
Roy Fortin, assistant high school principal and coordinator of the conference project, said more than 30 women have been working about a week to schedule the more than 1,100 requested conferences between parents and teachers.
Parent-teacher conferences will be held on the evenings of Oct. 19 and 20 and all day on Oct. 21. There will be no school Oct. 21.
The scheduling process begins when students bring home conference forms. The forms are filled out and returned to the three schools and then gathered by Fortin. The forms are then alphabetized and organized according to family.
After that the volunteers begin scheduling meetings between parents and teachers.
"There are a lot of things that complicate the process," Fortin pointed out. "Some teachers have classes at two buildings and you have to make sure that you allow enough travel time for them. Other teachers have the same name and you have to make sure that you don't schedule a conference with the wrong teacher."
Helping with the scheduling this year were: Janet Buchanan, Bonnie Keie, Betty Coon, Faye Alger, Mary Fortin, Velma Powell, Mary Ann Cudd, Joni Olach, Joan Huffman, Elaine Westbrook, Lil Left, Nancy Fowler, Jackie Staley, Fran Tollas, Kate Smith, Jean Van Wieren, Margaret Julieret, Rita Dohm, Elaine Avery, Ann Huffard, Eloise Klooster, Carolyn Klooster, Bonnie Hicks, Judy Cockfield, Jane Lieberman, Mary Lou Supernaw, Sonja Martin, Pauline Anstett, Sandra Beaudoin, Phyllis Hilton, Pauline Young, Ann Landon and Maurine Dziedzic.
In addition to funds budgeted for regular operation of the school district, the school board will also be working with an additional 1 mill for maintenance and improvements at the Charlevoix Middle School. The additional mill was approved by the voters last spring.
The board has already spent $70,000 installing new windows and renovating the playground at the middle school.
In the proposed budget, which school board members will consider at 7:30 p.m. in the Charlevoix High School study hall, $457,433 has been earmarked for elementary instruction up from $122,851 last year. At the middle school, $449,404 has been budgeted for instruction an increase from $333,449 and $621,871 has been budgeted for high school instruction an increase from $689,788.
In the area of special education, $70,456 has been budgeted for the 1977-78 school year up from $59,902. $56,827 has been budgeted for vocational education an increase from $14,170. $3,928 for adult education, up from $3,099 and $13,875 for summer school up from $13,236.
Employee benefits for teachers increased from $117,923 to $150,008.
In the area of support services for the school districts the proposed budget allows $55,271 for administration a drop from $66,841 budgeted last year. For plant operation and maintenance $325,726 has been budgeted an increase from $287,229 spent last year.
The board is proposing to spend $151,330 on transportation which is up from last year's $133,520 and $5,361 on health services an increase from $4,020.
From incoming transfers the district is anticipating receiving $5,200 from the intermediate school district, and tuition.

JACKIE STANLEY, Nancy Fowler and Lil Left are just three of the many volunteers who help set up parent-teacher conferences in the Charlevoix School District.

It takes a special person to be a school bus driver

"I've been a bus driver for seven years and I wouldn't change it for anything," Dorothy Russell said proudly as she drove a busload of squirming Charlevoix Elementary School students toward home.
"I guess I just like kids," Mrs. Russell is one of 20 bus drivers who cart more than 1,000 elementary, middle school and high school students back and forth along 14 routes to school every day.
"Being a bus driver is a difficult job, according to Bud Harris, supervisor of the drivers and bus mechanic for the school district. It is important to remember this week, National School Bus Safety Week, and throughout the year, that bus drivers need the cooperation of everyone to get kids to school and home again safely.
"It's difficult to concentrate on driving, watch the kids, listen to the noise and avoid accidents," Harris said.
Harris said the school bus covered about 166,000 miles last year without any major problems.
"We've never had a fatality and I think I can say that we've never had a serious injury either," Harris said. And that takes some doing, but Charlevoix is fortunate to have expert bus drivers, according to Harris. Many of the drivers recently received their 10 year patches for driving the buses that long without an accident.
Harris pointed out that it takes quite a bit of training for a person to become a bus driver. All drivers must pass an annual physical, have a chauffeur's license, pass a state exam and a state skill test before they can become certified drivers.
Each year the drivers must also attend three sessions of classes on safety and driving techniques.
"A lot of people refer to us as dumb bus drivers when they're mad," Harris said. "But we're not so dumb."
Harris pointed out that it takes a special kind of a person to handle the job, too.
"I look for a special type of person when I hire a bus driver," he said. "They've got to be able to deal with kids and a lot of other things, too."
"You know they say you don't have to be crazy to be a bus driver, but it sure does help," he quipped.
Mrs. Russell said the key to success as a bus driver is liking kids and liking to drive.
"You have to be able to stand the noise, too," she said. "I don't mind the health noise, but when they start screaming, that's where I draw the line."
A young student on the bus confided that Mrs. Russell isn't as tough as she puts on.
"Really the only way to make her mad is to talk dirty," he said.
Mrs. Russell said that as a School budget increases 8.7 percent for 1977-78

The Charlevoix Board of Education will be considering an 8.7 percent increase in its budget for the 1977-78 school year when the annual budget hearing takes place next Monday.
The proposed budget has been increased $21,000 from $2.2 million to $2.4 million. The budget was raised 7.5 percent last year.
The increases in the proposed new budget were not made in any one area but are spread throughout the various budget categories. Vince Olach, business manager, said.
In addition to funds budgeted for regular operation of the school district, the school board will also be working with an additional 1 mill for maintenance and improvements at the Charlevoix Middle School. The additional mill was approved by the voters last spring.
The board has already spent $70,000 installing new windows and renovating the playground at the middle school.
In the proposed budget, which school board members will consider at 7:30 p.m. in the Charlevoix High School study hall, $457,433 has been earmarked for elementary instruction up from $122,851 last year. At the middle school, $449,404 has been budgeted for instruction an increase from $333,449 and $621,871 has been budgeted for high school instruction an increase from $689,788.
In the area of special education, $70,456 has been budgeted for the 1977-78 school year up from $59,902. $56,827 has been budgeted for vocational education an increase from $14,170. $3,928 for adult education, up from $3,099 and $13,875 for summer school up from $13,236.
Employee benefits for teachers increased from $117,923 to $150,008.
In the area of support services for the school districts the proposed budget allows $55,271 for administration a drop from $66,841 budgeted last year. For plant operation and maintenance $325,726 has been budgeted an increase from $287,229 spent last year.
The board is proposing to spend $151,330 on transportation which is up from last year's $133,520 and $5,361 on health services an increase from $4,020.
From incoming transfers the district is anticipating receiving $5,200 from the intermediate school district, and tuition.

Freedom of press key to free speech, free society

Why tolerate criticism? "Why should freedom of speech and freedom of the press be allowed? Why should a government which is doing what it believes to be right allow itself to be criticized?"

"It would not allow opposition by lethal weapons. Ideas are much more fatal things than guns."

"Why should any man be allowed to buy a printing press and disseminate pernicious opinion calculated to embarrass the government?"

The above statement could have been made by any irate newspaper reader or government official who at one time or another feels he or she has been harassed by the press. They know they have been trying to do what they believe is right and they can't understand why anyone would want to take exception to their efforts.

In fact, the statement was made by Nikolai Lenin, a Russian revolutionary leader who founded the modern USSR.

During this week, National Newspaper Week, newspaper readers, government officials, newspaper employees and citizens of the United States everywhere should take time to reflect on Lenin's words and on the meaning of freedom of the press.

A newspaper is more than comics, helpful hints and stories about the neighbors and others in the community. It is more than classified ads and display ads.

A newspaper is a free press—the people's first defense against tyranny. A free press protects the personal freedoms of everyone by maintaining open and free public communication about the operations of government on a local, state and national level. Without it government would be able to move unhindered along the paths that lead to less and less personal freedom for the residents of this country.

Free press. Free speech. Free society. They go together. You can't have one without the other.

Most Americans don't appreciate freedom of the press because they have never been without it. They really can't comprehend that most people in the world don't have a free press—and most don't have any means of knowing the truth about what is happening in their own country or the world beyond.

When Americans pick up their newspapers, they are holding freedom in their hands. The printed word offers knowledge to the reader and gives him or her the weapons to fight oppression.

During the last year, the Charlevoix Courier has tried staunchly to keep its readers informed about governmental happenings as well as civic and cultural activities.

The Courier has dedicated itself to presenting both sides of the issue, but it has also taken stands on issues based on its understanding of the facts.

The paper has been criticized for some of its stands, but it has continued to be firm, supporting its views and allowing space for the dissenting too.

The Courier recognizes the awesome responsibility it has in helping to maintain the freedoms this nation and its people hold so dear. It will continue to work hard to uphold these values.

Firemen, bus drivers important members of the community

In addition to National Newspaper Week, this week is also Fire Prevention Week and National School Bus Safety Week.

It is important to remember the importance of both these things to the safety of this country.

Fire is a hazard that can wreak total disaster. Not only do fires wipe out property, but they also kill. On the average, Michigan had 223 fires a day last year and 358 people lost their lives as a result of fires. One of those people was a young boy living right in this county. Two other fire deaths were small children from a neighboring county.

The men and women who dedicate themselves to fighting fires are a special breed. Every time they answer a fire call they are laying their lives on the line. Yet they continue to serve communities year after year with dedication as fire fighters and as community servants.

Incidentally, Fire Prevention Week is held during these dates to commemorate the great fire of Chicago.

Bus drivers serve with the same dedication. They have charge of the most precious cargo in the world—children. The drivers work hard to operate their buses in as safe a manner as possible, but they need help from other drivers, too.

Stop when the buses lights are blinking and watch for children. Give buses plenty of stopping distance and don't cut them off.

There's a lot to be said in favor of being young, particularly in liberated society of the 1970's. But I'd hate to be a young fellow just starting out in life with a brand new home mortgage at today's prices, interest rates and property taxes.

In case you haven't noticed, the job market is not what it used to be. Just after World War II it was still alive and well. But without something happens soon to bring the cost of home ownership under control your grandchildren may have to be raised in the back seat of a Volvo.

In June, the price of new houses in the Chicago area averaged $62,000—one of the cheapest areas. In Washington the price was $67,700 and around Los Angeles $72,100.

These aren't millions, mind you. Just average, middle class homes with a scrap of yard, a bathroom and two and a two-car garage—with a scrap of yard, a bathroom and two and a two-car garage—if you're lucky.

In 1950, seven out of 10 Americans could afford such a home. By 1975, although paychecks increased dramatically during the intervening years, such a home was within the price range of only four out of every 10 families. And the ever-widening ratio shows no sign of changing direction.

According to experts on the family budget, the purchase price of a house should be no more than double the buyer's annual income. And his housing payments, including utilities, should be no more than one quarter of his pay.

By those standards, no one earning less than $30,000 or $35,000 a year should be in the market for a new house. By the same token, many present mortgage payers are living in quarters they certainly could not afford if they were entering the buyer's market today. Since very few young married men have incomes approaching $30,000 annually, other arrangements must be made. Renting is one alternative, although collecting rent receipts has long been recognized as an exercise in futility. Two more renters find themselves against the wall financially when income diminishes at retirement.

Another alternative is "moving in with the folks," an arrangement which often is damaging to domestic relations.

A third, and probably most popular alternative, is for the young wife to go to work to boost family income to the point where home ownership is within the realm of possibility.

However, many newly marrieds are discovering that even with two incomes, house payments, insurance, interest and taxes push them to the limit of their spendable income. There is no money left over for furnishings, clothing, automobiles, entertainment or even an adequate diet.

Of course, the two-income arrangement is fraught with hazards, not the least of which is an unexpected pregnancy, which can make a shambles of the most pain-taking budget.

All of which is to say the housing situation in the United States is nothing short of a disgrace.

It is high time the people charged with putting shingles over American heads—real estate people, contractors, lumber dealers, bankers, plumbers, electricians and their colleagues in the building business—come to grips with one of America's most depressing problems.

"Computers could produce statistics providing that people whose names begin with H are involved in more car accidents than people whose names begin with W. But why should insurance companies use such statistics to justify raising rates?"

The quote is from Carl Levin, president of the Detroit City Council. The subject was redlining, that nefarious tactic by which large groups of people are bumped into a category that then charged extra simply because they have been lumped.

Levin has long fought redlining, to the chagrin of thousands. Probably his most publicized scum was aimed at the gasoline company that recently denied a credit card to a Detroit couple who earn large paychecks and always pay their bills on time. But they had an "inner city" address, so a computer spit on them.

That is the most obvious type of redlining. There are more subtle types, just as irritating but harder to prove. For instance, I am suspicious of Ma Bell.

I was a Bell phone subscriber in Tinny Laper for 25 years. Once in a while I was a few days late paying the bill.

There was never the slightest pressure from Bell to pay up. Not once.

But soon after I got a downtown Detroit address, I returned from vacation on a Monday to learn that our phone bill had been due on the previous Friday. There was an instant call from Bell's credit department.

My wife apologized and said this check would be mailed that day. This wasn't good enough. The collector pointed out that the nearest Bell office would be open until 5 p.m. that day, so why didn't my wife drive downtown and fork over the money in person? Geez.

Bell's own records prove I am an excellent credit risk. I am the same guy in downtown Detroit that I was in little Laper. So how come the sudden dun? Does Bell base its credit policy on where a person lives, rather than on their experience with that person? Why not? Insurance companies do it all the time.

The morning after I talked with Levin, by coincidence, I received a plain letter from Raymond Torpey. It was easy for me to sob along with his gripes about car insurance because Torpey and I live in the same apartment building, and I will be hurting the same way he is hurting. Although with a

Paula Holmes... Speaking Her Mind

This past week was an important one in the world of football—at least it was important to me.

Saturday was the date of the annual battle between the Michigan State University Spartans and the University of Michigan Wolverines. Being a staunch Spartan fan, who has been attending the contests for just shy of 24 years, I was relieved earlier this fall when my father, bless his soul, came up with two tickets to the game.

Unfortunately, the tickets were right next to tickets he had gotten for my sister, who is currently a student at U-M. But, I was determined not to let the fact that she was dressed in maize and blue from head to toe and insisted on cheering for the Wolverines and singing the "Victors" bother me. After all, I reasoned, this could be the year the Spartans could shine.

But, as we all know by now, the Spartans just couldn't put it off. It's hard to admit to defeat for the seventh year in a row, especially after making many boastful pronouncements about the Spartans' football talent. But I guess I'll can say is wait until next year.

The game at Spartan Stadium in East Lansing was my second football game for the weekend. I had attended the Charlevoix Rayder-Grayling Vying the day before to snap some pictures for the Courier. And in my book, the Rayder game was much more exciting.

My spirits were dampened as it looked like the Rayders were going to lose their unblemished record. I just couldn't face the fact that my two favorite teams might both go down in defeat on the same weekend.

But suddenly the tide changed and the Rayders began to put it together for a victory. The highlight of the game for me came following the third touchdown when Mexican exchange student Pedro Arriagola kicked the extra point.

Pedro came over to me on the sidelines, excitement written across his face.

"I think this is...I think this is...I think this is..." Pedro said attempting to express his feelings. But he just couldn't get out the words to describe a moment he had dreamed about all season.

Pedro told me in September that one thing he had wanted to do when he came to the United States was play football. Because he didn't know the rules and didn't have time to learn them, Pedro was made a kicker.

His first two attempts at extra points failed when his soccer style kick couldn't lift the ball through the goal posts. But finally during this game his foot came through even though his English failed him.

Tears clouded my view of the joy on his face as he walked away to rejoin the team. And I felt like I had been part of the most important victory in the world.

It seems like every other book I pick up these days, an author is dissecting relationships and behavior patterns. One of the largest groups in this country and ironically the least understood has yet to be explained. It's your basic Monday dieter.

At last count, there were 18 million of these disciples who, every Monday morning, make their annual pilgrimage to the shrine of cottage cheese. Who, every Monday morning, look at themselves in the mirror and declare to the image, "This is the first day of the rest of my thin life."

One of the first things you must appreciate about the Monday dieter is his or her optimism. Here is a person for which Tuesday never comes. Nor Wednesday. Nor Thursday. Nor Friday. He just knows that some time between Monday morning and Monday evening the rest of the week will be cancelled due to the lack of attendance, and he will be off the hook diet-wise.

Secondly, Monday dieters are lousy with virtue, but are basically weak, which is a polite way of saying they have absolutely no scruples whatsoever. They will tell you outrageous lies like, "Pasta will never pass my lips," and as they are telling you this have a proud of linguini hidden under a stack of Weight Watchers magazines in the hall closet.

They cannot help themselves. They will lie about their weight on their driver's license, subtract 15 pounds when they weigh with their clothes on, tilt the bathroom scales against the toilet to make it weigh lighter, and on insurance charts will declare themselves "large boned."

Monday dieters are predictably neat people. They cannot stand to leave an uneven row of fudge in a pan or a dab of ice cream at the bottom of a half-gallon container. They are kind to their mothers ("I'll eat the rest of that pizza, Mother, if your teeth are bothering you") and are good with numbers. ("Let's see, I had the beef stroganoff, baked potatoes with sour cream, asparagus with the Hollandaise and the banana cream pie, so pass me the artificial sweetener for my coffee.")

In case you're wondering why I'm such an authority on the Monday dieter, it's because I have dieted for the last consecutive 1,456 Mondays.

Why Mondays? Who knows. Frankly, I think it's stupid to pick a day with 36 hours in it when every other day of the week has only 24.

Among the twelve bands which participated, we can say in all sincerity that Charlevoix's Rayders looked really sharp and played beautifully. We know that all of the Charlevoix contingent present in Harbor Springs felt real pride when our band took the field.

A couple of things especially caught our attention. In a parade in downtown Harbor Springs of all twelve bands, Charlevoix was the eleventh unit and the first to carry the American flag!

They were the only band to have one flag in the field during their performance. Minor points? Perhaps. Still we think that this is rather indicative of the band's fine character.

Secondly, we felt the behavior of the band members was exemplary. There is much more to representing your school or town than just playing beautiful music—and Mr. Stutzman's work with these kids really showed when they graciously and generously applauded the other bands—and, again, were the only band we observed to give two hands standing ovations. That's courtesy and behavior that is sometimes lacking.

So, to the RAYDER MARCHING BAND—who have practiced in the rain, at 7 in the morning, even on weekends, to the rifle corps who have put in many long hours of training; to the lovely gals who practice every day to make the flag corps such a treat to watch; and to Mr. Gary Stutzman, the band director, and Mr. David Riley, his student teacher this semester—a thank you for all of your hard work and time and for giving us a chance to enjoy your talents.

To those of you in Charlevoix who haven't seen this fine band, it would be well worth your time to take in a half-time performance at one of our football games! We're sure you will be as proud of these kids and their teachers as we are!

Teacher Feature

...Kris Schaperkötter

By REG ORILE

It was only a few years ago that Kris Lieberman was a student at Charlevoix High School. Now, as Kris Schaperkötter, she is teaching ninth and tenth grade English and Behavioral Science at the school.

In the years between her student years and returning as a teacher, students have changed Mrs. Schaperkötter says.

"Kids are more open now, their attitude toward teachers is much less formal. This can be good for communication between teacher and students, but it does present some discipline problems we didn't have when I went to school," she explains.

What kind of material is covered in her classes?

"In ninth grade English, the emphasis is on reading comprehension, creative writing, spelling, and grammar. Mrs. Schaperkötter relates. 'However, we teach grammar in the writing context."

The teachers say that the most popular subjects for students' themes are along the line of science fiction, superhuman things, or their own experiences which they greatly embellish. Written papers are usually about two pages long, although she does not limit the number of words.

Ninth grade reading for book reports may consist of any book that covers a subject of interest to the student, and if it is a challenge—not to easy. Occasionally, Mrs. Schaperkötter will assign a class, perhaps something by Faulkner or Hemingway.

The content of the grade English class doesn't change much from ninth grade, but there are some in-depth changes. Spelling is devoted to new words, the themes are longer, more reading is required, books are more involved, and a term paper is required, complete with bibliography and footnotes.

Kids like to read, according to Mrs. Schaperkötter, particularly when they are allowed to pick their own books. Occasionally she will devote an entire class period to reading, each student reading his own book.

"Are girls better readers than boys?"

"Yes," Mrs. Schaperkötter says, "but only because they are more patient at this age."

Her goal in teaching English:

"By the time students graduate from high school, they should be able to function successfully in college situations, handle job applications, and be able to handle all areas involving English."

Mrs. Schaperkötter explains that Behavioral Science is the study of human nature. Her course is divided into two sections. The first section is sociology (the study of groups of people), and the second section is psychology (the study of the individual).

The sociology part of the course deals with groups that make up society—the family unit, political system, religious organizations, educational groups, etc.—their reasons for existence and consequences of existence. Teacher and students look at why society is set up the way it is and how groups interact and affect others.

In psychology, individual behavior is studied along with background reasons, why people do what they do, and learning patterns. In this way, students can pick up reasons for their own behavior and perhaps change what they don't like. They can work with their personal goals and decide "What I want to be."

Does Mrs. Schaperkötter have a special message for students and their parents?

Yes.

"I hope the kids make the most of the four years they spend in high school. Some day they will realize it's the best time of their lives."

Kris Schaperkötter

Parents can cooperate by helping kids with school-related activities, including homework, and encourage them to do their best. They should always feel free to contact teachers any time for any reason."

After graduating from Charlevoix High School, Mrs. Schaperkötter attended Grand Valley State College, from which she graduated in 1972 with a bachelor of arts degree in English and sociology. Later she taught language arts in the Grandville Junior High School, married Thomas Schaperkötter, an optometrist, worked for an advertising agency in Chicago, moved back to Charlevoix when her husband started practicing here, and worked with him for a year before joining the high school staff in 1976.

Hortons sing praises for Rayder Marching Band

Dear Editor:

We would like to take this opportunity to share with the people of Charlevoix our extreme pride in the CHARLEVOIX RAYDER MARCHING BAND when they performed at the Northern Michigan Band Festival in Harbor Springs on Saturday, October 1.

Among the twelve bands which participated, we can say in all sincerity that Charlevoix's Rayders looked really sharp and played beautifully. We know that all of the Charlevoix contingent present in Harbor Springs felt real pride when our band took the field.

Aging commission gets grant

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging has received a grant of $30,000 from the state Office of Services to the Aging and a matching grant of $12,000 from the City of East Jordan to renovate the Senior Center in East Jordan. According to Dorothy Pelton, director of the Center, the renovation will consist of a new kitchen, storage area, a room for health screening, a consultation room, and a craft room. They will also install barrier-free bathrooms and enlarge the heating system.

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging is one of 14 agencies receiving similar grants.

IMMEDIATE OCCUPANCY

This well kept large family home is located on DeTars Court just outside Charlevoix. Consisting of three bedrooms, one and a half baths, spacious living room, a kitchen any woman could love. For the man there is a workshop for all his needs. Surrounded by a private 1/2 acre lot. An oversized two car garage makes this home complete.

October Birthstone

Opal is the traditional stone for those born in October, and was once referred to by the Romans (who revered it as a symbol of hope and purity) as the "Cupid Stone." In other phases of history this beautiful stone was cherished. Eastern peoples placed the gem in a highly esteemed position, regarding it as a sacred stone embodying the spirit of truth. The Arabs believed that Opals fell from heaven in flashes of lightning and thus acquired their marvelous colors. In ancient Greece they were supposed to possess the power of giving foresight and the light of prophecy to their owners. The Empress Josephine owned an Opal that was called the burning of Troy, because of its dazzling display of colors. In Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" the Opal is mentioned as the queen of gems. Queen Victoria gave each of her five daughters a magnificent Opal. Also, the illustrious French Actress Sarah Bernhardt was fortunate to be born in October and she also never considered herself well dressed unless she wore Opal jewelry.

When nature had finished painting the flowers, coloring the rainbows, and dying the plumage of the birds, she swept the colors from her pallet and molded them into Opals.

For your lovely piece of history see the large selection of Opal jewelry at your local Reusch Jewelry Store. Also watch for our special upcoming Opal promotion.

Practice FIRE Safety!

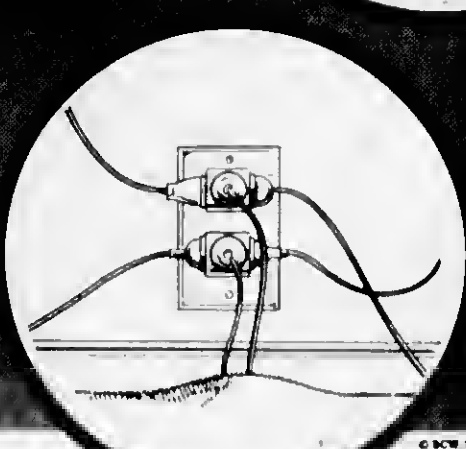

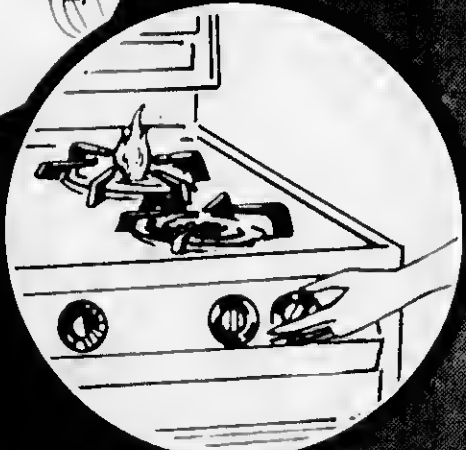

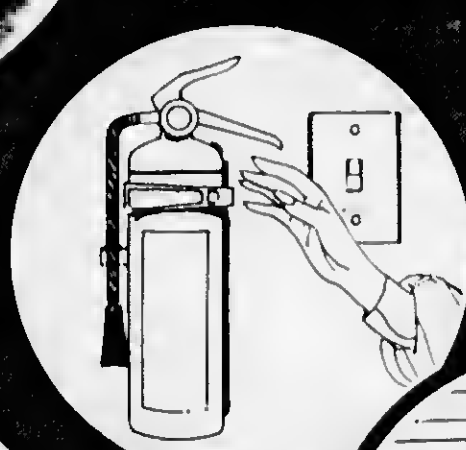

HERE'S WHAT YOU CAN DO ...
Install smoke detectors and fire extinguishers in your home.

Check heaters and cooking equipment for hazards and energy waste.

Have your chimney cleaned or fixed if it sparks. Don't risk lives and waste fuel.

Watch your wiring. Correct faulty circuitry and don't overload. Don't run wires under carpets, where they fry unnoticed.

Don't smoke in bed or leave matches in the reach of children.

Top notch service goal of city firemen

Providing 24-hour top notch service is the goal of the Charlevoix City Volunteer Fire Department.

The volunteer fire department works in conjunction with a chief and two assistant fire chiefs who are employed full time by the city.

"I think the real success of our fire department has been in having the volunteers work with the full time people who keep the department on 24-hour stand by," Lee Moerland, president of the volunteer organization, said.

"As soon as there is a fire call, one truck leaves immediately," Moerland pointed out. "There's no delay getting the equipment under way because there's always a man right there ready to go."

Other volunteers work and live close to the fire department so a second truck can be on its way within a few minutes of the first truck, too. Moerland said the communications between the volunteers and the fire hall has improved during the first five years, thanks to improvements in electronic equipment.

When the fire whistle blows, monitors in each fireman's home are tripped and the location of fire is broadcast.

"It used to be that you either had to go down to the fire station or you had to call in to find out where the fire was," Moerland explained. "Now you know right away."

The citizens band (CB) radio has also helped improve communications for the firemen.

"Often one of the wives will put the monitor right by the fireman's home and he can find out the fire location over the CB radio," Moerland said. The volunteer department had also purchased a CB radio for one of the firetrucks so that the driver could notify volunteers of his location and progress.

In addition to the improved communication, Moerland said the dedication of the firemen has helped to make the department run smoothly.

There is very little turn over among the firemen and most of them have been with the department 10 years or longer.

Being a member of the fire department is a tradition in some families where several generations have been volunteers with the department.

One of these people is Doug Bergmann whose uncle is also a member of the department and whose grandfather and other relatives have also been members of the department.

"I don't know why I joined. I guess it was just something I always wanted to do," Bergmann explained.

To be a volunteer fireman, people must pass a 66-hour state certification course. In addition, Bergmann and 15 other members of the department also volunteer for the ambulance crew. In order to be ambulance attendants, the men must complete at least 80 hours of emergency medical technical training.

Moerland said the men also keep up on their training during monthly meetings. During the meetings, industrial representatives such as people from Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. will come in and talk about how to handle gas spills from tanker trucks.

The department also avails itself of all training films that it can get ahold of Moerland said.

The firemen are also involved in many community service projects. Through the sale of raffle tickets, the department raises funds for the purchase of much needed equipment for the department as well as first aid and emergency training films.

These films are available to any interested group.

The firemen also offer cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR) classes to any interested groups.

In addition to serving the City of Charlevoix, the fire department also makes fire calls in Hayes, Marion and Norwood townships.

"Given a fair opportunity, I think our department can make a good stop," Moerland said. "With our improved communications we often have men at the fire before the equipment gets there."

"This is good because they can get all the prep work out of the way before the truck comes. Our department is very compatible and we work closely together with each other and with the city."

Charlevoix Twp. runs newest fire department

The newest fire department in the area is the Charlevoix Township Fire Department. The department has grown by leaps and bounds since it opened in 1974 and the result has been a savings of money for township residents as well as better fire protection, Oscar Stroud, township supervisor, said.

"With the fire department and the new water system, we've been able to cut fire insurance premiums for township residents up to 24 percent," Stroud said proudly surveying the main fire hall and the three trucks in it.

"Not everyone had a 24 percent cut in their premiums, but some did. With the way insurance costs have been going up, the cuts have kept the costs the same for township residents."

"We're really proud that we've been able to do this for our people."

Stroud said the fire department has also begun to save the township tax dollars too. Before the department was established, the township paid the city for fire protection.

"We were paying the city $10,000 when we decided to look into setting up our own department," Stroud explained. "We weren't complaining about the service, but we thought maybe the township could do it better."

Stroud opened the fire department doors when he was able to purchase three used trucks from the Wyoming Fire Department on a bid at a bargain price. This last year, the township purchased a brand new truck to add to the department.

In addition, through cooperation with the Department of Natural Resources, the township fire department acquired an equipment truck. The department also owns two tankers which firemen renovated for township use.

"Yes, it cost a lot of money to acquire equipment and to construct the two fire barns," Stroud said. "But this year, now that's going into our fourth year with the department, we will be operating on a budget of $2,000. That's quite a bit less than the $10,000 we were paying."

A group of 19 certified firemen under the direction of Chief Curt Thompson, keep the township fire department running. The firemen meet twice a month to review fire fighting procedures and to tour plants within the township in order to find out where fire fighting connections are located inside the plants.

The firemen also review their first aid and practice cardio-pulmonary resuscitation.

The township fire department operates 24 hours a day. The emergency calls are taken by the dispatcher at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department, who then contacts all township firemen through special monitors. The sheriff's dispatcher also sets off the fire whistles.

Stroud said trucks from both stations on the north and south sides of the township are taken to every fire.

"Whoever is closest to the station goes and gets the trucks," Stroud said.

The township has an employee on duty in the fire station eight hours a day who can get the trucks started and warmed up, ready to roll when the volunteer firemen arrive.

"We're going to continue to grow and improve," Stroud said proudly. "We're working hard at it."

Joan Wagner volunteers service as first woman fireman

When the Charlevoix Township Fire Department rolls up to a fire, it's not unusual to see a woman among all the firemen.

Joan Wagner is the only woman member of the township fire department and in fact, is the only woman fireman in the county.

But being a woman is where the differences end between Mrs. Wagner and the 18 other members of the township fire department. She does everything the men do, including driving the fire truck and handling the hoses.

She's a completely certified fireman and was the first woman in the State of Michigan to complete the 66-hour certification course that is required for all fire fighters.

"I know how to drive the truck and I drive it every once in a while," Mrs. Wagner said. "I used to work for the township and so I was closest to the trucks, so I drove quite a bit. But that's not true anymore."

"Everyone drives the trucks and they should know how.

That's part of the training you get."

Mrs. Wagner, mother of two, said she decided to join the fire department when she was challenged to by Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud.

"When they were first setting up the fire department, Oscar came around and was trying to get Butch (her husband) to join," Mrs. Wagner recalled. "Butch said he didn't have enough time and Oscar said he would have to start asking the women to join."

So she accepted and became a part of the fire department. But her interest in fire fighting goes back further than that. Her father is a fireman with the City of Charlevoix Fire Department, and Mrs. Wagner had been involved with fire fighting all of her life.

Still, people are surprised when they find out she's a volunteer fireman.

"The people I work with all know that I'm a fireman and they just accept it," she explained. "But when I meet new people, they are a little surprised."

The female fireman said she gets some kidding about her position, but it's mostly from the other firemen.

"I just kid them right back," she laughed.

Rayders pull it off in the fourth

By BILL MERCER
Charlevoix's fourth quarter drive did it again last Friday in Grayling, as they waited until the final stanza to defeat the Vikings 26-13.

Over the past three Michigan-Huron Shores League games, the Rayders have scored 46 points in the final period. Their total points for the first three quarters of play of all three games is 17 points.

As has been the case, the offense had trouble finding the right combination of players and maneuvers to penetrate the enthusiastic Grayling defense until early in the fourth quarter. Their own punts helped the home team take a 6-0 half time lead.

Late in the first quarter Charlevoix fumbled the ball deep in their own territory. Grayling's Bill O'Mara fell on the ball on the Charlevoix 13-yard line.

Five plays later, the Viking quarterback, Sophomore Rocky Tobin carried over from the 2-yard line on the only score of the half. The point after kick attempt was blocked and the Rayders found themselves behind early in the contest.

On the first play from scrimmage after the kickoff, Charlevoix again handed the ball over to Grayling. This time the defense held and Charlevoix gained possession on their own 6-yard line, following a Viking punt.

Near the end of the first half the offense did generate a little fan interest. Punts had been exchanged and the Rayders had the ball on Grayling's 45-yard line. Greg Krueger broke loose for 11 of his 107 yards gained, and Quarterback Jim Alger hit Jim Elzinga on a nifty 37-yard pass play to the Viking 7-yard line.

The drive stalled when Grayling's Tobin tackled Krueger at the 3-yard line on a fourth down and goal situation. The Vikings ran out the clock to preserve their half time advantage.

In the third quarter it looked like the offensive mechanism was repaired. Defensive lineman Barry Potter jumped on a Grayling fumble on the Elk Rapids and Central Lake. Lisa Flower was the high point maker for the Rayders with 14 points. She was followed by Laurie Gibbs with 13 points, Theresa Bearss with 12 points, Sherrie Selissen with 12 points, and Barb Hoffman had 12 points.

"The team is coming around," Mrs. Felter said. "I think we have a good chance against Grayling."

The Rayders will meet Grayling at home Tuesday in the high school gym for their first home conference game.

Grayling scored 14 points in the first quarter, 11 in the second, 14 in the third and 10 in the last period.

Karen Hansen was the high point maker for the Vikings with 17 points and Barb Hoffman had 12 points.

released the ball, ending his activity for the afternoon. An audible crunch occurred when the 230-pound lineman met the 186-pound back.

The point after conversion was good and with only 3:19 remaining to be played, it looked like Charlevoix's undefeated season might come to an end.

On the next series of downs, Alger found Driedale alone deep in the Viking secondary for a 51-yard Rayder touch down. The conversion kick was blocked and the referees informed the opposing coaches of the procedure for playing an overtime.

The score was tied 13-13 with a little over three minutes remaining.

The Rayders seem to thrive under this kind of pressure. The defense held and Charlevoix regained possession on the Grayling 47-yard line following a punt.

Krueger then dashed 25 yards and Alger hit Elzinga on an over the middle pass. Jones hit the Viking quarterback just as he knocked each other out of the play, Elzinga walked into the end zone for the winning touch down. This time Pedro Arriaga's kick was good and Charlevoix had the lead 26-13.

With 16 seconds on the clock, Charlevoix had its fifth victory of 1977 by a score of 26-13. This week is homecoming week for the Rayders as they meet Rogers City, Charlevoix, Charlevoix and Petoskey share the league lead with matching 3-0 conference records.

Toward the end of the first quarter, the Rayders came back to score on a 70-yard drive. Bob Russell went in for the touchdown on a two-yard drive. The pass attempt for the two point conversion failed leaving the score 8-6.

In the second quarter, the Rayders again began a lengthy touch down drive when Dave Elzinga broke away for 35 yards and the touchdown. A second attempt at a two-point conversion also failed.

During the second half it was a battle of the defenses. The Rayders fumbled three times giving the opponents the ball deep inside their own territory, but each time the defense held off the attack.

The third fumble came with four minutes to go in the game on the 24-yard line, but the defense managed to prevent a Viking score.

Coach Hal Evans picked Kurt Williams, Tom Melke and Rod Anderson as defensive stand outs and said that the whole defense played well.

The JV now has a 3-2 record. They will meet Rogers City Thursday in Rogers City.

Toward the end of the first quarter, the Rayders came back to score on a 70-yard drive. Bob Russell went in for the touchdown on a two-yard drive. The pass attempt for the two point conversion failed leaving the score 8-6.

In the second quarter, the Rayders again began a lengthy touch down drive when Dave Elzinga broke away for 35 yards and the touchdown. A second attempt at a two-point conversion also failed.

During the second half it was a battle of the defenses. The Rayders fumbled three times giving the opponents the ball deep inside their own territory, but each time the defense held off the attack.

The third fumble came with four minutes to go in the game on the 24-yard line, but the defense managed to prevent a Viking score.

Coach Hal Evans picked Kurt Williams, Tom Melke and Rod Anderson as defensive stand outs and said that the whole defense played well.

The JV now has a 3-2 record. They will meet Rogers City Thursday in Rogers City.

Richard Hodgson, Dave Irish named 1st State Bank directors

The election of Richard M. Hodgson and David H. Irish to the Board of Directors of the First State Bank of Charlevoix has been announced by Thomas A. Duke, chairman of the board.
 Both are widely known businessmen.
 Hodgson is a resident of Charlevoix where he has owned and operated Walker Marina since early 1970. Prior to that he had owned and managed other businesses after attending Wayne State University. His background as a businessman as well as his experience in real estate and building continues to add depth to the board. He is presently serving as Commodore of the Charlevoix Yacht Club, is a licensed pilot and aircraft owner and a member of the Charlevoix Lions Club.
 Irish is the president of Irish Boat Shop, Inc., of Charlevoix and Harbor Springs. He is presently serving as mayor of Harbor Springs where he makes his home. Deeply involved in various community activities, he is currently involved or has served on the Harbor Springs City Council, Planning Commission, Emmet County Tax Allocation Board, Petoskey Area Mental Health Clinic and several other civic organizations.

First signs of winter in town
 Winter's just around the corner. Many people point to the thickening fog, the rabbits and to the busily working squirrels as a sure sign that the blustery season is coming.

But there are other signs, too. The Charlevoix Street Department crews will be taking down the parking meters around Nov. 1 and the boat pump out station will be closed Thursday.

The docks won't be closed to boat traffic but the water and electricity will be turned off. People needing these services should contact Jack Mol, chief of police and harbor master, for assistance.

A SURE SIGN that winter is on its way is when the flower baskets are removed from the light posts on Bridge Street. A front end loader helped this city employee finish the job.

The Definite Choice

What you see is a Classic, Simple, elegant and purely designed in every way. There is only one Eames Lounge Chair and Ottoman and it is made by Herman Miller.
 Each hand operation (there are almost 50 of them) is painstakingly accurate. From the hand-sown leather cushions to the gently molded Brazilian rosewood shells. The enduring design and quality make this an exceptional purchase on your part... an exceptional value from Herman Miller.

Again, this year, we're proud to offer this classic chair and ottoman as a Christmas special. At its regular list price of $1,450.00, it is a truly exceptional buy when ordered at the 40 per cent savings now offered - only $875.00!

THIS MODEL IS ON DISPLAY at the Irish Boat Shop in Charlevoix. It shows the plans for expanded dock facilities off shore of the former City Services property on Ferry Avenue. The boat shop welcomes any comments or suggestions about the project.

Irish Boat Shop considering boat dock expansion plans

Plans for the construction of 67 new boat slips are under consideration by Irish Boat Shop of Charlevoix.
 Rod Stebbins, manager of the Charlevoix marina, said the company is considering the purchase of property on Ferry Avenue, formerly used as a tank farm by City Service Oil Co., and using it for access to the new boat slips, for parking and for some outside winter storage.
 "We have agreed to buy the property providing we can get assurances that we will be able to get all the necessary permits," Stebbins explained.
 "If anyone's got any objections to the plan, we want to get them out in the open now," Stebbins explained that in order to begin construction, the plan must be approved by the Department of Natural Resources, the U.S. Coast Guard, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the Michigan Department of Health and the City of Charlevoix.
 The boat shop has prepared a model of what the new docking facility is expected to look like and Stebbins invited any interested people to inspect the model at the boat shop.
 Preliminary discussions about the proposed new dock have already begun with the common council and various other officials. The company will also be talking with lake associations and other citizens groups.
 Stebbins said the land Irish Boat Shop is considering building the dock on has 330 feet of lake frontage and is 620 feet deep.
 "It's the first tier of land in that area," he explained.
 The project calls for the construction of a dock extending 400 feet from the shoreline or about 150 feet past the end of the present oil dock. The dock would be able to accommodate boats up to 50 feet in length.
 A parking lot with 77 spaces would also be constructed for the owners of boats moored at the dock as well as a toilet and bath house.
 Floating breakwaters would be built around the dock for protection. The floating breakwater is a fairly new concept developed and tested by the University of Rhode Island, Stebbins said. It consists of tires filled with foam that are tied together and anchored to the bottom of the lake in the same manner that a boat is anchored.
 The tires float just above the surface of the water and are barely noticeable, Stebbins said. He said the floating breakwater had advantages because it allowed for the free flow of water that solid break walls did not.
 Stebbins said the boat shop would also like to use the parking lot area for outside winter storage of boats. The boats would have to be transported from the current Irish Boat Shop location along Ferry Avenue to the new parking lot.

Tim Moore leaving WVOY Radio for new job with TM Company

Tim Moore, director of sales for WVOY Radio in Charlevoix, will be leaving that position to take a new job with TM Company effective Nov. 1.
 Moore will become international director of sales for TM, one of the top production companies in the nation. The sales director and announcer for the "Moore in the Morning" show, heard daily on WVOY, will be coordinating the sales efforts of TM offices across the nation out of the Dallas, Tex., home office of the company.
 He will also be involved with company activities in Canada, Mexico, Australia and Hong Kong.
 TM has produced the Jingles for such national companies as McDonalds, Chevrolet, Coca Cola, Saks and American Airlines. It is also involved in designing program formats for radio stations.
 Moore moved to Charlevoix from Midland in 1974. He was the first official employee of WVOY other than manager-owner Terry Edger, and he arrived before the station was actually on the air to set up the sales program for the station.
 "I'm leaving Charlevoix with mixed emotions," Moore said. "That I was even considered for this position is a tribute to the station and staff and the excellent work they've done."
 Moore said he was planning to spend much of his free time in this area despite his relocation to Dallas, Tex.
 "I guess this will always be my home in spirit," he said. "I've enjoyed the area, my clients and working with the staff here," he said. "And I'm looking forward to this new challenge."

School board members approve $2.5 million budget for 1977-78

By FRANK MARTIN
 The Charlevoix Board of Education approved a $2.5 million budget Monday night following a budget hearing at the high school study hall.
 The budget, barring emergencies, will leave a balance of $14,136 at the end of the fiscal year. This, however, will be money from the 1.0 mill tax levy approved early this year for renovation of the middle school and must be used for this purpose.
 The 1976-77 audited budget of $2,215,613 left the district $32,963 in the red. Part of the 1.0 mill voted in September went to wipe out this deficit.
 In presenting the budget, it was noted that in addition to the revenue from the usual sources, the total includes 1.0 mill voted in January for the middle school renovation project and another 1.0 mill voted last month for operational purposes.
 Revenue to support the balanced budget for 1977-78 budget will include $2,299,811 from local sources with property taxes supplying $2,273,119 of the total; State sources, $152,865 down from $195,782 during 1976-77 when the district received $30,338 in State Aid as compared to no revenue from this source for this budget; Federal sources, $66,706, down from $72,723 and incoming transfers, $5,200, up from $4,150.
 Funds through federal sources includes $6,018 under PL 874 to compensate for children of government employees. In this case children of U.S. Coast Guard and Air Force families, which is down from $9,871; CETA funds, $57,500, up from $56,044, earmarked for special Title projects only, and PL 318 (Title IV Indian Education) $3,187, down from $7,808.
 Expenditures will be as follows with the 1976-77 audited figures in parentheses:
 Instruction: Elementary, $457,433 (422,851); Middle School, $449,404 (353,449); High School, $521,871 (609,788); Special Education, $70,456 (59,902); Vocational Education $56,827 (14,170); Adult Education, $3,928 (3,899); Summer School, $13,875 (13,296); Employee benefits, $150,008 (117,923).
 Support: Administration, $95,271 (96,641); Plant operation and maintenance, $325,726 (287,229); Transportation, $151,330 (133,520); Health Services, $5,951 (4,000); Employee benefits, $63,862 (53,058).
 Other: Insurance and interest, $42,016 (35,843); Indian education, $3,187 (7,808); Fund balance adjustment, 000 (3,278).
 Revenue: $2,524,561 (2,180,660). Expenditures, $2,510,445 (2,213,623); Balance, $14,136 (-32,963).
 The jump in vocational education figure is not an increase, it was explained, but a change in accountability. In the past, the cost of this program was included in instruction by school or department. Under the new method, the cost of the overall program is extracted from each school or department and included under Voc. Ed.
 "It gives us a better picture of the cost of this program," Supt. Gordon Van Wierman said.
 The Title I budget was $53,033; the Charlevoix Public Library Budget was $42,977 with revenue totaling $42,984.

Common Council to hold special review of zoning ordinance next Monday
 A special review of the proposed zoning ordinance for the City of Charlevoix will be held at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 24 in the council chambers at Charlevoix City Hall.
 The common council committee of the whole will meet to discuss the zoning ordinance and to hear any comments from interested city residents about the ordinance. Mayor Ed Hansen has announced.

Editorials/Opinions

Zoning ordinance needs review by experts in the field

Zoning and land use planning are touchy issues. They always will be.

And zoning and planning are difficult things to do because someone always disagrees with whatever decision is made or whatever action is taken. Yet people usually agree that some sort of control is needed over land use in order to make a community a nice place for all of its residents.

The Charlevoix Common Council is currently considering the passage of a proposed new zoning ordinance. The proposed ordinance represents many hours of work donated by various people from the community over many years. It is a conglomerate of ideas about the types of land use controls the different people believed were needed in this town.

Common council has held several public meetings on the proposed ordinance and following each meeting has made some adjustments in the ordinance to meet the criticisms of it by people attending the public hearings.

But, still people are coming to council meetings and objecting to this portion or that portion of the zoning ordinance or to the location of various zoning districts on the zoning map.

With each new logical objection, council is again forced to take another look at the zoning ordinance to determine if it really is exactly what they want. As one alderman pointed out, no zoning ordinance is ever going to be perfect, so why not adopt the proposed ordinance and at least have a tool to work with.

That sounds like a good idea. All the aldermen seem to agree that something needs to be done. The council is being overwhelmed with the number of site plan reviews it must conduct each week. One alderman said it was getting to the point that council didn't have time to do anything else.

The new ordinance provides for the creation of a planning commission which would do all the leg work for the council and make recommendations as to what action should be taken while leaving the council with the final decision.

However, perhaps it would behoove council to give the ordinance one more going over. While it is a good idea to adopt the new zoning ordinance and get going with planning and zoning in this city, since the council has waited this long it can stand to wait a few more weeks to have experts review the ordinance.

The nice thing about the proposed ordinance is that it was written by local residents to meet local problems. However, there could be some errors in the document that the group has overlooked because it has been working so closely with the ordinance.

Perhaps council should do as the Charlevoix Charter Commission did and hire an expert to review the ordinance before it is adopted and put into effect. A few weeks of study by zoning experts may save the city and the common council years of headaches.

Also the experts would be able to assure the council that it has adopted a tool that will actually bring about the things that the group would like to see a zoning ordinance accomplish for the community.

"WHEN WILL IT BE AVAILABLE FOR CONGRESSIONAL JUNKIES?"

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

Why is it that when a fellow enters public life he often seems to take leave of his senses?

Take Jimmy Carter, for example. Before he became President, Mr. Carter appeared to be a sensible, orderly chap not given to putting the cart before the horse.

His keen, scientific, businesslike mind gave him high grades as a nuclear engineer and a peanut merchant long before he went into politics.

So what does he do as President? He has his colleagues in the State Department draw up a treaty with the Republic of Panama gradually relinquishing control of the Panama Canal by the United States.

Then he invites everyone in Latin America above the rank of matador to attend glittering treaty-signing ceremonies in Washington, D.C.

THEN, when the ink is dry and everyone has gone home, Carter hands the treaty to a reluctant Senate which, in all likelihood, will turn it down.

Why didn't Carter put off the gala formalities until he had Senate ratification in his hot pocket? I don't know. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance doesn't know. Simon Holivar doesn't know. And no one in the Washington Press Corps has taken the trouble to ask Jimmy.

At best, it was a gamble on Carter's part that his colleagues in government would not embarrass him by turning down the treaty after the tequila was cold and the enchiladas had turned cold.

At worst, it was a colossal blunder. If the Senate says "no," Carter will have to spend the rest of his ad-

Recently I quoted a reader's complaint about the state law which requires the bodies be cremated in coffins. There is no such law. You just thought there was.

That's the problem, according to Esther Shapiro, director of Detroit's Consumer Affairs Department. Too many people are obeying laws that really aren't laws at all.

The net result is that the buyer accepts a screwing without squealing because he thinks he has no choice, other than fine or imprisonment. And the seller says he's sorry, but the law forces him to gouge his customers, and he cries all the way to the bank where he is chairman of the board.

Forget burned coffins, for a minute. Think about bathing suits. Once you buy a bathing suit and take it home, you can never return it to the store for refund or exchange, no matter what. That's the law, right? Wrong.

Esther Shapiro investigated the swimsuit "law" after the consumer bought swimming trunks which were advertised "marked down from $5." When he got home, he discovered the original price tag: $3.99.

Angry at the deception, he took the trunks back, still in the original wrapper. The store refused to accept them. Regardless of whether the advertising was a lie, the manager said he could not allow a refund or exchange because there was a law forbidding the return of swimsuits.

What law? Esther Shapiro and her staff tried to find out.

"Everyone we consulted said there was a law. No one could tell us what it was," she said. "Systematically, we checked every possible government agency. The Food and Drug Administration could not identify either a regulation or a statute. Neither could the Federal Trade Commission. State of Michigan? County of Wayne? Never heard of it. The Detroit Health Department had never seen an ordinance involving swimsuits."

Thanks to Shapiro, the man got his money back. But thousands of swimsuit buyers will continue to get yipped, with hardly a gripe, because they think there is a law. The sales clerk said so.

And for the same reason, thousands of persons will continue to buy expensive easels on Tuesday so they can be used for kindling wood on Wednesday.

I talked with a crematory employee who used to work for a mortician. He said he'd tell me the truth if I didn't publish his name requirement is that a body be buried in a suitable container, so the crematory workers won't have to touch the corpse," he said. "The container can be a $4,000 steel casket or a $50 wooden tray like the airlines use for shipping bodies.

"The trouble is, most morticians don't tell survivors about the $50 packing cases. At least, they don't mention it loud enough to be heard over the sobbing of the bereaved people who always want to do the right thing. So most of the corpses we burn are contained in wooden or metal caskets that cost several thousand dollars."

I'm sure it wouldn't be fair to insinuate that all morticians let grief-stricken survivors believe the law requires that a corpse be burned in a $4,000 coffin. I'm sure because I received a letter from Jerry Barto, who is a mortician in Grand Rapids.

"The container would be a $45 cardboard case or a $3,000 copper casket. The choice is the family's," he said.

Some morticians might influence the family's choice. The metal caskets could be displayed in a velvet-lined room with organ music coming out of religious statues. But if you want to see the $45 boxes, they are downstairs, next to the garbage cans.

Incidentally, even the $50 packing crates cost less than cheap goods for Esther Shapiro, the consumers' advocate. She pointed out that plastic bags were good enough for the corpse coming out of the Vietnam war, so why aren't they good enough for burning?

I guess a question like that should be answered by the state Board of Mortuary Science. It is the board's job to protect the public against greedy morticians.

The mortuary board has 7 members. Six of them are morticians.

Wouldn't that turn you, in a $4,000 casket?

There ought to be a law.

...Speaking Her Mind

Last week was National Sex Education Week.

And last week several hundred teenage girls across the nation got pregnant. Last year in Michigan alone there were 32,700 teenage pregnancies plus 6,000 abortions were performed for teenagers and 1,700 miscarriages occurred among the under-20-year set.

It's hard to pinpoint the reasons behind the ever increasing teenage pregnancy rate. Some blame it on provocative advertising, television shows, movies and magazine articles. Others say that a permissive society allows its teenagers to get into situations where the temptation of sex is too much to pass up.

Still others blame the break down of the family unit for the sky rocketing rate of teen pregnancies and the cause of a situation like the one in Washington D.C. where more illegitimate births than legitimate births took place last year.

Whatever the causes, it looks like teenage sex and therefore, teen pregnancy are here to stay. Accepting that fact, the alternative is to teach teenage students how to prevent pregnancy. And that teaching should be done by a neutral person in a neutral situation and location such as in a class in the high school and junior high school.

Right away many people are going to be appalled at that suggestion. They will argue that sex is a personal thing and that sex education should be left up to the parents.

And the need for birth control, information and education becomes doubly important when the U.S. Congress and the Michigan Legislature refuse to fund abortions for anything other than life and death situations. Also many lawmakers are attempting to outlaw abortions all together.

In this case, no doubt, prevention is better than the cure, but teen pregnancies will not be prevented if the students have no access to birth control information.

Open Letter to Dan Rather (author of "The Camera Never Blinks")

Dear Dan:

I am addressing you rather informally as you nearly missed being named in a suit to end a 28-year marriage.

Last Sunday I was reading your book when my husband said, "How do you like the book?"

I told him I thought it was fascinating and he asked if you broached the subject of that infamous press conference when you arose to scattered applause and Mr. Nixon asked, "Are you running for something?" and you replied, "No, Mr. President, are you?"

"I always felt that was out-of-line retort," said my husband.

"You had to have been there," I said. "It wasn't the way it seemed at all."

"Knowing you, you probably got it screwed up anyway."

"What do you mean by a crack like that?"

"Exactly what you think I mean. You are always quoting statistics that when tallied up exceed 100 per cent."

"At least I know how I feel before a bumper sticker comes out on it."

"Unlike some people, I do not have time to read for pleasure. I am too busy cutting the lawn, moving the hose and cleaning the garage. If I had wanted to

to the parents.

Ideally that is the way sex education should work. Parents should have heart to heart talks with their children about sex and about the prevention of pregnancy. But because sex is personal, it is a hard thing to discuss with anyone including a person's children. Also it is surprising, according to national surveys, how many parents aren't all that clear about the mechanics of pregnancy or birth control themselves.

So why not have sex education taught in school by an impartial person. A form of sex education is already being taught in the Charlevoix Public Schools and, in fact, in all public schools in accordance with state law. But no birth control information may be handed out in public schools.

It's little wonder that teenagers are getting pregnant when fundamentally they're being taught how to get pregnant with no suggestions about prevention except abstinence.

And the need for birth control, information and education becomes doubly important when the U.S. Congress and the Michigan Legislature refuse to fund abortions for anything other than life and death situations. Also many lawmakers are attempting to outlaw abortions all together.

In this case, no doubt, prevention is better than the cure, but teen pregnancies will not be prevented if the students have no access to birth control information.

...Marti Mathers

By PEGG HOLE

Adults who remember their grade school art classes as a series of crayon and construction paper monstrosities should visit Mercedes Mathers' art room at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

The tables are piled high with materials for expressive creations in many media and the walls are lined with finished work by the youngest through the oldest grade school artist. There are ceramic tile murals, fabric wall hangings, tissue paper kites, dolls, and many other proudly made items.

All this is understandable when one learns how Miss Mathers structures her classes. Each grade's program is laid out to capture the imagination and enthusiasm of its age group.

The fifth grade class is now busy making apple head dolls. Later on in the year they may make wall hangings on their paper bag masks, yarn and color composition; they may do mosaic work, make some pottery and learn to macramé; they may make castings and face masks from Parafilm; they may learn how to do hot wax batik work; they may study the history of art forms; they may undertake quilting; they may make some giant stuffed animals, paint some murals, and perhaps, as they did last year, dress and make up as clowns and create a circus environment.

The totem pole that graces the front lobby of the school building is the work of a former fifth grade class.

The fourth graders may try tie dying, make charcoal drawings, create salt modeling dough ornaments, use drops of plaster in painting, transform tissue paper into colorful collages, or make decorative forms from ink blots.

Third graders may make paper bag masks, yarn and color composition; they may do mosaic work, make some pottery and learn to macramé; they may make castings and face masks from Parafilm; they may learn how to do hot wax batik work; they may study the history of art forms; they may undertake quilting; they may make some giant stuffed animals, paint some murals, and perhaps, as they did last year, dress and make up as clowns and create a circus environment.

Second graders may trace the outline of one of their feet to form the body of a lion which will become realistic when a yarn mane is added; they may make gift cards decorated with buttons and yarn; they may use tissue paper to make "fluttersby" and clay to make dinosaurs.

First graders may make chalk and crayon paintings, tissue paper flowers, paper bath designs, clay animals, tissue paper "Me" buttons, and crayon designs on fabric.

Often art studies are combined with other class studies. When fourth graders study Japan, for instance, they may make Japanese fish kites in their art class. When first graders study the Woodland Indians, the clay animals fit right in. "I try to involve children in as many media as possible, to help them gain an appreciation of their surroundings," Miss Mathers explains.

She further cites some concepts of art education brought out in fine arts workshops:

"Enrich the leisure time through acquiring skills and appreciation in the field of fine arts."

"Develop the desire to create."

"Understand the fine arts as a means of communication and effects on other people."

"Become more aware of surroundings, asking them to look again and again discerning at textures, shapes, and colors, thereby helping to train the memory and strengthen the ability to see details."

"Understand that this is a common language in which we may all participate. It is international."

Miss Mathers' own favorite art forms are acrylic painting and stained glass. She also does some scuba diving, skiing and sailing.

A native of Central Lake, Miss Mathers graduated from high school there, then attended Central Michigan University, from which she graduated with a major in art and minor in sociology. She taught a year in the Traverse City school system before coming to Charlevoix eight years ago.

One reason she lives in Boyne Falls, Miss Mathers says, is because "it's near skiing."

Misty Morning Trading Co. to offer showing of Asian art collection

A special showing of Asian art will be held at the Misty Morning Trading Company in Boyne City this weekend. The trading company, known for its creation of stained glass art, has purchased Japanese and Chinese scrolls, paintings, wood prints and tape prints following the liquidation of the James C. Nichols collection in Kalamazoo, Greg Reinhardt, general manager of the Misty Morning Trading Company, explained.

The collection includes many antiques and contemporary original paintings as well as tape prints from Siam and other Pacific Islands.

To enhance the art collection, Misty Morning has created lamps and windows featuring Oriental motifs to decorate the showroom area. The art show will be held from noon to 6 p.m. Saturday and from 1 to 7 p.m. Sunday at the Misty Morning Studios at 113 Groveland in Boyne City. The studios are located in the former First Baptist Church.

The show coincides with the first anniversary of the opening of the studios.

Ironton Mrs. Ross Alexander 547-9878

Mrs. Mary Keyerleber and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Enos Bacon, are building an addition on their home on Washington Street. Mrs. Mary Keyerleber is spending the summer with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Mauseau. Mrs. Effie Arthur is spending several weeks with relatives in England.

Mrs. Helen Keating has moved her summer home on Washington Street and returned to her home in Detroit. Mr. and Mrs. Enos Bacon are building an addition on their home on Washington Street. Rev. William Harmon our past minister of Cheboygan is now in Little Traverse Hospital. He has the best wishes of our community. This has been the most unusual summer I can remember we have had so much rain. After all the snow we had last winter we were looking forward to some beautiful sunshine and it came early in March through April and May. Gardens were planted but the hot weather in June with no rain everything began to show the lack of moisture even the trees shed some of their leaves. We even had a late frost that damaged some garden plants. The farmers were concerned for their hay and corn crops and some garden plants were replanted. But the rain finally came and it has been raining nearly every day since we have had no floods for which we should be grateful. What our winter will be no one knows, but many are out and trying to get ready for a real old fashioned one like many of us remember through the years gone by. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kemp and sister Mrs. Emily Coward and Mrs. Pearl Sinclair of East Jordan spent the past weekend with the former brother and sister-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Kemp in Port Huron. Mr. and Mrs. William Crowe are visiting friends in the Upper Peninsula and enjoying the fall color.

Advance registration may be made through Helen Deming at Grandview. A fee of $2.50 includes lunch.

Homecoming--A time for remembering

COMPLETE SURPRISE crossed Peggy Hosmer's face when it was announced that her classmates had selected her to be the 1977 Homecoming Queen last week. She and her four-member court reigned at the game and over other Homecoming festivities.

HOMEcoming Queen Peggy Hosmer rides regally during the parade before the Homecoming game. Friday night, Peggy and her court reigned during the game and dance which followed.

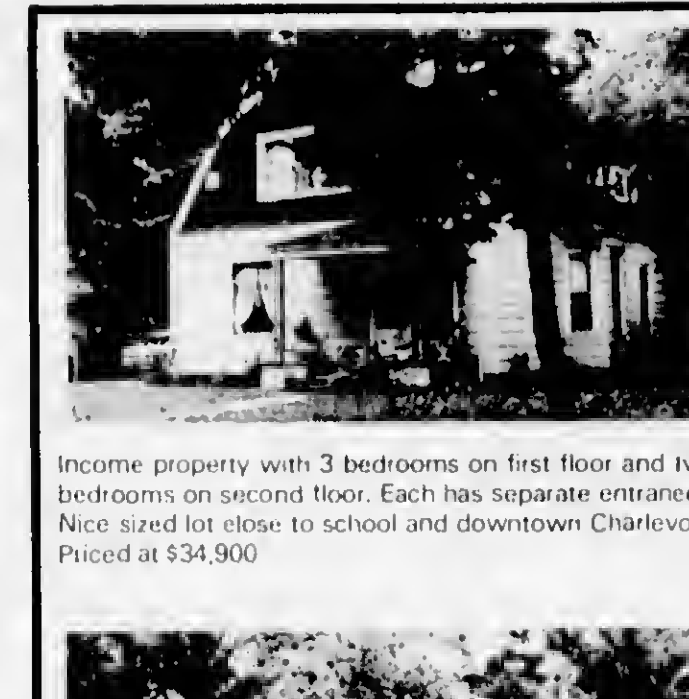

KIP CINNAMON and Tom Jones, co-captains of the Rayder Football team kneel during half time ceremonies to be knighted by Homecoming Queen Peggy Hosmer. The players presented Peggy with a golden football.

THE HURONS are gone with the wind was the theme for the senior class float which captured second place during float competition for Homecoming.

JOANNE CAREY arranges a bouquet of roses presented to her by the Rayder Football team last week. The team chose to dedicate the game to Mrs. Carey, the wife of Head Coach Don Carey because of all that she has done for the team.

Income property with 3 bedrooms on first floor and two bedrooms on second floor. Each has separate entrances. Nice sized lot close to school and downtown Charlevoix. Priced at $34,900.

This large older home located on Dixon Ave. in Charlevoix has just about everything, formal dining room, fireplaces in the master bedroom and living room. Located on 2 lots with a rental unit in rear. Call today for your personal showing.

"Where tomorrow starts today"

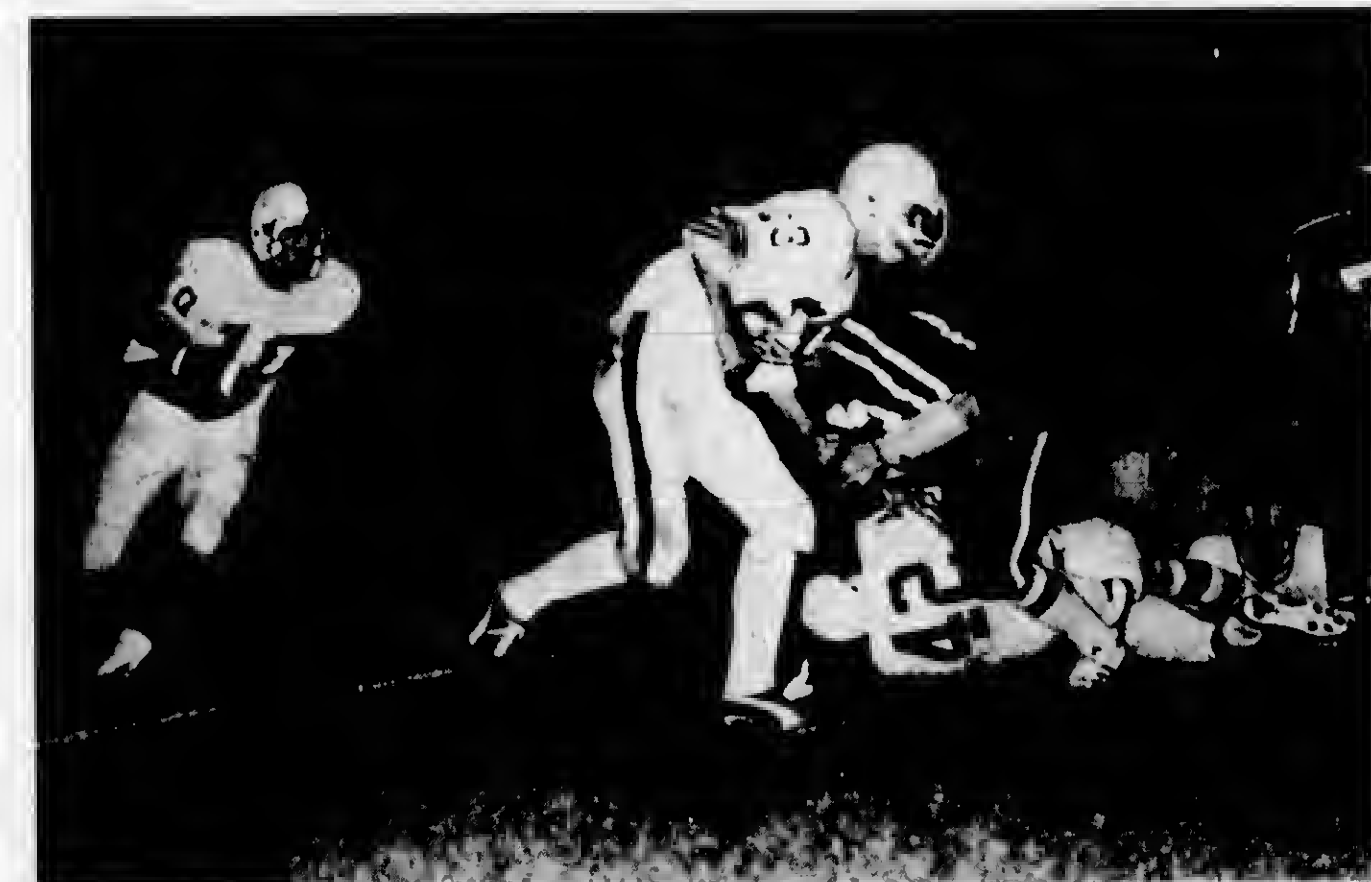

QUARTERBACK JIM ALGER'S touch down pass was good as Neil Dzedzic (88) jumped into the air to grab the ball and to avoid harm from Rogers City's Riek Grukke (24). Dzedzic put the Rayder's third touchdown on the scoreboard. The Rayders downed Rogers City 42-6.

CHARLEVOIX'S GREG KRUEGER carried for 203 yards during Friday's game against Rogers City. Krueger averaged 8 plus yards during 25 carries. Here the senior wiggles his way through the Huron line.

NEIL DZIEDZIC (88) chases after an overthrown pass intended for Rogers City's Stan Wisniewski (88). The Rogers City team had a hard time both defensively and offensively against the Rayder machine. Homecoming spirit is hard to beat.

ROGERS CITY'S Mark Gruke (10) attempts to elude Rayder tacklers during this play. The blocking on this play was successful, but the Hurons were no match for the Rayders losing the game 42-6 to the undefeated Charlevoix team.

JIM ELZINGA (11) stops this Huron, Gary Florip (38) from making much of a gain. The Rayders scalped the Hurons 42-6.

Eating out has become more popular than ever

In Charlevoix County, eating out has become more popular than ever. For a variety of reasons, local residents are eating more of their meals at restaurants and doing less cooking at home.

The figures indicate the extent of the change. They show that no less than 206 per cent more is being spent in local eating and drinking places now than was the case ten years ago. Part of the rise, of course, has been due to inflation.

Why have people been eating out more? Because family relationships, working habits and social attitudes have been changing, the Labor Department states.

More people live alone, more women are working and more leisure money is available. It finds that the image of a family in which "the husband is the only bread-winner, the wife is a homemaker, out of the labor force, and there are children's applies to only seven out of every 100 households in the United States at the present time.

Currently, half of all households consist of single men or women or married couples without children. Under the circumstances, the tendency is to eat out more frequently.

In Charlevoix County, the amount spent in eating and drinking places in the past year came to $5,041,000. By way of contrast, the total ten years ago was $1,645,000.

On a population basis, this was equivalent to $800 per local household. In 1966 the average was only $340 per household.

The increase, 135 per cent, compares with an 89 per cent rise in the United States and with 94 per cent in the East North Central States.

The figures are contained in the new, copyrighted Survey of Buying Power, recently released by Sales and Marketing Management.

Although inflation has had a great deal to do with the higher dining-out expenditures, it by no means accounts for all of the upsurge.

Some of the other factors contributing to the rise are the proliferation of fast-food eateries, the search for new taste experiences and the short time available for cooking after a day's work.

As a result, according to the National Restaurant Association, $1 out of every $3 that Americans are spending for food today is in restaurants and other eating and drinking places. Ten years ago only $1 out of every $5 was spent in such places.

Nurse restores faith for handicapped patients

By PAULA HOLMES

She carries herself proudly and energy flows from her body and through her speech.

Dignity and self-worth are important values to her and she tries to instill them in everyone she meets or works with.

And that can be a tough thing to do because Helen Millen is a rehabilitation nurse who works only with handicapped patients. Ms. Millen said it is often an uphill battle to maintain the dignity and self-worth of a handicapped patient because of the stigma our society places of people with physical disabilities.

The registered nurse was in the Charlevoix area last week to conduct a day-long seminar on the latest techniques of rehabilitation for interested Northern Michigan nurses at the Grandview Medical Care Facility. She crisscrosses the state conducting such seminars under the auspices of the Keweenaw-Michigan Rehabilitation Foundation, a United Fund agency. She is also a professor at the School of Nursing at Wayne State University in Detroit.

"Statistics show that one out of every 10 people will need major rehabilitation therapy before they die," Ms. Millen said. "And it is estimated that approximately 47 million handicapped people are presently living in this country."

"That makes rehabilitation a very important field."

Ms. Millen said people often ask her what rehabilitation therapy can do for an amputated leg or the injuries that have been caused by a severe car accident.

"I always tell them I can't do anything for the lost leg or arm," she said smiling. "I can't bring them back, but I can do a lot for the people these things happened to."

"Through rehabilitation I can help them cope. I can get them to an equilibrium point where they can function as human beings and not as crippled people."

Ms. Millen said rehabilitation is nothing new, it has been a part of medicine since World War II when large numbers of injured soldiers came back to the United States and needed to be rehabilitated in order to be functional in our society.

The nurse stressed that wars weren't needed to keep rehabilitation units thriving. She pointed out that the number of motorcycle, snowmobile, farm and automobile accidents causing handicaps each year far out numbers the number of men who were handicapped in a single battle in World War II.

The nurse predicts some drastic changes will take place in rehabilitation therapy in the next few years, particularly in the nursing homes.

"The average stay in a nursing home or rehabilitation center for handicapped people is seven years," Ms. Millen pointed out. "You can't have a patient for seven years. So you have to help them become independent and get them to begin doing things for themselves."

She said that a person loses 3 to 5 percent of their body strength everyday they lay in bed in a hospital. That's why it is important to have patients that are able to take care of themselves.

"And it helps to give them a feeling of dignity and self-worth, too, when they find they can do things for themselves and they don't have to always have someone do it for them," she stressed.

Ms. Millen said she would also like to see the development of day care centers for handicapped people. This way they could live at home or with relatives and then during the day they could go to the centers for therapy and social activities so that the relatives can go to work or at least have some time to themselves.

The nurse said she would also like to see floating beds in hospitals that could be used for handicapped people who are being taken care of at home.

"With the floating beds, the relatives could plan to go away for the weekend or a vacation without worrying about what would happen to the handicapped person," she said. "More people would now even before the rules are changed."

The landlords stressed in their letter that even if the rules for FmHA rent increases were changed, things would not be too different for the tenants.

"If the proposed rules for rent increases are adopted as published, you will receive as required by law, basically the same information we voluntarily provided you last January," the landlords wrote. "The principal difference will be your right to lodge your objections or comments with us and Earners Home Administration. We have no objections to the proposed changes and when they are implemented we will follow them in the spirit in which they are intended."

The landlords also stressed in their letter that they have done everything they could to avoid raising the rents at the apartment complex.

Landlords answer rent suit through letter

In response to a suit filed in U.S. District Court in September on behalf of the tenants of the Charlevoix Apartments over a rent dispute, the landlords have sent a letter to all the renters in the housing complex on May Street explaining their position.

In the letter, Frank Vaydik, Roger Pierce and Betty Frey, owners of the apartments and codefendants in the suit, point out the suit does not charge that they have done anything illegal, but instead claims that the tenants were denied their constitutional rights when the rents were raised.

"The suit is aimed at making Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) change its procedure for increasing rents," the three owners wrote in their letter. "The suit does not contend that the owners did anything illegal according to the regulations in effect at that time."

The suit, filed by Gregory Justis of Legal Services of Northern Michigan on behalf of the tenants, claims that tenants of the apartment complex were denied their constitutional rights when their rents were increased 25 per cent March 1 because they weren't given a chance to submit input about the proposed rent hike.

The suit seeks to establish a system that gives the tenants a chance to participate in the approval or disapproval to rent hikes by the FmHA, according to Justis.

"In my judgment this is unworthy litigation," John Michael, local attorney for the apartment complex owners, said. "It's sort of a wasteful way of doing things."

"The FmHA is working to change its rules for approval or disapproval of rents to include input by tenants right now. What the suit is saying is that the tenants should have that right of input

Walstrom proposes new marina

CHARLEVOIX — Ward Walstrom, a Harbor Springs marina operator, Monday night asked the Charlevoix City Council to rescind Charlevoix Lumber Co. property on Round Lake from Commercial-I to Marine Industrial, clearing the way for his purchase of the property from James Hiller.

Walstrom's request ended months of speculation as to who would acquire the choice downtown frontage after Charlevoix Lumber announced that it was going out of business.

Walstrom, who also has developed condominiums at Harbor Springs, says the Charlevoix location will be used strictly as a marine operation, "the business we know best."

Landmark removed at school
Repairs and improvements continued at the Charlevoix Middle School last week. Construction crews were on the site the last half of the week removing the old chimney on top of the school building. The old landmark was falling down and damaging the middle school roof as the bricks came loose and fell out, according to Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren.

The chimney was no longer in use at the school, so the administration decided to have it removed and capped to prevent any further damage to the school roof.

Police seek mediator in contract dispute
The Teamsters Union local representing the uniformed personnel for the City of Charlevoix has requested a mediator from the State to help settle the contract dispute between the city and its police and fire employees.

The city has not yet received notice of a meeting with the mediator, Allen Sandberg, city administrator, said.

Negotiations for a contract for the five policemen and the two firemen have been going on since February. Several delays in negotiations have taken place due to vacation schedules or members of the two negotiating teams.

Shortage delays doors for high school
There will be a delay in the installation of the new doors at the Charlevoix High School. Because of the demand, certain parts needed for the new doors are on back order from the manufacturer, Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren explained. The school district is having trouble getting the hardware and the tubular steel for the framing around the doors.

Van Wieren estimated the new doors may not be installed until January. The school officials had hoped to have the new doors in place before winter.

The doors are being purchased with the funds generated by the additional one mill approved by the voters last September. Some of these funds are also being used to purchase new playground equipment for the Charlevoix Elementary School. The toys should be shipped some time this week for installation within the next two weeks.

"We really needed more equipment out there," Van Wieren said. "We still don't have enough, but this will help."

'Oh, are you on that new diet, too?'

By PAULA HOLMES
"I guess I'll have a cheese omelet and a grapefruit half," the woman said placing her order with the waitress. "And don't bother bringing the toast or pancakes."

"Oh, are you on that diet?" the waitress asked.

That diet. There are millions of them and every time a new diet shows up in one of the women's magazines, the newspaper or on the bookstore shelf, hundreds of people give it a try hoping it will be the miracle cure for their paunchy midriffs.

And people should be concerned about their weight. Weight control is the number one health problem in the United States, according to Reed Freidinger, M.D., of Charlevoix. It is estimated that 30 to 45 percent of all Americans are more than 20 percent overweight.

People are considered obese when they weigh 20 percent more than the size/age/weight charts indicate they should weigh.

With obesity there is a tendency toward a host of other diseases ranging from fatigue and general sluggishness to heart disease, high blood pressure and diabetes, which is why so many people are interested in dropping those 20 or 100 extra pounds of ugly fat.

But the road to weight loss and to keeping that weight off permanently is a long and rocky one, according to Freidinger, who encourages his patients to lose weight simply by cutting down on their intake of calories and by rearranging their eating habits, instead of by using a fad diet.

"People don't gain their weight quickly and they aren't going to lose it quickly, either," the doctor explained. "I believe in a prolonged program of weight loss and I don't look for any success until after a year."

Freidinger said he likes to have his patients lose 24 pounds a year and during that time they also work to relearn their eating habits.

The doctor contends that there are too many cues in the environment that make people want to eat when they shouldn't just like the cues from the environment for smoking.

"It doesn't take much to gain weight," he pointed out. "One extra apple a day—that extra 80 calories a day—that you don't burn up can cause you to gain seven pounds over a year."

"People think you have to be a glutton to gain weight, but that's not true at all."

Freidinger said most people gain between two and three pounds a year and slowly it begins to add up until they are overweight.

"And it's because they are eating in excess of what they burn up," he said. "Many dieters tell me they eat later in the day you are less active and less likely to use the calories."

And watching the quantity of what you eat is important, too. Freidinger said it is recommended that people eat 10 calories per pound of ideal weight. So, for a 5 foot tall woman who should weigh 100 pounds, she should be eating 1,000 calories a day to keep her weight where it should be.

Freidinger also doesn't suggest any particular menu for dieters.

"We've all been eating all our lives and we know what it takes to make us gain or lose weight," he said. "People should just follow that."

"And they should plan to eat that for the rest of their lives if they want to keep their weight under control."

"We're messing with just a few calories that we talk about gaining or losing weight. You really have to watch it."

ONE OF THE NEW SIGNS recently erected in the city already has a bullet hole through it.

The replacement of directional signs on Charlevoix Streets is nearly completed.

City crews have been working since last summer to install more than 425 signs along various streets in town. The city will be reimbursed for the labor of the street crews by the state and federal government. The entire $18,000 project was funded through the federal government.

The project started last spring when a crew of students made a survey of the existing directional signs such as yield, stop and no parking signs. The survey results were given to the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation which determined how many and what type of signs were needed.

Because Charlevoix was designated as an urban area, the signs were required to be erected at a height of seven feet.

New citizens award a good program for Charlevoix County

It's hard to be a law enforcement officer during these times. Ever since the 1960s and the student and civil rights protests there has been a noticeable rift between the public and the police.

The inexcusable actions of some law enforcement officials during the protests put a stain on all policemen just as the inexcusable actions of some students and civil rights advocates pinned the word hippie on anyone in blue jeans with hair growing past his or her ears.

In addition to the negative things people express about police officers, a negative attitude about cooperating with or assisting the police has also developed. This negative attitude coupled with the public apathy that is spreading across the nation has made the job of a law enforcement officer even more difficult.

It is virtually impossible for law enforcement officials to be everywhere and observing everything that might be happening in a community. It just can't be done. However, if citizens are willing to become the eyes and ears of the law enforcement officials much can be accomplished.

Citizens are often in positions due to their jobs or the location of their homes or their hobbies to observe crimes in progress, to run across stolen property or to discover fugitives. Quick thinking by concerned citizens combined with a quick call to the local law enforcement agency can result in the apprehension of a criminal or help solve a crime.

But people have to be encouraged to be helpful. Apathy is a strong force and so is fear. Many people just choose not to get involved in anything involing others and to stay safe in their world.

The burden then is on the law enforcement officials to regain the confidence of the people and to encourage them to assist the officials in any way they can. By doing this the law enforcement agencies will be better able to serve the public.

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department has started a program of Citizens Awards to recognize people who have been willing to stick out their necks and assist the department with law enforcement in the county. Under the new program, people who have assisted the sheriff's department in some manner will receive a certificate recognizing their efforts.

At the end of the year, four citizens will receive $100 savings bonds from the four banks in Charlevoix County in recognition of their extra effort in assisting the sheriff's department. The program is a positive action on the part of the sheriff's department. Through the recognition of the citizens, the department is expressing its desire to people who were willing to make the extra effort to help.

And the department is encouraging others to become active and to join with the sheriff department in making the county a better place for everyone to live.

The sheriff's department has taken the first step toward better understanding between it and the community. And the sheriff's department has taken the first step toward improving law enforcement for the county.

Now it's up to the citizens to respond and work toward a better county.

Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn has a real money-maker on its hands. But officials don't seem to realize it. They have it locked in a closet.

The object in question is "The Great Brewster Chair," purchased by the museum seven years ago for $9,000 under the mistaken belief that it was a genuine piece of Americana dating to Pilgrim days.

Over the weekend, the fellow who built the chair, Armand LaMontagne, a woodcarver from Rhode Island, disclosed that the chair is a genuine fraud. He pieced it together in 1969 using 42 in materials and two months of his time.

Then he placed it in the home of a friend who has connections with some of the country's more prominent antique dealers.

Mind you, neither did the chair was an antique. Neither did his friend. But when an antique dealer spotted the "find" in the friend's home on an island off the coast of Maine, price was suddenly no object.

After going through several owners, the chair was finally purchased by the Dearborn museum as part of its early American collection of furniture. A picture of the chair even was featured on the cover of a book the museum published about its wares in 1975.

Despite disclosure that the chair is a fake, LaMontagne insists he is not guilty of any wrongdoing. He says he built the chair "for a good laugh. These people think they're infallible, you know."

The chair actually is quite a monstrosity, as chairs go, with heavy carved uprights and row after row of ornate spindles supporting the seat, the arms and rungs in the back. In colonial days, the chair was the symbol of authority and only two others—believed to be genuine—are known to exist.

What is amazing about "The Great Brewster Chair" at the Henry Ford Museum is that it is such a fine fake. The only tell-tale mark of modernity are the pin-points at the bottom of the spindle holes which are a characteristic of 20th Century bits. Old bits didn't leave such a mark.

How did LaMontagne build three centuries of wear and tear into a piece of wood that was still growing in 1969? It wasn't easy.

In the first place, LaMontagne used green wood rather than dry wood so that individual pieces would become slightly distorted as the moisture left, simulating great age. He also scorched the wood with a blow torch to simulate aging, kept it in a smoke house several days, painted the chair red using old pigments, gouged it with a pen-knife and knocked out two of the spindles.

He even blew dust into the joints (old furniture always has dust in the joints) and performed other tricks to fool the masters.

In fact, LaMontagne did such a fine job that I would be willing to spend 25 cents to see his handiwork at the Henry Ford Museum. And I'm sure I'm not alone.

That's why museum officials are missing a good bet. They could charge a modest fee for viewing LaMontagne's masterpiece and recoup their losses in jig time.

After all, a closet is no place for a work of art—regardless of age.

Barring an unexpected dash for daylight by her fiancé, my daughter Ferd will get married in a few months. So you'll understand why I quivered when my wife said:

"It says here in the newspaper that Mary Fisher was married amid a sea of orchids. Hundreds of white spicy orchids were flown in from Singapore just for her wedding."

"If we have an outdoor wedding in our backyard, Ferd could be married amid a sea of dandelions," I said. "To assure a bumper crop, I could have some fertilizer flown in from Gwin's Hardware."

"Twenty-five ficus trees were moved into the country club clubhouse for the ceremony," Pat read from the newspaper. "Two trees, each 25 feet tall, formed the canopy under which the couple exchanged vows."

"That's a little ostentatious," I said. "What about all the starting children in India?"

"I think a piece of wedding cake was sent to everyone who lives in India," Pat said.

"You must remember that Mary Fisher is the daughter of Max Fisher who is one of the richest men in the world," I said. "He made his money in oil and real estate, and his hobby is financing Republican candidates. I really don't mind him spending so much of his kid's wedding. I figure every nickel he spends on a ficus tree is a nickel he can't spend on the political comeback of Gerald Ford."

"Mr. and Mrs. Ford were at the wedding," Pat said. "It says here that Mary stopped on her way back down the aisle and kissed them both. And Mary told a reporter that the Fords turned down a lot of other invitations so they could be at her wedding."

"Mary Fisher worked for Gerald Ford when he was president," I explained. "She was his advance woman. When Ford traveled about the world on important diplomatic missions, Mary went ahead of him and warned the galleries to watch out for his slice. She probably got the job through a classified ad."

"Imagine the prestige of the bride pausing in the aisle to kiss an ex-president of the United States," Pat said wistfully.

"Ferd could stop and kiss Howard Roodevics. Howard used to be president of Lapeer Rotary," I said. "He'll turn down other invitations to be at Ferd's wedding if he hears we're having an open bar."

Pat kept reading the wedding story: "At the reception 1,000 white lace napkins were tucked in gold rings to which single long-stemmed white roses had been tied."

"We could tie one of the dandelions to a box of Bounty napkins," I said.

As you can tell from our conversation, unless you are stupid my wife wants Ferd to have a high-class wedding. The only problem is I can't afford it. But I think I have a solution. We will rent tuxedos at the door for

...Roxie Loding

By PEG OHLE

"I feel that my relationship with kids this age is important. I would like to be a good model for them."

"I can have a good relationship with them, I am teaching about as much as I can. I am trying to form people not just teach art."

This is how Roxie Loding, art teacher in the Charlevoix Middle School, approaches her job.

Mrs. Loding teaches between 150 and 180 sixth, seventh, and eighth graders the fundamentals of drawing and crafts. Her courses cover not just techniques but ex-perimentations with different materials as well as art history.

She has three classes in drawing, one advanced drawing class, and one crafts class. The number of classes of each type is determined by the wishes of the students themselves. Each semester a survey is made, asking those who want to take an art class as an elective subject whether they want to study drawing or crafts. Next semester Mrs. Loding will teach one drawing and four crafts classes.

In all classes, Mrs. Loding tries to make each class blend into the next one. "Otherwise there would be no continuity in learning," she explains.

There is no textbook for the art classes. Instead, a magazine, "Artists Junior" is used, along with discussions of things like shape, line, form, and texture. When the class makes mobiles, for instance, they discuss Alexander Calder and his mobiles, how he uses shape and space.

When the crafts class makes masks, they learn why the Africans wear them and something about the history of masks. Sculpture is also taught in the crafts class. "I don't believe in making little gifts that can be bought in a gift shop. I want the children to be ingenious and use imagination, like clay sculpturing and ceramics."

Mrs. Loding sometimes takes her classes outside to the beach, or around the neighborhood and gives them something specific to study—trees, for example—how to separate them from the rest of the landscape, how to draw the different shapes, how to get the feel of the different textures.

Art classes were required of all Middle Schools students until this year when they became elective because of

Sheriff helping to get refunds, not handing them out

A story in last week's Courier reported that ticket holders for concerts at Castle Farms which were cancelled "may receive refunds by bringing the unused tickets to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department."

While some may have gotten the impression that the Sheriff's Department was refunding cash money, this is not the case, according to Sheriff George T. Lasater.

"Many people have initiated complaints to the Sheriff's Department because they have been unable to get refunds from Nederlander (who promoted the show) for the two cancelled concerts, Shanana and Neil Sedaka.

"I wrote to Nederlander and advised them people in the County were left holding the bag. They said if we would give them the names of these people they would immediately send a refund check to the individual, or to this office."

"We felt this was a service to the citizens."

Letters to the editor

New resident praises area, people

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mrs. Rice wanted Charlevoix residents to know what a wonderful community they live in. She pointed out that people often forget or become immune to their surroundings and miss the beauty of them.

"Honey, we have been transferred to Charlevoix, Michigan???"

My heart sank into the inner souls of my soft leather shoes, as my loving Coast Guard wife, Debbie Miller, said, "Wendy, and I boarded a plane in Boston to come to a place we knew nothing about. There was fear, loss, but high anticipation for the newness we were to find. We lived at first with a young Coast Guard wife, Debbie Miller. She was great and we certainly appreciated her thoughtfulness while we were in her home. Many fine people were involved helping us to locate a home. Charlevoix is certainly beautiful geographically speaking, but more impressive to me, the beauty lies within the hearts and souls of the dear, lovely people who extended their hands in friendship and love."

"O, Lord how manifold are thy words, in wisdom hast thou made them all: the earth is full of thy riches!" Psalm 104:24.

Thank you all for the warm Welcome Home.

One-quarter of cows show PBB signs

The PBB Project Unit of the Michigan Department of Agriculture is now reporting weekly results of its testings for PBB in animal fat tissue and milk.

During the week ending October 15, 794 fat tissues were tested. Of these 473 showed no detectable signs of PBB, 298 showed signs below the violative standard, and nine showed signs of violative amounts of PBB. The remaining 194 samples were either insufficient for testing or were not properly processed in the laboratory.

During the same period, 709 milk samples were tested. Of these, 642 showed no detectable signs of PBB, 62 showed signs below the violative standard, and none showed signs of violative amounts of PBB. The remaining five samples were either insufficient for testing or were not properly processed in the laboratory.

WVOY basketball team looking for opponents

WVOY's Guys Basketball Team and Traveling Road Show will open their training camp next week.

The team, coached by John Fisher and made up of disc jockeys and others on the WVOY staff, made its first appearance on the circuit last year and helped school groups raise over $3,000.

The team will play any school group to help raise funds for various projects. The game must be sponsored by a school, club or organization with the team members made up of faculty members, the girls basketball team, the varsity club or the like.

The group must provide the officials and warm up and game basketballs. The WVOY's Guys uniforms are white so the opposing team must have dark uniforms. WVOY will provide halftime activities such as a free throw contest for records.

The WVOY's Guys will only be playing one game per week and at least three games have already been scheduled for this fall and next spring. Interested groups should contact WVOY as soon as possible to get on the schedule. For more information contact WVOY at 547-4454.

VARSITY CHEERLEADERS Rhonda Revor, Cindy Sandahl, Corinne Ranger, Kim Lehman and Pam Boss take a break from their activities.

Cheerleaders--not just pretty faces

By LAURA GLASS

"We want a victory A Bayder victory!"

The Charlevoix High School cheerleaders are having another successful year of keeping school spirit high. Their chanting, cheering, jumping and raring are all prime factors in the excitement and anticipation of a game.

This years varsity squad members, Rhonda Revor, Pam Boss, Cindy Sandahl, Kim Lehman and Corinne Ranger, all agree that cheerleading is an important part of a game.

"It keeps people moving and excited. They can really get into a game," said one member of the squad.

But cheerleaders aren't just another group of pretty faces, they work hard. They can be heard practicing after school several times a week, because they must constantly be inventing new cheers, mounts, jumps and stunts for pep rallies and games.

The girls also attended a camp at Northwood Institute in Midland this summer, to learn more cheerleading techniques and different money making ideas.

"Camp was great," said one girl. "We learned a lot and it was really fun. Besides, there was a football camp going on at the same time."

In addition, the squad holds a clinic each fall to teach girls in the area the art of cheerleading. Former cheerleaders and even college cheerleaders work as staff for the clinic.

Cheerleading not only takes energy and a big voice, but good judgment and timing, too.

"You need to know what cheer to yell when the crowd is excited, so you can keep them peppy, too," Kim Lehman added.

All the girls agreed that usually short, punchy chants are the best, because the long cheers get boring and people lose interest.

The varsity squad is also in charge of running the pep rallies on Friday afternoons before the games. All the girls said that when they are out cheering, they feel a little nervous because of the crowds, but Corinne Ranger, varsity captain, said: "You almost feel like you are in control of the crowd, if you get hyper, so do the people, it's a great feeling."

Tryouts are held for both football and basketball cheerleading before each of the sports seasons. The girls were split on which sport they like cheering for the best. Corinne said she thought basketball was too fast moving and she enjoyed football cheering best.

But several girls liked basketball cheering better because it is warmer and it is faster and "more hyper."

"I'm always excited about having a number one team," Cindy Sandahl said.

Vera Rimbold, the cheerleaders' advisor and coach, said the girls do everything themselves, and if they need help or advice, I'm here and ready," she said.

Ms. Rimbold said the girls learn leadership and cooperation when they work together on money making projects and organizing pep rallies.

So, next time you are at a game, cheer along with the cheerleaders. It gives everyone a boost and shows the team you care.

New patient phone system operating at Charlevoix Area Hospital now

A new telephone system providing phones in patient rooms is now operating at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Dial phones have been placed between the beds in all patient rooms, except pediatrics and the coronary care unit, the hospital announced today. Dave Thurston, Charlevoix Area Hospital controller explained that until a new system was installed the hospital had not felt phones in patient rooms were feasible.

The hospital took bids from three companies and chose a locally serviced independent system when it was shown that a substantial savings would be realized even with the addition of patient phones.

"It's not very often that you can add a service in a hospital and reduce costs. Many times if you add a service it means a new machine and you have to hire a high salaried technical person to operate the machine," Thurston observed.

There will be no additional sets in.

It is the time to separate bulbs - tulips, daffodils, and hyacinths. They should be taken up, separated, and

A United States Supreme Court decision several years ago found that individuals may own their own telephones or telephone systems.

This decision made it possible for the hospital to purchase its own phone system for internal calls.

The Bell Telephone Co. truck lines interconnect with the hospital, handling all incoming and outgoing calls.

"The total cost of the new system just about equals three year's rental on our old system," Thurston explained.

"The entire system will save us money, and that's vital in view of increasing hospital costs," Thurston observed.

There will be no additional charges to patients for the service, hospital officials said. Local calls are free. Patients who wish to call long distance may either charge the call to their home phone, use a credit card, or call collect.

Thurston is fascinated by the electronics involved. Pointing to two full sized filing cabinets he said, "That's at least the space mechanical telephone switching machinery occupies."

"Today many systems use electro-micro switches," Thurston continued, "and our new system handles 45 office and nursing station phones and the 18 patient room phones with machinery about 1/3 rd that size."

Thurston marvelled at the various functions the multi-buttoned office phones can perform. A light flashed on his desk phone, followed by a dull beep, then several higher pitched beeps.

"There," he said, "I told the phone by pushing this and this," he pointed to various of the buttons. "to switch all calls from an office down the hall to my phone if they didn't answer after several rings. Each phone can be programmed like a computer," he enthused.

The phones in patient rooms, however, are simpler and more to the point. Patients will be able to hear their family and friends wishing them a speedy recovery.

cleaned of any dead pieces. The daffodils may be replanted in clumps of five or six approximately five inches deep in the ground. A soil mixture of sand and black soil or vermiculite and black soil should be added to the regular soil to keep it from packing too solidly through the winter months.

A good covering of leaves placed over the bulbs will give them good protection from the winter weather and fertilize them at the same time.

Lance situation couldn't happen here

LOBBIE LANCE GREETS her husband Bert on his return to Calhoun, Ga., following his resignation from the Office of Management and Budget. He resigned following an investigation into his banking practices.

The overdraft policy of the Calhoun National Bank and other Georgia banks owned by Bert Lance, former director of the Office of Management and Budget, surprised consumers and bankers across the nation.

And they were even more surprised when Lance and other government officials were quoted by national news services as saying that allowing the overdrafts for bank officers and owners is standard procedure.

Do Charlevoix banks follow such an overdraft policy? Definitely not, according to Lou Hollow, president of the First State Bank of Charlevoix, and Gordon Wellman, president of the Charlevoix County State Bank.

"Allowing overdrafts like the ones Bert Lance, his wife and other relatives had in the Calhoun National Bank is not standard banking procedure," Wellman said. "And many Congressmen were hombarded with letters from banks across the country telling them that."

"It just is not a common practice among banks to get into overdraft situations like the one Lance was in."

Hollow said that he personally must approve any overdraft at his bank.

"I do not permit any overdrafts for officers at the bank and I don't think the board would permit any overdrafts for me," Hollow said.

The bank president pointed out that just because the bank officers are not allowed to have overdrafts does not mean that no overdrafts are allowed at the bank. Hollow said the bank approached overdrafts as unsecured loans and allowed customers to have a certain amount of them.

"Bankers are harder on themselves than they are on others," he explained.

Both Hollow and Wellman said they were concerned that Lance's actions would have repercussions on the entire banking industry.

"The whole thing is very unfortunate," Wellman said. "Banks have been in the spotlight with state and federal legislators and many new rules affecting banks and their customers have been passed recently."

"Now people will be asking their legislators to do something more to control those wild bankers," he continued. "Well, that's not the case at all. Very few bankers are like Bert Lance."

Hollow said stricter legislation might further restrict the bankers ability to borrow money and he believes this would be a mistake. He contends most bankers take very conservative approaches to their own borrowing.

"There are 14,000 banks in this country," he pointed out. "And you hear about very few people who have done things like Bert Lance. Most of us are quite conservative and prudent in these matters."

Tickets now available for Ann Landers speech

Tickets for the Nov. 3 lecture by advice columnist Ann Landers are now on sale at several Northern Michigan locations.

Miss Landers will be addressing area residents at 8:30 p.m. in the Charlevoix High School gymnasium on "Major Problems Facing Communities Today." Her appearance is being sponsored by the Charles "CHIP" Hanson Counseling Center in Charlevoix.

The lecture will follow a $50-a-plate benefit dinner at the Grey Gables Inn in Charlevoix featuring Miss Landers as the guest of honor. The benefit dinner is the kick off for a fundraising campaign for the counseling center.

CHIP is a privately funded counseling center serving all residents of the area. The one-year-old counseling service is expanding rapidly and needs to hire an additional counselor to handle the increasing caseload.

Miss Landers is the most widely syndicated columnist in the world. Her advice appears in 960 papers and is read by more than 60 million people daily.

She got her start 22 years ago when she showed up at the Chicago Sun-Times looking for a job even though she had never written a line for publication. The paper gave her the break she needed.

Woman of the Year for six national organizations, Miss Landers is a member of the National Board of the American Cancer Society.

Miss Landers received a President's Citation for her work on alcoholism and the United Press International (UPI) named her as one of the 10 most influential women in the United States.

Tickets for her lecture will cost $2.50 for adults and $1 for students. They are available in Charlevoix at: The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, the Literary News Center and Ski and Shore Properties, Inc.

Tickets are also available at: Hites Drug Store in East Jordan, Bogema's Pharmacy in Boyne City, the Petoskey Chamber of Commerce, the Gaylord Chamber of Commerce, Hovey's Drug Store in Harbor Springs and Milliken's in Traverse City.

Irene Richardson joins Ski and Shore Properties

Irene Richardson has joined Ski and Shore Charlevoix, Inc., as a realtor associate.

Mrs. Richardson will be handling residential sales out of the office located at the corner of Bridge Street and Park Avenue. She is one of seven salespeople working in the residential division.

Real estate is an entirely new field to Mrs. Richardson, who was formerly employed by the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services. She received her real estate license in July.

"I thought it would be a unique and challenging experience to work in real estate," Mrs. Richardson said explaining her decision to change jobs. "And I felt it was a field with a lot of potential for women."

The realtor associate said she has become quite familiar with the Charlevoix area through her former job and she feels this will help her in her new position.

Mrs. Richardson is a graduate of the University of Michigan and moved to Charlevoix from the Detroit area in 1973.

FINANCIAL REPORT

CHARLEVOIX PUBLIC SCHOOLS, CHARLEVOIX-ANTRIM COUNTIES CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN

SUPERINTENDENT'S PROGRESS REPORT

This year, for the first time in many years, the enrollment of the Charlevoix Public Schools decreased. The decrease of 79 students is a reflection of a trend at the national, state and county level. A decline in the enrollment may be a mixed blessing. On one hand, class sizes become more workable due to the fact that staff was not added in the same proportion when the enrollment was on the upswing. On the other hand, however, expenses such as insurance, utilities, etc. remain the same regardless of the enrollment. If this trend continues, an adjustment may be made in the number of personnel.

The one mill voted for middle school renovation was put to good use this past summer. The middle school playground was completed with a track facility along with a softball diamond and a basketball court. Also, windows were replaced at the middle school site.

The one mill voted by the citizens in September of this year will be used to balance the budget, to maintain the various buildings, to implement a reading program at the middle school and to purchase playground equipment at the elementary building.

Work will continue in the curriculum area again this year. It is commonly agreed among the board of education, administrators and teachers that it is very important that we continue to work toward articulation in the various subject areas in grades kindergarten through 12.

Because of the new state system for accounting, it is very difficult to make financial comparisons with previous years. Although expenditures exceeded revenue this past year, there was still a balance on hand at the end of the fiscal year. The balance on hand, however, is not sufficient to avoid borrowing to keep the school operating prior to taxes being collected. A balance on hand should exist at the end of this fiscal year.

For several years maintenance at the high school building has been neglected because it was thought that a bond issue would be passed and maintenance items would be taken care of through that funding. An attempt will be made this year to upgrade many of the needed maintenance areas at the high school and middle school.

We appreciate the public support shown in the last millage election and will make a determined effort to keep you, the citizens, informed as to how your funds are being expended. We will make a diligent effort to offer the best possible educational program for the youth of Charlevoix.

Chair caning class draws crowds

INSTRUCTOR OF the chair caning class Russell Dietrich explains the technique to student Dolores Stark. People come to learn the art and repair old chairs or improve on a hobby they already have.

Big Brothers, Sisters tour Mackinac Island

Forty-eight members of the Big Brothers/Big Sisters Organization of Charlevoix County recently spent a day sightseeing, bicycling and picnicking on Mackinac Island.

The group was transported by automobiles, a camper and the Bergmann County bus, and a truck was loaded with bicycles. Fifteen adults and 33 children made the trip.

Commenting on what a good time they all had, a Big Brother said, "Some of the youngsters were unmatched little brothers and little sisters on the waiting list for Big Brothers and Big Sisters. These children are in dire need of Big Brothers and Big Sisters from the Charlevoix County area. As you can see, the children outnumbered the adults, and need for supervised outings and recreational life is great."

Those who are willing to give a little bit of themselves to help these children are asked to contact Big Brothers/Big Sisters at 541-5141 in Charlevoix.

THESE TWO CHARLEVOIX YOUTH are having a little difficulty getting used to the bicycle but for two that they used on a recent Big Brothers-Big Sisters outing at Mackinac Island.

Naturalist Reg Sharkey to address history society

Reg Sharkey, well known writer on nature subjects, will discuss the passenger pigeon at the next meeting of the Charlevoix Historical Society.

The meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, November 1, at 6 p.m. in the Community Room of the First State Bank of Charlevoix.

Lake Charlevoix group seeks new property owner members

People owning property on Lake Charlevoix are being urged to join the Lake Charlevoix Property Owners Association (LCPOA).

The Association is a "watch dog" of Lake Charlevoix, being alert to water clarity, erosion of shore areas, water migrations of the pigeons and their nesting in dense flocks were wonders of early America. There were many breeding rookeries in this area, and nesting of the pigeons and shipping to centers of population was an occupation of early settlers.

The passenger pigeon rapidly approached extinction before the end of the last century, but some older citizens of the area remember stories which were related by parents and others about the birds.

Everyone is invited to attend the meeting to hear Sharkey's account of the passenger pigeons. Historical anecdotes relating to the pigeons will be welcomed.

By NANCY JARVIS

They come to repair the tiny seat of a husband's childhood chair or to perpetuate a family hobby. Some are in their middle years and are interested in fixing up that old chair they bought years ago in a second hand store. Still others want to expand on a hobby turned profession.

These people are all members of a chair caning class currently underway at East Jordan High School. Thanks to the East Jordan Community Education/Recreation program, area residents may now learn a fun, interesting and money-saving hobby.

"I found this chair years ago in a second hand store," said class attendant, Betty Wilson, about her caning project. "It wasn't with the antiques but was stuck up on a shelf on the second floor. It had an ordinary wooden seat and I always wanted to have it caned but I felt it was too expensive. When I saw the class offered in the little book, I was really pleased."

For others, too, the monetary aspects of doing their own caning is a major reason for attending the class. "You can save so much money," said caning student, Dolores Stark, who also wants to learn caning to add another skill to her family's furniture refinishing hobby.

"All of the family does refinishing and they're also real interested in caning," she explained. "I figured I could help the fellows by learning this step."

Mrs. Stark's chair is an intricately carved piece that to the antique layman appears to be quite valuable. But she said the chair was purchased from her bing partner for only $5.

"She sold it to me real cheap. I was thrilled to death to get it," Mrs. Stark said.

Gwendolyn Hoti, another East Jordan resident attending the class, is caning a tiny toy rocker that was a gift to her husband from his aunt and uncle when he was two years old. "He's 62 now," she said with a smile.

When the chair is recaned and refinished, Mrs. Hoti will use it as the base for a wall planter. She said she plans to use an old churn to hold the branches of a money tree plant. While she explained her idea, her eyes rarely left her work and she occasionally commented on how difficult the process had become.

"This is getting difficult, the other part was easy, but this is getting hard," she would say.

The caning process appears to be fairly simple but upon observation, proves to be tedious, painstaking work.

First the caner runs thin strips of wet rattan cane horizontally and vertically across the chair. Each strip goes through a hole in the chair frame and is temporarily held in place with golf tees until it is permanently fastened on the back. Next a set of diagonal strips are woven in and the work takes on the familiar old pattern.

The art of caning began during the second half of the 17th century and became popular again about a century later. The caning students all agreed that their newly learned skill really is an art that is becoming more popular now that antiques are fashionable.

The course - instructor, Russell Dietrich, takes his teaching seriously. When his students run into problems he energetically rushes to their table and offers suggestions or demonstrates another technique.

Though he has worked as a tool and die manufacturer all his life and never formally taught, he is, in a sense, an experienced teacher because he has instructed many apprentices in his field. The father of five boys, Dietrich now works for Freedman Aircraft Engineering Corp. and has lived in East Jordan for 23 years.

Aside from teaching, he has, in the past, served as an East Jordan city councilman. But of his many activities his teaching really means something to him.

"I want to spread the word (about caning) and help other people do it," Dietrich said. "That's what life's all about. Few people do it. Classes help people do it and spread it on. At least I hope so. Otherwise I'd feel my time is wasted."

Dietrich, a shorter than average, balding man, said he has "always been interested in old things" and has been actively involved in furniture refinishing for about 10 years.

The art of caning gained his attention three years ago when he learned it during a family vacation at a class offered at Cedar Point.

It starts as a hobby and the first thing you know you're doing great. Then your friends come along and you have to charge (for the caning

LuAnn Wolschleger marries Mike Beebe

Fall colored flowers decorated the church as LuAnn Wolschleger and Mike Beebe were joined in marriage last week. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wolschleger and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Beebe.

Father Dale Magoon performed the double ring ceremonies before 250 guests at St. Mary's Church. Music during the ceremony included "On This Day," "Our Father," "Psalms Angellus," and "Color My World," sung by Kathy Meggison, Arlene Hissett, Julie Supernaw and Mary Ann Cudd.

For her wedding the bride chose an ivory colored empire waist line gown trimmed in white lace and satin. She also wore an ivory colored waist length veil and carried a bouquet of yellow, gold and white mums. The dress was made by Sue Firman of Charlevoix.

Serving as the maid of honor was Susan Ann Meggison. Carrie Franke, Geri Young and Sue Firman were bridesmaids. The attendants wore rust colored dresses trimmed with ivory colored lace. They carried bouquets of yellow, rust and gold mums.

Stacey Tenbusch, niece of the bride, was the flower girl. She wore an ivory colored dress trimmed with brown lace. Chris Wilbur was the ringbearer.

A reception was held at the American Legion Hall following the wedding. After a wedding trip to Hawaii, the new couple will make their home in Charlevoix. The bride is employed by the Lockwood-MacDonald Division of Northern Michigan Hospital. The groom works for Charlevoix Garbage Service.

Marcia DeVries weds Daniel Mort in East Jordan

Marcia Kay DeVries and Daniel Lee Mort were united in marriage at the Missionary Church of East Jordan recently.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Sebo DeVries of Ellsworth and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mort of Charlevoix.

Lighted candelabra flanked the altar with basket arrangements of orange and yellow mums accented with ivy and greens decorating the church. Officiating at the double ring ceremony were Rev. Roy DeVries, brother of the bride, Rev. Dale Turner, who offered the devotions, and Rev. Don Riedel of the Eastport, Baptist church who gave closing prayers.

Mrs. Dennis Aenis presented a program of traditional wedding music and Charles Henry sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Wedding Song."

For her wedding the bride chose a sheer polyester organza gown lined in acetate tulle. The bodice was styled with a front and back lace bib, high neckline and long sleeves all trimmed with ivory and venetian lace. The full skirt ended with a lace trimmed flounce at the hemline and her full length veil of illusion was trimmed with lace and attached to a cap of organza. She carried a colonial bouquet of white pom pom mums and yellow sweetheart roses.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Jack Vanniman, served as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Cindy Vanniman, Marilyn DeVries, sister-in-law of the bride, and Gayla McDevell.

The attendants wore identical gowns of paprika polyester fashioned with sweetheart necklines trimmed with ecru lace, long sheer floral sleeves and deep ruffles at the hemline. The girls carried bouquets of yellow mums with paprika and yellow streamers.

Holly Johnson was the flower girl. She wore a gown fashioned like the older attendants and carried a nosegay of miniature yellow mums.

Jesse Silva was the ringbearer.

Best man was Tom Mort, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Gregg Mort, brother of the groom.

The wedding cake was made by Mrs. Everett Griffin of Boyne City.

For the ceremony, the bride's mother wore a floor length gown of rust colored knit with a low neckline and sleeveless empire bodice. The groom's mother wore a floor length gown of beige with dark brown and orange flowers and a brown ruffle at the neckline.

Following a one-week honeymoon to Southern Michigan, the couple will make their home in Charlevoix. The groom is employed at Olesuns.

A bake sale will feature home-made goodies of all kinds including bread, cookies, quick breads, jams and jellies.

Mrs. Coy Groves and Mrs. Thomas Corner will be in charge of the dining room.

The Charles Stevens mark 60th wedding anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stevens, pioneer residents of Marion township who now reside in Charlevoix, celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary Sunday at a surprise open house held at the community room of the First Baptist church.

More than 90 relatives and friends gathered for the event hosted by their children, Mrs. George (Josephine) Bergmann, Mrs. Warren (Phyllis) Allison and Mrs. William (Don) Graves, all of Charlevoix, Clara of Ypsilanti, Byard of Grand Rapids, Donald of Boyne Falls, Bruce of Escanaba and William of Charlevoix. Also present were many of their 24 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Stevens and the former Geneva Jackson were married in Charlevoix Oct. 23, 1917, and resided on a farm in Marion township until moving to their present home on Burns St. in 1972. Besides operating the farm, Stevens was a mason by trade and for 15 years prior to his retirement was employed in bridge construction.

Stevens was born March 16, 1899, at the Phelps area in Marion township where he later owned a farm. Mrs. Stevens was born in Indiana Oct. 11, 1900, and came to the same area with her parents at the age of two years.

Seven was lucky number for Rayders

By BILL MERCER

The Charlevoix Rayders traveled across the "Big Mac" last Friday and sent St. Ignace football fans home with a resounding 48-8 homecoming defeat.

Seven was Charlevoix's lucky number last Friday. Not only was this their seventh victory, but seven players scored and the team converted seven of eleven possessions into points on the board. The Rayders were in seventh heaven in the land of the Saints.

Four major things occurred in the Friday game worth noting. First, the defense held league leading runner Chuck Kalbfleisch to 74 yards rushing in 30 carries. Obviously Coach Don Carey and his staff had the team well prepared for this fleet-footed back.

Second, Charlevoix's Greg Krueger gained 230 yards moving him to 968 yards gained rushing in 1977. He should surpass the 1,000 yard mark this Friday against Boyne City.

By the way, Krueger rushed 129 yards in the first half of the St. Ignace game.

Third, Charlevoix quarterback Kip Cinnamon had four of six passes—all for touchdowns.

The running game dominated, but the four losses counted for half of the offensive output.

Fourth, senior standout Kip Cinnamon needs to work on his fumble recovery play. The defensive lineman picked up a loose ball and rammed 45 yards to the St. Ignace 5-yard line when Kalbfleisch caught him from behind and brought him down. A little more speed and the co-captain would have scored his first touchdown of the season. Not bad for a lineman.

In the first quarter it looked as if the game would be a typical tough St. Ignace struggle. The Saints moved to the Charlevoix 16-yard line before the defense held on and turned the ball over.

Then St. Ignace played tough and Charlevoix was forced to punt on their first possession.

Senior defensive end, Joe Left, playing another solid game, intercepted a pass on the next series giving Charlevoix good field position early in the game.

Charlevoix fumbled three plays later stopping that scoring attempt.

On the next series when the Rayders had the ball, Krueger ran 25 yards to the Saints 5-yard line. Another Charlevoix fumble stopped that scoring drive. It was beginning to look like the Rayders were going to give the ball game away on mistakes.

Midway through the second quarter, the offensive machine decided to hold on to the ball and the scoring blitz began. After gaining possession of the ball on the Charlevoix 49-yard line, quarterback Alger handed off to Krueger and he ran 51 yards for a score. A clipping penalty returned the ball to the Saints 25-yard line, but on the next play Krueger did it again. This one counted.

Placekicker Guy Carter converted the extra point and Charlevoix had the lead, 7-0.

On the first play following the kickoff, Pat Klooster jumped on a St. Ignace fumble at the 11-yard line.

A quick pass from Alger to Jim Elzinga, all alone in the end zone quickly gave Charlevoix a second touchdown.

Again Carter's kick was good, giving the Rayders all the points they needed, 14-0.

With a little over one minute remaining in the half, Kevin Kratt scampered 39 yards for the third score of the quarter.

Carter remained consistent with his kick and the team went into the locker room at halftime with Charlevoix ahead 21-0.

From that point on, the Rayders scored every time they touched the football in the second half. Senior Tom Jones carried 22 yards for a score with less than three minutes gone in the second half. Alger connected with Bob Warner six minutes later and Alger hit Elzinga for his second touchdown just into the final period.

The final Charlevoix score came with 2:18 remaining to be played when backup quarterback Nolrot threw a pass to Mike Keller in the endzone.

Carter converted on three more point after kicks bringing his record to nine in a row in the past three games. During the Charlevoix scoring fest, St. Ignace managed to produce a touchdown on a double reverse option pass from quarterback Kevin Litner to Kalbfleisch for 46 yards. The Saints two point conversion attempt was also successful, accounting for their eight points.

Darrin Van Loo and Craig Boss helped to give the victory to the Rayders.

Special team members Boas, Buday, Warner, Jim Fowler, Steve Hufford, Jerry Kelle and Kerry Speer also contributed, especially on the kick off return situations.

This week Charlevoix takes on inter-county rival Boyne City at Kipke Field. This is the last home game for the Rayders in 1977. A win would give the team at least a tie for the league championship.

Girls win one, lose one in last week's play

The Charlevoix Girls Varsity Basketball team opened last week's play with a victory over the Cheboygan Chiefs, 50-47.

"The girls really played ball," Coach Toni Felter said. "We did a lot more shooting and we hit when we shot. The girls seem to have developed some confidence in their shooting."

"Three girls were in double figures with Sherrie Selissen scoring 22 points and Chris Lehman and Laurie Gibbs each putting in 16 points. Lisa Flower had 12 rebounds for the night.

Charlevoix only scored 1 point in the first period but came back to score 23 points in the second period, 18 in the third and 8 in the last period. Cheboygan scored 10 points in the first quarter, 8 in the second, 14 in the third and 15 in the fourth.

The JV team continued its winning in Thursday's play downing the St. Ignace Saints 43-23.

Klooster continued to lead the pack with 19 points and Melanie Kerridge hit the rim for 14 points. Amy Kroll had seven rebounds.

Coach Wagner said April Meadows played for the injured Klooster and did a good job during the second period. Klooster was back in the game following half time.

The JVs opened the game by scoring 13 points and followed with 14 points in the second period, 12 points in the third and 6 in the fourth.

St. Ignace scored 8 points in the first period, 6 in the second, 3 in the third and 6 in the fourth.

Cross country team takes league title

The Charlevoix Rayder Cross Country team, coached by Pete Spieser, captured the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference title at St. Ignace Tuesday winning the league meet with a solid 45 points, 20 points better than the second place winner, Petoskey.

In winning the title, Mark Russell placed first with a time of 15:48 to set a new course record. Jeff Drenth came in third behind Peter of Petoskey with a time of 16:08.

The pair, by virtue of placing among the top 10 in the meet, became members of the All-Conference team.

John Fiedoruk with a time of 17:00 placed 13th; Jeff Landon, 17:02, 14th and Jay Swartwout, 17:08, 15th.

Finishing behind Charlevoix in the meet were Petoskey with 66 points; Rogers City, 67; Gaylord, 82; St. Ignace, 84; Boyne City, 150, and Grayling, 182.

A Junior Varsity meet was also held with Charlevoix placing first with 42 points. Petoskey second with 54 followed by Rogers City and Gaylord with 82 points each.

Grayling, St. Ignace and Boyne City did not field teams but entered individual runners in the meet.

Charlevoix's Clay Parrie, with a time of 17:56 and Brian Thompson with a 17:58 placed one and two in the JV meet.

Charlevoix is entered in the Gaylord Invitational on Tuesday and the Regional Class C meet at Clare on Saturday, Oct. 29.

Junior varsity defeats St. Ignace 22-6

The Charlevoix Rayder Junior Varsity football team came home from the Upper Peninsula victorious on Thursday night. The Rayders defeated St. Ignace 22-6.

The Charlevoix team scored the first touchdown of the game with Dave Elzinga running three yards for the score. The extra point attempt failed when the kick went wide.

St. Ignace came to score in the second quarter on a 40-yard pass play. The Saints attempted to run for a two-point conversion but were stopped by the Rayder defense.

The Rayders came back to score near the end of the second quarter with Bob Russell running two yards for the touchdown. Quarterback Scott Kerridge passed to Russell for the two-point conversion leaving the score 14-6 at the half.

The third quarter was scoreless, but the Rayders got on the scoreboard again during the last quarter of the game. The Rayder defense turned over the ball to the offensive team on the St. Ignace 25 yard line and Steve Daylong went in for the score on an eight yard pass to Kerridge. Kerridge again passed for the two-point conversion, this time to Scott Morgan.

The Rayders defense played a good game making three fumble recoveries and one pass interception, according to Coach Hal Evans. He singled out Phil Morrison as playing a good defensive game. Morrison was injured at the end of the game and was taken to the hospital and released.

A St. Ignace player was also injured and Evans said he wanted to thank Don Trimper, Dave Fowler and Arnie Loper for their assistance in helping the player.

Evans singled out Mike Chappuis as a key to the offensive unit. Chappuis led the line in good blocking for the touchdowns.

scoreboard with four minutes left in the game. The team scored on a 4-yard run.

Coach Chuck Bentley singled out Jeff Drury as a defensive stand out for his two pass interceptions during the game. Bentley also mentioned Jim Baillargeon and Ben Shores, defensive ends, as outstanding players.

On offense, he mentioned Sladek, Zednick, Hoffman and Daylong.

ST. JAMES - Beaver Island -
Funeral services for Mrs.
Mary Ellen Smith, 71, who died Oct. 17 in Detroit, were held Wednesday at Holy Cross
Church. The Rev. Alvin Yard,
O.F.M., officiated. Interment was in Holy Cross Cemetery.
Born at St. James Oct. 9,
1906, the former Mary Ellen
McDonald lived in Charlevoix briefly as a young woman and later in Kalamazoo before returning to Detroit.
She is survived by two grandchildren; four great-grandchildren and a sister,
Mrs. Betty Merry of Palm
Beach, Fla.
The body was at the Winchester Funeral Home
Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Charles Martini
Funeral services for a former local resident, Mrs.
Charles (Mabel) Martini, 88, who died Saturday at a Grand Rapids Convalescent Home where she had been a patient for three years, were held at Brookside cemetery Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. Raymond Giffin of the First Congregational Church officiated.
Funeral services were held at the DeGraaf-Blanchard
Funeral Chapel in Grand Rapids Tuesday morning.
The former Mabel Poole
was born in Charlevoix Aug.
25, 1899. She entered the employment of the Illinois Telephone Company in Chicago in 1918 and following her marriage Mr. Martini in Chicago in July 1921 returned to Charlevoix where she was an operator at the Michigan
Bell Telephone Co. office here.
Later she became Chief
Operator, a position she held until her retirement in December 1952. Mr. Martini
predeceased her in death in

ST. JAMES - Beaver Island -
Funeral services for Mrs.
Mary Ellen Smith, 71, who died Oct. 17 in Detroit, were held Wednesday at Holy Cross
Church. The Rev. Alvin Yard,
O.F.M., officiated. Interment
was in Holy Cross Cemetery.
Born at St. James Oct. 9,
1906, the former Mary Ellen
McDonald lived in Charlevoix
briefly as a young woman and later in Kalamazoo before returning to Detroit.
She is survived by two grandchildren; four great-grandchildren and a sister,
Mrs. Betty Merry of Palm
Beach, Fla.
The body was at the Winchester Funeral Home
Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Charles Martini
Funeral services for a former local resident, Mrs.
Charles (Mabel) Martini, 88,
who died Saturday at a Grand Rapids Convalescent Home
where she had been a patient
for three years, were held at Brookside cemetery Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. Raymond
Giffin of the First Congregational Church
officiated.
Funeral services were held at the DeGraaf-Blanchard
Funeral Chapel in Grand Rapids Tuesday morning.
The former Mabel Poole
was born in Charlevoix Aug.
25, 1899. She entered the employment of the Illinois Telephone Company in Chicago in 1918 and following her marriage Mr. Martini in Chicago in July 1921 returned to Charlevoix where she was an operator at the Michigan
Bell Telephone Co. office here.
Later she became Chief
Operator, a position she held until her retirement in December 1952. Mr. Martini
predeceased her in death in September 1966. She continued to live at the family home until going to Grand Rapids in 1970 to live with a grand-niece, Mrs. Marjorie Wiley. She was a member of the United Methodist church and the Telephone Pioneers of America.
She is survived by several nieces and nephews.

Elementary students planning big Halloween celebration

The sounds of Halloween will fill the halls of the Charlevoix Elementary School during a special "Halloween Hour" at 2:30 p.m. Monday in the school gym.

Parents should use caution on Halloween

Parents who take their little ones Trick or Treating Monday evening should use special precautions to help protect them from accidental injury.

It's nearing the "trick or treat" season and that means pumpkins, pumpkins and pumpkins. Did you ever consider shopping around for pumpkins? Many shoppers are not aware that they have two choices when purchasing pumpkins.

There are two varieties of pumpkins - the Jack-o'-lantern and pie pumpkin. The Lantern pumpkins are more hollow in the middle, and the flesh is thinner on the inside. Pie pumpkins are not as hollow and they have a thicker flesh.

When shopping for pumpkins, look for bright-colored ones that are firm and free of blemishes. A fresh pumpkin will keep for about a month if stored in a cool dry place.

Pumpkins can either be baked or steamed. To prepare, cut the pumpkin into small manageable pieces, remove the seeds and stringy pieces. Cube, then peel.

After the pumpkin is cooked, it can be pushed through a sieve to remove remaining fibers. The pumpkin can then be used in pies, breads, soups, puddings or as pumpkin butter. As a vegetable, pumpkin is especially good when mixed with carrots, rutabagas, or half and half with mashed potatoes.

Cooked pumpkin can also be frozen in small portions. A bonus includes the pumpkin seeds. The seeds should be washed first to remove fibers (the stringy substance). Mix two cups of pumpkin seeds with 1½ teaspoons of butter, and 1½ teaspoons of oil. The mixture should then be spread in a shallow pan and toasted about 20 minutes in a 250 degree oven.

complete with songs, dances, costumes and surprises. The children will join together for several songs including: "Halloween Song," "I've Been Working on My Costume," "Ghoul Days," and "It's a Good Old Halloween."

Each grade will also present a special song with the fifth grade singing "Little Barn Owl," the fourth grade singing "Halloween Faces," the third grade singing "Halloween," the second grade singing "Mr. Jack-o'-lantern," and the first grade singing "Twinkle, Twinkle, Twinkle."

Several individual students will also be performing during the program. Nick Swanson and Lily Engelhart will join together to sing "There's a Haunted House," while Tammy Clintworth will sing "The Pumpkin on the Vine."

A trio of Carolyn LeFavre, Cheryl Drewar and John Jaskierski will sing "Around the Block," and six students including Will Syvertson, Beth Holoff, Michelle North, Marc Schroeder, Amanda Detraz and Brian Burke will sing "Halloween Friends."

"Dance Macabre," the dance of the scarecrows, will be performed by Danny Meggison, Phillip Archey, Michael Leyman, Bobby Sharrow, Allison Clock, Kathy Mabree, Kristin Holmes, Jamie Will, Kris Washburn and Doug Holm.

The public is invited to participate in the Halloween festivities at the elementary school.

makeup instead. Masks can slip out of place or have eye holes so small they restrict a child's view.

He cautioned that makeup should be applied carefully by adults.

Studies at Indiana University show that retro-reflective material on shoes and clothing makes pedestrians safely visible to drivers even at speeds of 70 and 80 miles per hour.

Nothing else, not even white clothing, can top it.

Retro-reflective material can be purchased in iron-on, sew-on, and stick-on varieties in most hardware and department stores. It should be applied to the front, sides, and back of the costume, Dr. Klein said.

"The other side of Halloween safety," Dr. Klein said, "is to throw away those masks and use non-allergic makeup instead. Masks can slip out of place or have eye holes so small they restrict a child's view."

Studies at Indiana University show that retro-reflective material on shoes and clothing makes pedestrians safely visible to drivers even at speeds of 70 and 80 miles per hour.

Nothing else, not even white clothing, can top it.

Retro-reflective material can be purchased in iron-on, sew-on, and stick-on varieties in most hardware and department stores. It should be applied to the front, sides, and back of the costume, Dr. Klein said.

"The other side of Halloween safety," Dr. Klein said, "is to throw away those masks and use non-allergic makeup instead. Masks can slip out of place or have eye holes so small they restrict a child's view."

Freedman Artcraft may be sold to larger Ziff corporation

Rust Craft Greeting Cards, Inc., which owns Freedman Artcraft Engineering Corporation in Charlevoix, is considering selling out to Ziff Corporation.

Jack Grubaugh, president of Freedman Artcraft, said a tender offer made by Ziff Corp. to Rust Craft is currently under consideration by the Rust Craft shareholders, the Federal Securities Commission and the Federal Communications Commission (FCC). All three groups must approve the sale before it can be finalized.

The FCC is involved in the transaction because Rust Craft owns several radio and television stations and has interests in Telecommunications, Inc., which has cable television operations in addition to its line of greeting cards and related products, Grubaugh said.

Ziff is a private corporation whose chief holding is Ziff-Davis Publishing Company, magazine publisher. The company publishes such magazines as "Photography" and other similar publications.

The Freedman official said the Charlevoix Company, which also has a plant in California, would continue to operate as it always had following the completion of the current transaction.

Freedman Artcraft was founded in Charlevoix in 1946 by the late Gordon Freedman. The company manufactures greeting cards, record album and other types of display cases and stands for many major corporations in the country including Walt Disney Productions.

The products manufactured in Charlevoix and California are shipped around the world.

The Charlevoix plant employs 175 people at its location by the Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

The company was purchased by Rust Craft Greeting Cards, Inc., in October, 1972.

Christmas ideas galore at hospital Showcase

By Fran Martin
Charlevoix Hospital Guild members have something special for you with their special pre-holiday gift showing, Nov. 9 and 10.

Mrs. William Squire of Boyne City, guild president, says the volunteer group will be staging a special showing of new and different gift items.

The Showcase, the gift shop in the lobby of the hospital, will be open from 9 a.m. until 8 p.m. on both these days for the benefit of those who want to do their Christmas shopping early.

"By patronizing the pre-holiday sale next week, you will not only be completing your Christmas shopping list, you will, through the Guild, be supporting the Charlevoix Area Hospital, one of the most important institutions in your community," Mrs. Squire added.

Mrs. William Fochman and Mrs. Gordon I. Freedman have been searching since spring for the cute and clever as well as the staid and practical gift ideas. Besides larger toys there are countless items suitable as stocking stuffers.

There are nail kits, wallets, glass cases and key chains for men, magnifiers, jewelry of every description for the Miss or Missus of all ages, stationary and note paper, bed caddies, colorful trays, Advent calendars, always a treat at holiday time as children count off the days till Christmas, book marks, bed socks, clever wooden dolls from Poland, wooden Christmas ornaments that make fine family gifts...the list goes on and on.

"You name it, we have it... something," Mrs. Fochman said of the stock that has been purchased for the showing next week.

The Showcase is operated by the Women's Guild as a fund-raising project with all the proceeds going to support the hospital through the purchase of furnishings, equipment and the renovation of furnishings that have seen better days.

In addition, the Guild makes layettes for mothers who need them, make puppets and pillows for the pediatric department, tray favors for patients in addition to fulfilling numerous volunteer obligations members have accepted. The Guild also offers nursing scholarships as well as scholarships to persons entering the health field.

Gregory Justis of the Legal Services of Northern Michigan says he expects a ruling on the Charlevoix Apartment injunction some time this week. He told the Courier that despite what the landlords stated in a letter to the tenants, the U.S. District Court in Grand Rapids did not refuse to issue an injunction in the case, but instead the Court indicated a decision on the injunction would be forthcoming in 30 days. The hearing was held September 28.

The case involves a rent increase dispute, with Legal Services claiming that tenants of the apartment complex were denied their constitutional rights when their rents were increased 25 percent March 1 because they weren't given a chance to submit input about the proposed rent hike.

83-year-old woman crochets

Lace making still a thriving art in Ellsworth

By NANCY JARVIS

The age old art of handma lace is alive and thriving in Ellsworth where a kind, humble woman named Mrs. James (Alice) Ruis keeps her hands busy for the love of her church, not for profit.

The 83-year-old woman crochets lovely, delicate lace designs that adorn the edges of handkerchiefs, pillow cases and classic furniture scarves. She often uses lavender variegated thread to add hints of color to her work.

"I don't want people to think I'm boasting about my work, but I want more work because I love it I can do," Mrs. Ruis said.

"And does she ever. She said she sold over $100 worth of lace at the Alwood Reformed Church bazaar several weeks ago, which represents everything she had for sale. She donates all of the money she makes to the church, including the earnings from the items she sells from her home. The church, in turn, uses the money to finance its missions.

Mrs. Ruis uses several different patterns in her lace making and says the possibilities for different designs are endless.

"I only do a few patterns now because I don't want to use directions," she said. She still has an 80-year-old white handkerchief with a special pattern design even though the years have developed tiny holes.

"It's an old, old pattern that I haven't made for years but I keep it because I love the pattern so much," she said. In addition to her lace work, Mrs. Ruis also does embroidery work. Knits mittens, booties and matching hot and cold sets and crochets edging on pot holders she makes from wash cloths.

"I do it because I love to work with my hands," Mrs. Ruis said.

Her home, located within the village limits of Ellsworth, remains one of a childhood visit to Grandma's. She keeps it neat and clean with the furniture brightly polished and decorated with her lace scarves. Her windows glow with sheer ruffled curtains and her many live plants add an air of freshness. The chime of her antique shelf clock warns the house.

She welcomes her visitors with a cup of hot coffee and homemade date cookies. Soon she brings out a tin box filled with "my old relics" as she calls them, which are small samples of her lace work.

many turning yellow with age. An average sized woman who wears her silver grey hair up in a braided knot on the back of her head, she often humbly bows her head when she talks about her hand work. And then she is smiling and her blue eyes seem to dance behind her grey framed glasses. Her pink freckled skin is marked with the lines of age.

Born in the Netherlands, Mrs. Ruis came to the United States in 1901 when she was seven years old. Her family immediately settled in Ellsworth and she has lived there ever since.

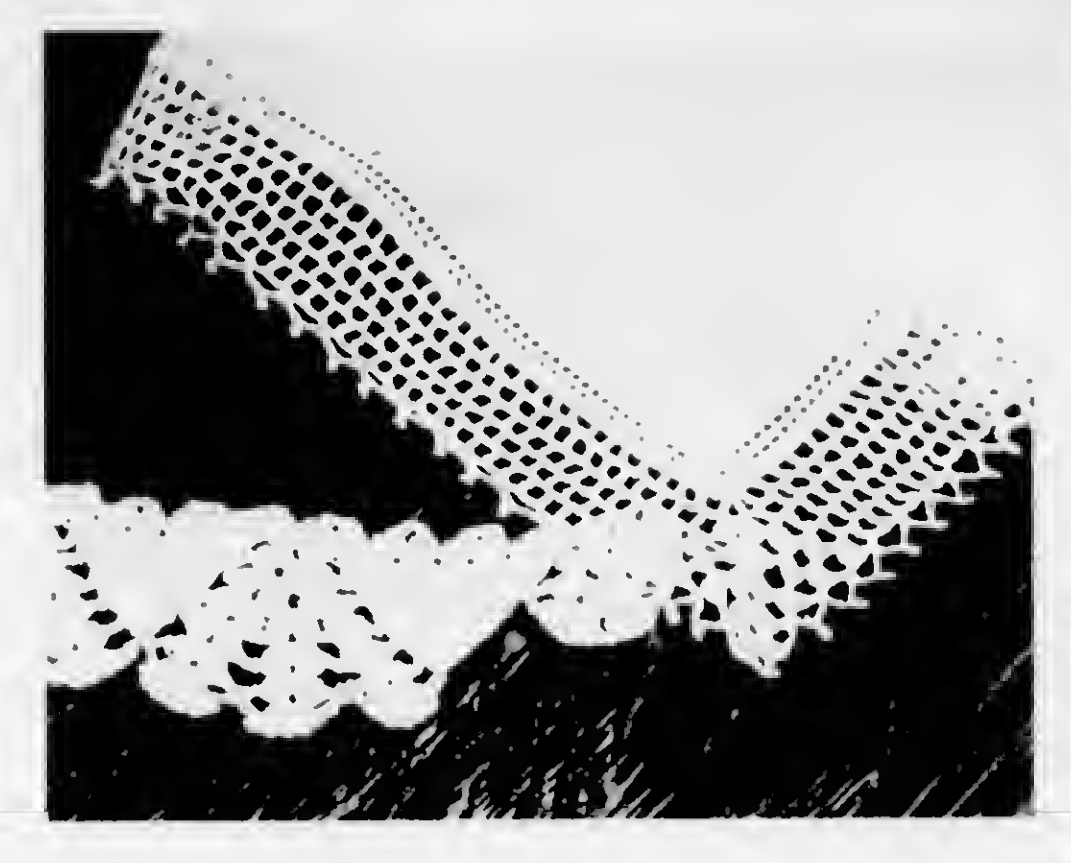

"I recall a little of the old place," she said, remembering the country where she was born. "We lived in a little village in a house right by a dike. The dike was covered by a hand operated bridge to let the boats through."

Her nephew in California, Mrs. Ruis said, recently traveled to the Netherlands and found the house she was born in still standing. She said he told her the bridge is there and it is still hand operated as it was before.

Mrs. Ruis is one of a family of ten children. There are now only two still alive. Her sister lives within walking distance of her home and her son and grandson run the same garage in Ellsworth that her husband bought just after they were married. Her husband is dead now, but she has her two children five grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

"Love my family," she said with a smile and spoke of knitted slippers, mittens and Sunday afternoon dinners.

Knudson retires from Will-Flow

Before Knudson joined Will-Flow, he spent 11 years farming the 60 acre surrounding his home on Old M-66.

"We grew a little bit of everything," Knudson said. "And we had some cattle, too."

"But it got to the point where I either had to become a farm laborer or call it quits."

Knudson worked for several other local companies, too. He spent six years working for the East Jordan Iron Works and he spent six years on the Great Lakes steamships before he was married.

He also worked for the Charlevoix Picking Company where he learned the skills for one of his hobbies—pickle making.

This year, Knudson made three large barrels of dill pickles which he divides up into quart and gallon jars and gives to friends. He grows most of his own pickle cucumbers, although this year a fellow employee at Will-Flow donated five bushels of cukes to the cause.

"How many pickles does Knudson eat?"

"Oh, about a quart," he laughed. "I give most of them away."

Knudson said he didn't have any special plans for his retirement except to finish up some projects around the house that his wife had been bugging him to do.

He also said he was going to travel for another year or so. "Thelma (his wife) is going to work another year at American Mold before she retires."

Then he would like to visit his children and grandchildren. One daughter, Wendy Sloan and her husband and two sons live in Kodiak, Alaska. Another daughter, Marie Yettaw, and her husband live in Santa Clara, Calif., and a son, Peter Knudson, and his two sons and wife live in Venice, Calif.

A third daughter, Glenda Ferguson, her husband and son and daughter live near Bay Shore.

Until next year, Knudson plans to do a little fishing, some hunting and some relaxing.

Emmet County's junk not wanted

Charlevoix County doesn't want Emmet County to dump its solid waste (garbage and rubbish) in the Charlevoix land fill.

This was made clear last week when the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners passed a resolution pointing to the fact that over two years ago they presented the Department of Natural Resources with their own solid waste disposal plan which would use the only land fill in the county and did not provide for use of the fill by any other county.

The commissioners resolved that "the Emmet County Board of Commissioners respect our plan to the extent that any plans presently considered by the debate is "Resolved: The federal government should guarantee comprehensive medical care for all citizens in the United States." Both the varsity and novice teams started collecting evidence and writing cases this summer with the help of Ann Marie Watson, who attended state debate camp at Northern Michigan University for several weeks during the summer.

The topic set for this year's team's speaker award and was the union of the top five participating debaters.

The varsity team debaters are Sue Miller and Ann Marie Watson on the affirmative side and Scott Swanson and Lauren Heims on the negative side. Pam Sutherland alternates for both the negative and affirmative sides.

Board to contract with any private, licensed land fill operator in Charlevoix County be dropped. Inasmuch as the cities of East Jordan and Boyne City are anticipating solid waste problems and may be expected to impose further burdens on our present capacity, be it further considered that any temporary relief gained for any outside source would soon result in similar problems for Charlevoix County."

Emmet County is looking for a land fill site outside its own borders because no agreement can be reached as to where it should be located within the county.

Careers gain new limelight

During the week of Nov. 6-12, all juniors and seniors at the Charlevoix High School will have an opportunity to participate in a speed career guidance and planning program.

The program is designed to help young adults make better decisions about their educational and career plans. In fact, a national survey shows that juniors rank "help with career planning" as their most important need.

School counselor Charles Bentley explained that each participating student completes the Career Planning Program assessment instrument, which measures his or her career related interests, experiences, abilities and plans. The information is then developed into a report to help each student relate this information about himself or herself to career options and the world of work. With each report, participants will receive a planning booklet, in which they will find tips on how to explore various careers, where to find career references and how to learn the requirements for specific jobs. They will also receive a Career Education newspaper that will offer job market projections locally, statewide and nationally. It will also list an outline of job finding skills such as how to write a resume and how to have a successful job interview.

The career planning program also has some special features for those going into higher education after high school. It relates various careers to specific post-secondary majors and gives students a more specific realm from which to choose a post-secondary school. Students will also get an estimate of the score they might achieve on the State of Michigan Scholarship Test, in which 28,000 students qualified for scholarships. There is also a section devoted to financial aids, how to apply, the various kinds of assistance available and who qualifies for aid.

Approximately 52 percent of the class of 1977 of the Charlevoix High School said they were planning to attend some sort of school or college after high school, Bentley said. Thirty-eight percent planned to enter four-year programs; 14 percent technical vocational program.

African pastor plans visit to Charlevoix

The Reverend B. K. Dladla, pastor of a Congregational Church in Durban, South Africa, will preach in the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix next Sunday, November 6, at 11 a.m.

Dladla is Moderator of the Congregational Churches of the Union of South Africa, Rhodesia, Botswana, and Southwest Africa. He will be in Michigan in connection with the annual meeting of the United Church of Christ Board for World Ministries, to be held in Grand Rapids from November 13 to 18.

In addition to this Sunday morning engagement, Dladla will speak to the Charlevoix Kiwanis and Lions Clubs on Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

Congress sells out to oil companies

We hope the shortsighted members of Congress who apparently have sided with the powerful oil and gas lobby in gutting President Carter's energy conservation proposals are on the mailing list of the Institute for Environmental Studies at the University of Wisconsin at Madison. But, we don't expect they are or that it would actually make any difference.

The institute recently published a report that ought to be considered seriously by anyone concerned with our dwindling energy resources. The report, compiled by a group of university researchers, says Americans could cut their energy consumption by 64 percent and still have full employment. The researchers describe a future in which full employment and energy conservation will go hand in hand.

What a contrast to the arguments of the Washington lobbyists who have managed to cripple several major energy conservation proposals on the grounds that changes in our consumption patterns will cause a loss of jobs.

The researchers see an acceleration of the already apparent migration of people away from large cities into smaller cities. At the same time, they expect the declining metropolitan areas will begin to divide and rebuild themselves into a number of distinct smaller cities.

This is an historical irony in some of the predictions. The report suggests that in this low-energy future food production will become more localized as the high cost of transportation forces farmers and industrialists to concentrate on source of food.

This local self-sufficiency is a page out of the past. It is a mandatory, but common way of life in many lesser developed nations. We have become so sophisticated in our food production that we are totally dependent on a complicated, far-flung and costly transportation system.

It is a system that sends peas and corn from Michigan to California and brings back lettuce and grapes.

Contrast this energy-gorging food distribution system with that being employed in Peoples Republic of China, for example. China is generally thought to be smothered with population problems.

Paul H. Williams, UW plant pathologist, who spent a month in China earlier this summer as part of an American agricultural mission, has reported on the widespread dependence on locally produced foods in that age-old civilization.

Nobody expects the U.S. to be transformed into a push-cart economy, but the university environmental report cautions that while people will not be deprived of autos, they will be expensive to operate and not really necessary for day-to-day activities.

We strongly urge you to put the nation's energy situation at the top of your list of public concerns. At the same time, as that you take it upon yourselves to write your national legislators and tell them not to buckle under to the powerful gas and oil lobby.

I'm not sure how - or even if - we should celebrate the birthdays of such inanimate objects as the Mackinac Bridge. After all, they have a definite advantage in the age department over us mere mortals.

This week, for example, Big Mac is celebrating its 20th anniversary. And there seems to be little doubt that in 100 years she will celebrate her 120th anniversary and in 2177 she will mark 220 years of dominance over the Straits.

None of us can say that. But rather than begrudge Big Mac her due from the temporal quarter, I suppose I should be satisfied to be among those who remember Northern Michigan before the bridge was constructed. There are quite a few of us around today, but our number is dwindling with every passing year.

Remember very clearly being told in my Michigan Geography class in grade school that construction of a bridge over the Straits of Mackinac was an impossibility - and I suppose in the 1930's it was.

In the first place, the Straits are too wide. In the second place, they are too deep.

And in the third place, wind, waves and ice would never allow for the construction of anything in the Straits of Mackinac.

In those days, building a bridge at Mackinac was in the same category as flying to the moon, so far as the daily press was concerned. We knew it couldn't be done, but it was fun to talk about.

Every so often one of the papers would interview some flea-brained dreamer who thought the bridge could be floated on a million oil drums or suspended from helium balloons. No one ever considered building the bridge on towers anchored to the bottom of the Straits, because the bottom generally was considered to be an unknown quantity.

After my first visit to the Straits in 1974, I was struck by the fact that the bridge was not only a major tourist attraction in the area ever since.

Twenty years ago it was hoped in some quarters and feared in others that the bridge would attract all kinds of new industry to the Upper Peninsula, accompanied by a population explosion of startling proportions.

This, of course, hasn't happened. The Upper Peninsula today remains largely an untrammeled wilderness at the end of a green and white rainbow.

For instance, you might ask why a pregnant cat named Albus has been living in the home of a man who hates cats. The answer is that there has always been a lousy cat of some sort living in my home, for more than 20 years now, despite the fact that cats are good for absolutely nothing except testing myths (is there really more than one way to skin a cat?).

My wife explained this phenomenon only a few days after we'd exchanged our vows, and only a few hours before we began exchanging curses. It seems that someone was Dr. D. B. Steinman, a bridge builder who was as much a poet and an artist as he was an architect. Steinman had built bridges all his life and was casting around for one last star to add to his crown when the "continent divided by the Straits of Mackinac" came to his attention.

The rest is history. Bottom tests showed rock formations capable of supporting a bridge. Steinman decided on a graceful span suspended from two towers. Gov. G. Mennen Williams threw his weight behind the project. The late Prentiss Brown of St. Ignace worked out the financing. The people of Michigan were anxious to give it a try. The Mackinac Bridge project was underway.

The bridge was opened Nov. 1, 1957, and has been one of the major tourist attractions in the area ever since.

Paula Holmes... Speaking Her Mind

It's always fun to chat with my mother on the telephone because she never fails to have something new and exciting to share with me.

A recent phone call was no disappointment as mother really threw me for a loop this time when she announced: "You have a new adopted brother."

As far as I knew, my parents were satisfied with their four children, although I have heard them campaign for grandchildren on occasion. I knew also that they felt the house getting a little empty with my youngest brother in the middle of his senior year at high school and full of big plans for college. But I didn't think they were so desperate that they would adopt another child.

"I have a what?" I yelled incredulously into the phone as I wondered why I hadn't been consulted on such a major decision.

"Well, he's a Swedish foreign exchange student that we're going to have live with us during the school year," mother explained during the initial shock.

Still surprised, I asked how they could get an exchange student when the school year had already started. I knew that the two exchange students in Charlevoix, Pedro Armengol and Maria Aronson, had arrived in the area in August.

Neither said that their exchange student had been living with a family with very young children. He didn't want to move out of the school district but he needed a new home, so the family took him in.

"Actually, your brother told him to be glad to have him," Mom related. "He just sort of brought him home in a day."

I knew there had to be more to the story than that. My brother just doesn't bring anybody home. And I was right. "Well, you know, swimming season coming up," Mom continued. "We (that's the exchange student) holds Swedish national record for long distance swimming. Jeff and the other members of the team really wanted to keep him at the school."

On top of that, a Danish exchange student also visiting the Lansing area this year is attending my brother's high school. He just happens to be a diver who has won a few medals himself.

It looks like Eastern High School should be able to hold onto its league champion swim title this year since no one can draw from international talent, mother said.

I agreed, but one thing was bugging me. "Is the Danish exchange student staying with you, too," I asked. "Not yet," Mom replied. "Swim on."

They are nowadays. Did you see Joan of Arc carrying a Gospel to war? Did Pochontas live around a pouch to match her moccasins? And I don't know where Lady Godiva carried her credit cards, but it wasn't in a handbag. I would have noticed.

Believe me, there is nothing that detracts from a woman's aura of mystery and intrigue like wearing a black suede over-the-shoulder bag with a pale blue bathing suit.

I think it's time we women stopped carrying supplies for the entire family. If children don't have room to carry their own toys, if men don't have pockets in their pants, tough.

Things are clearly out of control. I didn't mind rummaging through my bag for the ring at the wedding ceremony. I didn't raise my voice when I went to surgery with a tote bag over my chest. But the other day, I realized things had gone too far. My husband said, "These Life Savers are stuck together. Where do you have them?" "When I went to the sauna..." "You didn't?"

Meet Charlevoix ...Mike Hamlin

Mike Hamlin is one of Charlevoix's older natives. This week he tells the Courier a few things he remembers from years gone by.

COURIER: Were you born right in Charlevoix?

HAMLIN: Yes, I was born on Antrim Street in 1893.

COURIER: Did you go to Charlevoix High School?

HAMLIN: Yes, I went through the 11th grade but I never graduated. I was something like three and a half credits short.

COURIER: What did you do for a living after you grew up?

HAMLIN: I ran a grocery store. But I sold it in 1928 and moved to Elkhardt, Indiana and bought another store there. Then, after 17 years I came back to Charlevoix.

COURIER: Where was your store here and what did you call it?

HAMLIN: It was about where the Sears store is now. The old buildings was torn down. I called it "Mike's Grocery."

COURIER: Why did you move to Elkhardt?

HAMLIN: Because Charlevoix was only a summer resort in those days. There was very little business in the winter and you had to give everybody credit until the next summer.

COURIER: What did you do when you returned to Charlevoix?

HAMLIN: Opened a barbecue place on Pine Point. It was the first one in the area. We used to advertise in the Courier, "Swim, Eat and Dance."

COURIER: What has been the biggest change in Charlevoix through the years?

HAMLIN: The factories coming in. We used to have to make our money in the summer. The only winter work was putting up ice and ice fishing on Round Lake.

COURIER: When you had your store - how did it differ from grocery stores today?

HAMLIN: The biggest difference was that we sold almost everything in bulk - sugar, tea, crackers, cookies, pickles, and lots of other things. Speaking of pickles, I remember a store. Allie Moore, a champion roller skater, was over an Fisherman's Island making fish corks from cedar when a barrel drifted ashore. It was labeled "Old Crow Whiskey." He dug a hole and buried it, then worried about it being stolen and went back and buried it in another hole. In the spring, he took a boat out and got the barrel, which he packed under the bridge on the channel. He made arrangements for some bootleggers to buy it but decided maybe he had better test it first. So he bored a hole and found the barrel was full of old pickles, which I bought. There was talk that maybe there was a smaller barrel inside and that the pickles were just a cover-up, but that wasn't so.

COURIER: What else about the old days in Charlevoix?

HAMLIN: The year I was commander of the KP lodge the bank said if we cleaned up the second floor we could use it for meetings. Well, we worked hard all fall fixing it up and finally moved our belongings and regalia in. We had our first meeting and that night the bank burned down. We had only one meeting. That was in 1923 or 1924.

COURIER: Tell us about your family.

HAMLIN: I was married to Cleo Ulrich and we had two daughters and a son. Naomi Plunk and Janice Stamp both live in Elkhardt and Alcedo lives in Portage. After Cleo died I married Ellen Koseala who had come to Charlevoix to be superintendent of nurses at the old hospital. Ellen and I have one daughter, Virginia Cummings who lives in Norwood. I also have eight grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

COURIER: How do you spend your time now?

HAMLIN: I used to do a lot of work at the Episcopal Church. I'm the oldest member there. Now Ellen is the one who does the church work. I take care of the garden and yard, paint, and do other things around the house.

Charlevoix couple exchanges vows

Tosca Carmen Haley became the bride of James Leroy Habel Saturday morning, October 22, at the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene. Both bride and bridegroom are residents of Charlevoix.

The bride's mother is Mrs. Caciile J. Haley of Bellevue, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Habel, Sr. of Charlevoix.

The Reverend Earnest Knight performed the double-ring ceremony before 75 guests.

For her wedding, the bride chose a high-collared ivory gown fashioned with lace and a veil that tiered down to below her waist. Her bouquet consisted of 12 miniature yellow roses with baby's breath and English ivy. She was given in marriage by Oana Honeysett of Charlevoix.

The bride was escorted by Anne Fielder of Charlevoix, who played "A Time for Us" from Love Story and "The Theme from the Godfather."

Janice Carrel of Battle Creek served as maid of honor. She wore a rose-colored gown and carried a long-stemmed yellow rose. Billie Jean Habel of Charlevoix, wearing a white printed dress with yellow roses, was flower girl, and William E. Habel, III, was ring bearer. Dean Michael Madsen of Traverse City served as best man, and Alan Habel and William F. Habel, II, were ushers.

Mrs. Haley chose a long brown print sleeveless gown for her daughter's wedding. Mrs. Habel wore a long blue gown trimmed with lace. Following the wedding ceremony, a reception was held in advance, given by the bride and bridegroom. Mrs. Bertha Potter served as hostess and Brenda Honeysett cut the wedding cake.

The newlyweds are at home in Charlevoix, where the groom is employed at the Willow Corporation and the bride is admitting and outpatient clerk at the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Paul Osterberg marries Paula Merritt

Paula Lynn Merritt and Paul Osterberg were married October 22 in St. Mary's Catholic Church by Father R. Dale Mazoon.

The double-ring afternoon ceremony was performed before an altar decorated with fall flowers.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Vining of Hollywood, Florida, was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Osterberg of Charlevoix.

The bride's gown was fashioned of Venise Lace, with a scooped neckline, sheer sleeves, and a full train. She wore a matching fingertip veil and carried a cascade of yellow roses and white mums.

Music for the ceremony was provided by organist Marina LaBlanc, who played a traditional wedding march and recessional, as well as "Never My Love."

Lynn Marie Feeh of Lansing served the bride as maid of honor, and Carole Osterberg and Debbie Jones were bridesmaids. They wore identical gowns of three-tier yellow chiffon with floral prints and picture hats with yellow ribbons. They carried bouquets of daisies and mums in fall colors.

Mark Merritt served the bridegroom as best man, John and Brian Osterberg were groomsmen, and Jeff Lachman and Randy Goss were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given at the Charlevoix Yacht Club by the bride's parents. The groom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner the evening before the wedding at the Weatherhome Inn.

Following a short stay at Shanty Creek, the newlyweds are at home in Charlevoix.

Out-of-town guests attended the wedding from Iron Mountain, Marquette, Detroit, Florida, and Ohio.

Charlevoix women's club plans 'Quilt Designing' meeting

"Quilt Designing" will be the subject of the next meeting of the Charlevoix Women's Club, to be held November 15 at 8 p.m. in the party room of LaCroft Condominium.

Mrs. Edward (Anne) Thurston of Boyne City will demonstrate and show samples of her American Patchwork Quilting which she markets in this country and abroad.

Mrs. Thurston is a graduate of Fresno State College in Fine Arts and Education. She also studied at Ohio State University, the Museum of Art in Toledo, and North Central Michigan College. She has taught at the college, high school, and elementary school level and does commercial art and consulting.

Members are asked to bring any of their own modern or antique quilts to add to the display.

"Life members of the Women's Club will be honored at this meeting. Anyone needing transportation should contact a member of the Executive Committee.

Hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. William Brady and Mrs. Harry R. Custer.

Silver Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John Klooster celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at an open house held Saturday at Fellowship Hall of the Com-

Charlevoix romps over Boyne City at Kipke Field

By BILL MERCER
Charlevoix's Red Rayder football team moved a step closer to a 1977 Michigan High School playoff berth, as they demolished cross-country rival Boyne City, 34-6, before a homefield crowd last Friday night. This victory, coupled with number one ranked Negaunee's loss to Norway, should boost the Rayders both in the playoff picture and the state rankings.

The contest was really much closer than the score might indicate, as Charlevoix built a decisive 28-0 first quarter lead and then appeared to become extremely lousy. The usual "crunch of pads and enthusiasm for victory seemed to leave the players after they had gained such a large advantage over hapless Boyne City.

Two turnovers and an exciting 42 yard run by Greg Krueger accounted for the first three Charlevoix scores. Punt receiver Neil Dziedzic closed out the initial quarter of play by crossing the goal line with 24 seconds on the clock following another brilliant punt return. This is Dziedzic's third punt return to the end zone and credit must be given to the blocking of Erik Lundteigen, Bruce Avery, Jerry Sladek and the other members of the punt return team. Charlevoix scored following the first kickoff of the game. Quarterback Jim Alger guided the team to the Ramblers 42 yard line when Krueger broke loose for his touchdown run. Guy Carter's point after kick was good, giving the Rayders a 7-0 lead barely 3 minutes into the ball game.

Four minutes later Pat Klooster grabbed a Boyne City pass and returned the interception 78 yards for Charlevoix's second score. Again Carter connected, making the score 14-0.

On the series of downs following the kickoff, Lundteigen gathered in a Rambler fumble on the Boyne City 23 yard line. Four plays later, Krueger scored his second touchdown of the evening from 7 yards out. Carter converting his twelfth point after kick in a row and the Rayder's lead climbed to 21-0. This set the stage for Dziedzic's punt return. Boyne City was forced to kick after Lundteigen sacked the Ramblers quarterback deep in the backfield.

With the comfortable lead tucked under their belts, the Rayder's began playing like grandpas after Sunday driver. They fell asleep. The Ramblers were unable to stage a comeback mainly through the play of Klooster, Tom Jones, Kerry Speer, Jim Elzinga and Barry Potter as these players led the defensive unit in stopping the numerous attempts by the visitors. Boyne City had a full 14 more offensive plays than did Charlevoix.

Neither team scored in the second quarter, as the two squads both played give-away football. Boyne City drove to the Charlevoix 31 yard line before giving the ball over and the Rayders countered by moving to the visitors 15 yard line before they gave it up. Interceptions by Boyne's Pat Anzell and Charlevoix's Elzinga ended two additional scoring drives.

The third and fourth quarters looked like repeats of the second stanza. Charlevoix gave up a fumble shortly after the kickoff and Boyne City converted it into their only score of the evening. The damage was done when Rambler quarterback Tom Jodway hit teammate Tom Dressel in the end zone for the touchdown.

Charlevoix countered that score early in the final period, when Alger found Elzinga at the two yard line. Good effort by the Rayder back carried him into the endzone. Carter's point after kick was wide, stopping his conversion kick sting at thirteen in a row.

Along the way, Potter picked up a Rambler fumble to stop one drive after senior defensive end for left nailed the visitors quarterback for a loss.

The game ended with Boyne City in possession, desperately trying to stage a comeback. The final score Charlevoix 31, Ramblers 6.

An important side note to this game was the 134 yards gained by Krueger. This offensive output moved the senior back to 1102 total yards gained this season. He accomplished the magic 1000 yard mark on 156 carry's, an average of 6.4 yards per carry. The most recent Charlevoix athlete to match this mark was Randy Williams (1040 yards) in 1975. This Friday Charlevoix travels to Petoskey for the final game of the regular 1977 season. A victory against the Northmen would give Charlevoix an undefeated season and undisputed possession of the Michigan-Illion Shores league trophy. Petoskey is sure to be high for this game, hoping to play the spoiler role on their home field.

E. J. team takes soccer

The East Jordan soccer team, sponsored by the Northwestern State Bank, won the first annual "Super Soccer Weekend" tournament by defeating Ski and Shore 2 to 1. Nine teams participated in the tournament, attesting to the fact that soccer is becoming more and more popular in Northwestern Michigan.

Before meeting Ski and Shore in the finals, East Jordan defeated the Circus Shop and Harbor Springs. On the way to the finals, Ski and Shore defeated Alanson and North Central Christian Academy. Other teams in the tournament were Boyne Falls, Boyne City, and Leutheuser's. Leading scorers were Ivan Castle of East Jordan, five goals; Scott Kelly of Ski and Shore, four goals; Matt Koontz of East Jordan, three goals; and Scott McCauley of North Central Christian Academy and Ken Johnson of Harbor Springs, two goals each.

Girls split

The Charlevoix girls basketball team split this week, winning by a score of 48-41 over Grayling and losing to Boyne City 61-52.

In their meeting with Grayling, the girls got off to a slow start, trailing 16-7 at the quarter but went ahead 26-24 at halftime and held the lead 34 to 28 going into the final period.

In this meeting, Sherrie Selassen paced the team with 17 points with Laurie Gibbs adding 10 points. Sherrie Reed had 13 for Grayling.

The Charlevoix JV squad came through with a 37-21 win over the visiting JV's. On Thursday, the visiting Boyne City five edged to a 14-13 first period lead but dumped in 21 points in the

Developers reactions mixed to lake association stand

The reaction of developers to the Wallou Lake Association stand on the use of water front property has been a mixed bag so far.

Lake association executive director Warren Parker said that developers have not approached the association with comments since it ran newspaper advertisements in all area papers stating its opposition to funnel or corridor development.

The lake association defines funnel development as a situation where lake front property is purchased not to build a cottage on, but to help sell large numbers of adjacent lots or condominiums which are not on the lake shore. The group feels this creates pressures on the lake far greater than the pressures created by single family lake front cottages.

While no developers have approached the lake association, those contacted by the Charlevoix Courier had many things to say about the association's action.

Dick George of Ski and Shore, Inc., said the lake association's stand is just another set of regulations that will discourage developers from coming into the area.

"You wouldn't believe the number of agencies that you have to go through in order to get approval to start a development," George pointed out. "You have to go through the township board or city council, planning commission, health department, road commission and so on."

"The developer today recognizes he has to have a better mousetrap in order to attract buyers. But if you throttle him with all these regulations and reviews, there's no sense in him designing the development. It takes all of the creativity and imagination out of it."

George stressed that development by itself is not bad.

"Developers are not up here to screw the people," he said. "They just want to do business. The fact that they are developing lake front property doesn't mean they are bad."

The developer said he didn't feel funnel development was a bad concept. He pointed out that there are several public access points on the lakes in the area and those are really funnel developments, too, for people living near them.

Joe Zullo, a developer who was involved in a suit with the Three Lakes Association over his development Paradise Estates on Torch Lake, said he couldn't quarrel with the ideas of lake associations who are trying to preserve the integrity and water quality of the lakes.

"I think it is much better for the lake association to make it known that they oppose certain types of development or that they would like to see certain things done in developments than for them to wait until the developer has gotten all the approvals he needs and then take him to court," Zullo said.

"It's a little difficult for the developer to work with the lake association if he doesn't know what they are thinking," but Zullo feels that the regulation for developers should come from governmental agencies, not private lake associations.

Bill Mercer, real estate salesman and former county planner, applauded the lake association on its stand, but he felt they should go one step further.

"I think the intent is good, but the approach is wrong," Mercer said. "They should also be gathering up money for tests on the lake to determine how much pressure and new development it can stand."

Mercer said a total indepth study would give the lake association some backing for its stand and some credibility among developers.

School Board to set priorities

By FRANK MARTIN

Charlevoix School officials and members of the board of education are scheduled to meet Monday with Manson Jackson and Kane representatives to set priorities for the renovation program at the Charlevoix Middle School.

Supt. Gordon W. VanWieren advised the board members, at the regular meeting Monday night, that the architects would be here on that date to discuss the plumbing, electrical and heating projects that will be included in this year's plans for the program.

Efforts are being made to get the wheels rolling so the board can advertise for bids for work to begin by May 1. This is a part of the program at the middle school being financed by a 1.0 mill tax levy for five years.

The board is also scheduled to hear a report on an independent engineering survey made by a Traverse City firm this week, Sept. VanWieren said.

Numerous reports were heard at Monday's meeting. Vane Smith, high school principal, reported that doors for the high school had been ordered but could not be delivered until January.

Betty Potter of the elementary school reported on the Stranding program in use in the third, fourth and fifth grade. She exhibited the "Tippers" and number

Rayder Victory

The Charlevoix Rayder varsity football team came through in a tight spot to claim the third Michigan Huron Shores Conference title of the year Friday night as they downed Petoskey 20-19.

The standings look like this:

School	Wins	Losses
CHARLEVOIX	7	0
Gaylord	5	2
Petoskey	4	3
Chicokeyan	4	3
St. Ignace	4	3
Boysie City	3	4
Togers City	1	6
Grayling	0	7

The cross country and golf teams also captured conference titles this fall.

Put up toys at K-5 school Parents gather for 'playground raising'

It was something like the barn raisings of the old days.

All the ingredients were there. Neighbors from throughout the community gathered together bringing their energy and enthusiasm and set about getting the project done.

Only in this case the project was erecting new playground equipment at the Charlevoix Elementary School instead of a barn on a neighbor's farm. And the neighbors were parents and teachers of elementary school students.

The group, clad in work clothes and toting their own socket wrenches, crescent wrenches and bracing materials, assembled bright and early Saturday morning and began putting together eight different pieces of equipment.

The playground equipment, which included a three-piece unit consisting of a slide, ladder and house, a log house for climbing, hand rings, two buck abseils, a type of teeter-totter; and a circular swing set, were purchased with money raised by the one mill recently approved by the school district voters for operational funds.

The eight pieces cost a total of $4,486 and were badly needed at the school.

"The new equipment will help us, but we really need even more for the number of children we have at the school," Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren explained.

In addition to the parents and teachers who gathered to help, Wain Electric donated the use of portable generators and Charlevoix Redi-Mix donated time and labor for the pouring of cement to hold the toys in place. Charlevoix Redi-Mix also donated the cement for the new basketball courts at the elementary school.

The "playground raising" was one of the first projects organized by the newly formed Parents Council, which is designed to help the school out in whatever way it can. Patty Muma organized the volunteers.

Others who worked during the day included: Donald Volsin, Don Norman, Austin Rexier, Melvyn Thayer, John Houtling, Stan Martin, Chuck Wright, John Popp, David Phillips, Jan McKay, Marilyn Aull, Henry Wagner, Maureen LaBlance, Robert Hill, Dwight Detrac, Sue Dixon, John Dixon, Jerry Muma, Barbara Fortin, Roy Fortin, Bill Roloff and Ivan Whitthoff.

Anyone who is interested in participating in future projects or in joining the Parents Council should contact the elementary school office for more information.

BARB STEELE wields a mean wrench as she volunteered her help to put together new playground equipment at the Charlevoix Elementary School last Saturday. The project was one of the first organized by the new Parents Council at the school.

Rezoning Hiller property can add to beauty, economy of community

An important zoning decision is currently before the Charlevoix Common Council. It is a decision that may affect the future of the entire central business district of Charlevoix and the future of Round Lake.

Ward Walstrom, a Harbor Springs marina operator, has asked the common council to rezone the Charlevoix Lumber Company property on Round Lake and Michigan Avenue from Commercial-1 to Marina Industrial.

In his proposed plans for the development of the Round Lake frontage, Walstrom indicated he will keep all of the buildings presently on the site and will construct three additional buildings. The project will also involve the construction of five piers on Round Lake ranging in length from 100 feet near the east property line to 40 feet near the Pine River channel entrance.

The docks would provide 10 wells or space for 10 large boats or 20 small boats to dock. However, most of the docking will be in special storage buildings on the property.

The smaller boats will be removed from the water when they are not in use and stored in the buildings on the property. Many marinas in larger waterfront communities are providing this type of service and the Walstroms see it as the wave of the future and as an answer to decreasing water front property for marina use in the Northern Michigan area.

The question that faces common council members and city residents with Walstrom's rezoning request is: What is a good and proper use for the lake front property on Round Lake or on any lake front property in the city?

Common council and city residents should evaluate whether or not the city needs another marina, or more condominiums or more hotels or motels and what type of pressures these developments would place on Round Lake.

A study of these elements will reveal many reasons for rezoning the property. Charlevoix has long been known for its superb natural protected harbor and for the quaint French fishing village image that the central business district projects.

Summer after summer landlubber tourists return to the community to visit the shops and to take a walking tour of the boats docked along Round Lake. Increased docking on the lake will only add to the charm of the city and extend the docking area.

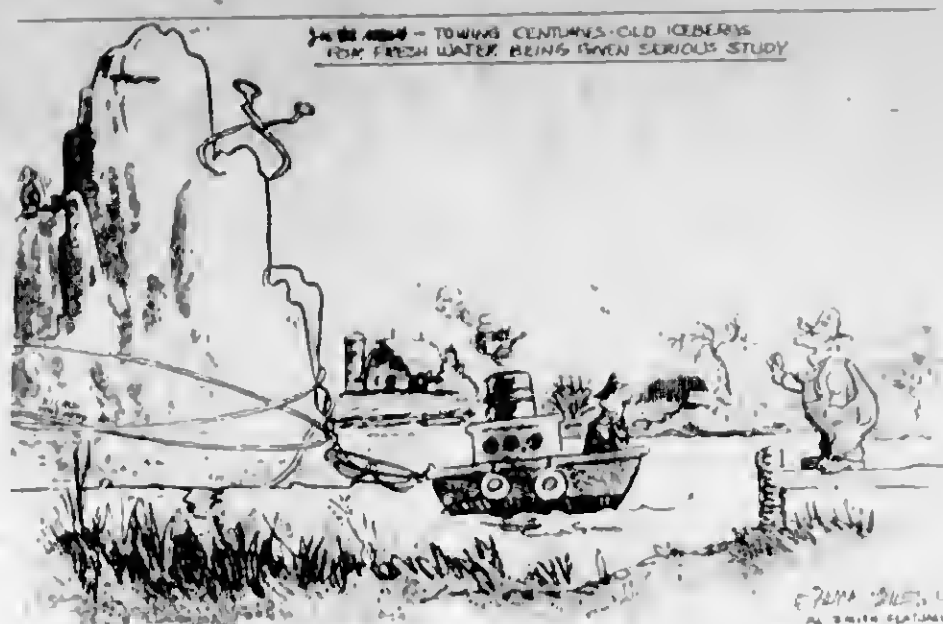

And even though the Walstroms' proposal will only provide 10 additional wells for docking space, the proposed dock storage area will relieve the pressure caused by the smaller boats on the municipal docks and other private marinas on Round Lake and allow more space for larger vessels.

Also, the addition of another marina to Round Lake could open the lake front area to the development of a series of marine stores, charter boat areas and other services that are connected with the harbor and water front. With careful planning by city officials and current property owners of Round Lake frontage, the area could be artfully designed as a tourist attraction and a sales area.

Condominiums and motels or hotels would not have the same attraction for tourists that a planned development of the water front would have. And, the water front has the added advantage of attracting both boaters and nonboaters while the other types of developments that could go on Round Lake would most likely attract only one group.

Many other parcels of land in the city and the surrounding area that are not quite as unique as the Round Lake frontage would also be suitable for development of condominiums and motels or hotels, whereas only Round Lake could house the marina operation proposed by the Walstroms.

A new marina would be a nice addition to Round Lake and to the city.

I suffered a little cultural shock last week when I took my vacation in New York City.

It was the classic story of the country bumpkin visiting the Big Apple. I think I spent most of my time trying to scrape my chin off the sidewalk because everything I saw just amazed me and caused my mouth to fall open with surprise. You can really get isolated up here in God's country.

And it isn't that I've never been to NYC before, this trip was my third visit to the city, but I was still amazed with what I found. I recovered quickly, however, and by the end of the trip I felt quite at home there.

In fact, one woman, obviously an outsider, even asked me for directions to the nearest postoffice. Boy, was I pleased.

Actually, it really doesn't take more than a day to get acclimated to big city life. But those first few hours are real zingers.

My New York adventure started when I stepped off the plane at LaGuardia Airport and onto a Carey bus for a ride downtown (or Midtown as the New Yorkers call it) to catch a cab to my friend's apartment. In the middle of a traffic jam, the bus driver, complete with the Bronx accent that everyone identifies with New York, got up and warned us about fake taxi drivers.

"Those people milling around the offering to help you aren't taxi drivers," the bus driver explained carefully. "Our drivers are too lazy to get out of their cars."

Following that announcement, I warily approached a cab and proceeded to my friend's apartment. I took the elevator 18 floors to her flat, deposited my suitcase and went out for lunch.

As I stood in the elevator lobby with another resident of the building, I began chuckling to myself about the elevator. The young man quickly explained that this apartment had one of the fastest elevators in the city and several of them.

I explained that I wasn't being impatient, but that it had just occurred to me that I came from a town that didn't even have an elevator. He rolled his eyes in disbelief.

Out on the street, I began looking in one of the hodge pods I had seen in the street corners from the bus window. I thought it would be great to have a first lunch in New York at something that was so typical of New York. I searched and searched but couldn't find any of the carts that had seemed so abundant earlier.

Finally I began looking at restaurants and settled for the Burger King for my first New York meal. Well, I thought to myself, New York isn't so bad, it's just like home.

The death of Guy Lombardo Sunday in Houston was reminding to music lovers everywhere because it means the era of singable, danceable music is just about over.

Rock 'n' roll has stormed the rumparts and has conquered most of the civilized world. But here and there stands a staunch pocket of resistance, fighting the tide with melodious choruses of "Up the Lazy River" and "Moulin Rouge."

Such a man as Guy Lombardo, who unashamedly admitted that his Royal Canadians played "the sweetest music this side of heaven."

Guy, in fact, was a little too sweet for some of us, with muted trumpets and trombones playing stellar roles in every competition. But as his compeers dropped away one by one, Guy began to sound better and better.

Finally he and Lawrence Welk stood alone against a rag-tag army of Beatles and Led Zeppelins. Now Welk, whose music also has improved as the number of traditionalists has decreased, is all we have between us and the unholy nervous clatter that tries to pass itself off as music today.

When Welk goes, we might as well fold up our tents and go with him, because there will be little left to live for. And I'm not even a Lawrence Welk fan.

Sometimes I think — and this is as paranoid as all get out — that there has been a gigantic conspiracy abroad in the land for 25 years to deprive me of the kind of music I like. I can see the disc jockeys, radio station owners, record moguls and performers all putting their heads together and agreeing only to record and play music designed to drive me straight up the wall.

Oh, they still play "straight" music, but they do it when they know I'm not listening. Every once in a while, for no reason at all, I will start humming the "Three O'Clock in the Morning" to myself. I figure a radio station somewhere — maybe in far-off Gaylord — is playing it and I am picking it up on my fillings. Listen! Now they're playing "Is It True What They Say About Dixie?" Would you care to dance?

I tell you it's sick, sick, sick, but how else are the music lovers of yesterday to cope with the cacophony that masquerades as "music" today? Everytime I turn on the radio or listen to a juke box I feel as though I have suddenly been transported to another planet in a different universe.

Of course, we are extremely fortunate that the music of the past is still being played. I am not one of the strong souls of today's rock 'n' roll singers. If it were, the parents of America would rise up en masse and turn off radios. Let me explain.

A few years ago, I began to hear what seemed to be the same song played several different times. I wasn't quite sure at first, because they all sound pretty much alike. Then I began to catch a word here and a phrase there and the groaning and heavy breathing of the artist. When I put them all together, they did not spell "M-O-T-H-E-R." If I hadn't been alone in the car I would have crawled under the dashboard.

But, as I said, dirty lyrics are really no problem, because the music is generally so loud and poorly performed that the message of the song — if there is one — is lost.

Thanks to rock 'n' roll, I am going to miss Guy Lombardo more than I ever thought possible. He was among the last of the best.

Teacher Feature

...Pete Spieles

By PEG OHLE

Pete Spieles teaches General Biology and Advanced Biology in the Charlevoix High School. He is also Cross Country coach.

This week the Courier talks with Pete Spieles about his teaching career, his hobbies and sports activities.

"General Biology gives kids a foundation in biological sciences," Spieles says. "We start with inorganic substances such as carbon, hydrogen, and nitrogen, and go on to organic substances and plants through photosynthesis to cell processes and build to viruses and bacteria, through botany (the plant world) and biology (the animal world)."

"We study all systems of the human body, including reproduction during the embryonic stage. And what do students get out of it? They get an awareness of the environment and their place in it," Spieles explains.

The Advanced Biology course is geared to students going into one of the biological sciences such as wild life management or something in the medical field — any pursuit dealing with life. It is mostly human physiology — functions of the system.

"The first semester we do a unit in field botany (plant identification) in which we cover 80 to 100 local plants. We also do a unit in water quality," Spieles says.

The teacher tries to make Advanced Biology a lab type class, but the school is badly in need of a biology lab, he points out. "The room is not really set up for a lab-oriented teaching program," he says.

Following the units on field botany and water quality, there is one on zoology and two on human biology.

Spieles teaches five classes which average 26 students, about half boys and half girls.

Charlevoix High School requires one science course for graduation. Choices, besides Biology, are Physics, Chemistry, Conservation and Natural Resources and Mini Science (for freshmen).

Biology seems to be a favorite subject for 10th graders, since 120 of the 150 approximately 150 10th graders are taking the course.

He later earned a Master's degree in Elementary Education at Northern Michigan University and is presently working on a Master's degree in Biology at Central Michigan University.

He came to Charlevoix ten years ago, starting at the Middle School, where he taught Science to fifth and sixth graders. He took a year out while in college to teach nine children in a one room school on Bois Blanc Island.

After graduation, he taught Science for a year in a Junior High School in Dundee, and also coached football, basketball, and baseball. His next job was in a K-8 school in Getzville in the Upper Peninsula, where he was principal and teacher.

Following this assignment, Spieles received his Master's degree and came to Charlevoix.

Spieles and his wife, Alessandra, live in Charlevoix Township with their three children, Angela is a high school freshman and twins John and Curtis are in the seventh grade.

Summers bring a variety of activities to Spieles. For the last two years he has run the Native American camp at Wilderness State Park, where the campers learn about their heritage and culture. For several summers he has worked on painting the Mackinac Bridge, a job that follows naturally since he worked on its construction for two years after he finished high school.

Sports activities for Spieles include scuba diving, softball, hunting, cross country skiing, and running.

He has no wish for Charlevoix High School boys' "I would like to see Charlevoix have a baseball team. Kids coming out for Little League are all through playing. A high school team could pick them up and keep them going."

Spieles has had a varied teaching career. He grew up in St. Ignace, graduated from high school there, then attended Michigan State University, where he earned a Bachelor's degree in Physical Education with a minor in Science and Health.

Charlevoix Area Hospital

receives two-year accreditation

Charlevoix Area Hospital has received a two-year accreditation from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH).

The hospital, which has been accredited since 1962 by the JCAH received the maximum accreditation award for its performance.

A survey of the hospital this summer, conducted by the JCAH, found that the hospital's performance was excellent in all areas.

The JCAH is an international organization that accredits hospitals and health care organizations. It is a non-profit, non-governmental organization.

Charlevoix Area Hospital's accreditation is a recognition of the hospital's commitment to providing high quality patient care.

area of directing nursing care, the administrator reported. The survey, which took place on a working day, was followed by a critique session where members of the hospital board, the staff and the administration met with the JCAH team.

Krueger called this a "great one-on-one opportunity. They pointed out areas needing work and offered guidelines and suggestions. It's an educational process," Krueger observed.

When the JCAH team left Charlevoix Area Hospital, they prepared a report to the Joint Commission, which reviewed the report and, in turn, gave the Charlevoix Area Hospital the maximum accreditation, two years.

Charlevoix Area Hospital is one of approximately 4800 general hospitals in the United States which have earned this recognition. There are more than 7150 hospitals in the nation.

The Joint Commission began in 1916 under the auspices of the American College of Surgeons. It was incorporated in 1951 with the report of its present member organizations: The American College of Surgeons, the American Hospital Association and the American Medical Association. JCAH is a Chicago-based, non-governmental, not-for-profit, organization.

Charlevoix Area Hospital's current accreditation is from August 1977 to August 1979, at which time the team will be invited to return to the hospital to renew the accreditation.

Area homemakers, grocers taking phosphate ban in stride

By NANCY JARVIS

The Michigan ban on phosphates in laundry detergents has been in effect for one month now and contrary to popular belief, most manufacturers' claims, most people seem to be taking the ban in stride.

Before the phosphate ban became rule, the Soap and Detergent Association contended that homemakers would be unhappy with the results of their wash in phosphate free detergents. The association claimed the whites would look grey and colors would be dull.

Not true say many of the women contacted. "I don't notice any difference in wash results no matter what I switched to," said Mrs. Ronald Simpson, a former phosphate detergent user.

"It's a lot cleaner," added the mother of two children. Mrs. Janet Carrecki, said she too has been using no phosphate detergent for one year and has no complaints.

"I noticed the no phosphate detergent didn't seem to try to get rid of stains," she said. "It works fine."

even on the children's clothes."

One woman, who preferred to be identified as "a concerned citizen" rather than by name, said she changed her detergent before the ban because she wanted to help the condition of the lakes.

"I studied eutrophication in biology and I think it's everybody's duty to do what it takes to make a difference," she said.

Eutrophication is the accelerated aging of a lake shown by excessive growth of algae and other aquatic plants. This results in taste and odor problems and the formation of surface scum inhibiting both essential and recreational lake uses.

Eventually, the increased algae lowers the oxygen content of the water.

Increasing evidence of this aging has been identified in about 40 percent of Michigan's 2,000 inland lakes as well as Saginaw and Green Bays, Lakes Ontario and Erie and as far north as Lake Superior around Marquette and Munising. Department of Natural Resources studies show.

So, the Natural Resources Commission banned phosphates in detergents through an administrative rule change last August, effective November 1. In an effort to reduce the main cause of stimulating nutrient-rich water, the state automatically set the phosphate free detergents to their stores.

"Everything seems to be running really smooth," said Harold Miller, assistant manager of Glen's in East Jordan. "Most of the new products are on the shelves. There's no ordering hassles for us, the warehouse just substitutes the low phosphate products."

"There were a few people hoarding what products were left though," Miller said.

Dick Edwards, owner of Edwards IGA in Charlevoix said he hasn't received any comments or questions from customers and hasn't been relayed any either.

"There haven't been any comments that I know of," he said. "There's nothing significant that has been mentioned to me."

So the next time you go to buy your favorite detergent, don't be surprised if it's still there. Many manufacturers make a no-phosphate detergent and they often seemed to affect the detergent supplies in area grocery stores and supermarkets.

All said the ban has not been difficult. It hasn't created any unusual problems or generated any customer comment.

Maybe not much was said, but much was done and now Michigan has joined Ohio, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin in a phosphate ban. Though the Soap and Detergent Association said the manufacturing changeover would be difficult, it hasn't seemed to affect the detergent supplies in area grocery stores and supermarkets.

Ballots mailed for chamber vote on new directors

Ballots will go in the mail this week to members of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce members who will elect four directors to the governing board of the chamber. Mrs. Jacquie Merta, executive secretary, has announced.

Nominated to fill the vacancies are Richard Pallas, Dr. Reed Freidinger, William Rodolf, Clement J. Wagner, Jack Uhrick, Steve Ager, Terry Edger and Louis Mettler.

The terms of Don Volson, Elbert Kaiser, Andrew Carey and Terry Edger, who was named to fill an expired term and who is now a candidate for a full term of three years, expire at this time.

Other members of the board of directors are Gene Steele, president William Kitefick, first vice president; Gary Bailey, second vice president; and Ken Winter, treasurer.

Also serving as directors are: Peter Pace, David Phillips, Norman Works and Earl Muma.

Deadline for returning the ballots is Jan. 1, 1978, Mrs. Merta said.

Band members go all out

Special effects spark spirit

By LAURA GLASS

When the Charlevoix Rayder Marching Band started across the field for their post game show last Friday, school pride and a victory spirit shone from every member.

That's what the band runs on—school pride. Its shows, full of special effects and personalized touches, are designed to rouse the crowd's school spirit.

The special effects people include not just band director Gary Stutzman and his assistant David Riley, but many of the band members themselves. The flag corps choreographs their own movements and dances.

"We all put in our ideas to make up the routines, then sometimes Mr. Stutzman or Mr. Riley gives us their suggestions," Jody Hicks, a member of the corps, said.

The flag corps includes: Jody, Terri Bradley, Sherrie Mol, Connie Left, Kim Sehnackenberg, Lynn DeMoore, Debbie Gatten, Sue Miller, Jansen Boal, Peggy Hosmer, Kim Jones and Tammy Helms.

All of these girls attended a camp at Northern Michigan University along with the rifle corps and drum major Steve Landon where they learned new ideas for routines and other drills.

"It was hard work, but I'm glad we went because we learned a lot," Jody said.

The flag practice probably the most of any of the band members. Many times they stay after school to work on routines, they also practice with the band in the mornings before school starts and regularly on Monday nights from 6 to 9 p.m.

"I've really had fun on the flag corps even though sometimes practices are a pain. I feel really confident about what I'm doing, and really proud when I'm out there," Jody said.

It's no wonder they always look so sharp.

Another special effects group is the rifle corps. This group helps give the color guard a precise touch. The rifle girls are, Laurie Celner, Penny Kane, Debbie Potter and Darlene Smailley. The corps is new this year and very impressive. The idea went over so well that next year Stutzman plans to increase it to six rifles.

The corps members also choreograph their own routines.

"We all work together and make up our routines. It's really fun," Penny Kane said.

Since the corps is new this year, the members got to design their own uniforms. They wear white turtlenecks and maroon gauchos. Next year they want to get vests to match.

The girls practice with the band many times after school. "We practice hard because we started the corps this year and we are proud of it," Penny said.

Steven Landon has a hard job, too. Being drum major takes a lot of work. He helps write routines and gives suggestions for the band. He also directs the band during the show and makes up his own routines.

One of the routines Landon wrote was for the flag corps during the "Star Wars" song.

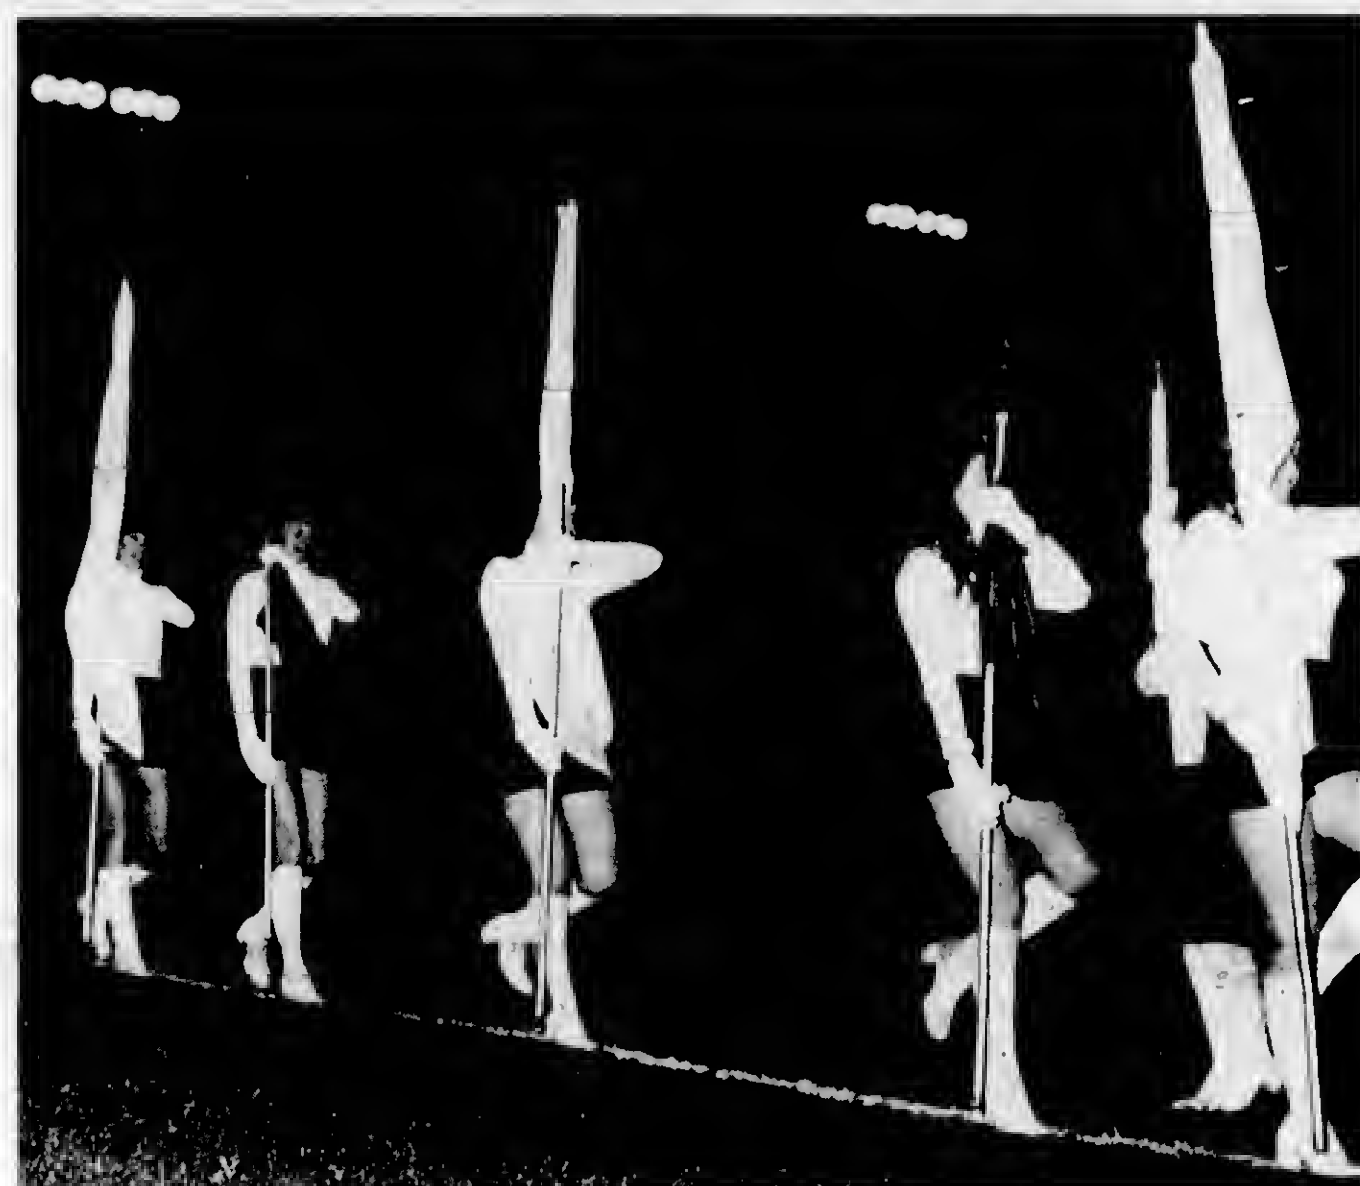

Landon also attended the band camp at Northern Michigan University during the summer where he marched off with first place over 27 other drum majors that attended the camp. But even as good as he is, Landon still gets nervous.

"Usually before we start, I'm a little nervous, but once we're rolling, we all work together and my nervousness is gone."

The golden girl Brenda Boss also attended a summer camp for twirlers in Ohio. The camps were paid for by the students and the Lions, Kiwanis and other service clubs in the community.

GOLDEN GIRL Brenda Boss and Drum Major Steve Landon finish up a routine they have perfected this season with the marching band. The special effects groups add much to the band's presentation.

THE FLAG corps members work hard to get to the point where their routines are effortless. This means many long hours of practice early in the morning and late at night.

CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Hansen presiding. Aldermen present: Erber, Wallace, Morris, Plumm, Wood, and Whitley. Absent: None.

The Minutes of the October 17, 1977 regular meeting and the Minutes of the October 17, 1977 Board of Appeals Meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Mr. Ward of Ward's Boats and Boats appeared before Council to ask if any decision had been made regarding zoning of waterfront property in the City. He was advised that the Zoning Committee is studying the matter and that no firm decision has been made.

Louis McKenzie appeared before Council to request combining lots 14 and 15 of Clifford's Addition to the City of Charlevoix into a single lot to be known as lot 15 of Clifford's Addition. The City Attorney advised Mr. McKenzie that Council has no control over this matter and that a new deed must be drawn up and filed with the Register of Deeds to combine the two lots.

John Campbell of the Shade Tree Commission appeared before Council to outline the Commission's proposed budget for 1977-78. He also reported that the trees planted this year had better than a 97 percent rate of survival.

Moved by Alderman Wallace and supported by Alderman Plumm to approve the site plan as presented by Cross Fisheries of 209 Belvedere Avenue for construction of a new smoke house. Motion was approved by the following yeas and nays: Yeas: Aldermen Wallace, Morris, Plumm, Wood, and Whitley. Nays: Alderman Erber. Absent: None.

Motion was offered by Alderman Morris and supported by Alderman Plumm that the City accept the bid submitted by Geraldine L. Brady of 731 Mercer Blvd., Charlevoix, Michigan in the amount of $4,000 for the property offered for bids and opened this thirty-first day of October, 1977, and that the Mayor and the City Clerk are instructed to execute a warranty deed to the purchaser, this being the only bid submitted by the due date.

Motion was approved by the following yeas and nays: Yeas: Aldermen Erber, Wallace, Morris, Plumm, Wood, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council discussed a tax relief program now available to industries. Hater Industries had inquired about the program and the City Attorney was instructed to research the program.

OCTOBER 31, 1977
8:00 p.m.

The Utilities Committee will meet Thursday, November 3, 1977 to discuss electric rates. The Committee will make their recommendations to the Council and discuss the matter further at the next Committee of the Whole meeting.

Council agreed to purchase an engine for the plow truck at the Airport at a cost of $750, as recommended by the Airport Manager and the City Administrator. Council also agreed to complete specifications for a new snow plow truck.

Council discussed a request for a sewer extension on Sheridan Road to service a new home being built on the Swanson property and the Don Whitley home. Council delayed any action on this matter until they have more information on the proposed project.

The Finance Committee having examined bills totaling $52,856.12 find them correct and recommended the bills be allowed. Moved by Alderman Plumm and supported by Alderman Erber that the bills be allowed and orders drawn for their amounts. Motion was adopted by the following yeas and nays: Yeas: Aldermen Erber, Wallace, Morris, Plumm, Wood, and Whitley. Nays: None. Absent: None.

Council adjourned.

DENNIS WHITLEY (73), Jim Elzinga (11), Dan Wiklanski (77), Greg Krueger (40) and Darrin VanLoos (62) rush off the field at the end of the game shouting.

"We're Number 1!" Charlevoix defeated Petoskey in a squeaker, 20-19.

Rayders are Number 1!

GREG KRUEGER (40) rushes around an end for this carry. Krueger rushed for 1-293 yards during the season and carried for over 200 yards in one game.

STEVE MIELKE runs through an area made by his fellow members of the Charlevoix Rayder Cross Country team as five students prepared to run the game ball to Petoskey for the Charlevoix-Petoskey game Friday night. The cross country team, which captured the conference title, was hoping to raise the spirits of the football team so that they would capture a title, too. From left to right are: Michael Martin, Scott Swanson, Mielke, Jeff Peters and Tim Hiller.

TOM JONES (45) in a new jersey carries the ball toward the goal line. Jones was instrumental in the Rayder's last series which put them ahead of the Northmen 20-19.

DARRIN VANLOO (62) grabs a Petoskey player and pulls him to the ground as teammate, Jim Elzinga (11) comes over to assist.

Whew! Charlevoix 20, Pet. 19

By BILL MERCER

Charlevoix 20, Petoskey 19. What more needs to be said? The game was an exciting display of high school football, with the Rayders showing a lot of heart in their ability to come from behind to win.

From the moment the Hayder Marching Band entered the field to the pre-game fight song serenade of the football team, the fans packed in the Petoskey High School stadium knew that this was an important contest. More than an undisputed conference championship and a possible state playoff were at stake for the two teams, it was a matter of pride, too.

Parents, students, sports boosters and fans from all around the area had been talking about the upcoming game the entire week, and both teams performed well in the hard-fought clash. Size, speed and good coaching gave Charlevoix the victory but Petoskey had little to be ashamed about.

From the beginning of the game, it appeared that perhaps Charlevoix might have been too high for the contest. After receiving the opening kickoff, the Rayders moved for one first down but were forced to punt on the next series.

Throughout the season, Greg Krueger has booted high punts with good distance. This time his kick sailed low and short. Charlevoix's punt team had little time to get down the field to stop the return as a result. Taking advantage of this small error, Petoskey's

Jeff Walker gathered up the 31-yard punt and ran 72 yards along the sidelines in front of the Charlevoix fans for a home team touchdown. With less than four minutes gone in the game, Petoskey had taken a 6-0 lead over the favored Rayders.

Later in the first quarter, Krueger again booted a short punt, this one going out-of-bounds on the Charlevoix 40-yard line. This punt went a bare 24 yards, substantially under his season average of 39 yards.

Petoskey's quarterback Bob Johns put together an eight play drive resulting in an 8-yard touchdown run by Eric Swenson. The defense almost prevented this score when Darrin VanLoos stopped Johns in the backfield on a fourth down try, but a Rayder penalty gave the Northmen the yardage needed for a first down.

Mark Bloch's conversion kick was ruled good and with the first quarter about to end, Charlevoix found themselves trailing, 13-6.

Late in the first half, Charlevoix did put together a sustained drive. After getting good field position on the 50-yard line, quarterback Jim Alger picked up three first downs to move the ball to the Northmen's 11-yard line, before Petoskey's Jeff Vratnina stepped in front of a Charlevoix pass on the 1-yard line. This drive featured an excellent run by Jim Elzinga for 12 yards and a pair of Alger passes for 15 more yards.

not made available to Coach Pete Spieles before he and his team left the meet Saturday by finishing 14th in the Class B division was yet to be run.

Coach Spieles said he was satisfied with the team's performance although he would like to have been better. He added, however,

The team's total points were several times in the last few minutes.

"It was very close at the end and I could have been anyone's ball game."

Coach Felter said Laurie Gibbs played an outstanding game pumping in 21 points and pulling down 18 rebounds for her best game of the season. Sherrie Selissen also played well scoring 12 points.

Charlevoix opened the game with a lead in the third period 17-12. Petoskey came back to take the lead 34-32 in the second period and Charlevoix came back after the half to grab the lead again 38-35 and Petoskey captured the game in the last few minutes 59-56.

Top scorers for Petoskey were Cindy Okerlund, 20; Becky Gengle, 10; and Mauken Titcombe, 10.

Charlevoix also lost to Gaylord earlier in the week 55-29. Gaylord outscored the Rayders in the first period 21-4 and managed to hang onto the lead throughout the game scoring 16 points in the second period, 7 in the third and 11 in the fourth.

Charlevoix scored 10 in the second period, 7 in the third and 8 in the fourth quarter.

Top scorers were Laurie Gibbs with 9 points, and Sherrie Selissen and Chris Johnson with 6 points apiece.

The Rayders will meet Cheboygan at home Thursday.

Cross country team finishes in 15th place at state meet

The Charlevoix Rayder Cross Country team wrapped up its 1977 season Saturday by finishing 14th in the Class B State Meet at Sturgis.

Mark Russell placed 25th among the many entries with a time of 16:22 and Jeff Drenth 30th with a time of 16:26.

The team's total points were several times in the last few minutes.

The Petoskey interception allowed the Northmen to go into the locker room with their 13-0 lead intact. Charlevoix supporters were worried that this time the Rayder's ability to come back might not be enough to catch the high flying Northmen.

If the half time score caused some dismay, what Petoskey did with the second half kickoff created near panic on the Rayder sidelines. With less than two minutes gone in the last 24 minutes of Charlevoix's 1977 football season, Petoskey's Sulo Otto took a handoff from Johns and ran 52 yards for the third Northmen touchdown.

On the all important point after touchdown, Petoskey Coach Barry Aspenleiter decided to try for two points. Throughout the Rayder's fine season, the defense has stood the test and this time they were there again. Led by VanLoos, who played a fine game, the defensive unit stopped the Petoskey conversion attempt short of the goal line. Getting up from the tackle were the familiar names of Tom Jones, Kip Cinnamon, Barry Potter, Krueger, Pat Klooster, Joe Left and Wayne Hoffman.

With the fans calling for revenge and the halting words of Coach Don Carey and assistants Plas Presnel and Roger Gowell ringing in their ears, the Charlevoix players began their march back to victory. Each and every member of the team had to find inside himself something a little extra in order to achieve a victory.

To begin the comeback, Alger went to his passing arm and his pass receiving duo of Elzinga and Neil Dziedzie. Starting on his own 39-yard line the senior quarterback moved 61 yards in seven plays to convert the Rayder's first score. A phenomenal catch by Dziedzie on the Petoskey 20-yard line, followed three plays later by Elzinga stealing a pass from a defender in the endzone gave Charlevoix the touchdown.

A little over 20 minutes of football remained to be played when the Rayders were unable to convert the point after attempt, cutting the deficit to 19-6.

Charlevoix's fans then watched in dismay as the two teams battled back and forth down the field neither able to mount a successful drive. As the clock ticked on, it looked bad for Charlevoix.

However, Alger again found his passing arm and at 11:33 to play in the game, he hit Dziedzie deep and the senior receiver carried 57 yards for the second Charlevoix touchdown.

This time the steady Guy Carter came in to kick the extra point and the gap was narrowed to 19-13.

On the next series, Charlevoix found themselves on their own 19-yard line. A little less than 9 minutes to play, Petoskey was looking for the deep pass. Alger went to his playbook and used everyone in the backfield to move the team down the field.

Wild shouts from the Charlevoix sidelines exhorting the offense to score accompanied the Petoskey calls for a strong defensive effort.

The series looked like this: Krueger lost one yard, Alger passed to Elzinga for 10 yards, Krueger ran two yards for a first down.

Elzinga ran five yards, Jones picked up the first down on a seven yard effort.

Jones for five more yards, Krueger goes four yards. Krueger makes a first down over the right tackle.

Holding penalty against Charlevoix.

Krueger runs 23 yards to Petoskey 29. Jones goes seven yards for the first down.

Alger finds Elzinga on the 11-yard line and he carries to the Petoskey 6-yard line. Krueger goes around off the right side for the score.

Fourteen plays and five first downs later with 4:19 left to be played in the season, the score is tied 19-19. Enter placekicker Carter and his point after foot. As the ball split the uprights and the officials hands went up, signaling the successful conversion, the Charlevoix fans went wild.

Charlevoix's defense then stopped one drive and then a second when Klooster picked off a Petoskey pass deep in Rayder territory. As he returned the interception, the clock ran out giving the Rayders a 20-19 victory.

The win gave Charlevoix undisputed possession of the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference championship, a fine undefeated season (the first since 1959) and a certain place at or near the top of the Class C High School Football polls.

Freshmen lose final game to Petoskey squad 44-19

The Charlevoix Freshmen Football Team closed out its season on the losing side, dropping its last game to Petoskey 44-19.

This brings the squad's season record to 1 and 6. But Coach Chuck Bentley said his team has come a long way since last fall and he predicts they will play very well on the junior varsity squad.

"I feel good about our season," Bentley said. "I don't think our record indicates what kind of team these kids are."

"I think they will surprise a lot of people next year. They will do much better as JV's."

During last week's play Charlevoix scored its first touchdown on a 35-yard pass from quarterback Jeff Drury to Paul Hoffman during the

Swanson, Townhouse, Foam win first games in A league

Swansons, Townhouse and Foam Corps opened up the A League Basketball season with victories last week.

Swansons defeated Kadens in the first game of the league season 70-54. Swanson opened the game with a small lead in both the first and second quarters.

However, Swanson opened up their lead in the second half adding 23 points to the score in the third quarter while Kadens only pumped in 12.

Top scorers for Swanson were: Roger Crain, 16; Bruce Meggison, 15; Dave Swanson, 11; and Kevin Swanson, 11.

For Kadens, Mark Guitler and Tim VanAlstine led the group with 12 points apiece and Jeff Bickford had 10 points.

In the second game of the evening, Townhouse defeated Site Planning 58-52. Townhouse held a narrow lead throughout the game and Site Planning could not put the right combination together to break it.

High scorers for Townhouse were: Dan McKenzie, 19; and Clint Berlage, 13. High scorers for Site Planning were: Mike Bode, 14; Paul Osterberg, 12; and Kragg Lieberman, 10.

Foam Corps defeated Bob's Corps 67-42 during overtime in the final game of the evening.

Foam Corps narrowed the lead to 46-42 in the first period of the second half and tied the game up in the last quarter. The team surged ahead in overtime to score 9 points to Bob's 5.

Main scorers for Foam Corps were: Mike Streeter, 23; Randy Holchbeck, 21; and Gary Novotny, 10. Top scorers for Bob's were: Jim Danbert, 20; Ken Derenzy, 15; and Jack Danbert, 10.

First State, Wojan, Tri-City take lead in B league

Tri-City Asphalt opened B League play last Tuesday with a resounding defeat of Medusa 73-37.

Tri-City opened the first quarter by scoring 12 points to Medusa's 7 points. However, the lead widened in the second quarter as Tri-City added another 17 points to the score while Medusa only hit three baskets.

In the third period Tri-City added another 20 points to the score making it 49-25 and then the team added another 24 points in the fourth quarter to make it 73-37.

High scorers for Tri-City were: Dave Norton, 30; Butch Klooser, 18; Leroy Buchanan, 12; and Mike Crain, 11. Medusa's high scorers were: Paul Parrish, 10; and Tom Morrison, 12.

In the second game of the evening the First State Bank won 82-49. The game was a close one until the final period when First State Bank pumped in 19 points to Alray's 6.

High scorers for First State Bank were: Doug Winnell, 20; Dave Novotny, 12; and Joe Beaudoin, 11. Dave Marlinch lead Alray with 14 points and Vince Left had 12.

In the third game of the evening, County Bank won 52-31. County Bank came back strong in the second half of the game, but the team couldn't pump in quite enough points for the victory.

High scorer for Wojan was Don Ward with 16 points and Stan Martin with 14. Larry Skippergohit hit for 15 points and Larry Potter had 10 for County Bank.

Santek finishes course

A local realtor has completed a specialized course in real estate planning.

Paul Santek, a salesman with William Bradford Scheld Realtors received a Certificate of Completion upon graduation from the course, "The Art of Real Estate Planning, Course 500," recently given in Flint.

Santek studied various methods of handling and meeting real estate clients' problems during the course and discussed professional approaches to dealing with clients.

"I guess that's why I chose to follow this phase of law enforcement. It gives me a chance to carry on the things I've always enjoyed doing," he said in explaining why he decided to apply for a position with the DNR.

To reach the point in his training where he is now he has had a week of orientation at the Michigan State Police Academy; eight weeks of basic police school at Macomb County Community College to earn certification as a police officer and a concentrated course in precision driving.

that the players had come on strong especially during the last three games to play hard and as a team.

FAITH CASTS A FAVORABLE LIGHT ON OUR YOUNG PEOPLE

All too often, we apparently receive only ugly news stories about our "torrible" children and teenagers, which tend to arouse an understandable fear for the future of our nation and the world. However, this is just one more case of bad news making better headlines, and thereby painting a distorted picture of an entire generation. We hear only about the few who commit vandalism in the high school but not about the thousands of law-abiding, hardworking students; perhaps the boy who, unasked, stopped to help you change your tire. Good children and therefore good teenagers are the product of parental training and proper home atmosphere and with the assistance of the Church of your choice, the guidance they receive will help to produce a young generation of whom we can all be truly proud.

WILLIAM REID, an East Jordan resident, receives the Citizens Award from Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater for his quick action in saving an area resident from injury and possible death.

Quick thinking earns East Jordan man award

Quick thinking in a life or death situation won the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department Citizens Award for an East Jordan man recently.

William A. Reid, 21, was recently honored by the sheriff's department for pulling Robert Snyder to safety from a car that was about to catch on fire.

Reid attributed his ability to react quickly in the situation to the fact that he had been in some serious accidents himself and so he was familiar with the situation and knew what to do.

Sheriff Lasater said Snyder had been attempting to pass a car when the car wandered over into the left lane forcing Snyder onto the shoulder of the road. He then lost control of the car and ran into a tree.

Reid, a resident of East Jordan, is employed by East Jordan Plastics.

Reid is the fourth recipient of the new program which began this summer. The Charlevoix sheriff's department has been making weekly awards to people that assist recipients. The awards are being provided by the four banks in the county.

The latest recipient of the award was traveling home Nov. 4 on Rogers Road in South Arm Township when he came upon the on-car accident. It appeared that the car was about to catch on fire, so Reid broke a window in the car and managed to pry Snyder from the car and pull him to safety.

Sheriff increases felony, misdemeanor arrests

The monthly report from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department has revealed some interesting trends in the operation of the sheriff's office.

The number of felony arrests so far for the year has tripled over the number for the same time in 1976 increasing from 14 to 43 arrests.

There were 12 felony arrests during October this year and only two during October 1976.

Misdemeanor arrests have also increased for the year with 103 people arrested so far this year and 93 arrested at this time last year.

Sheriff's deputies made nine misdemeanor arrests last month. Eleven such arrests were made in October 1976.

Sheriff George Lasater credited the additional training and the eagerness of the deputies to solve crimes with the increase in the number of felony arrests by the department.

He added that a good working relationship with the county prosecuting attorney's office and the district court had also helped to encourage sheriff's deputies to work toward felony arrests.

The monthly report also showed an increase in the number of complaints received by the sheriff's office. So far this year the department has received 2,174 complaints or about 2.5 times as many as the 855 complaints that were received last year.

The department received 185 complaints last month and only 84 in October 1976.

Sheriff Lasater said the new substation in Boyne Falls had led to part of the increase in complaints being received by the department because it made the sheriff's department more visible and it made people more aware of the department.

Other statistics compiled for the month and so far this year also show increases. The number of traffic arrests has jumped from 144 at this time last year to 450 so far this year. The number of traffic warnings has jumped from 156 at this time last year to 317 so far this year.

The number of general arrests has also increased from 129 last year at this time to 446 so far this year.

Ski team schedules swap of skis, poles for Sunday

Got some old skis or ski boots that you would like to trade in for larger or newer models? Then the Charlevoix High School ski team has a deal for you.

The ski team will be holding its annual ski swap from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday at the Charlevoix High School Cafeteria. Proceeds from the event will be used to support ski team activities.

"All types of used winter sports equipment will be on sale during the swap," Mike Bonello, ski coach, explained. "This is an excellent way to get larger sized skis and boots for children without having to invest a lot of money and you can sell the old set, too."

Members of the Boyer ski team and coaching staff will be on hand during the swap to help people determine sizes of the downhill and cross country skis, poles and boots and ice skates and football shoes.

In addition to holding the swap, the ski team will show ski movies and serve hot cider to customers.

The high school cafeteria will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and from 9 a.m. to noon Sunday so area residents can bring in equipment for the swap.

People wishing to sell equipment during the swap should have an idea of the price they want to charge when they bring the equipment in, Bonello said.

"We will be charging people $2 to enter equipment in the swap and the ski team will take a 15 percent commission on the sale," the coach said. "This is our major fundraising event of the year."

"We will give the person selling the equipment complimentary certificates for discounts on lift tickets at Nubs Nubs in addition to the money we make on the sale of their equipment."

Who wants you to think they will? And why?

The new charter specifies that "rates and charges of any municipal utility for the furnishing of services shall be no higher than necessary to cover the costs of such utility, including depreciation, capital improvements, and the creating and maintaining of an emergency fund." No more building up of utility department surpluses to be siphoned into the general fund in lieu of taxes. Or using tax money to subsidize utilities, either.

Eliminating such transfers and limiting rates and charges should ease everybody's utility bills, not raise them.

It's been said that the new charter will change government "from a direct citizen input to a strict drive input." What about that?

How could anyone say that? Read the charter. Petitions are minimized. Nominations of Council candidates are made from the floor at the ward conventions, where candidates are expected to air their views and face questions. Anyone failing to win nomination at his ward convention may later qualify by petition—but such use of petition is provided as a means of assuring "direct citizen input" as completely as possible in the election process.

East Jordan man recalls lumbering days

By NANCY JARVIS

"They were proud to be lumberjacks. My dad was exceptionally proud. He was proud he could teach me something. It was a tradition and you were making yourself better all the time. They could do it good and they knew it and they were proud of it."

Laments Solon (Bud) Barnes, Jr. about the bygone days of the lumbering industry here in Michigan.

"The story I tell is a memory about days I now miss and partly of a past I never had a chance to know," the East Jordan resident said.

Though Barnes spent the first sixteen years of his life living in lumber camps throughout the state, he now expresses sadness and loss about not seeing the birth of the industry. But he has his own fond memories as well as colorful tales, passed on from his grandfather to his father and then to him, about the 1880's when lumbering was at its peak.

Barnes, who now lives in East Jordan with his wife, Linda, and three children, was born in Frederic in 1925. His father was 40 when he married, having spent his young years lumbering in Michigan, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Montana and the Dakotas.

"In the old days it was usually just men," Barnes said, remembering what his father had told him. He said the "jacks" lifestyle was not unlike that of army men. They lived in shanties, 80 feet long and 30 feet wide, which were simple wood frame buildings covered with tarpaper. The men slept in bunks that were stacked two beds high.

For heat, there were two or three pot belly stoves. Also supplied were clothes lines where the men would hang their socks.

"They were real smelly all the time," he said, chucking. "And there were cracks in the floor," he continues. "The guys would chew snuff and spit and hit the cracks in the floor."

A typical day for the jacks began at 4 a.m. They would be awakened by the foreman, who would sometimes play tricks on them.

"If it was an exceptionally cold day, he would come in with just his shirt on, with the sleeves rolled up, telling the men what a nice day it was," Barnes said.

The men would then get out a hearty breakfast of sour dough pancakes, fried potatoes, salt pork and good strong coffee. And there was always a dish of sugar cookies, big ones, about one inch thick and five inches across.

"The men had a certain sort that they always sat in and sitting in the wrong place meant trouble. 'And as you ate, you kept quiet, you didn't speak,'" Barnes said.

After breakfast, the men would go out into the woods and cut their strip of trees that had already been marked off. It was usually about 150 feet across, representing 80 to 120 logs.

"They would try to cut 30 to 40 extra logs each day because you had to have the same amount on rainy days too," Barnes said.

Work continued from sunup till sundown and the lunch of beans and biscuits was brought out to the men to save time.

After the days work, the men would call dreys or walk back to camp and change into dry clothes.

Supper was served at a particular time. Says Barnes: "Depending on how the cook was, sometimes he would eat at a certain time so you'd be there or you wouldn't eat."

Dishes consisting of deer meat or deer steak, potatoes, dumplings and sometimes rice with blackstrap molasses were the usual meals.

Harnes, whose mother was a camp cook and father a teamster, said the lumber camps were pretty much limited to the bare essentials. The ones he lived in always had a cook's shanty where the men ate, a blacksmith shop, a harness shed, the bunk house and a barn where the horses were kept. The barn, he said, was always the nicest building because lumberjacks treasured the hard working animals. Indeed, the industry depended on horses to pull dreys piled high with logs.

The camps always had a company store too, where the men could charge woollens, cigarettes, candy and other such things. These stores were owned by the company, which preferred the men buy on credit rather than with cash.

"They liked you to do this (charge) because they liked to have you owe money all the time and keep working; you couldn't quit," Barnes said.

The logging work was done mainly in the winter because it was easier to transport the logs. A unique system was developed where ice covered paths were used to slide the logs to their desired location.

There was a jack in charge of brushing and watering down the path each night.

Barnes said the jacks were often hired on for one season so they moved around a lot. After the season, when the break came, they would all head to the nearest bar, "and have themselves a good old time."

The lumbering days are now over and have been for quite some time. Barnes said he continued to cut logs on the side until he was working for an electric subcontractor.

"It's a great story, the great ones that I tell, and the great stories we could tell if we just remembered everything we heard, if we knew everything that went on. What a book it would make."

Shade tree project important for city

Frills. A lot of people seem to be quite upset these days about taxpayers dollars going to support frills.

Complaints are aired daily in the coffee shops and restaurants around Charlevoix about this program and that program in the schools, city or townships that is unnecessary and unneeded because it's just a darn frill.

How can we afford to pay for these things when we are faced with ever increasing utility costs, ever increasing taxes and ever increasing inflation? the arguers ask. We've got to stop wasting our money on frills.

Unfortunately, anything that pertains to beauty or esthetic improvement is often classified as a frill before the program is thoroughly examined.

One such program that has been wrongly classified as a frill and therefore, unnecessary, is the Shade Tree Program. At a first glance a program to ensure that the city has shade trees does seem a little silly, but upon examination it becomes apparent that trees are important to the community.

As a tourist community, and Charlevoix is fast becoming a year round tourist spot, the city has to be very careful of its appearance in order to maintain its beauty and attractiveness to tourists. The trees within the city are slowly dying off and need to be replaced as they succumb to old age or else the city will soon be left nude.

The trees serve another purpose, too. Along the open sections of the city at the north and south entrances, the trees will serve as windbreakers and will prevent erosion as well as provide an attractive entrance to the community.

And as soaring utility costs make it too expensive to operate air conditioning units, trees will become an important source of shade and protection from summer sun in the community.

Trees are also important factors in maintaining a balance of nature in the city. They provide homes and food for many animals and insects that are necessary for pest control and pollination of plants.

The Shade Tree Program as proposed by the Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission is a well thought out plan spread over 10 years. Each street in the city has been surveyed and plans have been made to make sure that trees will be growing everywhere in the city and providing beauty as well as an important resource.

The Shade Tree Commission has taken steps to purchase trees as inexpensively as possible. Each year plans call to purchase young trees and place them in nurseries until they are big enough to be transplanted to city streets.

The program has been well thought out and while it will provide beauty for our city, that doesn't necessarily mean it is a frill.

Parking lot planning should be coordinated

Winter is here and with it comes a solution to the parking problem in the City of Charlevoix—fewer cars.

But, before we know it, it will be summer and the parking problem will rear its ugly head again. Now is the perfect time to take a look at the city parking situation and take some positive steps toward relieving some of the congestion and the scramble for parking that people complain about during the summer.

It would be a good project for the Parking Authority. A survey should be made of available parking spaces and of the signs directing people to parking lots.

The parking authority could also survey area businesses and churches about their future plans for the construction of parking lots for their own use. Many organizations are currently planning the construction of parking lots. Together the parking authority, the city and the private businesses could work out a comprehensive plan to coordinate efforts for providing parking in the downtown area.

In the past the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation has indicated that it might prohibit parking on Bridge Street. Charlevoix should be prepared for that possibility by providing the same number of parking spaces in other areas.

If a survey of parking needs concludes that there is adequate parking space available in the downtown area, perhaps the parking authority could institute a signing program that would direct shoppers and visitors to the parking lot areas. This would make shopping and visiting Charlevoix much more pleasant.

Now is the time for action.

"WOULD YOU SETTLE FOR SOME BEANS I HAPPEN TO HAVE HERE."

Clockwise
by Bob Clock

It is strange how the habits of a lifetime can be changed in only a few months. Or perhaps weeks, in some cases.

Take coffee, for example. Up until the Great Coffee Sindle last year, I think I was fairly typical of most Americans when it came to coffee consumption. I had a cup or two for breakfast, took a thermos of it to work to see me through the morning and had coffee for lunch and again in the middle of the afternoon. After supper I started drinking coffee in earnest until bedtime.

Then, suddenly, the coffee growers and processors decided they weren't getting enough for their product. True, there had been a frost in South America and some coffee trees were lost. So it was convenient to blame the first price increases on bad weather. Everyone would understand.

And we did. If the bean crop were short, of course prices would go up. We grumbled, but we still bought coffee. But when the money started rolling in, the growers and producers decided they had discovered a vast new source of unearned wealth. With the world hooked on coffee, why not give it a try?

So coffee price increases became a weekly event at the supermarket as growers and producers sat back and rubbed their hands gleefully. The goose of coffee addiction was finally laying golden eggs.

But they were wrong. Coffee, most of us have discovered, is scarcely addictive at all. Oh, it still tastes good. But so does tea, which is enjoying an unprecedented burst of popularity in America.

When I was a youngster, my Anglo-American family drank a great deal of tea and I felt vaguely uncomfortable about it because it seemed almost subversive. After all, wasn't it the Americans who threw British tea into Boston Harbor at the start of the Revolution?

When World War II started and coffee was rationed, it became quite fashionable to drink tea. And after the Battle of Britain, the stigma that had formerly attached itself to tea had disappeared. The coffee boycott is beginning to be felt. Coffee prices are starting to fall. Producers and growers are starting to panic as profits dry up. Unless I'm badly mistaken, the world coffee market will never again be what it was a few short months ago.

WASHINGTON—I sat in the White House and looked Jimmy Carter right in the eye.

He looked away. I wasn't surprised. From the way I was waving my pitching arm over my head, coming from way behind my right ear, the president could tell I wanted to play hardball.

Jimmy Carter's game is softball, usually played with the Whitehouse Press Corps, which pitches underhanded. He knew he wasn't in shape to bat against a hard-throwing columnist from Detroit. So he ignored me.

I spent a day in the White House to take part in something called Regional Columnists Briefing. Thirty columnists from all over the nation were invited to hear wise words spoken by President Carter and several members of his staff. I was the Michigan representative.

You have a right to ask the same surprised question I heard from my family and friends: "Why did the White House pick YOU?"

The implication of the question is as plain as it is nasty. There are hundreds of heavier columnists in Michigan; practically vanished. "If the British drink it, it has to be good."

We drank lots of tea during the war, although one popular pre-war variety—Japanese green—dropped from sight and has never really made a comeback.

But when coffee again became available in quantity, Americans bought it and drank it in quantity. More than any thing else, an abundance of coffee meant the war was over.

However, since the recent upheaval in the coffee market, I am beginning to wonder if the coffee merchants haven't lost a huge share of their customers—this time for good. Those of us who have switched to tea as our main beverage of the day have found it more than just a change-of-pace drink. We are experimenting with different varieties of tea and are learning to appreciate a wide range of subtle and not-so-subtle flavors.

Unlike coffee, tea can taste like everything from stinky, well-aged Scotch whiskey (Lapsang Souchong) to a British herb garden (Earl Grey). We also are learning that different varieties of tea go with different meals. Of course, our "bar-tea" is Orange Pekoe (purchased in Canadian gauge bags). We have also found that Spartan meat has a fine, brisk flavor fresh from the thermos. Furthermore, it is easy to fix when minutes count in the morning.

With the increase in tea consumption, many restaurants have also come to grips with proper tea-serving. Most of the customers are no longer satisfied with a tea bag in a pot of tepid water. The pot has to be heated first with scalding water which is then discarded. The tea itself is made with a second infusion of boiling water. The two infusions make all the difference in the world.

The coffee boycott is beginning to be felt. Coffee prices are starting to fall. Producers and growers are starting to panic as profits dry up. Unless I'm badly mistaken, the world coffee market will never again be what it was a few short months ago.

...Speaking Her Mind

It's hard to believe that football season has really come to an end. I guess time flies when you're having fun.

Last September when I was looking over the schedule for the season, I thought it would be one of the longest nine weeks of my life. I was really a greenhorn that day in August when I walked up to head coach Don Carey and asked for some help in covering the football team and its games.

I have always been a football fan, particularly when Michigan State University football is concerned. But somehow I never really learned any of the terms or plays that are connected with the game.

Oh, I know what a quarterback and a tackle are, but ask me to describe or name a play formation and I'm lost. Coach Carey gave me a rule book, which I studied like a textbook hoping it would prepare me for the games. And in a way it did, but there was no way that any book could have prepared me for what I learned this season.

The first thing I learned was that if you are going to photograph football games you have to have nerves of steel. As I watched the team I learned that no one could be a star or gain 200 yards or catch a pass without good blocking from his teammates.

And I also learned that it takes team work for the football players to come to each game with a winning attitude. The fans, combined with the band and members of other fall sports teams, joined together to help the football team keep their momentum up and their spirits high.

The conference title doesn't belong to the football team alone. It belongs to the entire school. Everyone worked as a team to get it.

It was a good season. Everyone won.

Writing is lonely.

I guess I never realized how much until I found myself saying to my tropical fish yesterday, "Whataya want to eat, Lester, the Panama Canal or Liz Taylor's Avon lady?"

When the fish surfaced and blew a couple of bubbles, I said, "If you're going to talk dirty, I'll call Estelle."

The phone rang twice and Estelle said, "Thanks for calling..." "So, what's happening?" I asked. "At the tone will you please leave your name and phone number and I'll return your call."

"This is a crisis center," I said angrily. "Your crisis is ready." I dialed the number of another friend. "I'm sorry," said the operator, "but that number is no longer in service. If you wish assistance, please remain on the line..."

"Thank you," I said, "but my mother doesn't like to talk to strange recordings."

I got on a bus and went into town. "Hello there," I said to the bus driver. He pointed to the sign that said, "No talking permitted to the bus driver."

When I arrived at the department down in the spot where you were standing.

Nimble feet are important when you try to move out of your picture-taking spot before the players come crashing down. This trick worked for me pretty much all season until one night when I turned around to run toward the fence and I found myself face to face with another player and the filling for the old sandwich play.

Another trick I learned was to take pictures over the heads of the team as they knelt on the sidelines. This provides you with a pretty solid line of protection unless they happen to jump up in excitement catching your chin with their helmets. Or if you happen to get excited yourself about players that appear to be about to crash through your line of protection and you fall over the bench behind you.

No rule book could have prepared me for the lesson I learned about team work during football season, either. As I watched the team I learned that no one could be a star or gain 200 yards or catch a pass without good blocking from his teammates.

Meet Charlevoix

...Reverend Roger Ames

Reverend Roger Ames is the new minister of Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix. The Courier talks with him this week to learn about the man, his church, and some of his ideas about today's Christian religion.

COURIER: Where were you before you came to Charlevoix?

AMES: I came from Evanston, Illinois, where I studied for three years at Seabury-Western Seminary.

Before that, I was director of admissions at The Defiance College in Defiance, Ohio, and before that I worked in sales and marketing for the Aero Corporation, industrial manufacturers.

COURIER: Where did you go to high school and college?

AMES: I went to high school in Bryan, Ohio, where I was born, and did my undergraduate work at Denison University, where I majored in political science.

COURIER: What made you decide to enter the ministry?

AMES: While at Defiance College, the directions of my life changed. I became involved as a layman in interdenominational work in the city—the renewal movement, etc. Then I went through the channels of the Episcopal structure to be sure that was what I wanted to do.

COURIER: Then Charlevoix is your first church?

AMES: No, my first full charge was in the summer between my junior and senior years at the seminary, when I had a mission outside of Akron. It was a great experience, finding a place to meet (in a fire house) and setting up the program. Now they are on the way to having their own church and priest. Another summer I was a chaplain-intern in Alexian Brothers Medical Facility outside of Chicago. That was a great experience, too.

COURIER: Do you have a family?

AMES: Yes, my wife, Grettle, and I have two children. Amanda is 11 and Christopher is 5. We live at 218 Belvedere Avenue.

COURIER: Is yours the only Episcopal Church in Charlevoix County?

AMES: Yes, but we have several members from East Jordan, a few from Boyne City, and some from Ironton, Bay Shore, and Torch Lake.

COURIER: What is your church attendance?

AMES: In the summer it averages 75 to 100 and in the winter, 60 to 75.

COURIER: How old is the church?

AMES: The building was put up some time in the 1880's and the congregation is about 25 years older.

COURIER: Do you have any specific plans for the church?

AMES: It is a mission church, meaning it is not self-supporting, and our goal, within the next three to five years, is to achieve parish status.

COURIER: You have been doing some remodeling at the church, haven't you?

AMES: Yes, when we sold the vickerage in January, we had some free funds so we painted the church, including the red doors, remodeled the sacristy, and put in a new conference room. Before Christmas we will have a new furnace, and next spring we will have new steps with lower rises, and will do some decorating.

COURIER: What about new church programs?

AMES: We have re-convened the church school. We now have church school on Wednesday evenings. The kids seem to enjoy it and we have more time for lessons, crafts, and play. It also allows people who help in the church school to be in church Sunday as families. The 11 o'clock service is family-oriented and we still have the nursery. We have started a Thursday evening seminar called "Life in the Spirit". It is a Bible study program including prayer and praise and oriented to the current spiritual renewal going on in the churches. It is ecumenical in nature and open to the entire community. We are seems to be a growing out-pouring of the higher spirit—such as healing, the laying on of hands. There also seems to be a growing unity in the church, a strong unity at the grass roots level. They are suggesting outside structures and there is a re-emphasis on evangelism and the importance of Bible study. I am very much pleased.

COURIER: What is your own philosophy of religion?

AMES: My own background of personal experience has led me to put emphasis on those things generally designated as spiritual renewal. I believe there is a new era coming in the church, that evangelism is gaining a higher priority, as well as charismatic renewal (the gift of the spirit). There

MESC giving more attention to unemployment recipients

People receiving unemployment insurance benefits are now receiving more attention from the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC).

Through MESC's new program, Eligibility Review Program (ERP) unemployed people whose jobs have disappeared are being helped to explore allied fields in which their experience and qualifications may lead to employment.

Under the ERP, each claimant has a sit-down interview with a MESC interviewer who reviews the claimant's eligibility and helps devise a "work search plan". The plan is based on three factors: experience, work available in the area, and prevailing wage rates.

The interviewer then advises the claimant what types of employers to contact and which types of jobs he or she could reasonably apply for.

If the interviewer finds that the claimant is not actively searching for work or is unavailable for work at prevailing wages, the claimant will not be paid unemployment benefits.

If the claimant has an acceptable reason for not having fulfilled the plan, claimant and interviewer will notify the plan.

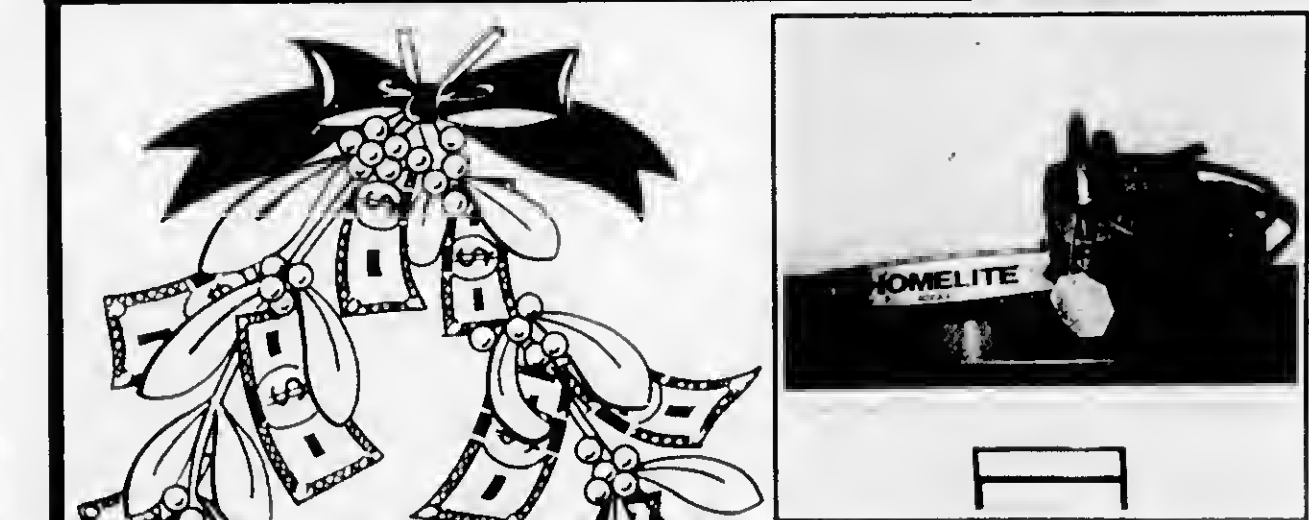

If the claimant has fulfilled the work search plan and is still unemployed, he or she may be referred to other services. For instance, if there is no existing work of the type the claimant seeks, the interviewer may refer him or her to a training program.

Farmer loan deadline extended until Dec. 2

The deadline for applying for farm emergency loans through the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) has been extended to Dec. 2 for farmers in Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan counties.

The extension has been ordered for applications for drought or other emergency loans providing the loans are based on disasters that have occurred on or after July 1, 1976.

Farmers lacking other sources of credit may apply to FmHA for loans to offset losses or to revive farming operations. Emergency loan applications from farmers in Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan counties can be obtained by contacting Duane Field at the area office at 822 Charlevoix Ave. in Petoskey.

This trick worked for me pretty much all season until one night when I turned around to run toward the fence and I found myself face to face with another player and the filling for the old sandwich play.

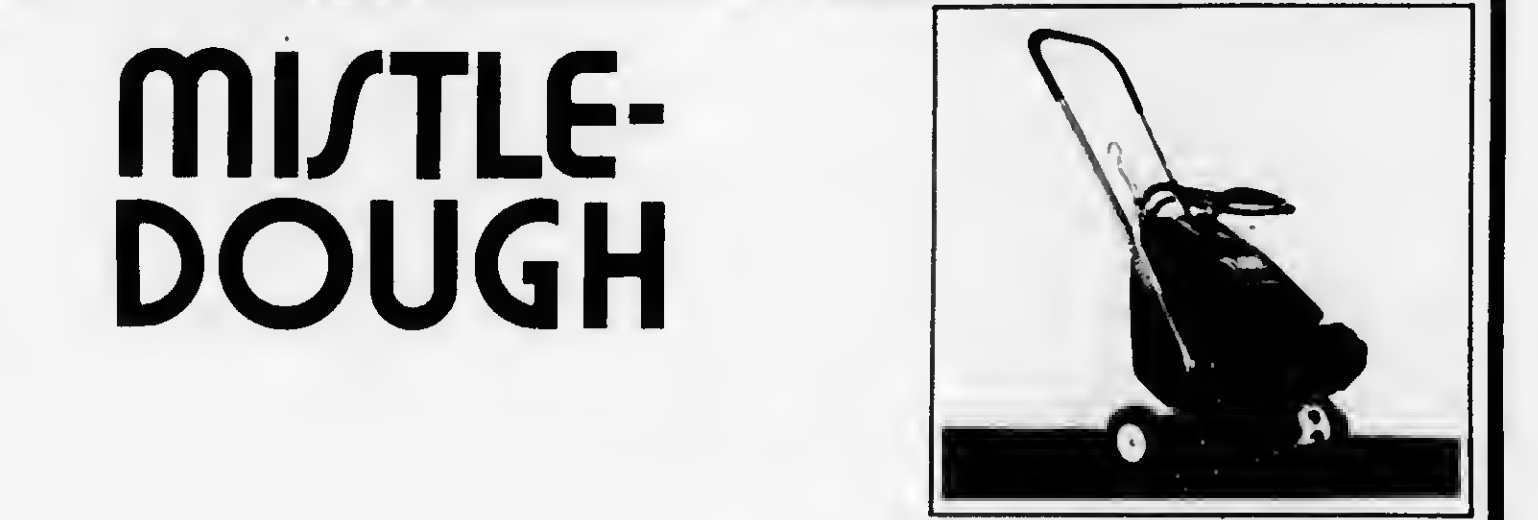

Another trick I learned was to take pictures over the heads of the team as they knelt on the sidelines. This provides you with a pretty solid line of protection unless they happen to jump up in excitement catching your chin with their helmets. Or if you happen to get excited yourself about players that appear to be about to crash through your line of protection and you fall over the bench behind you.

No rule book could have prepared me for the lesson I learned about team work during football season, either. As I watched the team I learned that no one could be a star or gain 200 yards or catch a pass without good blocking from his teammates.

And I also learned that it takes team work for the football players to come to each game with a winning attitude. The fans, combined with the band and members of other fall sports teams, joined together to help the football team keep their momentum up and their spirits high.

The conference title doesn't belong to the football team alone. It belongs to the entire school. Everyone worked as a team to get it.

It was a good season. Everyone won.

Rep. Philip Ruppe visits area

The U.S. Congress may approve an energy program by the end of the month, according to U.S. Rep. Philip Ruppe, R-Houghton. But, the House of Representatives and the Senate are still miles apart in any agreement on the various energy bills, Ruppe said as he addressed students at Charlevoix High School Wednesday morning.

Ruppe said the House has taken the position that prices should be set on natural gas and the Senate has taken a stand to remove price controls on natural gas. The representative said he believed the two houses would reach a compromise which will include set prices and incentives to drill for the gas, too.

"The costs will be high no matter what is settled on," the representative warned.

The legislator said it is a well head tax is imposed, as President Jimmy Carter has proposed, that there will probably be rebates to homeowners and small business to help them cover the high cost of natural gas used for heating.

Ruppe said the lobbying on the various bills had been intense.

"Virtually everyone has a stake in the energy bill and they are all trying to get their opinions through to the legislators," Ruppe said.

The congressman also announced that hearings on the Indian hunting and fishing rights question will be held in January in the Charlevoix-Petoskey area. Ruppe said the hearings will be held in order to collect data on what the losses will be in the state due to unlimited Indian fishing rights.

He said the fishing issue was one that should be settled in the courts and then the management details should be worked out between the state and federal governments.

On the topic of social security, Ruppe said that he had supported a House bill that proposed fund rate increases in the 1980s, but he said he had reservations about any bill that would change the ratio of payments by the employer.

"I don't think the small businessman could stand a change in the ratio," Ruppe said. "They could be paying as much as $5,000 per person and that just isn't feasible."

Ruppe said he had also been working with the federal Food and Drug Administration on the PBB (polybrominated biphenyl) issue and had introduced legislation that would provide money for research on how to flush PBB from human beings and how to cure any illnesses caused by PBB.

Ruppe also spoke about a proposed Panama Canal treaty. He predicted that the Senate would not approve the treaty, but even if the Senate does approve the treaty, the Congressman said the House would not vote for the bill allowing the United States to use the canal.

"I can't see paying them for the canal if we are going to give it to them," he said.

57 buildings permits issued to county residents

By PEG OHLE

Fifty-seven building permits were issued by the Charlevoix County Department of Building Inspection during the month of October. Total cost of building covered by the permits is $1,995,841.

These figures compare with 78 permits covering $633,204 worth of building during the same period last year.

The largest building for which a permit was issued is the new Top O' Michigan REA building in Boyne City, which will cost $1,029,000.

Total cost of new commercial buildings covered by the month's permits is $1,359,560. Additions to commercial buildings amount to $116,500, and remodeling of commercial buildings amounts to $22,820.

New residential buildings amount to $423,566, and additions to and remodeling of residences account for another $28,260. Garages and out-buildings will cost $44,305.

Probate judge seeks approval for juvenile services director

Probate Judge John T. Murphy last week asked the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners to approve the appointment of a Director of Juvenile Court Services and an In-Home Juvenile worker.

He told the Commissioners that Emmet County had approved the hiring of people to fill these jobs at a salary of $10,000 each, a large part of which would be paid for by the State. The judge further stated that he had in mind Mrs. Betty Litzner, former Juvenile Officer in Charlevoix County, to fill the Director's job.

Mrs. Litzner would be in charge of juvenile services in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. The In-Home worker would work with families of juvenile delinquents in an attempt to keep them out of foster or correctional homes.

Murphy pointed out that since Charlevoix and Emmet Counties are in a resort area they attract more runaways, isolated cottages tempt more breakings and enterings, more people move here to get their already-troubled children out of the city, and seasonal employment creates family financial burdens which can cause children to get into trouble.

The Commissioners have not yet taken action on Murphy's request.

Rabies shot clinic slated Dec. 3 here

A clinic for inoculating county dogs with rabies vaccine will be held at the Charlevoix County Sheriff's garage in Charlevoix on December 3 from two to four o'clock.

Another clinic is scheduled for the same date, from 10 to 12 o'clock, in the East Jordan City garage, and on December 10 from 10 to 12 o'clock in the County Road Commission garage in Boyne City.

The County Cooperative Extension Service will arrange the clinics, and the vaccine will be administered by a veterinarian.

Ironton Ferry closes for the season, gets overhaul, inspection

The Ironton Ferry ceased operation last Thursday and will be in dry dock until next April.

Coast Guard regulations require an overhaul of the ferry every five years, and this is the year that the overhaul must be made. In addition to the general overhaul, new engines will be installed this year. The work will be done by the T.C. Wysocki Marina in Traverse City, where the ferry will be towed.

From the first of the year through October 16, 40,376 vehicles crossed the South Arm on the ferry. Revenues during this period amounted to $27,671.

Sheriff's department to get two new cruisers from Boyne City dealer

The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department will soon have two new cruisers.

The contract was awarded to Jack's Auto Sales of Boyne City after sealed bids were opened last week. Jack's will turnish the two "police packages", one Plymouth Fury and one Plymouth Volare, for $6,485.15.

Other bids, one Dodge, one Ford, and one Chevrolet, ranged as high as $9,600.

Paul, Marie Buday, Jorallyn Goss, Marie Aronson, Coach Toni Felter, Laurie Gibbs, Teresa Bears, Sherrie Selissen, Chris Lehman and Kris Fiedler.

Girls work hard on basketball

IT WAS A MAD scramble for the ball by the Rayders as they attempted to make a basket in the last minutes of their game against Cheboygan last week. Cheboygan won the contest 63-31.

JERALLYN GOSS (34) rushes in for the rebound during the Charlevoix-Cheboygan game last week. Charlevoix meets St. Ignace at home Tuesday and Boyne City Ramblers in Boyne City Thursday.

Football season over, but statistics remain

By BILL MERCER

The 1977 Charlevoix High School football season is over. And with its passing goes the exciting Friday night gridiron spectacles under the lights at Kipke Field or the travel to foreign territory to watch the Rayders do battle against distant opponents.

Gone is the thrill of the Rayder Marching Band's exuberant entrances and dazzling half time shows. Preserved in the memories of the fans are the fourth quarter heroics in the Gaylord, Cheboygan, Grayling and Petoskey games.

But what a season it was. The Michigan-Huron Shores Conference trophy, a place in the top five Class C rankings in the entire state of Michigan, and a close race to the finish.

For a spot in the state playoffs. Unfortunately, some little computer gnome kept the Rayders from entering the Class C battle to the Silver Dome. A small blemish on an otherwise grand season.

Who will forget the crushing tackles of defensive linemen Tom Jones, Kip Cinnamon and Barry Potter, the excitement generated by the runs of Greg Krueger and Kevin Kratt and the passes caught by Nell Dziedic and Jim Elzinga, the blocks executed on punt returns by Erik Lundieigen, Jerry Sladek and Bruce Avery, and perhaps most memorable, the extra point kicks by Guy Carter which contributed significantly to the victories in Cheboygan and Petoskey.

Particular individual team leaders can be determined through the use of statistical analysis. But Krueger, Kratt, Jim Alger and Carter will all confirm that it took good snaps by center Greg Loper to start the Rayder machine and tireless locking by guards Avery and Sladek, tackles Potter and Cinnamon and ends Dziedic and Joe Left to keep it running smoothly.

Krueger took top statistical honors this year. For the season, the senior backfield man gained 1,198 total yards, a modern day Rayder record. His 74 points on the season led the team in scoring and 182 total carries, which gained an average of 6.6 yards a carry, also were team records.

Quarterback Alger registered a good year as well. His 11 touchdown passes in league play led the conference in that category. Even though he only scored two touchdowns on his own, his passes accounted for 70 big Rayder points.

Dziedic also figured high in the scoring column. Three punt returns for touchdowns plus four TD catches and one extra point pass reception accounted for his second place finish in the scoring race.

Scraper-of-the-year title must go to Elzinga. His aggressive play, especially the pass stolen from the Petokey defensive back to score the first Charlevoix touchdown in the last game of the season, must not go unrecognized. While Elzinga did not score in the first four Charlevoix games, he came on strong at the end of the season to tally 36 points.

Little halfback Kratt also performed well as the season progressed. Although he scored twice in the Benzie Central game, his other 15 points came at crucial times in other Rayder wins. Many times he almost broke open for scores on kickoff returns.

The statistics cannot show the backfield blocking of Lundieigen and Jones, which so often opened huge holes for Krueger and Kratt.

At the completion of all of the drives for touchdowns, after the six points had been marked on the scoreboard, the fan's attention focused on the player, point after kicker Carter. During the course of the season, the senior halfback converted 21 of 29 conversion kicks, a hefty 724 percentage. His points, even though they were made one at a time, helped produce victories in the close Cheboygan and Petoskey contests. Also, his string of 13 in a row over three games must be a Charlevoix High School record.

How about the defensive squad. Led by senior co-captains Jones and Cinnamon, the entire defensive unit deserves praise. While they sometimes scared the devil out of hometown fans, assistant coach Plas Presnell's troops came out fighting when the chips were down.

Opponents were only able to score seven points against Charlevoix in the fourth quarters of all nine games, while the Rayders were putting 103 points on the scoreboard.

Highlights of defensive play included 17 intercepted passes and 19 recovered fumbles, one important field goal block by Darrin VanLoon in the Cheboygan game, safeties by Cinnamon, Left and Jones and a key game ending interception by Pat Klooster in Petoskey.

Last, but certainly not least in the statistics, is the place kicking by Bob Warner. Many times Charlevoix was put in good field position by Warner's deep kicks.

The same can be said for Krueger's punting. Over the season, the senior averaged more than 34 yards a kick also contributing to good Rayder field position.

While there were many stars, the undefeatable season must really be attributed to a total team effort. Coach Don Carey was able to produce excellent performances from numerous players and he and his staff are to be congratulated on a fine 1977 football season.

Girls varsity basketball team drops game to hot Cheboygan

The Charlevoix Rayder Varsity Basketball team dropped its game last week to a hot Cheboygan team. The Cheboygan Chiefs scored 63 points to the Rayders 31.

Coach Toni Felter said the two teams started out the game with a fairly close score, although Cheboygan was in the lead 10-5.

In the second period, however, Cheboygan surged ahead leaving the Rayders trailing 33-10. The score was widened in the third quarter to 49-16 in favor of Cheboygan.

Coach Felter said Jorallyn Goss played good defensive and offense and Laurie Gibbs continued to be tough on the backboards pulling down 20 rebounds.

But the Rayders' shooting was cold.

"We just didn't get any shots off," Coach Felter said. "And the percentage was low, too."

"It was a flat night. Both teams looked sluggish in the first half, but Cheboygan picked up."

Sherrie Selissen was the high point maker with 9 and Laurie Gibbs had 8.

The Rayders meet St. Ignace and Boyne City this week and then end the season Nov. 22 with a game against Petokey.

Tournaments will begin Nov. 28 in Elk Rapids. Teams participating in the tourney are Benzie-Benzie Central, Elk Rapids, Kalkaska, Traverse City St. Francis, Boyne City and East Jordan as well as Charlevoix.

The drawing to set up the playing schedule will be held Nov. 22.

JV basketball team extends winning streak to 12-1 for season

The Charlevoix Rayder Junior Varsity basketball team continued its winning streak last week with a close victory over the Cheboygan JV, 29-22.

The Rayders started out great guns scoring 18 points to Cheboygan's 6. At the half the score was Charlevoix 24, Cheboygan 8.

But the second half was a whole different story. The Rayders only jumped in 5 more points during the entire half while Cheboygan's score steadily climbed.

"They couldn't do anything wrong in the first half," Coach Henry Wagner said. "I don't know what happened during the second half. They were really cold."

Wagner said that Lisa

Sandahl played an excellent defensive game and has averaged about five steals a game. Amy Kroll has also improved tremendously through the season, Wagner said.

Melinda Klooster, who pumped in 10 points, Teresa Norrot who had 9 and Melanie Kerridge with 8 points continue to be the nucleus of the team, Wagner said.

The JV's now have a 12-1 record for the season with three games left to play.

Tri-City, Wojan Aluminum, First State Bank win second round of games in B League play

Tri-City Asphalt, Wojan Aluminum and First State Bank continued their winning streaks last week as they defeated their opponents in B League Basketball action sponsored by the Charlevoix Recreation Department.

Tri-City met Alray Cottages in the first game of the week and the two teams stayed within six points of each other ending the half with Tri-City at 26 and Alray at 20.

In the third period Tri-City shot up to 41 points while Alray only added six points for a total of 26 points in that quarter. The game ended with a score of 69-40 in favor of Tri-City.

Top point makers for Tri-City were Dave Norton, 22, Butch Klooster, 13, Mike Crain, 12, and Ed Holm, 10. Vince Left had 10 points for Alray.

Don Ward had 13 points and Stan Martin, 12, for Wojan. Bob Holtzman had 5 points for Medusa.

Kadens joins winners circle this week in A League action

Townhouse and Swansons continued in their winning ways while Kadens joined the winners circle for the first time this season in last week's Charlevoix Recreation Department A League Basketball action.

Townhouse opened league play last week with a 76-44 defeat of Bob's Sunoco. The game was fairly close during the first half with Townhouse taking a small lead in the first period 14-11 which widened in the second period to 34-28.

Townhouse broke the game wide open in the second half when the team pumped in 22 points in the third period and Bob's Sunoco only hit for four points. Townhouse added another 20 points in the final period while the opponents only added six more baskets to their score.

Top scorers for Townhouse were Spook Coleman, 20; Dan McKenzie, 12; Jerome Harris, 12; and Clint Berlage, 10. Jim Danbert has 12 points for Bob's Sunoco.

In the second game Kadens earned its first win of the year by defeating Foam Corps in a close one, 76-71.

Foam Corps opened the game with a seven-point lead 28-15 in the first period. The team then froze up not making any baskets in the second period as Kadens added 20 points to its score.

In the second half, Foam Corps came back to bring the score to 58-44 in the third period in favor of Kadens and then tied it up 69-69 in the fourth period.

Site Planning took the lead in the first period 14-11 but then was left behind in the second period as Swansons changed the score in its favor 30-25.

Swansons continued to lead in the second half with a third period score of 48-30 and then the final score of 71-51.

The high point men for Swansons were Roger Crain, 25; Bruce Meggison, 19; and Casey Culbertson, 12.

For Site Planning, Tim Carey and Dennis Combie each had 10 points.

However, the team could only hit the basket for two points during the overtime as Kadens pitched in seven points and won the game.

High scorers for Kadens were Al Looze, 14; Jeff Belford, 14; Chuck Stanek, 17;

Holecheck had 15, Gary Hice, 11; and Dale Boss, 14.

In the final game of the evening Swansons buried Site Planning 71-51.

Charlevoix music trio captures Grange title

By FRANK MARTIN
It's off to the Deep South Wednesday for Jasper and the Tag-Alongs, a Charlevoix musical trio, that will be competing for national honors at the annual convention of the National Grange Association being held at Greensboro, N.C., this week.

The trio is composed of Jasper Warner, baritone and leader of the group, Bill Stevens who plays the guitar and Mrs. Leon Pease the piano. Warner is a veteran musician who played with a family group for years while Stevens and Mrs. Pease are the real amateurs of the group, according to the latter.

All are members of the Barnard Grange where they do most of their playing. "We just play for fun. Most of the time it's at Grange parties where we play for dancing. What kind of music do we play? Square dance music, waltzes, foxtrots and other round dance music. I guess you'd say anything but rock. That came after our time," Mrs. Pease said.

She went on to say that since they'd won the amateur talent show at the State Grange meeting held at Gaylord recently, they'd had all kinds of offers.

"But we all have full time jobs that take our time so we can't accept these offers to play at various events. It's fluttering to know that people

Park stage group working hard toward expansion of unit

The Charlevoix Park Stage Committee is moving right along in its attempt to finish the expansion and construction of the stage and bandshell in East Park.

To date the committee has received more than $1,000 in contributions toward the expansion and improvement of the stage.

"This puts us in a good position," Clarence Odmark, chairman of the group, explained. "We now have enough money to go to an architect and ask him to draw up some plans so we can get an estimate of the total cost of the project."

After getting an estimate of the total cost of the project and approval from the Charlevoix Common Council, the committee expects to hold a fund-raising campaign to raise most of the money for the project.

Members of the committee are currently looking into private grants that the committee might be able to receive for the construction of the project. The committee has also asked common council to look into applying for grants for the project.

In addition, Odmark said

Alvin Hanger has agreed to contribute his time toward the project in getting the plans off the ground.

Odmark said Robert Burns was filing incorporation papers for the group so that it could file for tax exempt status for all contributions made to the park stage fund.

Ralph Hamilton is also working closely with the group in getting its tax exempt status and its solicitation license cleared up.

Soil borings have been completed on the site and the committee hopes to have drawings and a site plan completed soon, Odmark said.

No meet set with ousted administrator

A meeting between ousted City Administrator Allen Sandberg and Charlevoix Common Council and Mayor Edward Hansen did not occur Monday night and it does not seem likely that it will occur.

meeting to establish a mutual understanding with the council about the dismissal and an awareness of his need for extensive time to seek a new position.

"I talked with several of the council members about a meeting, but I was not placed on the agenda for the committee of the whole meeting Monday night and I haven't heard anything regarding a meeting," Sandberg said.

The former city administrator, who began working for the city Dec. 1, 1976, said he did not plan to contest his firing.

Sandberg had hoped to have the

"I think the council has kind of made a decision and I don't think they would rescind the dismissal," Sandberg said.

"And the community is not up in arms about the thing, either. I guess some people are pretty upset, but they aren't storming city hall in protest to make them change it."

Sandberg's firing last week came as much of a surprise to the common council members as it did to Sandberg. The council members interviewed by the Charlevoix Courier said they had met in executive session on Nov. 7 following a committee of the whole meeting and that they had expressed dissatisfaction with Sandberg's performance at that time.

"We talked for eight minutes at the most," one alderman said. "And during that time we agreed that we were unhappy with Allen's performance and that we should look for someone else, but we felt that we should talk with him first."

"We never voted on the matter and we never asked the Mayor to write a letter or fire Allen. We weren't going to handle it this way."

Mayor Hansen, on the other hand, felt the council had indicated they wanted him to fire Sandberg.

"It came as fairly abrupt to me that council wanted to change administrators," Hansen said following the firing. "But it was the general consensus in the executive session that Sandberg was not doing the job."

"I think council is taking a rational approach to this."

Hansen said that Sandberg was given "terminal leave" which means that he leaves the city employment on a pre-arranged contract. The mayor did not say what the contract was, but according to a copy of a contract given to the Courier, Sandberg was to receive one and one-half months severance pay if his employment was terminated by the city after the first year. Sandberg has not quite been employed by the city a year.

"He fully understood that if the council wasn't completely satisfied after one year that he would leave," the mayor said. "We had this understanding with him."

Hansen said he had several people in mind that he would suggest the council consider appointing as acting city administrator, but he would not list any names.

BOAT COMPANY LEASE RESPONSE

It appears that Mayor Hansen and the Beaver Island Boat Company are again out to take the taxpayers of the city of Charlevoix. A few months ago they wanted to make an even trade of the $65,000 garage property for a $200,000 plus lakefront property. That didn't work, so now they want to trade the $65,000 garage property for a 30-year lease on the lakefront property. This idea is just about as ridiculous as their first proposal. A 30-year lease for $5,000 would compute to $2160 per year, which would not even take care of the depreciation on the dock. The mayor and the city council had better get back to earth. Why not offer the boat company a 10-year lease in exchange for their garage property? This would be a yearly rental of $500, which is still a very low yearly rent for a $200,000 facility. But, it should at least indicate to the boat company that they are being given a break and that they are still being subsidized to keep them in Charlevoix. Another point that should be kept in mind is that the boat company does not pay any taxes to the city, schools or county on their business personal property, whereas, any other business located in Charlevoix, with the same dollar amount in machinery and equipment, is paying at least $7000 per year in taxes. So, it is our opinion that, lease or not, the yearly rent on the city docks facility should be raised at least up to $7000 per year so that the boat company won't be a complete liability to the community. We could also suggest that if the boat company wants to stay in business for 30 years, or for 300 years, for that matter, they should put their money where their mouth is and purchase the Charlevoix Lumber Co. property and have their own docks with adequate parking available for their operations.

WHY NO GOOD WORDS FOR PRESENT CHARTER?

Why doesn't somebody speak a good word for our present City Charter? Those city officials who have worked under the charter know its worth but seemed scared to express their views for fear of alienating a few voters who are working tooth and nail to get that perverted document called New Charter forced on the taxpayers. Admitted that our present charter is old but remember it has served the city through numerous amendments for seventy years or more. The new charter is far, far from perfect and city officials will be forced to make amendments on it before the ink dries. Why should they be forced to go through such a lengthy process again? It doesn't make common sense. For this reason if for no other it would be wise to vote "no" on the new charter.

Second ward group leads petition opposition to shade tree program

By PAULA HOLMES
"We want to make it clear that we're not against the trees," Mrs. Whitley explained.

Mrs. Whitley, along with several other concerned city residents, has been circulating petitions seeking a moratorium on the planting of shade trees in Charlevoix.

The group presented petitions requesting the moratorium to Charlevoix Common Council Nov. 14. The petitions contained 40 signatures of Second Ward residents. Since then the group has expanded its drive to other sections of the city.

"We talked with everyone who signed the petition," Mrs. Whitley continued. "And they weren't against the program either. They agreed that it was good, but they didn't like the amount of money that the city was spending."

Mrs. Whitley said she and other members of the group first became concerned about the cost of the shade tree program when they heard about the Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission's 1978 budget request.

The shade tree commission requested $8,500 for capital acquisition which included the purchase of trees and bronze grates for the planting of trees in the downtown sidewalks and $5,100 for service connected with the planting and pruning of 430 shade trees next summer.

"When this program was originally started three years ago, it was started as a replacement program for the trees that were being cut down," Ken Whitley, another concerned citizen, pointed out. "This sounds like more than a replacement program. It sounds like it is 20 to 30 times what we need."

"I think this program has snowballed into something that is costing the city a lot of extra money and it's not worth it."

John Campbell, consultant to the shade tree commission explained that a survey of the city showed that 2,300 trees were needed to replace the trees that were being cut down and to plant trees in areas where there weren't any trees such as in the newly developed southwest section of the city.

According to the 10-year plan prepared by Campbell for the city, approximately 230 trees will be planted along city streets each year. However, to keep costs down, Campbell has suggested that the city buy young trees at a cheaper price, plant them in the city nursery for one year and then transplant them along the city streets the next year.

So, the shade tree commission has been fairly successful with its program. This year 97 percent of the Red Oak trees planted survived and 100 percent of the locust trees survived.

However, during 1976, 150 of the 260 trees planted died due to severe drought conditions in the area.

"The program really hasn't been that successful," Billie Smith, another petition circulator, said. "That's why we think there should be a moratorium on the purchase of any more trees until we see what's going to happen with the ones we have now."

Mrs. Smith suggested that the city transplant all of the trees it has in its nursery behind the sewage treatment plant and that it has in Campbell's nursery and see what happens to them before any more trees are purchased.

The group was also concerned that the commission was planting too many trees for the city crews to take care of. However, Campbell said that Bill Brundine and other members of the city street department had assured him that they had no trouble taking care of the 200 plus trees that had been planted this summer and could handle another 200 next year.

Whitley also suggested that the city put the project up for bids to see if it could get any better price on the cost of trees and on the cost of services.

"When thousands of dollars are being spent, you need more than one man's opinion," Whitley said. "And I'm sure there are government services available that could give us the same services for free."

In the meantime, city residents who would like to see the shade tree program continue as it is are beginning to marshal their forces in favor of the program. Preliminary response to a survey made by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce indicates that businesses are overwhelmingly in favor of planting trees downtown.

In other action, tuition rates, based on a formula set by the State board of education, were set for the current school year. They are $1,435 for elementary students and $1,485 for secondary students.

Board discusses school renovation

The Charlevoix Board of Education, at its regular meeting Monday night, discussed the renovation program at the Charlevoix Middle School before deciding to ask their architectural firm, Manson Jackson and Kane, to complete the overall plans for the project before making any decisions regarding the program.

Earlier this year, the voters approved a 1.0 mill levy for five years to underwrite the cost of this project. Ben Morgridge, representing the firm, advised the board that it could only borrow only one year in advance in order to obtain enough money for a

Iannottis purchase Hess Furniture

A Northbrook, Ill. couple has purchased Hess Furniture. Mr. and Mrs. Daniel R. Iannotti recently bought the Bridge Street store, according to George Richardson and Richard Georgi of Ski & Shore Properties commercial investment department, who handled the transaction.

The store was purchased from the Hess family. Ralph Hess, Jr., has managed the business, which he helped establish with his father, Ralph Hess, Sr., in 1949. Mrs. Iannotti will become the new manager of the store while Iannotti joins the commercial investment division of Ski & Shore Properties.

Mrs. Iannotti said the couple is not planning any employee changes at the store, but will be adding to the list of quality brand name furniture stocked in the store.

The new manager of Hess Furniture was associated with Puncoc of Potoskey as an interior decorator and has also operated boutiques, apparel shops and gift shops.

The Iannottis are not new to Northern Michigan. They were the builders and developers of Schuss Mountain ski resort in Bellaire when it started 14 years ago. Iannotti has been president of Schuss Mountain, Inc., chairman of the board and general manager. He remains a stockholder in the corporation.

Parents Council planning Christmas bazaar Dec. 18

The Parent's Advisory Council at the Charlevoix Elementary School needs some help.

The group is planning to hold a bazaar at the elementary school from 2 to 5 p.m. Dec. 18 and they need Christmas gift and craft items and baked goods to sell.

"We are asking all parents, grandparents and interested citizens to contribute their time and talents to making items for the bazaar," Patty Muma, chairman of the event, explained.

"Even the elementary school children are helping by making useful, decorative items to sell at the bazaar."

Mrs. Muma said the committee was planning to make the bazaar a fun afternoon for the entire family. In addition to the gift and craft items that will be on sale, an old fashioned cake walk will also be held and clowns and Santa Claus will be present to add to the fun. The button machine will also be on hand along with hot dogs and popcorn for people who have the munchies.

Bazaar items may be sent to the elementary school from now until Dec. 17 when the bazaar will be set up.

"We need help to make this project a success," Mrs. Muma said. "We want to use the money raised at the bazaar to purchase needed equipment for the elementary school."

"We've had a good response from area businesses and from private citizens who have contributed to the project," Seese said. "They agree with the project and are happy to help us."

Seese said the Charlevoix area group decided to start the fund raising drive as a way of celebrating National REACT Month during November.

"We got the idea from other REACT groups in this area who are helping their school districts out by purchasing CB radios for their buses," Seese said.

Gregory Seese, president of the group, explained that there has been a long-time need for communication systems for school buses that travel isolated areas of the school district in all types of weather. The school district has not been in a financial position to purchase the radios, however, so REACT decided to help.

Seese pointed out that a bus driver cannot leave his or her bus to seek aid in any event. "A two-way radio in an emergency could certainly be useful. This is especially true in stormy weather or on icy roads," Seese said.

Vincent Olach, school business manager, has assured REACT that the radios would be used only in emergencies. Channel 9, the emergency channel, is monitored by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department around the clock and by members of REACT.

Earlier this year, REACT purchased a base station for use by the sheriff's department so that it could monitor the emergency station.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the fund drive may send checks to REACT, Route No. 2, Box 112 A, Charlevoix, 49720.

Northeastern REACT is also using National REACT Month to attract new members. Seese said his group was interested in meeting serious minded CB radio licensees who would like to join them in serving the public.

The team conducts a monitoring watch on CB emergency Channel 9 and cooperates with all local authorities on various projects.

People interested in REACT membership or additional information may call Mrs. Seese, secretary of the group, at 547-2564.

Stroud proposal may be first step to merger

By PAULA HOLMES

As surely as winter comes after fall, talk of merger between the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township comes after a few months silence.

Talk of merger came up again last week in coffee shops throughout the city and even at the Charlevoix Common Council meeting as word of Charlevoix Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud's proposed merger plan leaked out.

"If you were to take a poll in the township today, I think you would find that about 90 percent of the residents are against merger," Stroud said as he began to discuss his plan.

"This proposal is just an individual talking about what the township might consider. I'm not speaking for the township."

So why did he present the plan to Alderman Ray Wood and Mayor Edward Hansen over coffee?

"In the first place, the city has a petition before the county (board of) commissioners asking for a vote on the merger. The county has the authority to make the township hold an election."

Secondly, merger is a problem that can't be overlooked. As our population grows and other things happen, we are going to have to talk about merger if we want to or not.

"So we might as well get together and see if we can't settle this thing so that everyone is satisfied. It's something township residents better think about."

Stroud is proposing a five-year plan for merger. Under his plan, a city council would be set up with three representatives from the city and three representatives from the township. These six people would oversee all merger activities.

During the five years, the taxes in the township would remain the same, which is not over three mills. All tax money raised from township residents would continue to be spent in the township just as city tax money would be spent in the city.

"This way the township could finish up any projects it has started such as the recreation construction program," Stroud explained. "It's only fair that we should pay for that and not ask the city to finish it up."

Also during the five year period, the city would work on some kind of deal with REA for the purchase of all electric lines in the township. The water systems would also be connected during that time. The two fire departments would also continue to operate with their own officers and men, but they would go to the same fires.

"At the end of five years enough men will have dropped out that the two departments will be able to merge into one solid unit," Stroud speculated. "Also by that time they will know each other well enough to be able to form one group."

Stroud said the main concern of township residents about a merger is that they will lose representation and that the city only wants the township for additional tax revenue.

"The people really have quite a bit to say about how money is spent on where it is spent and they don't want to lose that when they merge with the city," Stroud said. "The township residents are concerned they won't get a fair shake if they merge."

Stroud felt there should be a provision, however, that if at the end of five years the merger conditions weren't being met, the township residents would hold an election and elect a new board.

"The five years will give us time to get climatized and we would find out whether it's going to work or not," Stroud pointed out.

Alderman Wood enthusiastically received the proposed merger plan.

"There's so much to be gained by a merger," Wood said. "We're all friends anyway. We don't know where property lines are and we don't think of people as township or city."

"There's just good logic in uniting."

The common council member said Stroud's plan seemed to be well thought out. "I can't contribute any new ideas to the plan," Wood said. "I would be willing to go almost 100 percent with what he is suggesting."

Wood said he had heard some opposition to the make up of the council with three members from the city and three from the township, but he felt that a compromise could be worked out if city and township representatives would sit down together and talk about the proposal.

Mayor Hansen said he supported a merger and that he believed it would be better for both township and city residents if they did merge together. But he was wary of any written proposal for merger.

"Everybody always wants everything cast in bronze," Hansen said. "And you just can't do that."

REACT fund drive for CBs passes half-way point

A fund drive for the purchase of 10 CB (citizens band) radios and antennas for school buses operated by the Charlevoix School District is more than half-way to its goal.

Northeastern REACT (Radio Emergency Associated Citizens Team) No. 3433, which is conducting the fund drive, has collected $500 toward its goal of $900, according to Bill Seese, treasurer of the 22-member group.

"We've had a good response from area businesses and from private citizens who have contributed to the project," Seese said. "They agree with the project and are happy to help us."

Seese said the Charlevoix area group decided to start the fund raising drive as a way of celebrating National REACT Month during November.

"We got the idea from other REACT groups in this area who are helping their school districts out by purchasing CB radios for their buses," Seese said.

Gregory Seese, president of the group, explained that there has been a long-time need for communication systems for school buses that travel isolated areas of the school district in all types of weather. The school district has not been in a financial position to purchase the radios, however, so REACT decided to help.

Seese pointed out that a bus driver cannot leave his or her bus to seek aid in any event. "A two-way radio in an emergency could certainly be useful. This is especially true in stormy weather or on icy roads," Seese said.

Vincent Olach, school business manager, has assured REACT that the radios would be used only in emergencies. Channel 9, the emergency channel, is monitored by the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department around the clock and by members of REACT.

Earlier this year, REACT purchased a base station for use by the sheriff's department so that it could monitor the emergency station.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the fund drive may send checks to REACT, Route No. 2, Box 112 A, Charlevoix, 49720.

Northeastern REACT is also using National REACT Month to attract new members. Seese said his group was interested in meeting serious minded CB radio licensees who would like to join them in serving the public.

The team conducts a monitoring watch on CB emergency Channel 9 and cooperates with all local authorities on various projects.

People interested in REACT membership or additional information may call Mrs. Seese, secretary of the group, at 547-2564.

CITY CHARTER COMMISSION

Questions-Answers

Why is the Charter Commission waiting until November 23 to publish the minute changes made in the second draft of the new City Charter?

The question seems to hint darkly at shenanigans by the Charter Commission. The simple fact is that state law specifies that a proposed charter be published in its entirety no earlier than four weeks and no later than two weeks before the December 12 election. The Commission is merely complying with this legal requirement.

I'm not sure I like the idea of at-large election of Council members. I want to pick my own ward representatives on the Council.

You and your neighbors, at your ward convention or primary, pick two nominees for the upcoming vacancy. Then, at the city election, the voters of all three wards decide which of the two is the more acceptable to everyone. Thus your ward gets to be represented by the one more likely to win citywide support for whatever he favors - not excepting, of course, projects especially wanted by your ward. And, of course, you'll be helping decide which of two nominees from each of the other wards will sit with your ward representatives on the Council for the next two years. Just see to it that your own ward offers the best two candidates available - get to know the candidates from the other two wards - and be sure to vote. Then your ward, and the other two wards, will have the best possible representation on the Council.

Mayor's abrupt firing of city administrator raises many questions

Politics took Charlevoix by storm last week as Mayor Edward Hansen exercised his rights under the Fourth Class Cities Act and fired city administrator Allen Sandberg.

Sandberg's dismissal was greeted with surprise by most of the common council members, although they did indicate that they had been dissatisfied with the administrator's performance.

The council members said they had expressed their displeasure to the mayor during a brief eight to ten minute executive session following a recent committee of the whole meeting, but the council members claim they never asked the mayor to fire the administrator and that they never voted on the issue.

Under the Fourth Class Cities Act the mayor can hire and fire without council approval.

Sandberg claims that neither the mayor nor common council members ever mentioned anything to him about the quality of job he had been doing. Further, the administrator said he felt he performed well within the system.

Mayor Hansen contends that when Sandberg was hired he was told he would be evaluated after working for the city for one year and that a decision would be made at that time to retain or dismiss him.

The abrupt firing brings up many questions about the operation of the City of Charlevoix.

It seems unfair and unreasonable that the city administrator can be fired on a moment's notice without prior indication by either the mayor or the council. Some sort of dismissal system should be worked out and put into use in the future so that the city administrator is well aware of the fact that he is not performing as the mayor and common council would like to see.

If such a system exists now it should be put into use. As word of the firing spreads, and there is no doubt that it will, potential new city administrators will look askance at applying for a job with Charlevoix because of the instability of the position. The abrupt firing will injure any attempts at finding what the mayor and the common council consider qualified applicants for the administrator's job.

Also the relationship between the city administrator and the mayor and the relationship between the city administrator and other elected city officials and other department heads should be well defined before the next city administrator is hired.

No city administrator, not even the most qualified, can function without some guidelines or some indication as to the relationship between that position and others in the city. It appears that the recently fired city administrator and others before him were in the dark as to their position within the city hierarchy and eventually enough friction was created and the administrator had to be removed.

The answers to many of these problems are contained within the proposed new charter. Its adoption could bring about stability within city government. However, if the charter is not approved Dec. 12, the mayor, common council and the residents of Charlevoix should address these problems immediately to provide for improved operation of the city.

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

The problem with Charlevoix and its city superintendents is that we have two men trying to do the same job. And the problem will remain until the charter is changed.

The Fourth Class City Act, as you will know, was written in 1895 and was designed chiefly for city municipalities with minuscule problems. An elected mayor, regardless of his capabilities, could usually take care of them all and still have time left over to run his hoberdashery.

There is no mention in the 4th Class City Act of a city superintendent, since the act was not intended to cover large, structured corporate organizations like Charlevoix. However, there is a provision that the mayor "by and with the consent of the council" shall appoint a number of city officers, including city assessor, city attorney, and city surveyor. Then the section says:

"The council may also, from time to time, provide by ordinance for the appointment of...such other officers whose election or appointment is not herein specially provided for..."

Until the election of Edward Hansen in the early 1970's, Charlevoix actually operated under an informal Council-Manager form of government simply by picking and choosing what it wanted from the Fourth Class City Act. We elected our mayor and council as prescribed, but the day-to-day operations of the city were delegated to full time city superintendents who actually ran the show. As they became familiar with city problems, their opinions were sought by the mayor and council before every major decision.

I can see Pat Hawley now, turning in his big swivel chair to face City Superintendent Jim Taylor: "What do you think about this, Jim?" Or Bill Fochtman turning to face Tom Hagman: "What would you suggest we do, Tom?"

But this isn't the way things have to be run under the Fourth Class City Act, which actually provides a strong mayor form of government. And if you elect a fellow mayor who wants to exercise his duties as mayor, you are bound to have a conflict with the superintended functions of the city superintendent.

At the risk of losing you, I would like you to listen for just a second to the duties of the mayor as set forth in the Fourth Class City Act:

"The mayor shall be the chief executive officer of the city. He shall Leftover notes from a Washington notebook...

...Around the corner from our hotel in downtown Washington is a tiny deli-catessen with the world's most sophisticated clerks. A sign in the front window says: "All Languages Spoken Here."

"That store goes to a lot of trouble to sell 'bologna,'" my wife said. "I noticed the same thing at the White House," I said.

(Obviously, I married the woman for her straight lines).

...29 other columnists and I met with President Carter in the Cabinet Room, just a few steps from the Oval Office. We sat around the same long table where countless famous families have squirmed. I sat in the labor secretary's eluir, according to the engraved plaque on the back.

The chairs are made of rich wood and soft leather, well stuffed. They all look brand new, with no historical patina — no toothmarks made by John Foster Dulles while gnawing back at gnawing problems.

The chairs are all new because there is a rapid turnover of cabinet members, and when each member leaves, he takes his chair home with him as a souvenir," a White House aide explained.

As a taxpayer, you might protest that it would be a lot cheaper if the departing statesmen simply swiped some White House ashtrays. Relax. The cabinet members pay for their chairs, currently at $700.

Costs and cartage would be more manageable if cabinet members sat on the type of folding chairs rented by funeral parlors. The discomfort would be less Washington baloney rattling in the deli-catessen of the world.

I probably should be careful about solving all these big problems so quickly. If I don't cut it out, there won't be anything left for Ann Landers to do. ...The President of the United States must be the most pictured man in the world. When Carter entered the Cabinet Room for our press conference, the first 2 minutes were turned over to the photographers. Twenty-four of them (actual count) burst through a back door and began clicking furiously.

When the 2 minutes were almost up, a White House aide began a countdown, Paula Holmes...

...Speaking Her Mind

On the wall in my office is a cartoon beautifully framed and matted. It hangs there to help me keep my perspective and to explain my function to visitors.

The cartoon depicts a man on his knees with his chin just about touching the floor before a king who is sitting on his throne. The kneeling man is saying "...and as I relate the following bad news, I hope your Majesty will bear in mind that I do not make the news, I only report the news."

Being in the news business is an incredibly exciting and interesting job. And like any other job it has its good and bad moments.

Never in any other occupation have I met as many people or learned as many things as I have while working for newspapers. I can honestly say that I learn something new every day. And in my book that's what life is all about. It should be a constant learning process and if you can make your job a part of that process, it's all the better.

Working for a newspaper is fun. I enjoy going to the athletic events, the band concerts, the Boy and Girl Scout activities and the salad luncheons at the various churches.

Being part of a newspaper has its serious side, too. And that serious side is covering local government, the expenditure of taxpayers' dollars and the issues facing area residents. Believe me, that's a whole of a responsibility and a whole of a job.

But I love it. I love the challenge of trying to get the facts from both sides of the story and presenting them as fairly as possible. As I see it, fairness is the name of the game. As much as it is humanly possible I attempt to put both sides of the argument in every story I write.

I believe that newspapers should be a reference and resource for local residents to use to get the information they need to make intelligent decisions about things affecting their daily lives. At the Courier we do this through news stories.

Newspapers also serve a purpose as a forum for people to express their own opinions, and for the editor and reporters to offer their ideas, too. At the Courier our readers are invited to send letters to the editor or to call the Hotline with their opinions. The editor and reporters use columns like this one and the editorials to express their opinions.

And just as the staff of the Courier is free to say what they wish in the opinion columns, the readers are also invited to say what they wish in their letters or Hotline comments. The Courier wants to publish all sides of an issue. It is only through a comparison of the facts of all sides of the issue that people can make intelligent decisions.

I never go to a college reunion that I don't come away feeling sorry for all those pompously bawling kids trying to hang onto youth.

I feel sorry for the men too. Mayva and I always sit together. We seem to be the only two in the class who have fought the battle of middle age and won.

"How do we do it?" I whispered, watching the class of '49 dance away in mermaid darkness. "I feel like Marie Osmond at a Prune Festival."

"I know what you're saying," said Mayva. "I look at Ginger Horwich. Can you believe she's wearing glasses this thick? Blind as a bat."

"Where?" I asked, digging in my purse and holding my bifocals to my nose like a lorgnette.

"And what about Marcel Miller? Who is she fooling with that cat?"

"Mayva, as I have always said, 'You show me a woman in a cat and I'll show you a lot of fat that doesn't fit.' Incidentally, isn't that cat a lot like yours?"

"That vicious old broad," said Mayva. "Never has a kind word to say about anyone I'm going over and tell her how much I've missed her."

As Mayva left the table, I couldn't help remarking to my husband, "Mayva looks old. Wonder how long it will take me to start showing my age?"

"We do it all the time," he explained. "I guess the White House wants a photo record of the president's every moment, right up to his last moment."

Suddenly my memory triggered a motorcycle in Dallas and the Zapruder films.

Cheer up. ...The weather was grand, and we spent several hours walking around Washington, admiring the handsome buildings. Many of them contain the headquarters of huge organizations, such as the National Rifle Association, which likes to be near enough to the deli-catessen to lobby for their favorite baloney.

One of the most impressive buildings is at Fifteenth and M streets — the National Housing Center. Its glass front leans forward dramatically, like the Tower of Pisa.

"How would you like to wash these windows?" my wife asked. "I would jump over backward to do it," I said.

(I love that woman as much as Costello loved Abbott).

At blast-off time, the photographers were supposed to stop snapping and leave the room. Most of them did, clicking as they left, walking backward. One persistent guy wouldn't quit until my aide grabbed his arm and pushed him toward the door while whispering sternly into his ear.

The object of this mini-riot, President Carter, didn't appear to be aware of it. He talked to the columnists while the cameras whirled and clicked, the strobe lights flashed, and the photographers bumped into each other. We couldn't hear a word he said.

"I don't believe I am seeing what I am seeing," I told the columnist in the Secretary of State's chair. "I think I am reading this in Doonesbury."

Later I asked an aide how many of those hundreds of pictures would ever be published anywhere. "Probably none," he admitted, "or maybe less than one percent. Everyone already has plenty of pictures of the president."

Greg Shadko marks 80th birthday Friday

By PEG OHLE

It will be happy 80th birthday for Gregory Shadko of Charlevoix this Friday.

The Russian-born, long-time resident looked back on his past and continuing career in the field of engineering in a recent talk with the Courier.

He came to the United States, first to Chicago, with his family in 1912, and to Charlevoix in 1930. After attending Alma College and graduating from Michigan Agricultural College (now MSU) in engineering, he worked with the Michigan State Highway Department for 11 years. He then joined the old Conservation Department and worked as a CCC camp superintendent for five or six years.

He was still with the conservation Department when he came to Charlevoix, setting up public access plans for lakes, rivers and streams. It was the first public access program in the country.

"I worked in every county in the state," Shadko explains. "I had an office in the Charlevoix County Courthouse and three construction crews."

"I take special pride in having talked the State into buying and developing the public access at Ironton. I was also instrumental in opening the Ferry Avenue docking facilities in 1955. It was just a piece of swamp. We made more improvements 19 years later. I also had a hand in developing Bell's Bay. My friend and neighbor, Clarence Rabach, and I got together to improve Bell's Bay and make it a camping site. We arranged to have a State crew brought in and have Bell's Bay cleaned out. The City helped by drilling a well and improving the road.

"I also took an interest in the environment when they started talking about Medusa. I opposed it without success, but I do take pride in helping prevent the State from selling 200 acres of land around Bell's Bay to Medusa."

Since retiring from the Department of Natural Resources (formerly Conservation Department) in 1967, Shadko has been busy with engineering projects for Charlevoix County, Charlevoix Township, and the City of Charlevoix. He was hired to engineer the sewer extension to Grandview Medical Care Facility, and later the water extension. He helped Charlevoix Township drill four deep wells, build two pump houses, and lay five and a half miles of water mains. He is still working for the Township, completing installation of water mains for two wells, and extending the mains along US 31 south and north.

As if that weren't enough, Shadko is finishing up a pumping station in East Jordan to raise the water pressure at Grandview and at the Lake View plant there.

"All my life I have worked and worked hard," Shadko says, almost in defense of the vacation trip he and Mrs. Shadko now take.

"We like to travel," he adds. We have been to Western Europe, the Caribbean Islands, Central America, Japan, Eastern Asia, Australia, New Zealand, South Pacific Islands, Mexico, and Canada.

"We take time to travel. Lately we have been going to Florida for three months in the winter. We like it around the Key Biscayne Islands."

As to hobbies, Shadko says he used to hunt and fish and fly the owned two planes at one time. Now his main hobby is attending concerts, of which there are many in Florida.

Shadko, a widower, and Mildred Crump, a widow, were married in 1972. Shadko has a son, Warren, who graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1949, and is now in the investigative service branch of the Navy in Memphis. He, his wife and four children will be on hand to wish father and grandfather a very "happy birthday."

Bill Huber, administrative assistant to Senator Ben D. Davis, will be in Charlevoix County November 22 and 30.

Huber will hold office hours from 12 noon to 1 p.m. at the Bay Township Hall in Horton Bay and from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the Melrose Township Hall in Walloon Lake on November 22.

Outlines protection program

Clean water committee sets goals

A study of what should be done in this area to protect the quality of the water is nearing completion.

The Clean Water Citizens Advisory Commission, a group studying the quality of water in this area and the programs controlling water pollution is aiming at a February deadline for the completion of their proposed Clean Water Program for the Northwest Region.

Larry Levensgood of the District 3 Health Department and a Charlevoix County representative on the commission, said the group has outlined goals and policies it would like to meet and has set up several task forces to study specific clean water problem areas.

Levensgood, Bill Mercer, former county planner; and Bill Korthase, of the Charlevoix County Road Commission, represent the county on the clean water commission.

"The commission has been working under the premise that our water is relatively good when it is compared to the water of a more urbanized area such as Detroit or Cleveland," Levensgood explained. "So we have set as one of our goals the preserbut I still have a lot to learn," he adds.

Block likes his job because it is always different. "There is a different situation every time the phone rings."

Most of his work has to do with sewage disposal systems, largely because of the large number of vacation homes in the area. In this field he deals frequently with other county agencies — Building Inspection, Equalization, Sheriff, and Register of Deeds.

Block says he especially appreciates the teamwork among the agencies. The new sanitarian is single and lives in Charlevoix.

The program called, "Learning Unlimited," has been operating for about two weeks at the school and already teachers have seen some improvement in students' skills, according to Evans.

All of the sixth grade students and 22 seventh and eighth grade students are participating in the computerized learning program.

The teacher explained that the students were given two informal tests to determine roughly what their reading level was. From there, they were given a diagnostic test designed by a reading specialist to indicate what their strengths and weaknesses were in various skill areas.

The tests were then sent in to be corrected by the computer. Based on the results of the tests, the computer set up various "prescriptions" in cure whatever reading ills the students had.

The computerized prescriptions are called modules and each module has five lessons emphasizing the various aspects of one particular skill area in reading.

A new program aimed at the educational needs of academically talented students is getting under way at the Charlevoix Elementary School.

The new program is expected to begin following the Christmas holidays and after the completion of the nomination and selection of students for the program is expected to begin sometime next week, Miss Christensen said.

The teacher explained that academically talented students are those children whose abilities, talents and potential for accomplishment are so outstanding that they require special provisions to meet their educational needs.

"There are many bright children at the elementary school," she said. "But just a few of those children are academically talented. The definition of academically talented students includes only two to three percent of the entire student population at the school."

Miss Christensen said teachers at the Charlevoix Elementary School have been looking for help for academically talented students for about six years, but funding and materials have not been available.

However, recently the educational needs of the academically talented students have been recognized by the federal and state governments and limited funding has been made available for research, pilot programs and consultants.

The K-5 school has not received any of these funds, but because of special cooperation between the staff members, Miss Christensen has been able to get a program established without the funds.

Miss Christensen said there were several reasons for establishing a program for academically talented children. She pointed out that talented students who are unchallenged in the classroom often become underachievers, potential just as mentally impaired or emotionally

New sanitarian joins health department staff

By PEG OHLE

Block came to Charlevoix County from Ferris State College, from which he received a degree in environmental health last spring. He is a native of Big Rapids and a graduate of Big Rapids High School.

In his job as Environmental Sanitarian, Block has duties in some 20 fields, mostly inspection. They include food service, well permits, sewage disposal, mobile homes, children's camps, campgrounds, and public health nuisances. He is also charged with some public relations work, such as making talks to organizations.

"I got interested in the environment from an ecological standpoint," Block says, "then in school I became more interested in the public health aspect — the enhancement of public health through environmental control."

"I feel Ferris trained me well in the basic philosophy, but I still have a lot to learn," he adds.

Block likes his job because it is always different. "There is a different situation every time the phone rings."

Computer adds new dimension to middle school reading

By PEG OHLE

A new dimension has been added to reading at the Charlevoix Middle School—computer programming.

In addition to three teachers, Hal Evans, Lucy Martin and Nancy Nagurka, and two aides, Arlyssa Staiblin and Evelyn Noiro, reading students at the middle school get help in their studies from a computer located in Connecticut.

Joy Marie Whitley marries Greg Greenman at Church of God

Joy Marie Whitley of Charlevoix became the bride of Greg J. Greenman of East Jordan November 12 in the Community Church of God.

The Reverend James Cranick performed the double-ring candlelight ceremony before an altar graced with arrangements of pink carnations and white pompones accented with blue.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley J. Whitley of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Greenman of East Jordan.

Complete her costume, she wore a white hat trimmed with a pink scarf.

Cousin Lynn Whitley, sister of the bride, and Cheryl Hall of Cedar Springs served as bridesmaids. Their gowns were similar to that of the maid of honor but the flare of the skirt was trimmed with blue scarves.

Christine Dembinsky, cousin of the bride, as flower girl, wore a gown fashioned by her mother to match that of the maid of honor.

The rehearsal dinner, a wild game supper featuring barbequed bear ribs, was hosted in their home by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Whitley.

The bride-elect, a 1977 graduate of the Charlevoix High School, is employed at the Char-Em Intermediate School District Service Center here. She is a senior at the Charlevoix High School.

Parents of the prospective bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. John Stebe, Jr.

The wedding will be an event of December 16 at the First Congregational Church here.

By the time they got to us, we were too tired from writing to have stage fright," Mrs. Pease said of their appearance.

"We couldn't hear the other contestants so we didn't know what kind of competition we had. We just sat around and visited with the other contestants. When we went on the stage, the spotlight was on us and we couldn't see the audience so we just played." She went on to say that with only one contestant after them they didn't have long to wait for the decision.

The contestants were called back to the stage and the winners announced. "From where we were standing all we heard was 'tag-along' and our reaction was 'It can't be us' but it was," Mrs. Pease said.

Mr. Warner said much the same thing. "We sure were surprised. But I guess we shouldn't have been. We got a big hand when we played our four selections" he added.

There were three divisions among the 21 finalists, variety, vocal and instrumental. The "Tag-Alongs" were strictly in the latter category.

The group is entered in an amateur trio playing only for entertainment at their own Grange, the Barnard Grange, located south of Charlevoix. All three have full time jobs.

Their selections were "Walkin' Uptown" which features the banjo, "The Waltz You Saved for Me," "Margie" and "San Antonio Rose" all played within six minutes, the time allotted each entry.

Since 1974, Respiratory Therapy has been a full time department at the hospital.

Respiratory Therapy is one of the newest health care departments among hospital services everywhere," Larry Jacobs, Department Head explains.

"We take care of people with breathing problems, such as emphysema victims, asthma patients, people with cardiac arrest. We teach cardiopulmonary resuscitation, also," the certified respiratory therapist continued.

When Respiratory Therapy became an hospital department at Charlevoix Area Hospital, Physical Therapy was asked to share the space it already occupied.

And because of the growing out-patient load on other services, out-patient EKG (electrocardiograms for heart patients) joined Respiratory Therapy and Physical Therapy.

In fact, Larry Jacobs said, "When the emergency room is crowded, we provide extra space for them as well."

Head of the Physical Therapy Department, Joan Giggs showed a visitor her various pieces of equipment, designed to help the recovery of patients with arthritis, fractures, back problems, bioplastic tendons ("frozen shoulder") and stroke victims.

An exercise chair, parallel bars and other equipment stand in front of Respiratory Therapist Jacobs' equipment. Around a corner are two whirlpool baths, and machines for diathermy (deep heat), traction, and ultra sound.

"Doctors are more conscious of physical therapy," Mrs. Giggs explained, "We have a constant increase in patients."

Discussing the growth of demand on these services, Lab Chief Hooper said, "It reflects a greater demand by a greater number of physicians and a larger out-patient community."

That these departments are providing quality care was attested to by the recent Accreditation of the Charlevoix Area hospital by the Joint Commission on Hospital Accreditation.

The rapid growth of out-patient and in-patient use of these departments has created some inconveniences at times, but as Radiologic Technologist, Jerry Bremner observed, "While an emergency, which takes priority, may back things up a bit, the waits are still not as long as at many larger hospitals."

"Most patients are understanding," he emphasized. Space, not only to perform their vital work, but to store records has become a problem.

"We keep records for 5 years," the technologist explained. "We used to call the five year old films once a year. Now we must go through them every six months to squeeze in the new ones."

Record keeping is a space problem in the lab as well. And as Hooper points out the lab has recently added the capability to perform bacteriological tests in addition to hematology (blood counts), serology (tests on specimens for disease conditions) and blood chemistry tests (such as blood sugar tests).

The lab also contains the blood bank and the necessary equipment to perform all its functions.

Hooper would like to triple his working area and isolate certain sensitive areas, such as bacteriology.

"We run a lab here of which we're proud," he states. "We seek constantly to increase the depth of technical output of our lab. Striving to do a constantly better job, adding to our technical depth will mean taking on more jobs," Hooper explained.

Laboratory tests which require highly specialized and expensive equipment are sent out by daily courier service to such labs as Little Traverse Division of Northern Michigan Hospitals or to Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.

In each of these busy departments the story is similar. With the virtual doubling of the number of physicians on staff in the past several years and the population growth of the area, the hospital's usage was bound to reflect growth.

Richard Krueger, Hospital Administrator says, "These are the areas of highest priority for expansion in our long range plans."

Ferris State College honors 3 area students

Three Charlevoix County students at Ferris State College were recently honored for scholastic excellence during the summer quarter. Those named were Stephen W. Gilewicz of Charlevoix, Frank T. Winter of East Jordan, and Alfred J. Hass, III of Walloon Lake.

To receive honors, a student must earn at least a 3.25 average on a 4.0 basis and carry a full academic load.

Local grange band takes national title in music

CHARLEVOIX — It took an unknown trio of amateur musicians from the Barnard Grange to bring the Michigan Grange its first national talent prize in the word from Greensboro, N.C.

That's right—the first place winner in the instrumental category of the national talent contest in which there were 21 entries was Jasper and his Tag-Alongs who had gone to the national convention of the Grange after placing first at the state convention in Gaylord recently.

Members of the trio are Jasper Warner, guitarist, Mr. Leon (Delores) Pease, pianist, and William Stevens, guitarist, who were No. 20 in the order of appearance at the Greensboro Coliseum.

The bride-elect, a 1977 graduate of the Charlevoix High School, is employed at the Char-Em Intermediate School District Service Center here. She is a senior at the Charlevoix High School.

Parents of the prospective bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. John Stebe, Jr.

The wedding will be an event of December 16 at the First Congregational Church here.

By the time they got to us, we were too tired from writing to have stage fright," Mrs. Pease said of their appearance.

"We couldn't hear the other contestants so we didn't know what kind of competition we had. We just sat around and visited with the other contestants. When we went on the stage, the spotlight was on us and we couldn't see the audience so we just played." She went on to say that with only one contestant after them they didn't have long to wait for the decision.

The contestants were called back to the stage and the winners announced. "From where we were standing all we heard was 'tag-along' and our reaction was 'It can't be us' but it was," Mrs. Pease said.

Mr. Warner said much the same thing. "We sure were surprised. But I guess we shouldn't have been. We got a big hand when we played our four selections" he added.

There were three divisions among the 21 finalists, variety, vocal and instrumental. The "Tag-Alongs" were strictly in the latter category.

The group is entered in an amateur trio playing only for entertainment at their own Grange, the Barnard Grange, located south of Charlevoix. All three have full time jobs.

Their selections were "Walkin' Uptown" which features the banjo, "The Waltz You Saved for Me," "Margie" and "San Antonio Rose" all played within six minutes, the time allotted each entry.

Since 1974, Respiratory Therapy has been a full time department at the hospital.

Respiratory Therapy is one of the newest health care departments among hospital services everywhere," Larry Jacobs, Department Head explains.

"We take care of people with breathing problems, such as emphysema victims, asthma patients, people with cardiac arrest. We teach cardiopulmonary resuscitation, also," the certified respiratory therapist continued.

When Respiratory Therapy became an hospital department at Charlevoix Area Hospital, Physical Therapy was asked to share the space it already occupied.

And because of the growing out-patient load on other services, out-patient EKG (electrocardiograms for heart patients) joined Respiratory Therapy and Physical Therapy.

In fact, Larry Jacobs said, "When the emergency room is crowded, we provide extra space for them as well."

Head of the Physical Therapy Department, Joan Giggs showed a visitor her various pieces of equipment, designed to help the recovery of patients with arthritis, fractures, back problems, bioplastic tendons ("frozen shoulder") and stroke victims.

An exercise chair, parallel bars and other equipment stand in front of Respiratory Therapist Jacobs' equipment. Around a corner are two whirlpool baths, and machines for diathermy (deep heat), traction, and ultra sound.

"Doctors are more conscious of physical therapy," Mrs. Giggs explained, "We have a constant increase in patients."

Discussing the growth of demand on these services, Lab Chief Hooper said, "It reflects a greater demand by a greater number of physicians and a larger out-patient community."

That these departments are providing quality care was attested to by the recent Accreditation of the Charlevoix Area hospital by the Joint Commission on Hospital Accreditation.

The rapid growth of out-patient and in-patient use of these departments has created some inconveniences at times, but as Radiologic Technologist, Jerry Bremner observed, "While an emergency, which takes priority, may back things up a bit, the waits are still not as long as at many larger hospitals."

"Most patients are understanding," he emphasized. Space, not only to perform their vital work, but to store records has become a problem.

"We keep records for 5 years," the technologist explained. "We used to call the five year old films once a year. Now we must go through them every six months to squeeze in the new ones."

Record keeping is a space problem in the lab as well. And as Hooper points out the lab has recently added the capability to perform bacteriological tests in addition to hematology (blood counts), serology (tests on specimens for disease conditions) and blood chemistry tests (such as blood sugar tests).

The lab also contains the blood bank and the necessary equipment to perform all its functions.

Hooper would like to triple his working area and isolate certain sensitive areas, such as bacteriology.

Key departments at Charlevoix hospital feel crush of increased patient loads

Key departments at Charlevoix Area Hospital are feeling the results of the increasing patient load.

These departments—X-ray, laboratory, physical therapy, and respiratory therapy—are, in fact, bulging at the seams.

The X-ray department patient load has almost doubled in three years.

According to the hospital's radiology staff, and average of 720 X-ray procedures are now performed a month, whereas in 1974 the average was only 400 X-ray procedures a month.

In the lab, usage has tripled since 1974.

Chief Technologist, Jim Hooper said that about 1,000 tests were performed per month in 1974. This year the lab's average number of tests per month was 3,000, or about 100 tests per day, seven days a week, conducted by the staff of four.

Since 1974, Respiratory Therapy has been a full time department at the hospital.

With the virtual doubling of the number of physicians on staff in the past several years and the population growth of the area, the hospital's usage was bound to reflect growth.

Richard Krueger, Hospital Administrator says, "These are the areas of highest priority for expansion in our long range plans."

Mail order shoppers have rights

"Beat the rush and order now." "Orders received by November 30, knock off 5 percent." It's the time of year that early shoppers start ordering things for Christmas from mail order houses. And ordering early should assure that you get your gifts in time.

Now a Federal Trade Commission rule lets you know when you can expect shipment on merchandise ordered through the mail. To learn your rights, get a copy of the free pamphlet, Shopping by Mail. You're Protected! Just send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 627E, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Here's what you can count on if you order through the mail:

If an ad or brochure says that the manufacturer will "rush" your order to you within a week, for example, your order must be shipped within that time.

If the seller doesn't give a date for shipment, you can expect that your merchandise will be shipped within 30 days.

If the seller doesn't ship your goods within the stated time or within 30 days, you have the right to cancel the order.

And if the seller finds that your merchandise can't be shipped within the stated time or 30 days, the company must notify you of the delay and offer you the chance to get your money back. If you don't take advantage of the postage paid reply card to get your money back, the seller can assume you agree to the delay.

If the shipping delay is for more than 30 days beyond the original shipping date, you have to give your consent to the delay. Otherwise, it means cancellation and the seller must return your money.

If you do ask for your money back, the seller must mail your refund to you within seven work days after you cancel your order. If you charged the item, the seller has one billing cycle to correct the account.

There are some mail order services where this rule does not apply: photo finishing, magazine subscriptions (other than the first issue), mail order seeds and growing plants, c.o.d. orders, and credit orders where the buyer's account is not charged before shipment of the merchandise.

And if merchandise is mailed to you without your ordering it, don't worry about it. If you get something you didn't order, you can keep it as a gift. You don't have to pay for unsolicited merchandise, and it's illegal for the person or firm sending it to pressure you to pay for it, or to ask for its return.

Girls varsity basketball team wins thriller in overtime

The Charlevoix Rayders girls varsity basketball team won a thriller last week from the Boyne City Ramblers. Charlevoix squeaked by Boyne City 49-48 in overtime on the Ramblers home court. "The team played really well," Coach Toni Felter said. "They were tough all night. They stuck to their defense and their offense worked well, too."

Coach Felter said Laurie Gibbs played an exceptionally fine game against the Ramblers, pumping in 10 points, capturing 20 rebounds, stealing the ball 10 times and having one assist.

Mrs. Felter also singled out Chris Lehman, Sherrie Selissen and Jackie Paul for the good game they played. Boyne City started the game out strong, taking the lead 14 to 9 in the first period. Charlevoix then dumped 15 points in the basket during the second period while Boyne City only hit for two points. In the third period Boyne City came back to add 14 points while Charlevoix only hit for four and then the two teams were tied up at 40-40 with Charlevoix adding 12 points in the fourth quarter and Boyne City adding two. Charlevoix made nine points in the overtime period while Boyne City only hit for eight points. "Freethrows saved us," Coach Felter said. "We had a much better average than Boyne City."

Selissen was the high scorer for the Rayders with 15 points and Paul had 8. Dawn Tunn had 14 and Penny Grunow how 10 for the Boyne City squad. The Rayders also played well Tuesday against the St. Ignace Saints. The Rayders lost the contest after a tough fight 57-59.

"They looked tough until the fourth quarter," the coach said. "And then they fell apart."

St. Ignace took a three point lead in the first quarter 13-10. The Saints then edged their lead up to 26-22. During the third period the score moved to 37-32. During the fourth quarter the Saints pumped in 20 points to increase their lead over the Rayders and win the game. Selissen was the high scorer of the game with 18 points and Lehman had 10. DD Reddman had 10 points and Lisa TerAves had 14 for the Saints.

Tuesday will be Parents Night for the Rayders as they meet Potoskey in the Charlevoix High School gym.

Boys basketball teams ready to roll next week

The sound of bouncing basketballs has been echoing throughout the Charlevoix High School gym as the boys varsity and junior varsity basketball squads join the girls varsity and junior varsity teams in practice. The boys began practicing for the winter sport the Monday following the end of football season and have been working hard ever since.

Five lettermen are returning to the team this year including: Jim Alger, Kip Cinnamon, Neil Dziedzic, Jim Elzinga and Joe Left.

Seven members have moved up from the junior varsity squad including: Doug Buday, Bob Drost, Kevin Kratt, Gilbert Noiro, Bob Plumm, Pat Schmidt and Todd Williams. Senior Steve Schuch is new to the program this year and rounds out the team roster.

The Rayders will open their season next Tuesday when they meet Gaylord in the Charlevoix High School gym. Gaylord will be tough competition for the Rayders this year, according to head coach David Moyer. The coach predicts Potoskey will also be a tough team to beat because of its exceptionally tall players. Moyer picked Rogers City as the toughest team in the league this year, however. "I think Rogers City will be the team to beat this year," Moyer said. "They only graduated one starter last year."

Charlevoix, on the other hand, graduated nine players last year including the starting five players.

"I think we will be competitive in the league," the coach said. "One thing we've got going for us is the football season and the winning tradition of Charlevoix teams. The attitude is great right now."

Moyer said the team would be running a lot due to the fact that it is not a tall team. Left heads the height list at 6 feet 3 inches followed by Cinnamon, Drost, Plumm and Schuch at 6 foot 1.

The team will play a 19 game schedule this year. One team, Covert, dropped off the schedule for the year.

Nine Charlevoix players named on conference list

Nine Charlevoix Rayder varsity football players were among those named in the selection of the Michigan-Huron Shores All Conference Team.

Co-captains Tom Jones and Kip Cinnamon as well as Jim Elzinga, Greg Krueger and Harry Potter were named to the team. Quarterback Jim Alger, Pat Klooster and Neil Dziedzic received honorable mention on the all-conference list while Joe Left received special mention.

Gaylord, which finished in second place behind the Rayders for the 1977 football season, had the next highest number of players mentioned in the all conference selection. Singled out from the Blue Devils team were: John Singleton, Chris Arnold, Stu Love and Kurt Lang, while Dan Arnold, Gary Galbraith and Chad Impellizzeri received honorable mention. From the Cheboygan Chaps, Dan Lange, Keith Moore and Lewis Rose were named to the all conference team. Roger Armantrant received honorable mention.

The Northern in Potoskey also had three members on the all conference team, Mark Hoch, Sulo Otto, and Spencer Damschroder. From St. Ignace, Chuck Kahlfleisch, Dan Wyers and Mark Cryderman were named to the team and Ed Ope received honorable mention. Tom Dressel and Dan Schmitt of Boyne City were named to the team and Bryan Price received honorable mention in the all conference selection.

Rogers City contributed Mark Gruke and Jerry Buczkowski to the all conference squad and Grayling contributed Bill O'Mara and Mark Golick.

B League leaders continue to head winner's circle

The leaders of the Charlevoix Recreation Department B League continued in their winning ways this week.

Tri-City Asphalt routed First State Bank 59-37 in the first game of league action. Tri-City was off to a running start in the first quarter with a 16-4 lead over First State.

However, First State came back to tie up the score in the second period 22-22.

Tri-City surged a head 39-30 in the third quarter and then took the game 59-37.

High pointmen for Tri-City were Keith Klooster, 16, Mike Crain, 14, and Dave Norton, 17. Jim Gels had 15 points for First State. In the second game of B League action last week, County State Bank downed Medusa 57-31. It was a close game for the first half with County Bank taking a slim 12-10 lead in the first period and then moving to a 27-19 lead in the second period.

The lead was still fairly small in the third period at 33-29, but County Bank moved ahead in the fourth quarter to take the game 57-31.

Top scorers for County State Bank were Larry Skippersgosh and Steve Martinus both with 14 points. Tom Morrison had 8 points for Medusa.

In the final game of B League action last week, Wojan Aluminum defeated Alray Cottages 46-38. Once again, this game was very close for the first three quarters. Wojan moved to 9-4 lead in the first period and then fell behind 22-18 in the second period. The game was tied at 30-30 in the third quarter and then Wojan pumped in 16 points to Alray's 8 to make the final score 46-38.

Top scorers for Wojan were Denny Younglake, 14, Don Ward, 11 and Clay Jones, 10. High scorers for Alray were Scott Blanchard, 14, and Dave Martineck, 10.

Bob's Sunoco takes 1st win during A League action

A new team joined the winner's circle in the Charlevoix Recreation Department A League Basketball.

Bob's Sunoco recorded its first win last week by defeating Site Planning 82-69. The team started out the first quarter one point behind Site planning 15-14. In the second period Bob's came back to lead 34-22 and continued to hold the lead in the third period 57-42.

High scorers for Bob's were Joel Donaldson, 18, Ken Derenzy, 16, Max Bolser and Jack Dunbar, 14 and Rick VanStedum, 12.

Terry Hissett had 15, Tim Carey, 14 and Paul Osterberg 11 for Site Planning.

Swansons was also in the winners circle last week as it defeated Foam Corp 67-58. Swansons had to come from behind a seven point lead by Foam Corps in the first period 18-11.

But once Swansons got the lead in the second period, 32-29 it never gave it up. Swansons led 49-42 in the third period. Top scorers for Swansons were Dave Moyer, 18, Bruce MacGillison, 17, and David Swanson, 11. Mike Streeter had 20 points for Swanson with Dale Boss at 12 and Randy Holscheck at 11.

In the final game of A League play last week, Townhouse defeated Kadens 64-50. Like the other winners this week, Townhouse started out behind their opponents 15-11. The team came back to take the lead 32-26 in the second period and to hold onto it at 51-42 in the third period.

Leading scorers for Townhouse were Bill Carey with 13, Jerome Harris, 12 and Ike Boss, 10. VanAlstine had 13 and Keith Fitzpatrick, 10 for Kadens.

8th grade champs

THE CHARLEVOIX MIDDLE School girls 8th grade basketball team poses proudly with the trophy they won during a recent tournament. The girls played in a double elimination tournament at Cheboygan Middle School. The Charlevoix girls won third place after defeating Cheboygan Catholic, 22-15, and 34-20 and Gaylord, 24-20. St. Ignace took first and Cheboygan, second.

Junior varsity continues to add up the victories

The Rayder Junior varsity girls basketball team added two more wins to their string of wins last week. The JVs downed both Boyne City and Saint Ignace to maintain their first place standing in the league.

The Boyne City game was a low scoring event with the Rayders winning 29-19. "We hit 11 for 60 field goals," Coach Henry Wagner said. "That's 18 percent from the floor. We had seven of 12 freethrows. "Usually we're 9 for 10." Wagner said that star scorer Melinda Klooster is still suffering from an injury that occurred Nov. 1 and that her shooting game is off. Klooster had 16 points in the game however. The Rayders game against mentor system under development. resource people who share an interest and expertise in a subject the students are studying will be used as a guide to further study in that area.

St. Ignace was a little better with the JVs winning 40-20. The score was 32-8 in the third period when Coach Wagner began substituting his players.

Students will be selected for the program through a case study approach. Miss Christensen explained. A screening committee of staff members will consider nomination forms from parents and other staff members. Standardized test scores and past and present academic achievement of all students will also be checked.

Following the initial nomination made in-depth forms designed by experts will be filled out and the final decision will be made by the screening committee.

Nomination forms will be sent home to all parents at the end of this week.

"It will be a long process and some people will probably be disappointed with the final selection," Miss Christensen said. "But it is important that we get started with the program."

"Academically talented students are one of the country's most neglected natural resources."

The teacher said a separate program had to be established to help the talented students because the teacher-student ratio in the regular classroom does not allow for the individualized attention that the time they need to work with talented students. Also the scheduling and curriculum in the classroom prohibits the

A separate program is also needed so that the students can interact with each other for the intellectual stimulation and challenge that they need, she said.

The academically talented program will be individualized and set up on a mentor system. Under the 27% at high school take off for hunting

Deer hunting season took its toll on the Charlevoix School District last week.

The halls of Charlevoix High School were a little less crowded as 173 students or 27 percent of the enrollment at the high school asked for prearranged absences so they could go deer hunting when the season opened last Tuesday.

A typical school day would find about 5 percent of the students absent, according to Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren.

Residents propose 3 marina classifications

New zoning classifications, designed to protect the marina and commercial fishing business in Charlevoix, have been proposed to the Charlevoix Common Council.

A citizens committee has proposed that the common council include three new classifications-marine commercial, marine commercial scenic, and commercial fishing.

As the proposed ordinance now stands, all of the land surrounding Round Lake and some of the land along Lake Charlevoix where marinas and commercial fishing businesses are currently operating, fall into planned development (PUD) zoning. However, marinas are not listed among the many uses included in the PUD zoning section of the proposed ordinance.

Alarmed by the lack of zoning for marinas, a group of city residents approached Mayor Edward Hansen and the common council about preparing some zoning classifications they felt would adequately cover their land.

The group, headed by Tom Duke, presented its ideas last week.

Calling the PUD zoning classification "particularly undesirable designation" and "petty, underhanded and disastrous" the group proposed that all land along Belvedere Avenue and fronting on Round Lake and all the land along Ferry Avenue and fronting on Lake Charlevoix fall under a marine commercial zoning classification.

Land in this classification could be used for municipal or private docking, launching or the handling or servicing of boats, beaches and recreation areas and would also include retail businesses which supply products for people using the facilities of the district.

Much of the land proposed to fall under the marine commercial classification is already being used in this manner.

A second classification, commercial scenic, was written to cover the land along Park Avenue and fronting on the Pine River channel. Uses in the district include: florist shops, boutiques, clothing stores, party stores, banks, professional offices, restaurants, taverns, lodge halls, private clubs and multiple dwellings.

However, because the businesses will be located in particularly visible locations, they must provide site plans and renderings showing that all elevations will be faced with attractive materials.

The committee proposed that the property housing the former Charlevoix Lumber Company fall into this classification.

"This is the type of zoning that the people who own property want, this is the type they are using and this is the type they can live with," Duke pointed out in his presentation.

"The zoning classifications are based on various recommended uses of the waterfront areas by the owners of the property."

John Cross, whose husband operates John Cross Fisheries, was pleased with the way that the three zoning classifications turned out.

"Under the PUD zoning there was nothing for marinas," Mrs. Cross pointed out. "This provides for us and is good for our needs."

"We tried to keep Round Lake a natural harbor and I think this will help."

Two developers vieing for housing commission nod

Charlevoix Housing Commission plans to develop a senior citizen housing complex in the city have been on the back burner for the past few months.

But last week things started to heat up again.

Housing commission members, faced with a search for a developer for the senior citizen complex just a few short weeks ago, now all of a sudden have two developers working for them.

The commission has been interviewing several private developers who are interested in constructing a senior citizen housing project in Charlevoix. When the housing commission went to a meeting of the Charlevoix Common Council to seek approval of Wiggins and Company of Grand Rapids, as the developer for a housing project in the city, it found that another company, Tempo of Ada, had been working on the purchase of a site for a complex for the past six weeks.

The commission has been interviewing several private developers who are interested in constructing a working to find a site for the senior citizens complex and both companies were attempting to purchase the same property.

"We're going to have to have a party with the common council and work this out," Mrs. Dinwiddie said. "But really there's no reason why we can't work with both developers. In Alpena for instance, they are working with four developers at the same time."

"Whoever comes up with a package, whoever is successful in getting funding will be the developer."

The housing commission has been working on plans for a senior citizen complex for three years without much success. However, things are looking up now.

"Several different funding programs have come out and we're quite optimistic about getting funding," Mrs. Dinwiddie said.

"It's been a terrible frustrating three years, but things are looking up now."

CITY CHARTER COMMISSION

Questions-Answers

I seem to remember that before the July 12th vote someone questioned the need for the "double service charges" provided by the new charter. What's this all about?

You'll have to ask whoever put that question. We can only suppose this refers to charges related to furnishing municipal utility services which, along with utility rates themselves, are "no higher than necessary to cover the costs of such utility, including depreciation, capital improvements, and the creating and maintaining of an emergency fund". Since there won't be any build-up of surpluses to be siphoned into the general fund, we should all wind up paying less overall for utility rates and charges. New accounting methods might call for some particular charges to go up and others down, to reflect true costs - but you'll have to ask the poser of that question why, or any, such charges should double under the new charter. If it's the inclusion of depreciation as a cost item that's causing the confusion, don't be misled. We'll pay, out of rates and charges, only once for any capital investment-not twice, as might be suggested. Will my taxes go up 90 percent under the new charter?

Who wants you to think so? And why?

Of course they won't! The new charter sets a limit of 15 mills-the same as presently set by the Fourth Class Cities Act. But there's this big difference: under the new charter you'll have all seven top officials-the mayor and the six Council members who directly elect-mighty concerned about what you think of the way they're spending money and levying taxes, instead of just the mayor and two Council members from your ward. So there'll be a lot more incentive for the Council to keep taxes down.

It's been said that under the proposed charter "your representation will be a little more remote" and "harder for you to get at when you're disgruntled about something". True?

False. You'll vote for the mayor and all six Council members-all seven top city officials. And all seven will be sensitive to what you think and say about what they're doing. You'll have real leverage to get four Council members to see it your way-a majority. As it is, you're voting for only the two Council members from your own ward-only half a majority-and for the mayor. The new charter gives you real influence with 7 of the 7 top officials-not just the 3 you vote for now.

How about 2 cents for your thoughts on killing penny

There's still time to put in your 2 cents worth to save the penny.

The days may be numbered for the half dollar, and the silver dollar may be in for a squeeze. But the penny-as old as the nation itself-can still be saved from extinction.

The penny-penny problem is its popularity. Millions of people save pennies, socking them away in piggy banks, old jars, and dresser drawers. Such rainy-day reserves account for 21 percent of the nation's pennies, says the Treasury, with another 10 percent listed as lost.

But pennies are needed. Some 11 billion of them were minted in 1976, and we'll need 12 to 15 billion by 1980, and 25 billion by 1990.

When copper went to war in 1943, over a billion pennies were made of steel coated with zinc, producing dull grayish coins.

The Treasury became penny-wise a few years ago when a survey recommended not only the penny be scrapped, but that no more half-dollars be made and that the dollar coin be squeezed down to the size of a quarter.

City, township residents should discuss merger, settle peacefully

Another proposal for the merger of the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township has come up for discussion.

Township Supervisor Oscar Stroud, speaking as a township resident and not in his official capacity, has proposed a five-year plan for merger.

The supervisor suggests that under the direction of a common council composed of three city residents and three township residents, a slow but sure merger of the water systems, fire departments, sewer systems, electrical systems and recreational facilities could take place.

Also the tax rate in the township would remain the same with only township tax monies being spent in the township and only city monies being spent in the city during the five-year period, according to Stroud's plan.

The township supervisor warns that most township residents do not want a merger, but he believes it is an issue that township residents should address. Stroud wants the township residents to be able to merge under conditions that they want and not have it forced on them.

Merger proposals won't go away if they are ignored. They keep coming back because the merger represents something that will benefit everyone.

Merger is inevitable. The township and the city need each other and the resources that each has to offer. The city can offer the township police protection they don't have now and expanded water, sewer, electric and recreational facilities.

The township, on the other hand, offers the city a place to grow to and human resources for improved government.

Together the two communities could meld into one beautiful unit striving toward the same goal. As it is, the two governmental units are running head to head against each other.

And because the two units don't get along, and are suspicious of each other even though they work, live and play together, large amounts of taxpayers money have been wasted in setting up separate water systems, separate fire departments and separate sewer systems.

Before another dollar is spent on separate systems, before another comment is made widening the rift between the township and the city, officials from both units owe it to their constituents to sit down together and try to work out an agreement for merger that would be palatable to everyone.

After all it is the elected officials' duty to act in the best interest of the residents of the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township. And a plan that is agreeable to everyone can accomplish it.

You tried my eggs for 230 TMUs — and the federal gov. must spend $46,000 to tell you it takes $38!

If I were 30 years younger, I think I'd go into medical research. There are so many tantalizing riddles in the field of medicine that need solving. For example: What about that report from France a few years ago that cancer is a virtually non-existent among youngsters who have been vaccinated against tuberculosis. Are the vaccines still showing immunity to cancer after a long period of time?

Have there been any correlated studies among populations still plagued with TB and their resistance to cancer. For example, the Japanese, American Indians and black Africans?

Is it coincidental that the increase in cancer in the United States came after TB had been virtually wiped out, thanks to streptomycin and improved surgical techniques?

Are any studies in progress as to the incidence of cancer among former TB patients in the United States?

If super-active immune systems do play a key role in the incidence of cancer, what lies in store for our youngsters whose immune systems have been altered by school-mandated vaccines covering a multitude of childhood illnesses? Will they be as active, more or less active than they are in children who missed a few days of school suffering from measles or whooping cough?

Is any research under way in the area of nutrition and arthritis?

With the arrival of the holiday season, victims of one form of arthritis — gout — are terrible aware once again of the insidious connection between their malady and the Thanksgiving turkey. I hadn't had a twinge of gout for months, until I ate a turkey thigh on Thanksgiving. The next day my elbow was hot and inflamed. If I had stuck with white meat I would have been OK, but the dark meat has all the flavor. Live and learn! No, I do it every year.

Since there is a definite link between gout and what is consumed, it would almost follow that the same connection exists between other forms of arthritis and diet — either in the form of a deficiency, or of an allergic reaction to certain foodstuffs. Perhaps the problems lies with metabolism. For some reason the body does not utilize food the way it should.

One of the most puzzling aspects of arthritis are the long periods of remission experienced by many patients. What happens to the body during those periods that is different from the normal course of affairs? Have certain foods have been added or removed from the diet? Do they occur during periods of emotional turmoil or emotional stability?

There are so many questions that need to be answered. I can see entire medical careers being spent asking questions, taking notes and collating information.

From here it appears that mankind's ills fall into five general classifications: (1) Those he was born with; (2) Injuries; (3) Diseases caused by microorganisms; (4) Degenerative diseases; and (5) Nutritional deficiencies.

But as late as 1977 the best medical minds in the country would be hard put to place either cancer or arthritis under any one of the five categories and have it meet with the approval of their colleagues.

Fochtman on charter

Editor: There were some comments in the Courier regarding the lack of good comments regarding the old City charter. As every one should know by now we are now functioning under State Law.

One of the good things about the present charter is that it does provide for the suspension of any one appointed by the mayor by a set procedure. Basically this same procedure was set up in the new charter. If anyone wants to look it up it is in chapter 7, 87.3 of the old charter.

The old charter also has a section in it regarding the leasing of docks and wharves. In chapter 17 it says that docks and wharves shall not be leased for a period of more than 5 years. Here again this has been incorporated in the new charter but has been expanded to include all leases.

Maybe the city attorney should spend some time looking over the present charter before any more leases are drawn up and give the Council some advice. After all, this is what he is being paid to do.

Everyone can remember where they were when they first heard about the bombing of Pearl Harbor, or the assassination of John Kennedy.

I can remember where I was, in 1944, when I first heard about Swainson's terrible wounds.

Swainson had been a high school football star, one of the best-known young men in our small town. He was handsome and bright, the boy that every mother hoped her daughter would bring home for dinner.

Many people cried at the loss of his legs, including me.

To be honest, my tears were partly for what had happened to John, and Wish could 'hark' for John partly for what might happen to me. I was a soldier home on furlough at the time, about to go overseas.

It was only a year or so later that John Swainson was back home, jitter-bugging on artificial legs at the sorority dances in the Masonic Temple. It was a grand thing to see him dance that way.

He was a real man and he went on to prove it in many ways, ultimately winning election to the highest office in the state. We were all so proud of him.

This week John Swainson was arrested for drunk driving and possession of marijuana. He conceded he might have had a little too much to drink that night because it was the 33rd anniversary of the day a land mine blew off his legs, and he was melancholy.

Some unknown person must have put a marijuana cigarette in his coat pocket, Swainson said.

So here is yesterday's hero, once again in trouble, and once again his admirers are torn between compassion and scorn.

2 years ago he was convicted of lying to a grand jury, forced to quit the Supreme Court and suspended from

...Speaking Her Mind

Sometimes it seems like getting my family to spend the holidays with me is like putting in a bid to get the Olympics located in Charlevoix. I have to vie with all the other relatives and offer something the family can't get anywhere else.

So this year, early in November, I put in a bid to have Thanksgiving at my house. Usually I spend Thanksgiving without my family because the holiday is too short and the trip too long to try and be with them.

As I surveyed all the pots I had going, my glance stopped at the turkey. I had gotten it stuffed without any problems and into the roaster. But for some reason it looked strange to me. However, it was browning well so I didn't give it a second thought.

After all, this was the second time I had cooked a turkey dinner. How hard could it be?

At that moment my family walked in the door and I didn't give the turkey another thought until about an hour later when I asked my mother to take a look at it to determine how close it was to being done. I also mentioned that the turkey was a little funny looking to me.

Mom took a look at the turkey and then started laughing.

"You've got it in here upside down," she said. "Of course it's funny looking."

Embarrassed, I helped her flip the turkey over and just a little while later we sat down to dinner. The turkey didn't taste any different and it certainly got cooked a lot faster.

I'm always intrigued with those picture stories they do on the President of the United States that compare how he looked when he entered office and how, within a few short months, it has aged him.

There was one in the paper last week of President Carter. The article was quick to point out that within just 11 months in office, there were 'new furrows in his brow, deeper creases in his cheeks, fresh lines around his eyes and more flesh beneath his chin, suggesting an aging process unrelated to time.'

Big deal! Beside Delores Finkoff who just taught her teenage son how to drive, he looks like Ronnie Osmond at a Prune Festival. Delores was a beautiful girl...taut skin, smiled easily, with deep-set eyes that looked right at you when you talked.

"He sidwiped my mailbox, ran down a 200-year-old blue spruce, and sunk the rear wheels over the septic tank."

"You can't go on like this. 'You're looking more like Abraham Lincoln every day. President Carter looks better than you."

"Why shouldn't he?" she snarled. "All he's got is the energy program, Lance, the Panama Canal and Andrew Young."

We heard the wheels spin, the brakes screech and a garbage can rolled into the street. "Wait! I'm getting her temps. You'll never see those straight, white, smiling teeth again."

Meet Charlevoix

...Edith Harris

Edith Harris is one of the many born-in-Charlevoix persons who spend a large part of their lives elsewhere but returned "home" to spend their retirement years. This week the Courier talks with Miss Harris about some of her present-day interests.

COURIER: Did you attend school in Charlevoix?

HARRIS: I started school here, but my father was a civil engineer and we moved around a lot. We moved to Detroit just before our class was to learn fractions. The class in Detroit had already finished with them. That's the way it was, but when I got to high school my mother put me in a boarding school in Sycamore, Illinois. I spent four years there.

COURIER: What did you do after you finished high school?

HARRIS: I worked for some time in a book department at Marshall Field's in Chicago and also did office work, but we always came back to Charlevoix in the summers.

COURIER: That's quite a book department, isn't it?

HARRIS: It certainly is. They could sell catalogs! They could sell books to keep busy these days.

HARRIS: I make hand and string puppets and tell stories to children. I also read a lot.

COURIER: How did you become a story teller?

HARRIS: Because of my father's work, we lived in a lot of construction camps, far out where there were no libraries or book stores. My mother used to tell me stories for entertainment and I began telling myself stories. When I lived in Chicago, I was president of the Story League there.

COURIER: What children do you tell stories to?

HARRIS: Last week I went to Traverse City to tell stories to the sixth grade students. Last summer, Julia Baer invited me to the Girl Scout Camp down there. To tell stories and bring my puppets. I've also talked to the children at Interlochen, and pretty soon, when the fourth grade class here studies Africa, I'm going to talk to them about African folklore.

COURIER: What kinds of stories do you tell?

HARRIS: Fables, folklore, Thanksgiving tales, Christmas legends, things like that.

COURIER: What kinds of books do you like to read?

HARRIS: All kinds — except sexy ones or those with dirty words. Right now I'm reading J.R.R. Tolkien's "The Silmarillion." It's about the time before the earth was formed, strictly imaginary, of course. I especially like to read children's books.

COURIER: Do you belong to any organizations?

HARRIS: Just two circles at the Congregational Church. I'm going to tell a Christmas story at the Mary Brewster circle.

COURIER: Do you have any hobbies?

HARRIS: At holiday time I make marzipan candy in the form of fruits and vegetables and kamquat marmalade. I also decorate my apartment and put a small tree outside the door.

COURIER: When did you come back to Charlevoix to live permanently?

HARRIS: In 1963, and I've lived in this same apartment ever since.

COURIER: How old are you?

HARRIS: If I told you how old I am, people would say, "Why doesn't she net her age?"

COURIER: You have several nice antiques.

HARRIS: The clock is over 100 years. It's made of mother of pearl set in iron. The chest is a reproduction of one in the Amsterdam Museum. I've had it a long time. The brass teakettle is an old replica of one in the museum at Williamsburg.

COURIER: I don't see a TV set.

HARRIS: I don't have one and don't want one.

COURIER: Do you ever listen to the radio?

HARRIS: Once in a while, mostly for news.

COURIER: You mentioned earlier that you spend your summers at your cottage, where is it?

HARRIS: On Lake Charlevoix near Ironton. People worry about me not there without a phone or car, but I like it.

Edith Harris

COURIER: Have you ever done any traveling?

HARRIS: I went to Germany twice, once for a year's time. We headquartered in a small town and traveled all around. I enjoyed it.

COURIER: What changes have occurred in Charlevoix since your early memories of it?

HARRIS: The fine resort hotels are all gone. We used to get Sunday dinners at the Fountain House for about 25 cents. There used to be stores along the block where the park now is. The old bridge used to swing instead of go up and down like this one does.

COURIER: What is your philosophy of life?

HARRIS: Live by the Golden Rule and Ten Commandments.

COURIER: Do you have any relatives in town?

HARRIS: My sister Betty. She's married to Alfred Arme and lives on Park Avenue.

Arnold takes issue with editorial

To the Editor: I read the editorial in the Nov. 2 issue — "Congress Sells Out to Oil Companies" — and I feel that an alternate viewpoint should be expressed. There are a number of assumptions implicit in the editorial that can be challenged. Among these is the amount of energy available in the future, and the cost of food in relation to the distribution system.

I have not read the report referred to, but it seems to me that the "good professors" have been bitten by the "Small is Beautiful" bug. Well I don't buy it! The proponents of "Small is Beautiful" make a number of assumptions. Some of these are: 1) The future will be one with greatly reduced energy supplies, 2) all technology will be small scale and 3) all industry will be labor intensive.

For example: At the 1977 meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the proponents of "Small is Beautiful" (aka "Appropriate Technology," aka "Alternative Technology") had a number of exhibits. One of these was a bicycle seat with pedals which ran a wheat grinder. Now as a farmer, or as "a thing to do," this might be fun. I suspect, however, that if one had to do this every day it would become drudgery. Another was to use an old wine vat saved in half to make a bathtub. (Never mind the splinters!) There were more, but I think you get the idea.

There is a good reason for the relative low cost of food in America. It is that same, as you put it, "complicated, far-flung, and costly transportation system." It is this system that enables us to maintain relatively stable food prices when one area of the country is suffering from drought. If there is a drought in the grain-producing regions of the Pacific Northwest we can ship grain from Kansas or the Dakotas to that region thus alleviating the effects of the drought to a considerable extent. The system works in the opposite direction too, of course.

This distribution system coupled with the economies that large-scale farming allows is the major reason that our food prices are so much lower than the rest of the world. The cost per acre of running a 40,000 acre farm is not 1,000 times the cost per acre of running a 40 acre farm.

In China, without a large efficient distribution system, and with many small-scale farms the story is considerably different. If there is a drought in one of the grain producing regions, there is no way to ship large quantities of any available crop surpluses from other regions. The result for the stricken region? Mass starvation.

Furthermore, the U.N.'s World Health Organization (WHO) released a report in 1975 on the results of a multi-year study by that body. In it the WHO concluded that over the course of a ten-year period nearly every country in the world could arrive at feeding itself on crops grown within its own borders.

I will admit that our food distribution system uses large amounts of energy. But it uses less energy than if there were a myriad of small farms. It would take more energy and resources to produce the greater number of farm implements and fertilizers to support these small farms. In addition, it would change the United States from being an exporter of food to a country producing just enough to feed itself. Such a situation could lead to a global war. Local self-sufficiency is not a realistic approach to the problem.

The efficiency of rail transport of goods, in terms of cost per ton-mile and energy used versus the cost of highway shipment, is so much greater that it is simply amazing that we don't ship more goods by rail. Perhaps we would, if we were to charge the trucking industry its full share of the cost for building and maintaining the present highway system. Maybe Congress would like to tackle that question.

Finally, President Carter's energy conservation proposals are not really meeting the problem head on. Do you really expect the American people to cut back on their energy use simply because they are going to pay more for it? I doubt it. They'll swallow hard, gulp a few times and pay out the extra money so they can enjoy themselves.

Conservation, by itself, WILL NOT solve the energy crisis.

Instead of the President giving us what amounts to a taxation program, I would much rather have seen him call for a "Manhattan Project" on developing new technology to provide other sources of energy. Among these would be the research in fusion, nuclear fusion, orbiting solar collectors beaming energy to earth via microwaves (this we have the capability to do today), ocean thermal systems and increasing the energy conversion capabilities of plants (bi-conversion systems). All of these together would provide us more than enough energy to meet our present needs and foreseeable needs in the future.

So what do we get from our duly elected leaders? A taxation program and pleas to do without. If these programs are followed to their logical conclusion, then the proponents of "Small is Beautiful" will have their way and we will return to a lifestyle reminiscent to the turn-of-the-century.

The future does not have to be as the proponents of "Small is Beautiful" would have us believe. Herman Kahn, of the Hudson Institute, asserts in a recent book, "The Next 200 Years: A Scenario for America and the World" (William Morrow & Co.), that (1) we can continue our present growth (albeit at a slower rate), and (2) that the rest of the world can narrow the gap in wealth between them and us, and (3) that the world can continue its growth almost indefinitely. It will take some guts on the part of our leaders to look into the future with optimism and to make intelligent decisions about the course we must take to achieve these goals.

Thank you, Gilbert K. Arnold Charlevoix

Increased taxes represent major jump in living costs

To what extent are higher taxes and the increase in the cost of living eating into the income gains made recently by Charlevoix County residents? How far does the weekly pay envelope go at the present time?

Not much further than it did 10 years ago, it appears. Buying a car, for example, costs nearly as much now, in terms of the number of weeks of work necessary to earn it, as in 1967. The net gain in purchasing power has been small.

A major factor in the increase in living costs has been taxes, according to a study made by the Tax Foundation, a non-profit organization concerned with the fiscal aspects of government. It finds that about a third of a worker's earnings are being siphoned off for taxes.

The figures indicate that taxes as a whole—Federal, state and local—cut deeper into family budgets than any other single item. They add up to more, in fact, than is needed for food, housing and household operations combined.

Regarding the findings in Charlevoix County and to the average level of income locally during the past year, it amounts to $5,100 per household.

Calculated on the basis of an 8-hour workday, the average taxpayer has to work 2 hours and 42 minutes of it to earn enough for his taxes.

As for the remainder of the working day, 1 hour and 30 minutes is needed to pay for housing and household operations. Another 1 hour and 8 minutes on the job is for food and tobacco.

Additional time must be put in for transportation expenses, which require 40 minutes, for medical and dental care, 26 minutes, for clothing 25 minutes, and for recreation, 20 minutes.

The remaining 40 minutes is for all other purposes, such as personal care, savings, education and discretionary spending in general.

According to the Tax Foundation's findings, nearly three-fourths of most people's incomes are being allocated for food, clothing, shelter and taxes.

Applied to Charlevoix County and to the average earnings in the local area in the past year, they total close to $10,850 per household.

James Wibby receives job promotion at First State Bank

The recent promotion of James Wibby to assistant cashier of the First State Bank of Charlevoix has been announced by Thomas A. Duke, chairman of the board.

Duke said that Wibby's new responsibilities will include acting as plan manager for the First State Bank's Charge Card operations as well as acting as installment loan officer for the bank. He will also continue to be involved in special projects.

Wibby, a graduate of Michigan State University, joined the staff of the First State Bank in May, 1976, as a management trainee following a three and one-half year tour of duty with the U.S. Air Force. Prior to enlisting in the Air Force, he had been involved in banking for three years.

In Charlevoix, he is active with the Charlevoix Township Volunteer Fire Department, treasurer of the Charlevoix Yacht Club and he participates in several athletic leagues. He and his wife, Sandra, reside in Ironton.

Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren said nothing immediate would take place in the school district concerning the sex education program. Van Wieren said the curriculum council would take the matter under consideration.

The Michigan Legislature recently approved a measure lifting the state ban on the teaching of birth control in sex education classes in public schools. The bill permits the inclusion of family planning and human sexuality in the elective course offerings, but prohibits the teaching of abortion.

A Charlevoix Township resident recently completed a bookkeeping review course for governmental agencies.

JoAnn Elzinga, Charlevoix Township clerk, participated in the course which was a review of the Michigan

Life Underwriters and presented to agents who excel in life insurance sales during the year, based on the number of lives insured and amount of coverage.

This is the sixth year Elzinga has earned the award.

Mary Faculak

Horse riding's her hobby

Mary Faculak

By LAURA GLASS
Charlevoix High School is full of students that deserve recognition, not only for academic achievements but for outstanding achievements.

Mary Faculak is one of these students.

Everyone knows Mary from the fall Homecoming Court, but not many know how outstanding she is in her hobby, horse racing.

The 17-year-old senior has been barrel racing horses since she was 10 years old and has won enough trophies, plaques and ribbons to fill a stable.

"I started out Western Pleasure riding and got involved in the 4-H clubs," Mary explained. "Then my interests turned toward racing, especially barrel racing.

"Now I'm really involved in barrel racing, but I also enjoy jumping and English riding."

Mary and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tony Faculak, own the Lakeview Ranch where Mary keeps and trains horses. She currently owns two ponies and six registered Quarter horses.

The horse she uses for most of her races, "Go Reed," or as Mary calls him, "Mr. Ed," has helped her win high point trophies at fairs across the state.

Practicing is a major part of winning. Mary's philosophy is that practicing is a two-way street, both the horse and the rider must work as a team toward the same goal—the trophy.

"You've got to know just how to train a show horse, you must condition them," Mary said. "I rarely practice with my show horse now that he knows how to race, otherwise he will sour and won't run as well."

Mary isn't the only horse racer in her family. Her sister and brother-in-law, Virginia and Bill Marne, own the Tryn' Hard Ranch. Mary often works there training other people's horses. This summer she will get her official license for horse training. And soon she plans to become a member in the Statewide Speedhorse Association, a highly recognized club in this state.

Although many horse owners hire riders for races, Mary says she rides her own horses.

"I ride my own horses, because I trained them," she explained. "They are used to me and I try harder because of my pride in them."

Mary is also active in many high school activities. She is senior class secretary, a member of the Spanish Club and co-editor of the Rayder yearbook.

All these activities will benefit her in her plans to attend college and study law.

"I'd like to become a lawyer," she said. "But I also intend to keep up with my horse riding. Maybe someday I'll ride the rodeo circuit."

Champion Debaters

THE CHARLEVOIX HIGH SCHOOL debate team took top honors in the varsity team classification during a recent tournament sponsored by Lake Superior State College. In the front row is the affirmative team of Pam Sutherland and Sue Miller and in the back is the negative team of Ann Marie Watson and L. Scott Swanson. More than 150 high school students and a dozen debate teams participated in the tournament.

New cheerleading squads named for winter sports

New cheerleading squads have been selected for the upcoming winter sports season at Charlevoix High School.

The new squads were selected following competition among interested high school girls for the spots. The three cheerleading squads are under the direction of Vera Rimbold, high school home economics teacher.

New members of the varsity squad are: Janene Boal, Brenda Boss, Pam Boss, Kim Lehman, Ann Puffball, Cindy Sundahl and Terri Bradley, runner.

squad are: Shari Barnes, Mary Egler, Lisa Sandahl, Jenny Trimmer, Leslie Wood and Alicia Pearson, runner. Making up the freshman squad are: Jill Caldwell, Tammy Currier, Mary Beth Eldridge, Ingrid Wiener, Chris Wilhelm, Laura Zarembo and Shelly Schorsch, runner.

LISA FLOWER (25) was up in the air for this basket while Laurie Gibbs (35) awaited for the rebound. The Rayders put up a good battle but they lost narrowly to Petoskey 46-40 Tuesday.

MARIE BUDY (21) takes aim for a basket during the Rayders final game of the season against the Petoskey Northmen. Petoskey squeaked by the Rayders 46-40 last week.

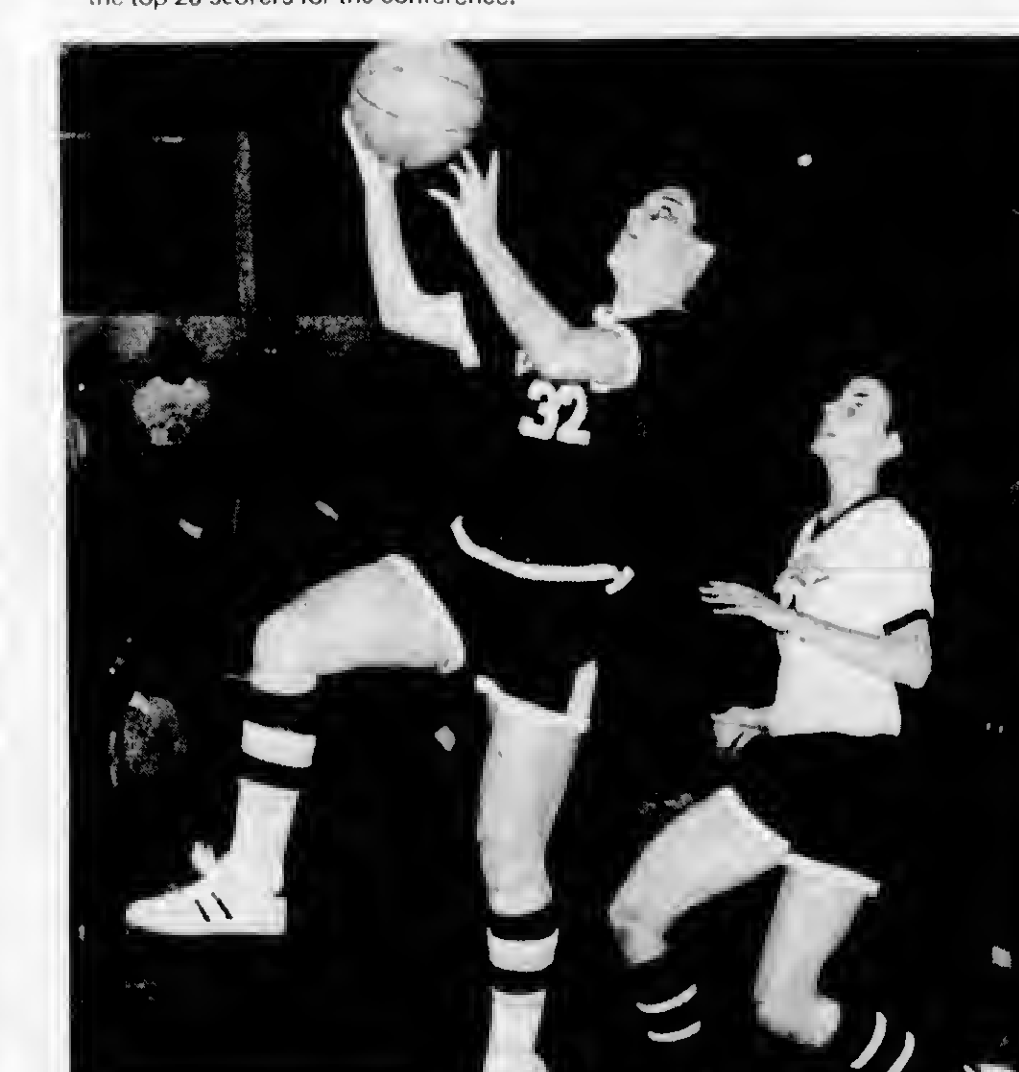

GETTING IN ON the action for the Rayders is Lisa Flower as she attempts to tie up the ball during the Charlevoix-Petoskey game. Charlevoix started tournament play this week following the completion of the season with the final game against Petoskey.

CHRIS LEHMAN presses a Petoskey Northman player while Jackie Paul (10) rushes in to grab the basketball. The girls finished up the season with a 4-12 record last week.

LAURIE GIBBS (35) snatches a rebound as a Petoskey player attempts to tie up the ball. Laurie had a good season as a defensive player and she also placed in the top 20 scorers for the conference.

SHERRIE SELISSEN goes in for a lay up during the Petoskey-Charlevoix game. Sherrie finished the season in first place on the conference top 20 scorers list.

Sherrie Selissen captures scoring crown

The Charlevoix Rayder girls varsity basketball team closed out its season with a loss last week as the Petoskey Northmen downed the Rayders 46-40 on their home court.

The Rayders finished the season with a 4-12 record. Only one of those victories was at home.

The dual match will begin at 6:30 p.m. with Charlevoix opposing Onaway and Kalkaska meeting Benzie Central At 7:30 p.m. Charlevoix will challenge Kalkaska and Onaway will meet Benzie Central.

The 1977 Rayder wrestlers represent an experienced and well rounded team. On the team are 12 returning lettermen led by three state meet competitors: Dennis Whitley, Craig Golovich and Ron Hilton. Other lettermen include: Dan Bruce, Lee DeMitchell, Dave Golovich, Jerry Kelle, Andy Keller, Mike Kitchey, Gene Morrison, Norbert Scharenbroch, Jerry Sladek and Brian Wimmer. Joining the varsity squad are former junior varsity wrestlers: Curt Dixon, Tom Mielke, Bill Trout, Lester Untler and Mark Brendt.

Newcomers to the wrestling program at Charlevoix High School this year are freshman: Don Mol, Tim Bruce, Mike Chappuis, Mike DeMitchell, Scott Golovich, Jon Hamlin, Tom Hand, Bruce Honeysette, Jeff Landon, Mike Martin, Ilii Merriner, Kevin Purvis, Fred Sonnenberg, Richard Sutton and Ken Wojan.

Two upperclassmen have also joined the team. Jeff Leitner and Nick Anderson have looked especially good in practice, Coach Probert said.

*NON-CONFERENCE GAMES

There was a bright note to the season, however. Junior Sherrie Selissen captured the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference scoring title. Sherrie tallied 15 points.

Charlevoix's Laurie Gibbs also placed among the top 20 scorers in the league.

The Rayders and the Northmen played a close game the first half with Petoskey taking a slim lead 11-10 at the end of the first quarter. Charlevoix came back to tie the score at 23-23 just before the half.

However, during the third quarter, Charlevoix only hit the basket for four points while Petoskey dropped in 11 and moved into a lead they kept for the rest of the game.

In addition to Selissen, Chris Lehman and Jackie Paul each had 6 points. Maureen Tilcombs had 16 points and Becky Gengle and Erin Laher each had 6 points for Petoskey.

"There just wasn't any spark," Coach Toni Feller said about the final game.

"The girls were really fired up when they played in Boyne City last week, but they never really fired up for this game."

The Rayders now move into tournament play at Elk Rapids High School. The team was expected to meet the Elk Rapids Elks Tuesday in the first leg of the tournament.

The winner of that game will meet Boyne City at 7 p.m. Thursday. Boyne City drew a bye in the first round of tournament play.

Kalkaska and Traverse City St. Francis and Benzie Central Monday and the winners of those games, Traverse City St. Francis and Benzie Central will play each other at 8:30 p.m. Thursday.

The JVs finished the season with a 15-1 record and in first place in the conference. They lost their only game to Rogers City.

Melinda Klooster was the high scorer of the game with 23 points. Theresa Nolrot was next with 10 points and Lisa Sandahl had 8 points.

Lisa Stevens had 9 points for Petoskey and Sheila Ahen had 8.

"They didn't look so good in the first couple of minutes of the game," Coach Henry Wagner said. "But they got better."

The JVs came on strong and held the lead throughout the game. The Charlevoix team jumped to a quick 12-4 lead in the first quarter and then extended it to a 22-12 lead at the half. In the third quarter they dumped in 16 more points while Petoskey's JVs couldn't hit the basket for a single point. They added another 7 points in the fourth quarter to Petoskey's 16.

Head Coach: Norm Probert
Class "C" - enrollment 640
Nickname: RED RAYDERS

Managers: Gregg Whitley / Gerald Wimmer
Member: Michigan-Huron Shores Conference
COLORS: Maroon and White

Athletic Director: K. Dale Burge

Coach Norm Probert is expecting more than 300 students to compete in what is labeled the largest freshman-sophomore tournament in the state.

A highlight of this year's tournament will come when Probert pits the Rayders against the team of one of the coach's former wrestlers. Ron Hinkl, head coach of the Coleman grapplers, wrestled at 185 pounds for Probert the first year Charlevoix's head wrestling coach started his program.

Matches will start at 11 a.m. and run continuously throughout Saturday afternoon and evening at the Charlevoix High School gym.

The wrestlers from more than 18 Class A, B, C and D schools will compete on five mats at a time during the meet.

The format for the tournament is open class which allows any size class school to enter. Schools are also allowed to enter more than one wrestler in a weight class.

This allows any boys out for wrestling a chance to compete at least twice and up to four times during the tournament unless they are eliminated, Probert explained.

Coach Probert said that in addition to the tournament, the school will also be hosting a Northern Michigan Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) wrestling rules meeting at 9:30 a.m. in the high school band room.

The MHSAA will also conduct a referee clinic on wrestling using one of the five mats during the competition.

Anyone interested in becoming a referee may sign up for the clinic Saturday morning. Probert said there is a serious shortage of referees for wrestling due to the fact that so many schools have begun programs and are holding meets.

Probert pointed out that for the freshman-sophomore invitational, Charlevoix had to hire referees from Holland, Sault Ste. Marie and Elk Rapids.

Anyone interested in the clinic can get more information by contacting Coach Probert.

State takes new look at U.S. 31-131 plans for expansion

By PEG ONLEY
The long drawn-out discussion about a new super highway through Northwest Michigan seems to have come to an end, at least temporarily.

The Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation is now taking a different approach, emphasizing improvement of existing highways, notably US 31 and US 131.

As long ago as 1973, the Department of Highways submitted several plans for a super highway to local officials, asking them to select the routes of the proposed new highway through the county which they would most prefer. Public hearings were also held.

Since the State plans called for the merging of highways US 31 and US 131 to form the super highway, the Planning Commission also suggested that the merger take place south of Charlevoix County, "as a cost saving measure."

At the time local officials and the public were asked for their input, it seemed that the super highway was a certainty, although many counties, including Charlevoix, were not overly enthusiastic about it.

- 1/2 lb. mushrooms
- 2 cups chicken bouillon
- 2 cups milk

1 cup half and half (milk and cream).

salt to taste
freshly ground pepper
1 oz. brandy

Clean leeks and chop white part. Peel and chop onion and potatoes. Chop mushrooms coarsely. Put leeks, onion, potato, and bouillon in a large saucepan. Bring to a boil, reduce heat, and simmer, covered, until vegetables are tender. Add mushrooms and cook 5 minutes longer. Put mixture into blender and blend for 30 seconds. Return to saucepan and add milk and half and half. Season to taste. Reheat and just before serving, flame brandy and add to soup. Serves 6.

Holiday appetizers whet appetites of party guests

MINIQUICHES

1 pkg refrigerated butterflake dinner rolls (12 rolls)
1 (4 1/2 oz.) can shrimp, drained

- 1 egg, beaten
- 1/2 cup light cream
- 1 tablespoon brandy
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper

1 1/3 oz. gruyere cheese
Grease 2 dozen 1 1/4 inch muffin pans. Separate each dinner roll in half; press into muffin pans to make shell. Place one shrimp in each shell. Combine egg, cream, brandy, salt and pepper. Using about 2 teaspoons for each shell, pour egg mixture over shrimp in shell. Slice cheese into 24 small triangles; place one atop each appetizer. Bake in 375 degree F. oven for 20 minutes or until golden. Makes 24 appetizers.

DEVELOPED CHEESE BALL

3 (8 oz.) pkgs. cream cheese
1 lb. sharp cheddar cheese, grated
2 (4 1/2 oz.) cans deviled ham
1/4 cup finely chopped olives

2 tablespoons prepared mustard
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1/2 teaspoon celery seed
Parsley

Mix all ingredients and form into a ball. Chill several hours. Garnish with a wreath of parsley. Makes 5 1/2 cups.

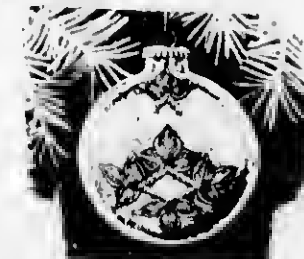

Marion Parker offers recipe for sausage balls

BARBECUED SAUSAGE BALLS

From the kitchen of Marloa K. Parker
1 pound pork sausage
1 slightly beaten egg
1/3 cup fine dry bread crumbs

1/2 teaspoon sage
1/2 cup catsup
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoon soy sauce

Mix sausage, egg, bread crumbs, and sage; shape in about 2 dozen 1 1/2-inch balls. In ungreased skillet, brown balls slowly on all sides, about 15 minutes. Pour off excess fat. Combine remaining ingredients; pour over meat. Cover and simmer 30 minutes, stirring occasionally to coat meat balls. Note: Make meatballs smaller and serve as hot appetizers.

Color our home happy

We just moved into a pretty new house. We have a big backyard to play in; and Daddy has a big garage for working on his projects and Mommy just loves her sewing room. Thomas Real Estate found our new house for us. He had lots of places to choose from and Daddy said that they were really organized at Thomas Real Estate. That took alot of the worry out of buying a new home for Daddy.

Enjoy a natural food holiday treat

Christmas is traditionally a time for sweets made with tons of sugar and other sweeteners. More and more concern is being expressed about the amount of sugars and other processed foods we are consuming.

Maybe this year you should try some Christmas treats made with natural sweeteners and ingredients. These recipes were offered by Heartwood Alternative for your holiday meals.

Natural Candy Fruit-Nut-Carob Balls

- 1/2 cup dates
- 1/2 cup raisins
- 1/4 cup roasted carob powder
- 1/4 tsp. sea salt
- 1/2 cup walnuts
- 1/2 cup sunflower seeds

Mix dates and raisins with carob and salt, mix in nuts and seeds. Grind entire mixture through meat grinder or grain mill. Press together into small balls or other shapes. If desired, roll in coconut or other covering (see below).

Variations: Carob may be omitted; apricots or other dried fruits may be used (steam first if too dry); other nuts or seeds may be used; other coverings include toasted sesame seeds, wheat germ, carob powder, etc.

Peanut Butter Fudge

- 1/2 cup peanut butter
- 1/2 cup honey
- 1/2 tsp. vanilla
- 1 pinch sea salt
- 1 1/2 cups milk powder or slightly more

Mix peanut butter and honey until creamy-smooth, mix in salt and vanilla. Add milk powder a little at a time, mixing first with a spoon, then by kneading like bread dough. Press into a flat pan, chill, and cut into shapes; OR, form into small balls and roll in covering if desired (see over).

Variations: 1 In place of the milk powder use 1 cup milk powder and 1 cup roasted carob powder. 2. Substitute sesame or other nut butters for all or part of the peanut butter. 3. Small amounts of coconut, wheat germ, etc. may be added along with the milk powder. 4. For flavoring try cinnamon, grated orange rind or juice, or oil of peppermint.

Date Nut Bread

- 2 cups w.w. pastry flour
- 1 tsp. baking soda
- 1 tsp. sea salt
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts
- 1 TBS. grated orange rind
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1/4 cup oil
- 1 3 cup honey
- 2 3 cup water

1 cup finely chopped dates

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Mix flour, soda, and salt in a large mixing bowl. Add nuts and orange rind and mix again. In another bowl mix egg, oil, honey and water thoroughly, add dates and mix again. Add this to dry ingredients and mix to an even consistency. Place batter in an oiled 9 x 5 inch bread pan and cut a slash lengthwise down the center of the batter. Bake for about 45 minutes. Cool before slicing.

Banana Bread

- 1 1/2 cups mashed ripe bananas

- 1/4 cup oil
- 1/2 cup honey
- 2 eggs, lightly beaten
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 cups wholewheat flour
- 1/4 cup wheat germ
- 1 tsp. sea salt
- 1 tsp. baking soda
- 1/2 cup chopped walnuts

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Mix banana, oil, honey, eggs and vanilla. Mix flour, wheat germ, salt and soda, then add dry ingredients to banana mixture in 2 or 3 parts, beating well until smooth. Fold in nuts. Place batter in an oiled 9x5x3 inch baking pan (or two smaller pans) and bake for about 1 hour. Cool before slicing.

Whole Wheat Bread

- 1 Tbs. active dry yeast
- 1 tsp and 2 Tbs. honey
- 3 cups warm water
- 2 Tbs. oil
- 1 Tbs. sea salt
- 8 1/2 to 9 1/2 cups whole wheat flour

In a large mixing bowl, dissolve 1 tsp. honey and the yeast in 1/2 cup warm water (105 degrees-115 degrees F is best); let soak about 10 minutes. Mix remaining water with 2 Tbs. honey, oil, and salt, then add to yeast mixture. Add flour gradually and mix well until dough comes away from sides of bowl easily, then remove to a floured board and let sit about 10 minutes.

Knead for 10-15 minutes, adding enough flour to make a smooth, elastic, non-sticky dough. (Exact quantity of flour will vary each time). Place dough in oiled bowl, cover with a damp cloth and let rise in a warm place until just doubled in bulk—about 2 hours. Punch dough down, knead for a few minutes, then shape into loaves. Place loaves in two oiled bread pans (about 9x5x3 inches) and let rise again until nearly doubled in bulk. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Bake about 45 minutes or until crust is a nice golden brown. Remove from pan at once and cool before slicing. For a nice crust, brush top with oil while still hot.

Brunswick stew-- Mrs. Browe's favorite

BRUNSWICK STEW From the kitchen of Mrs. Ted Browe, Jr.

This is an old southern recipe that they make by the gallons in their outdoors discarded wash pots down south.

2 boiled chickens with the meat picked off the bones.

1 can lima beans
2 lg. cans tomatoes
2 cans corn
6 or 8 sliced potatoes

1 or 2 onions
season with salt and pepper according to taste.

Cook all ingredients till thick and mash with a potato masher.

Some people prefer a little sugar and bacon grease in it but this is according to your taste buds.

Also favorite sandwiches in the south are banana and pineapple which you make just like any other sandwich.

Florence Gardner suggests special veal meal treat

VEAL "VIRDS" From the kitchen of Florence G. Garden

In between Christmas-cookie making, you have to feed yourself and family. These "virds" are simple and quick to make and less expensive than "Birds" which call for veal steak.

1 lb. ground veal (more or less)
Bacon
Toothpicks

With a tablespoon and your fingers, form slightly-elongated balls of the ground meat. Wrap each with a strip of bacon and secure with 2 toothpicks. Saute in a covered skillet over a very low fire, until meat is no longer pink and bacon is crisp. Garnish with parsley and cranberry jelly if desired.

Round out the meal with potatoes or pasta, a green salad, and a dry red wine.

Tomato pudding heads list of vegetables

TOMATO PUDDING

1/4 lb butter or margarine
8 slices day-old bread
1 (8 oz.) can tomato sauce
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup tomato juice
Cut bread into 2-inch cubes. Melt butter; lightly toss cubes of bread in melted butter and arrange in a 8 1/2 x 11-inch baking dish. Place tomato sauce, brown sugar and tomato juice in a saucepan. Bring to a boil and simmer 10 minutes. Pour over buttered bread. Bake in 375 degree F oven for 25 to 30 minutes. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

CROSSCROSS POTATOES

Scrub 4 medium-sized baking potatoes. Cut in half lengthwise. With paring knife score cut side of potato 1/2-inch deep, 1/2-inch apart. Brush all over with melted butter. Season with salt, pepper, and sprinkle with paprika. Place in a shallow baking pan, cut side up. Bake in 350 degree F oven for 1 hour. Makes 4 servings.

Eat, drink and be merry, but don't forget waistline!

The holiday season is a time for tempting treats that can lead to unwanted pounds added to the figure.

The Michigan Heart Association has some recipe ideas that are not only low in calories, but are delicious, too.

POOR MAN'S CAVIAR

A dark mixture with flavors from the Middle East, this is not only a delicious snack, but a nutritious one as well.

1 large eggplant
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 small onion, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1/4 cup raw green pepper, finely chopped
1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
COARSELY GROUND PEPPER

Slice eggplant in half and rub with 1 tablespoon of the oil. Place halves cut side down on baking pan.
Broil on middle rack of oven for 20 to 25 minutes, or until eggplant is quite soft. Cool slightly. Scoop out pulp and mash well with fork.

Saute onion and garlic in remaining oil until brown. Stir into eggplant pulp with remaining ingredients. Add more salt if necessary. Chill for 2 or 3 hours. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve with bread rounds or toast.

YIELD: ABOUT 2 1/2 CUPS
APPROX. CAL/SERV.: 1/2 CUP-75-1 TABLESPOON-10

ROASTSTUFFED CORNISH HENS

6 cornish hens (about 14 ounces each)
1 package wild rice mix or long grain and wild rice combination
1 medium onion, chopped
2 tablespoons margarine
1/2 teaspoon sage
1/4 cup brandy
1 cup orange sections

To make the stuffing, cook rice until it is still slightly firm. Drain. In a skillet, melt margarine and cook chopped onion until browned. Add rice and sage; toss gently.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F.

Clean, wash and dry hens. Stuff lightly and skewer or sew the vents closed.

Brush hens with 1/4 cup melted margarine and place breast side up on a rack in a shallow pan. Roast uncovered about 1 hour, basting occasionally with the melted margarine.

Make a sauce by adding 1/2 cup water to the drippings in the roasting pan, stirring to dislodge browned particles from the pan. Add 1/4 cup brandy and 1 cup orange sections. Cook 2 minutes. Serve with hens.

YIELD: 12 SERVINGS

CRANBERRY-ORANGE SALAD

1 3-ounce package lemon gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 cup orange juice
1 16-ounce jar cranberry-orange relish
1 unpeeled apple, chopped

1/2 cup chopped pecans
Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add orange juice and let stand until almost jelled.

Combine cranberry-orange relish, chopped apple and pecans; fold into the almost-jelled mixture. Pour into a 1-quart mold. Chill until firm.

YIELD: 10 SMALL SERVINGS
APPROX. CAL/SERV.: 180

HONEY CARROTS

10-12 small young carrots
2 tablespoons margarine
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 tablespoon honey
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley or fresh mint
Wash and trim carrots. Cook in a small amount of boiling salted water for 15 minutes, or until tender.

Drain.
Melt margarine in a skillet or saucepan. Add sugar, honey and carrots. Cook over low heat, turning carrots frequently until well glazed.

Sprinkle with chopped parsley or mint, and serve immediately.
Preheat oven to 400 degrees F.
Roll dough out thin on floured board or pastry cloth and cut out shapes with small cookie cutters. Put on a cookie sheet, sprinkle with almonds or candies, and bake for 8 to 10 minutes.
YIELD: 6-7 DOZEN
APPROX. CAL/SERV.: 40

Crabmeat cups-- dieter's delight

'Tis the season to be jolly, but Christmas doesn't have to be a time to be jolly and fat. Holiday treats -- cookies, sugar-laden fruitcake, pumpkin pies and plump birds -- so delightful to the eye and palate, can and should be enjoyed -- but in moderation; otherwise they can take their toll on waistlines.

It's a wise, holiday cook and hostess (and a true friend) who plans to balance the festive fare with calorie-conscious -- but tasty -- foods. Here are some dining tips for the home economists for Hollywood Bread that will help to keep calories down, while entertaining and keeping spirits up during the Christmas season.

When planning Christmas canapés, or side dishes for a family fest, substitute low-cal versions of fattening foods. For instance, use a healthful, thin-sliced bread for the canape base or in party loaves. Here's a delicious and calorie-conscious recipe to satisfy guests on any occasion:

Scalloped Crab Cups
(209 calories each serving)
Press 4 slices of crust-free Hollywood dark bread into muffin tins. Bake until lightly browned in 350 F. Oven.

Scalloped Crab
2 T. Margarine
1 T. flour
1/2 c. skim milk
1 speck pepper
a few grains cayenne pepper
7-1/2 oz. crab meat
2 eggs yolks beaten
3/4 t. lemon juice or
2 T. dry sherry

Melt margarine in skillet. Add flour and stir until smooth. Add crabmeat, salt, pepper, cayenne and 1/2 c. skim milk. Stir well and continuously until thick and smooth. Gradually add the egg yolks that have been combined with milk, and sherry or lemon juice. Serve in toast cups. Makes 4 servings.

CHRISTMAS
STOLLEN BREAD
From the kitchen of
Marion K. Parker

½ cup melted margarine
½ cup sugar
2 tsp. salt
2 beaten eggs
2 pkg. dry yeast
½ cup warm water
6½-7 cups all-purpose flour
1 cup candied fruit and peel mix
1 teaspoon cinnamon

1 tablespoon grated orange or lemon rind
Dissolve sugar and salt in margarine. Stir in eggs. Soften yeast in warm water with a dash of sugar. Add with slightly warm milk to egg mixture. Stir in 5 cups flour, fruit, and cinnamon. Add enough additional flour to make it easy to handle, and knead for 5 minutes. Place dough in greased bowl and cover. Let rise in warm place until doubled.

Punch down and let rest 10 minutes. Divide in three parts. Grease 3 aluminum foil bread tins. Shape dough into loaves and place in tins. Let rise until dough is to rim.
Bake in 350 degree oven for 45 minutes or 'till done. Remove bread and let rest on its side until cool. Ice with frosting made from powdered sugar, vanilla and a little warm water to make it spreadable.

PLUM SAUCE

A delicious plum sauce for a little different taste with game or fowl holiday dinners.

1 1-lb. cans purple plums
3 cloves garlic
1 tablespoon sugar
1 teaspoon ground ginger

Drain and pit plums and put into saucepan. Mince garlic and add to plums with sugar and ginger. Simmer all together for 10 minutes. Puree in blender for 20 seconds. Serve hot, or at room temperature, with game or fowl. Yield: 1½ cups.

Two birds on table worth one in the bush

As the holiday season approaches, the romantics among us may opt for a partridge in a pear tree. Those with a practical bent, however, will find the idea of a brace of birds on the table far more appealing.

A brace of chickens, for instance, can often outshine the usual holiday feathered fare of turkey, duck or goose. And there's the wonderful plus of having four drumsticks.

Brown rice stuffing, studded with chopped pecans and golden raisins and laced with Amaretto di Saronno, adds savory sophistication. If you haven't enjoyed Amaretto di Saronno as yet, use this recipe as a reason to make its acquaintance. This scrumptious after-dinner liqueur from Italy is winning a devoted following and once you taste it, you'll know why.

Basting with a flavorful glaze while the chickens are roasting contributes to their handsome looks and deliciousness. Bring them to the table on a big platter encircled with watercress and orange slices, and pass an orange sauce incorporating the pan juices. Brussels sprouts are a happy choice for a vegetable.

Turkey casserole
Marion Parker's favorite dishTURKEY CUNCH
CASSEROLEFrom the kitchen of
Marion K. Parker

3 cups diced cooked turkey
1 can sliced water chestnuts
¾ cup diced celery
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 can cr. of chicken soup
¾ cup Miracle Whip several dashes of soy sauce
chow mein noodles
Mix together first 6 ingredients. Stir together soup, Miracle Whip and soy sauce. Toss with turkey mixture. Turn into 2-quart casserole. Sprinkle with noodles and bake in 350 degree oven 30 minutes or until bubbly. Serves 6.

Stuffing:
2 Tablespoons butter or margarine
1 onion, chopped
2 cups sliced celery
2 teaspoons fines herbes
6 cups cooked brown rice
½ cup chopped pecans
1/3 cup Amaretto di Saronno
½ cup golden raisins
Glaze:
¼ cup melted butter or margarine
½ cup Amaretto di Saronno
1 teaspoon grated orange rind sauce:
¼ cup flour
2 cups orange juice
Sprinkle chickens inside and out with salt and pepper. In a saucepan, heat butter or margarine and saute onion until golden. Stir in celery and fines herbes and saute for 5 minutes. Stir in brown rice, pecans, liqueur and raisins. Season to taste with salt. Stuff chickens with mixture. Sew or skewer openings. Roast in a shallow roasting pan in a preheated, moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 1½ to 2 hours, or until chickens are tender. While chickens are roasting, baste them with a mixture of butter or margarine, liqueur and orange rind. Baste them every 30 minutes. Remove chickens to a warm serving platter. Place roasting pan on top of range and stir flour into pan juices. Gradually stir in orange juice. Scrape loose all brown particles and stir until sauce bubbles and thickens. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Spoon sauce over each serving. Garnish chickens with watercress and orange slices. Serve with brown rice stuffing and cooked Brussels sprouts. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

FOR A CHANGE OF PACE at your Holiday Table, how about a brace of birds — chickens in this case — instead of a solitary turkey? An Italian liqueur, Amaretto di Saronno, laces both the brown rice stuffing and the glaze, and imparts a heavenly flavor.

Mrs. Gennett offers directions for nylon net Christmas tree

NYLON NET CHRISTMAS TREE

From Mrs. Max Gennett
Material needed
Two and one half yards of green or white nylon net.
One piece of wood 5½ inches x 5½ inches square.
One dowel rod 15½ inches long.

One piece of aluminum foil to cover wood.

Large assorted colored sequins.

Small Christmas bulbs.
1 angel or star for tree top.
Drill hole in center of wood block and insert dowel rod. Cover the wood with the aluminum foil. Lay the nylon net out lengthwise and cut in strips across. Cut only one strip at a time, cut 16 strips altogether, one of each size except make two of 6 inch strip.

Cut as follows:

8½", 8", 7½", 7", 6½", 6", 5½", 5", 4½", 4", 3½", 3", 2½", 2", 1½". Each strip is ½ inch smaller than the last.
Use regular double thread and needle. Run thread through tip of strip, then gather in a circle and tie securely around the dowel rod. Each strip makes a layer of the tree. Glue the sequins on the tree. Decorate the tree with the small bulbs. Then put the angel or star on top of the tree.

Make Christmas special

Handmade ornaments highlight tree

Many Americans will make their own stuffed and colored Christmas ornaments this year, it is reported by Sanford Corp.

The ornaments are made of batist or other soft white fabric, stuffed with polyester. "Glad Rags" colored fabric-markers are used to create angels, Santa Claus, eanes, pets, bells, toys and other cheerful objects.

The designs and sewing are simple and the results are different from anything that is mass produced.

The technique calls for cutting out a rectangular piece of batiste or other soft white fabric about 6" x 8", which will be large enough for both the front and back of the ornament. The designs for both front and back should be drawn or traced before the fabric is cut for the two sides.

Use the pattern shown here or trace one taken from a publication or pattern book.

The fabric is placed over pattern, which will be visible through the material. Trace the sewing line only (the solid black line) with a Glad Rags plastic pattern-pencil on the wrong side of the fabric. On patterns that have a separate pattern for the back, trace that sewing line.

Turn the fabric over to match the pencil line and the stitching line of the pattern. Matching is done by holding the fabric to the light. Color with the Glad Rags fabric and leather-decorating markers. There are 12 colors. Use a light, feather stroke. To keep colors delicate, set the marker down on the seam line and stroke inward. Use the detail pencil to outline and accentuate the finished pattern.

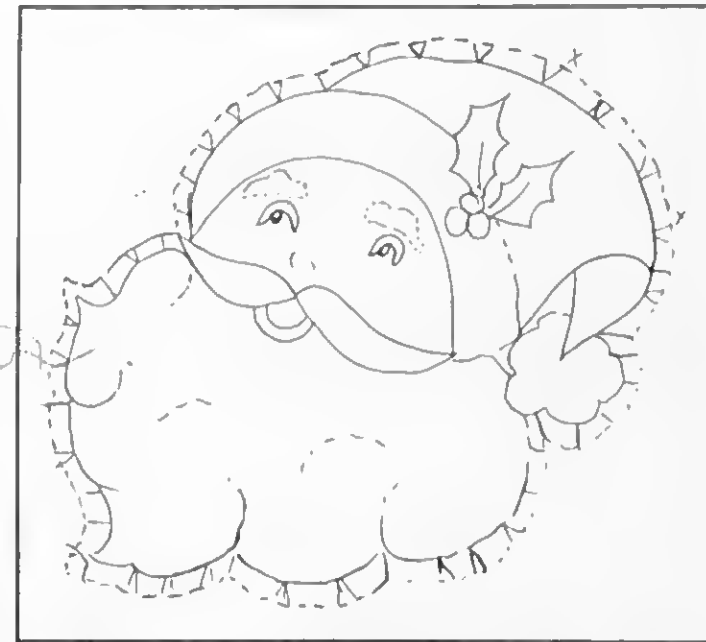

Repeat the coloring on the back of the ornament, checking to be sure the right sides match, facing each other. Color a little beyond the stitching line as a guide for continuing the pattern on the back.

Place the two right sides together and pin them. Hold the fabric to the light to match trimmings such as ribbon, bands on a bell, etc.

Place the pencil line up and stitch along, it, using a fine stitch, either with machine or by hand. Leave a space open for turning and stuffing. Allowing about ¼" seam allowance, cut the ornament out on the dotted line. Put clips on the convex lines and notches on the concave lines. Cut to the point at the corners, being careful not to cut through the stitchings.

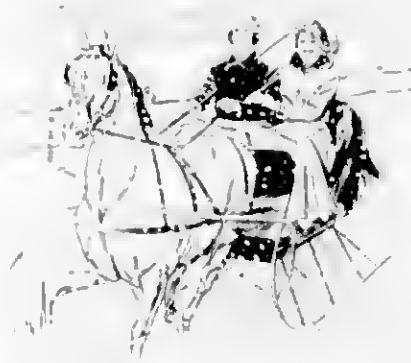

Turn right sides of the ornament through the openings. In small areas, use a turning tool, tweezers or scissors point. Stuff the ornament with polyester fill. Using Glad Rags, color any areas that were missed, draw a ribbon or color any stitches that show.

EASY-TO-FOLLOW DESIGN: Pattern for a Christmas decoration to be made with Glad Rags fabric and leather-decorating markers.

ADORABLE DECORATIONS: Sample self-made Christmas ornaments, prepared with Glad Rags fabric and leather-decorating markers.

Marion Parker has ideas on gifts for relatives, friends of all ages

From Marion K. Parker

For the person who owns a sewing machine and knows how to use it (don't laugh) — many don't! Christmas is a time to bring out the bags of fabric accumulated throughout the year to make those special one-of-a-kind gifts.

For the young children there may be a crib-size patchwork quilt filled with a polyester batt, or a stuffed toy such as a gold velveteen Winnie the Pooh, pink furry Piglet or other Pooh characters. Brown corduroy and white rick-rack make cuddly gingerbread boys. Cotton flannel pajamas and robes of corduroy can entice the excited little ones to bed if presented to them on Christmas Eve. Bean-bags of any sturdy material are great stocking stuffers.

Youngsters of any age enjoy a pillow made especially for them. One favorite is a Happy Face pillow made of a heavy yellow cotton such as sailcloth. Cut two circles at least 16 inches in diameter and stitch together, leaving a small place to stuff. Features are applied with a black marker pen. For a more feminine taste, cut two heart-shaped pieces of fabric (velveteen, satin, or calico).

Then cut two more hearts of two slightly smaller sizes. Applique the small one to the medium one to the large one. Sew the two large hearts together, adding a lace trim. Speaking of Velveteen, little girls love a simple velveteen dress trimmed with lace. And don't forget a wardrobe for a favorite doll.

For young adults in college or moving into their own apartments, a bed-sized patchwork quilt has special meaning. Young people of today have an appreciation for things home-made. If you have a number of worn-out jeans, they can be re-cycled into a great quilt with the addition of some bright scraps of cotton quilted material or perhaps some embroidery. An old sleeping bag can be recycled by recovering in patchwork of jeans, corduroy, and materials of like weight. A yard and a half of terrycloth becomes a great shower towel when hemmed at the ends.

Adult friends and relatives will appreciate tree ornaments of calico or gingham lightly stuffed or filled with pine needles and spices. Five yards of the cheapest 36 inch cotton print makes a unique table cloth when cut in half length-wise, the two pieces stitched together side-by-side, and ends hemmed. Pick a pretty red or green print for Christmas or a color to harmonize with the person's dishes. When bed pillows become old and flat and are relegated to the closet, combine two in one case which you have sewn to fit, then cover with fake fur or denim, for great floor pillows.

And now, before you put away that sewing machine, stitch up an ankle-length hostess apron of perma-press unbleached muslin trimmed with red calico or a Christmas trim.

Give a book to the reader of the household

What to give the person who has everything? Books are welcome gifts that one can never have too many of, and this season, book stores have a wide range of topics to choose from.

For the are lover, there are art books galore, designed to provide hours of happy browsing and to adorn coffee tables handsomely.

There are no end of cook-books to enthrall the gourmet chef, including the new versions for slow-cookers or microwaves.

Hobbyists will be delighted with the many books about their special interests, ranging from the history of railroads to a survey of seashells.

History buffs can bone up on their favorite period, thanks to the plethora of histories available, from studies of ancient Greece to World War II accounts.

Any student of the Bard would appreciate a handsomely bound set of the works of Shakespeare...or how about giving gifting that poetry lover with a volume of verse?

If someone on your list is a do-it-yourselfer, there are many "how to" books complete with illustrations, to add to his knowledgeability.

Trivia fans will welcome any of the books devoted to this amusing pastime, ranging from encyclopedias of trivia facts to movie quizzes.

Mystery fans love nothing better than a new plot to curl up with, so gift them with the latest thrillers or sets of classic whodunits.

Pet lovers would appreciate books on pet care or books of photographs of their favorite breed.

Gift the gardener with a book on his or her specialty, be it terrarium or vegetable gardening.

Is she clever with her hands? There are no end of books on sewing, quilting, needlepoint, knitting and other well-loved crafts to please the woman who enjoys these hobbies.

Nature lovers will thrill to photographic essays of scenic America or other books featuring magnificent photographs of the outdoors.

Wild West buffs will revel in the many pictorial histories and books of lore available about this fascinating era in American history.

Special wrapping ideas make unique gifts, too

Don't settle for just any gift wrapping for your presents this Christmas. A little creativity in your wraps will add a whole new dimension to your presents. Here are a few ideas to get you started:

In the natural vein, wrap a jar of homemade preserves in ferns and tie it with twine. If you decide to bake loaves of bread for your friends, let the crust serve as the wrapping and merely tie the loaves with bright, red ribbons.

To wrap small, home-baked loaves, attach delicatessen cartons with the steel handles to form a chain. Decorate each of the cartons with yarn or bright strips of paper.

RON AND SANDY BROMAN -- OWNERS

Equipment important part of bowling skill, enjoyment

RON BROMAN drills the holes in a bowling ball to a person's specifications. The proper bowling ball can make you a more consistent player.

Perhaps the single most important thing that can affect your bowling is the bowling ball.

If you aren't comfortable with the ball, there's no way you're going to be comfortable with the sport.

Bowling balls are made of hard rubber or plastic and feature three holes of varying diameters and depths. If you are a beginning bowler, there are several things that you should look for in a good bowling ball including the weight, position of the holes and the pitch (how each hole slants toward the center of the ball).

At first you may not be able to tell exactly what weight ball is best for you. Select one that you feel you can control and then, after bowling with it for a while, feel free to exchange it for a lighter or heavier ball, if necessary. In any case, make a mental note of the weight of your ball for future guidance.

You should think about buying your own custom-fitted ball after you have bowled long enough to establish a preference for a specific weight ball and a particular style of releasing it.

Generally, you should select the maximum weight of ball that you can handle comfortably. You can get more speed in your delivery with light balls, but light balls deflect more - bounce off the pins more - when they hit the wood.

Bowling center pro shops or sporting goods stores that specialize in bowling are equipped with a set of "master" balls each possessing many holes that offer an infinite variety of hole positions and pitches. By fitting your hand to the master ball, the bowling pro or attendant will be able to order a ball drilled exactly to your specifications. He or she will also ask to see how you release your ball, as this will affect the specifications.

The result will be a ball that fits your grip and delivery exactly. Such a ball is sure to make you a more consistent performer.

PROGRESS ON the construction of the new shopping center, Captains Corners, on M-66 has been slow but steady. The walls are all up and part of the roof is in position. Five retail businesses have now signed leases with the developers Weatherford/Walker. Glen's Market, one of the first businesses to decide to go in the shopping center will also be the first to open its doors. Glen's is planning to open late in January

Three more retail businesses lease space in shopping center

A total of five retail businesses have now signed leases for space in the new shopping center, Captains Corners, which is being developed on M-66. In addition to Glen's Market and Ben Franklin, the first two businesses to sign leases with Weatherford Walker, Farmington Hills developers of the shopping center, Puff's Appliance Center, Inc., Barb's Hallmark Harbor and an unnamed pharmacy will be moving into the complex. Family Federal Savings will also be relocating on the shopping center property, but it will be constructing a separate bank building. Glen's Market has the earliest opening date of the five businesses, which has tentatively been set as the middle of January. "We're going to open as soon as we can," Glen's Market president, Glen's Market, explained. "Our equipment is arriving this week and our shelving should be here by Monday. "Our merchandise will begin arriving at the store in early January." Following Glen's will be the pharmacy, which is expected to open March

1. Ben Franklin and Barb's Hallmark Harbor are expected to open April 1 and Puff's is expected to be in the shopping center by May 1. The pharmacy will not be a part of a chain, according to Rich Walker, a developer of the shopping center. It will be a pharmacy and variety store and will cover 1,500 square feet. Barb Kluczynski of Warren and her husband will be the owners of Barb's Hallmark Harbor, a 1,750 square foot store in the shopping center. The store will feature Hallmark cards and gifts as well as a complete line of stationary, photo albums and bridal accessories, according to Mrs. Kluczynski. "We are planning to cater to the residents," the new store owner explained. "We hope to have what they will want." Mrs. Kluczynski said she and her family have wanted to relocate in the Charlevoix area for several years and have also wanted to own their own business. She and her husband have no previous retail experience. "It will be a new home and a new business for us," Mrs. Kluczynski explained. "We're looking forward to the challenge." Puff's move from its Bridge Street location to the shopping center is part of an overall expansion program, according to Joe Blachy, store owner. "We will be operating a 2,800 square foot store as part of our double expansion program in Charlevoix and Petoskey," Blachy said. "We will be going into the furniture, carpeting and bedding business in addition to the stereo room and kitchen planning service which is currently offered in our Charlevoix store." Walker said the developers were currently negotiating with a family shoe shop, a children's clothing store, three women's clothing stores, a unisex beauty and barber shop and a restaurant. The developer said he has leased 4,550 square feet of the available 12,000 square feet of floor space in the shopping center. The shopping center was scheduled to open last Nov. 1, but due to funding problems and severe rain construction was delayed several months.

Courier--WVOY Carol-In Dec. 22 in East Park

Warm up your singing voices and get out your Christmas spirits, the Charlevoix Courier and WVOY Radio are planning their fourth annual "Carol-In." All area residents are invited to join in a community evening of singing beginning at 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 22, in East Park in Charlevoix. Marina LaBlance, Charlevoix Elementary School music teacher, will lead the singing and Santa Claus himself may even make a special guest appearance at the celebration. Refreshments will be provided following the "Carol-In" and a drawing will be held for a family gift compliments of the Courier and WVOY. In order to be eligible to win the prize, which will be announced next week, area residents should mail or bring in Christmas cards to the Charlevoix Courier, 301 Michigan Ave., Charlevoix, or to WVOY, 211 Bridge St., Charlevoix by 6 p.m. Dec. 22. The cards should contain the sender's name and address. Winners must be present at the "Carol-In" in order to claim their prize.

Hey kids! Send letters to Santa and see them in Courier

It's that time of year again, boys and girls. It's time to write your letters to Santa telling him how you've behaved during the past year and also to let him know what you would like for Christmas. If you mail your letters to us, the Charlevoix Courier, we will print as many as we can in our Christmas edition and then we will forward them on to the North Pole for Santa to read. Just send your letters to: Santa Claus, c/o Charlevoix Courier, 301 Michigan Ave., Charlevoix, Michigan, 49720. Letters must be received at the Courier office by Dec. 16 in order to be published.

Objects to Stroud Merger Plan
We wish to congratulate Mayor Hansen for being less than luke warm to Oscar Stroud's merger ideas. Stroud's proposals appear to be nothing but a 5-year delaying action during which time the city is to give the township everything it ever wanted. Once the township residents get city water, electric and fire protection, it would have no incentive to merge with the city. Also, supervisor Stroud's idea of putting township residents on the Charlevoix City Council is unthinkable, and probably illegal.

City Needs to Run as a Business
I have heard it reported that the City of Charlevoix has assets in excess of $50,000,000. If so, this city is a big business, and should operate and function as a business corporation. As a stock holder of this corporation, I am concerned that the Fourth Class Cities Act permits a part-time Mayor who must be dependent upon other sources for his income and livelihood, to exert considerable control and influence, right or wrong, over our $50,000,000 corporation. This is evidenced by the Mayor's recent firing of the City Manager, without a hearing, and without a vote of the council. As a concerned stock holder, I want the elected council to be a Board of Directors and the elected Mayor to be Chairman of the Board, this body to set policy and give direction to an appointed City Manager, who acts as President of the corporation, and who is directly responsible to the council and Mayor for following policy and direction. If the City Manager doesn't follow policy and direction, he can be immediately discharged by a legal vote of the council and replaced. Isn't this a far better form of control and governmental management than we have had in this town in recent years. Under the Fourth Class Cities Act there is no focus of responsibility and when something goes wrong, as it has in the past, the Mayor, the Council, and the City Manager are each pointing their finger at each other. I feel the proposed Charter resolves many of the problems which we are now experiencing and I for one am going to vote yes for passage of said Charter, to correct the ills which we are now experiencing.

Need Guidelines for Officials
To the best of my knowledge the City of Charlevoix has had in its history seven City Managers, the last three of which had been fired within the past five years. Two fired by the Mayor, with selfish motives, and one by the Council. I feel that no mature, responsible, qualified person would be interested in taking such a position with any city, with a history such as this. I am told that the city's last two efforts to obtain a new City Manager, did not really produce outstanding applicants due to the fact that the city was one of the few in the state which was still a Fourth Class city, and which did not define the responsibility of its elected and appointed officials. So what do we do now? We're without a City Manager and I am convinced that we cannot have a responsible one until the Proposed Home Rule is passed, and definition of responsibility is truly set forth. Long Term Leases Prohibited
I understand the Mayor is attempting to sell the Council and the people on leasing the Municipal docks to the Beaver Island Boat Company for 30 years. If anyone would bother to look at the books, they would discover that the present law of the city, and the proposed Home Rule Charter prohibits the leasing of city docks for a period in excess of 5 years.

Wants Council to Control
Our Mayor opposes a Home Rule Charter which detracts from his powers. WHY? Ed has almost complete control of the City now, under the Fourth Class Cities Act, and he must want to be Mayor for many years in the future. I want management and control of the city to be set by an elected council and City Manager, not by a part-time employee of the City.

A formal retirement ceremony aboard the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite Thursday honored two Senior Chiefs who were concluding a combined total of 45 years in his country's oldest service.

Jimmy O. Bowman, Senior Chief Machinery Technician, with 23 years to his credit and Richard L. Selissen, Senior Chief Boatman, a veteran of 22 years, were honored.

The pair joined Lt. Cmdr. James V. O'Neill, Commanding Officer, and Lt. Charles Bell, Executive Officer, in a personnel inspection prior to receiving their retirement papers. In conclusion, each was presented with a gift from their fellow officers and enlisted men.

Both Bowman and Selissen have spent the last two years in the service aboard the U.S.C.G.C. Sundew and more recently its replacement, the Mesquite. However, the other assignments while in the service have little in common.

Bowman was born in Springfield, Tenn., and was reared in Detroit where he enlisted in the U.S. Coast Guard in September, 1954. After completing boot training at Cape May, N.J., he was assigned to the Cutter Heather and later the Diligence at San Pedro, Calif.

From there he went to Hawaii for tours of duty aboard the Cutters Pinetree and the Cape Corwin; to the Lifeboat Station at Sandy Hook, N.J.; to Cape May, N.J., where he was stationed aboard the U.S.C.G. Reserve Training Ship, Unimac; another tour aboard the Cape Corwin Station at Sitkinak Island, Alaska; the Ninth District Headquarters in Cleveland and back to Charlevoix in 1972.

He and his wife, Karen, will continue to make their home here with their family, David, who is presently stationed at Orlando, Fla., with the U.S. Navy; Michelle, Nancy, Deborah and twins, Jenny and

The problem of skyrocketing liability insurance costs is beginning to hit home—right in the pocket of the taxpayer.

A problem the insurance brokers have been worried about for the past three years, sky high liability insurance premiums and even the unavailability of liability insurance coverage, suddenly became real for the Charlevoix Common Council this year when it wanted to renew its liability insurance policy.

Liability insurance covers the city in cases where people are injured due to negligence on the part of a city employee. The insurance also protects the city if suit is brought against one of the city officials for slander or libel.

Richard Martin of the Charlevoix Agency, informed the common council that he could find only one insurance company that would consider coverage for a yearly cost of $28,326.

And Martin said he had no way of knowing if the company would consider covering the city again next year. Many insurance companies are leery of writing liability insurance policies for police departments or cities because of the huge judgments that are awarded when cases against policemen are brought to court.

As it turned out, the insurance premium took a $4,000 jump and a dip in coverage. The new policy provides a $1 million umbrella for the city and basic coverage at a cost of $28,326.

Previously the city had a three-year policy with a $3 million umbrella and a higher basic coverage for a yearly cost of $12,365.

Martin said he had no way of knowing if the company would consider covering the city again next year. Many insurance companies are leery of writing liability insurance policies for police departments or cities because of the huge judgments that are awarded when cases against policemen are brought to court.

In order to protect themselves, insurance companies have stopped insuring police departments. Martin pointed out that it is impossible for insurance companies to raise their premiums enough to cover their costs.

"Some companies have had to increase their premiums by as much as 100 percent in a year," Martin said. "And those increases are based on claims paid out, not arbitrary figures."

Martin blamed an increasing interest in consumerism for part of the increase in liability insurance costs. His partner, Don Voisin, said he had noticed a change in attitudes, too.

"It used to be that people never sued the city," Voisin said. "If you grew up in a community you wouldn't dream of suing it if something happened."

"But it's not like that any more. People want something if something harms them no matter who is responsible."

And the result is ever increasing liability insurance premiums which means a hike in taxes. Or if the insurance carrier is a private manufacturer, it means a hike in the cost of products.

A suit against the city which results in a large settlement may also mean the city will have to settle for little or no coverage. Officials in Alton, Ill., did that and recently lost a $15 million law suit which was only partially covered by insurance. Now the city has to issue bonds in order to pay off the suit.

The threat of a possible loss of insurance also affects the city police officers and other city officials act on their jobs.

Sheriff George Lasater said his concern about losing liability insurance coverage made him wary of jumping into a situation too hastily.

"It's very easy to get sued," Lasater explained. "I'm being sued right now for something that happened before I even took office. But because I'm the sheriff now, I'm the one that gets sued."

Martin and Voisin said the insurance companies were trying to get legislation passed to prevent some of the suits that are taking place, but so far no action has been taken and insurance premiums continue to rise.

Expansion is in the works for the Charlevoix offices of Ron Pair Enterprises on Stover Road.

Construction of a new two-level 8,000 square foot glass office structure is expected to begin immediately. The new office building will accommodate the relocation of Ron Pair's International Headquarters.

The relocation will result in the consolidation of all departments except marketing, which will remain in the Detroit area. Roger Smigel, the company's controller, has been promoted to general manager of all operations and he will be moving to the Charlevoix area along with other Detroit office personnel within the next 60 days.

A total of eight people work in the Detroit office.

The new office building is being constructed in Charlevoix following the company's decision not to relocate its international headquarters in Detroit's new firm.

The office building will be known as Midwest Plaza and will include a landscaped all-weather atrium and lobby area.

The company manufactures dust free loading spouts for concrete, fertilizer, grain and other bulk materials. They are used throughout the United States and in nine foreign countries.

The Charlevoix School District is taking a close look at itself and the education it is giving its students.

A special Curriculum Council made up of teachers and administrators is selecting the efforts of staff members at all three schools to review the curriculum of the school district and to make suggestions for changes and improvements.

The council was established last year by former Superintendent James McKimby to start a systematic curriculum study. Teachers were asked to volunteer for committees in various curriculum areas such as social science, English or math and to evaluate the various programs.

The chairman of the committees, the building principals and the superintendent made up the curriculum council and kept each other informed of progress made by each group.

"Last year we met all year and the three committees submitted our reports to the board of education for their consideration," Charles Bentley, chairman of the curriculum council, said.

Also, the council's efforts two new programs have been instituted in the district, a program for gifted children at the elementary school and the expanded program at the middle school.

"Another important thing that happened was that the curriculum council got the teachers and the three committees together and talking about programs," Bentley said.

"We need a time for the teachers to get together and this worked out perfectly."

The curriculum study is continuing this year as teachers in the elementary, middle and high schools attempt to work out total programs in each subject for students in kindergarten through twelfth grade.

In addition, the council is also looking at kindergarten through twelfth grade testing program so that the teachers will be able to see how various students are doing and can give them the help they need.

The council is also discussing instituting a system of competency based graduation and promotion. Under this system, students must meet certain requirements in order to be promoted or graduated.

Bentley said the council is also looking for public input on various curriculum areas and he suggested that interested citizens contact the following committee chairman or administrative personnel with their comments: Barry Anderson, vocational education; Pat Carland, social studies; Mary Anderson, new social studies; Tom Felter, human growth and development; Marian Kohn, English and foreign language; Joy Mudge, library services; Gary Smith, mathematics; Tildon, science and math; or Bentley, student services.

Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren, Vane Smith, Vicki Chas. Ralston, and Charles Bentley can also be contacted with suggestions.

Financial aid forms for Charlevoix High School students interested in going to college will be available in January, Charles Bentley, high school counselor, has announced.

The counseling staff is planning a formal program to inform students and parents about the various forms in early January.

A slide show about financial aid will be part of the program and the counselors will go through the forms and answer any questions students and parents may have about them, Bentley said. The program will be designed for seniors and their parents but juniors and their parents will also be welcome.

More information about the program will be released later in the month.

For the first time in over 100 years, the Salvation Army is giving the general public an opportunity to help finance its World Hunger project.

During 1978, the Salvation Army is pledging itself to do even more for people of the world who are in need. This mission will require a great deal of money.

To help raise the money, the Salvation Army Citizen Volunteer Service Unit of Charlevoix will have a fund raising day Saturday. On that day, members of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club will be located at various points around the city with collection boxes.

Mayor Edward Hansen has proclaimed Saturday "World Hunger Day in Charlevoix," citing the work done by the Salvation Army through the years.

All money collected Saturday will be used for world hunger. There will be no administrative costs.

Collection boxes will be located at Diesen's Grocery, Williams' Dockside Pharmacy, Ochs' Central Drug Store, and Edwards' IGA Grocery.

DID YOU KNOW?

The Fourth Class Cities Act, under which we are now governed, was written by the State Legislature in 1895, and cannot now be modernized or changed by ourselves or our council. In 1909 the State Legislature passed the Home Rule Act, and thereafter prohibited any city from becoming a Fourth Class city. Last year the State Legislature passed a law terminating the existence of all Fourth Class cities in the State (of which there are only 16 left) in the year 1980, and required all Fourth Class cities to draft charters, and come under the Home Rule Act in 1980.

Let's come under the Home Rule Act and govern ourselves the way we wish now.

Proposed new charter best cure for city's ills, Vote Yes Monday.

Monday will be an important day in the lives of the residents of the City of Charlevoix. Monday is the date of the second vote on a proposed new charter for the city.

If approved, the new charter will change Charlevoix from a fourth class city to a home rule city. The new charter will provide guidelines for city operation written by Charlevoix residents for Charlevoix problems.

The Charlevoix Charter Commission members have spent the last three years thoroughly studying various charters and working on one they feel best meets the needs of Charlevoix.

The Fourth Class Cities Act, the current charter under which the city operates, was written in the late 1890s by the state legislature for all the cities in the state and doesn't deal with any of the specific problems of Charlevoix or any city for that matter.

The new charter will also switch the direction of the city from a part time operation by one elected official with the assistance of a full time city administrator to a full time, business-oriented operation by a hired executive under the direction of six elected officials.

Charlevoix is a big business. It has a $3 million budget and these funds need to be looked after by a professional who accounts to the public through the elected officials. The city cannot be run haphazardly on a part time basis and be run successfully.

The new charter also proposes to update city laws to keep Charlevoix in step with the times and to prepare the city for the anticipated expansion it will be facing in the near future.

Charlevoix needs a change. City government seems to be in a constant state of confusion. No one seems to really know what is going on.

A city manager, as proposed under the new charter, could draw all of the loose ends together into a coherent bundle to help the mayor and the council make intelligent decisions instead of the fly-by-the-seat-of-the-pants approach which is being taken in many instances.

Under the present charter there are seven elected officials who are supposed to be running the city, but that is not the way the city is operating. It appears that the mayor is controlling everything including what the aldermen know about city operations.

The proposed charter has been criticized as cutting down on people's representation in city government and concentrating the power in the hands of one man, the city manager.

However, under current city operations the people are not afforded much more representation because the power is concentrated in the hands of one man, the mayor.

A vote for the new charter is a vote for representation through six elected officials and administration of their decision by one man.

The charter is not an easy thing to understand. A special meeting will be held by the charter commission at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday (Dec. 7) in the Charlevoix High School study hall to answer any questions people may have about the charter.

Copies of the charter are also available at the Charlevoix Courier offices, 301 Michigan Ave.

Clockwise by Bob Clock

If you do nothing else on the Dec. 12, 1977, get down to the polls and vote "yes" on home rule for Charlevoix. We cannot afford to operate much longer under the outdated Fourth Class City Act which was tailor-made for sleepy little turn-of-the-century communities.

For example, take the city's present dilemma.

A month ago, the mayor and council agreed that the city administrator was not doing the job to their liking. Although some members of the council thought a conference with the administrator was in order, the mayor took their dissatisfaction as a mandate to clean house and he did.

As a result, the city today is without an administrator or even a second in command.

And the chances that we'll be able to find someone competent to fill the post under prevailing conditions are extremely remote.

Remember, the Fourth Class City Act does not even recognize the need for an administrator in a city the size of Charlevoix. Three years ago we created the position by ordinance, but that is scarcely the same as having the job built in to the city's chain of command, as is the case under the proposed home rule charter.

I am confident that no administrator worth his salt will accept the job today with all the uncertainty it entails. We might luck out, but our track record hasn't been all that good in the past.

Incidentally, the council has a free hand in the hiring and firing of city managers under the proposed charter. The main difference is that the game will be played by the book. No "man-dates" will be assumed by anyone without a vote by the council, and certainly not before the accused has a chance to answer charges against him and attempt to effect changes.

The last time Charlevoix voted on charter revision in July, opponents to home rule urged residents to vote "no" if they had not read or made themselves familiar with the proposed charter. However, five months have now passed and ignorance is no longer a valid excuse for voting "no."

Basically, the proposed charter will vote on Dec. 12 is the same one presented last July with one major difference: Under the new charter, the mayor will be elected directly by the people rather than by the council.

Originally the charter commission went the council route as sort of a guarantee that the mayor would have served a term or two on the council and would have a nodding familiarity with city government.

However, the lack of an elected mayor was one of the chief criticisms of the proposed charter and so a mayor elected by the people at large has been reinstated. Among our critics on this issue was Attorney General Frank Kelley who pointed out that a five-man council with a voting mayor would leave us without a tie-breaker. The commission had agreed that tie votes would be "no" votes, but that wasn't entirely right either.

So now we are back to an elected mayor who will be nominated with the clerk at a city-wide convention prior to the ward conventions in September. He will not vote, but he will break ties.

Other elements of the charter remain the same. Elections are non-partisan; councilmen are nominated by ward but elected at large; elections for the most part will dovetail with county, state and national elections, eliminating duplication of election costs.

The commission has provided for a city manager who will be responsible to the council. The manager, incidentally, will have broad powers to do the job the way it should be done, without interference in the various departments by the mayor or individual councilmen.

Oh, members of the council can raise hell at council meetings, but they won't be allowed to go down to the street department and have Joe Doakes run up and plow their driveway. Those days will be over.

So vote "yes" on Dec. 12. And make sure your neighbor does, too.

There are a couple of things you should know, about how to treat TV executives, and how to eat Heath candy bars.

...Evel Knievel recently pleaded guilty to charges of hitting a TV executive with a baseball bat, breaking the guy's arm. Evel didn't like something the executive had written about him.

This sounds like a great idea for a TV series. People are bored watching brave Knievel jump his motorcycle over canyons and buses. Why doesn't he jump it over a long line of TV executives, live and in color, once a week?

The TV executives could be lined up, flat on their backs, on a football field. They could be arranged according to their contributions to the nation's culture.

At the far end, nearest to Knievel's descending wheels, could be the executive who decided it would be cute if one of the Osmond brothers were a girl. Next could come the executive who introduced Laverne to Shirley.

There also would be dangerous spots reserved in Knievel's line for all TV bosses responsible for big family shows in which hundreds of siblings resolve each other's crises by exchanging boring sentences while waiting to get into the bathroom.

Viewers would vote each week on which executives should be added to the imperial line below Evel's soaring motorcycle. At least I executive would be added each week, and none would be allowed to leave, except to go to the sibling's bathroom.

The terrible suspense would grow weekly, right along with the length of the line of prone executives. The series would not end until either Knievel or at least 3 TV executives were killed.

The details of the fatal statistics would not be important to the Nielsen ratings. The important factor would be that, no matter who lost the thrilling gamble with death, the viewing public would be the winner.

...The dumbest commercial currently on TV stars several people taking huge, crunching bites out of Heath candy bars. Anyone who knows anything knows this is no way to eat a Heath Bar.

Heath bars are delicious but they have always been too small, and they shrink more every year. Therefore they must be savored, not chomped.

As you must know, a Heath bar is a thin piece of hard toffee, thinly coated with chocolate. It is this constant thinness that makes it difficult to eat a Heath bar properly, but it can be done if you really put your mouth to it.

The important thing is to eat the chocolate off the toffee without breaking the toffee, which is exceedingly brittle. Your teeth must barely penetrate the chocolate, without touching the toffee. Once the chocolate coating is dislodged, it should be slid gently off the toffee. This is done by slowly pulling the toffee out of your mouth while your teeth keep the chocolate on your tongue.

It is sometimes possible to remove the chocolate coating with only two large pieces, one from each side of the bar. Such a maneuver is rare, but when it happens it is most satisfying than peeling an orange in one peel.

The chocolate should be eaten slowly while the toffee is held far away from your mouth. Sometimes I put the toffee on a table and walk away from it, as though I really didn't care. This is fun,

...Speaking Her Mind

I was dismayed to read recently that the last manufacturer of slide rules in the United States is planning to close its doors soon.

It seems that the old slide rule, a close acquaintance of almost every high school math student just a few years ago, is being replaced by automation.

Slide rules, for those of you who grew up in the age of tiny closed circuits, transistors and pocket calculators, is a type of calculating device. It is shaped in the image of a 12-inch ruler only it is inscribed with logarithmic scales in degrees of inches and the middle of the slide rule slides back and forth.

This middle sliding part is very important because it is used to complete most of the calculations, although it is possible to arrive at the solutions of some problems without it.

At first slide rules were constructed out of bamboo, but with the advent of space age plastics, manufacturers began making slide rules out of plastic because that made them less susceptible to changes in humidity and therefore more accurate.

I first became acquainted with the slide rule during ninth grade algebra class. At that time, hand-held, transistorized calculators were still a gleam in some engineer's eye and all math students were expected to learn how to use a slide rule so that they wouldn't have to waste time computing all their math problems by hand.

After the first few weeks of algebra, I dutifully went to the bookstore and purchased my student slide rule. I bought it on a Friday so I could practice all weekend and use it on my math homework assignment.

I figured on cutting my homework time in half with the use of a slide rule. Little did I know that I was about to double the time I was to spend on that homework assignment.

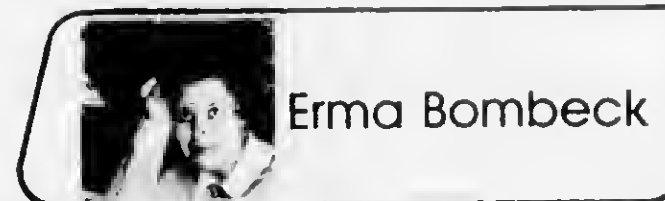

A book of directions came along with the slide rule which gave a brief explanation about its operation. After reading it carefully, I set about to do my homework, slide rule in hand.

I would work the slide rule through the problem and record the answer and then, not trusting the new fangled device, I would rework the problem by hand. Thus doubling the time spent on the problem.

Sometimes the answer I had arrived at on the slide rule was right and sometimes it wasn't. There seemed to be no rhyme or reason to the thing and the only calculations I felt safe doing on the slide rule were ones I could have easily done in my head.

Needless to say after several months of practice, I finally got the hang of it and I was able to use it in other math and science classes with some degree of success.

And now its being replaced with that electronic wizard the calculator. I don't think math classes will ever be the same again.

Pst...they fellas. Wanta know where you can get a G-rated girlie magazine so respectably you could bring it home to your mother?

Pick up any department or clothing store catalogue these days and hit for the underwear section.

I opened a Christmas book from my favorite department store the other day and there between Leather Goods and Floor Polisher were two pages of models in semi-states of nudity. They were wearing pants, stain body suits, beaded camisoles, monogrammed bikinis and nightgowns so sheer you had to wear 'em under a coat.

Don't misunderstand me. The underwear didn't shock me. It was the poor, deformed girls modeling them.

They had hipbones that looked like chicken bones, legs that separated at the knees... and funny curves that dentured in at the... oh, what do you call those little duds... waists!

I wanted to throw a coat over all of 'em and feed 'em hot chicken soup. As I said to Mayva, "It's cruel to exploit some poor girl who can't put on a few extra pounds. Don't you think so, Mayva? Mayva! I asked you a question."

She had the book three inches from her face. "What are these?"

I squinted for a closer look. "I'm not sure, but I think they're kneecaps."

"Do we have two?"

"I told you, pregnancy absorbs them into the blood stream. These women obviously are childless."

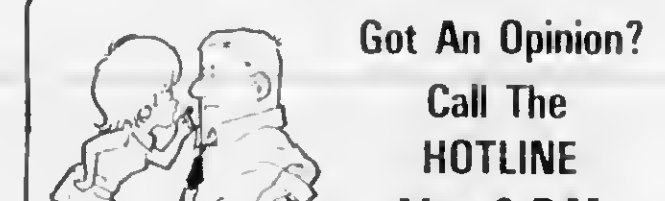

"I don't know whether to believe you or not. You told me this arms cause nasal congestion. Besides, our kids are teenagers."

"Trust me. Besides, no one is going to wear those scanty bits of satin and lace. Those half-starved women are nothing but a fad. Someday your style of lingerie will come back."

"You'd think they'd show at least one outfit wearing our underwear with the cutaway front with the elastic."

"They do, Mayva," I said. "They're under Maternity."

Teacher Feature

...Ann Shindorf

By PEG OHLE
"Work is never boring with this age of kids."

That's what Ann Shindorf says about her job as teacher in the Charlevoix Middle School. And, after talking with her for a while, one can tell that Mrs. Shindorf not only never finds boring but really finds it enjoyable.

Mrs. Shindorf teaches five eighth-grade science classes and one journalism class. The science work is mostly in the field of chemistry, but the students do go afield during the year to touch on such subjects as conservation of energy and ecology.

"I like the chemistry classes because of the way they are taught. The kids actually do experiments," the teacher explains. As an example she cites a class problem: The kids must collect a gas and prove in a series of steps it is carbon dioxide.

First, they make carbon dioxide by putting pieces of shell in a flask. The flask is topped with a rubber stopper containing a hose. Next to the flask is a plastic jug filled with water and a submerged baby food jar. They then take an air piston filled with diluted hydrochloric acid and put the acid on the shells, causing them to bubble. The resultant gas goes through the tube, down into the water, and is collected in the baby food jar, which is covered so the gas won't escape. The jar is then removed from the water.

The collected gas is then put to three tests to prove it is carbon dioxide: Put lime water in jar of gas and shake. If it turns cloudy, it is probably carbon dioxide. Put lit match in jar of gas. If it goes out quickly, it is probably carbon dioxide. Take the chemical phenol red, put it in jar of gas and shake up. If it turns yellow, it is definitely carbon dioxide. "It probably takes a couple of days to do this experiment. We then review it and the kids take a test," Mrs. Shindorf says.

"They have learned how to plan an experiment. They write out a list of equipment and chemicals they will need, then take the procedure step by step. They start with a problem and end up with a solution. This is an organized way of learning which I hope carries over to other subjects. It is not based on opinions or something read, but something they did and saw the results of," she continues.

The class is now working on a short unit on conservation of energy—alternative methods, solar, wind, and water in place of fossil fuels. They have projects, such as going around looking for weather-stripping, turning off lights, perhaps even putting a carpet in front of the dog house, to conserve energy. Mrs. Shindorf's journalism class puts out a newspaper called the "CMS Press", which comes out "about once a month." All 26 students in the class work on it.

"Journalism is an elective, so all the kids who take it are fired up. The paper is distributed throughout the school for 10 cents. There is a raffle ticket in each issue for something like a pizza or a Dapper. It's fun and the kids like it," Mrs. Shindorf relates.

The science-journalism teacher is a graduate of Northern Michigan University with a major in English and a minor in biology and took chemistry courses at North Central Michigan College. She taught English at Milford for three years before going to England for a year. In England she worked as a nanny for two children, getting her room and board of the dog house, to conserve week. She also worked as a maid for extra money.

While in England, Mrs. Shindorf also did some traveling—to Paris during the Christmas holidays, to Holland for Easter, and to Spain, Italy, Switzerland, and Austria during the summer. "I'm so glad I did it," Mrs. Shindorf says now, looking back on that year.

She has been at the Charlevoix Middle School for eight years, fortunately getting the job upon her return from England. She has worked five summers for Brumm's Studios in Norwood but spent last summer "staining and painting" the new home which she and her husband, Al, are building in Norwood Township. They have three golden retrievers. Mrs. Shindorf's hobbies are varied—cooking, growing house plants, reading, cross country skiing, and volleyball (she plays in a league).

Area PBB cases may be lumped with others for trial Cases filed in Charlevoix County against the Michigan Chemical Company, Farm Bureau Services, and others involved in the PBB incident may be lumped together with those filed in other counties throughout the state to be heard by a single, specially-designated judicial officer or court.

The chemical company and Farm Bureau Services is petitioning the State Supreme Court for such action, asking that the Court "establish a special arbitration panel composed of a hearing officer and four other members, to be drawn from scientific or specialized fields germane to the issues involved in the PBB cases."

Also, to "establish rules (for schedules, procedures, discovery, evidence, and the like) applicable to cases heard by the PBB arbitration panel. A hearing on this proposal is scheduled for December 8 at 9:30 a.m. in the Supreme Court hearing room in Lansing. Any person, agency, or organization who can identify an interest in the outcome of PBB-related litigation may request to be heard at this meeting.

According to Charlevoix County Clerk Clarence Rabach, three PBB-related cases have been filed in the county—by the Doug Warners of Charlevoix, the LaVerne Harbarts of East Jordan, and the East Jordan Cooperative.

How best to run small town

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following are excerpts from the article "How Best to Run a Small Town," by Peter V. Fossel. The article appeared in the December 1977 issue of "Yankee." The comments made in the article are most interesting in light of the upcoming charter election in Charlevoix.

Note that selection are the same as aldermen. At the March 1977 Town Meeting in Winchester, New Hampshire, Richard Greent waited anxiously on one side of a crowded basketball gym while 250 voters decided if he should look for work the next morning.

Greent, 24, with a degree in business administration, was Winchester's new $12,000-a-year town manager. His first professional administrator and an outsider in a town run by part-time selectmen since 1963—by farmers, factory workers and storekeepers, elected at town meeting the way it's always been done in New England.

Greent had steamed into Winchester the year before, after residents decided by a two-vote margin to try the town manager system. Within months, this no-nonsense administrator saved the town about $500,000 on a new sewage system, by finagling a larger federal subsidy. He also trimmed the town tax rate by $1.50, won four legal cases involving state aid, streamlined town purchasing, and even displayed fancy diplomatic footwork in a matter involving somebody's dog and somebody else's dead chickens—he listened patiently and did nothing. (His accomplishments became known outside of Winchester; he recently moved to a new job in Nashua.)

Max W. Hull (recently deceased), Winchester's veteran first selectman who long opposed town managers on principle, knew a good thing when he saw it. Before Greent came, Hull and the other two selectmen had been working hard three and four nights a week, and some Saturdays, year-round, buried in sewage-pollution mandates, sanitary landfills, welfare codes, tax regulations, and an increasing number of other complicated issues.

Hislands was also forced to have the entire town reassessed, for the second time in a year, because of another oversight which conflicted with state tax law.

At last count, there were 1,033 separate federal domestic-aid programs, run through some 50 federal agencies' offices and departments. They cover everything from safe drinking water (one of the newest mandates to hit local communities) to improvements at the Little League field. Most require extensive paperwork and study, often by costly consultants. The Environmental Protection Agency's guide to wastewater treatment systems, for example, is a three inches thick with small print, and is required reading for many towns. It isn't

Charlevoix, Traverse City councils exchange ideas about schools, activities

By LAURA GLASS

A lot of "foreigners" were roaming the halls of Charlevoix High School last week.

It wasn't a new crop of Youth for Understanding students, however, but it was an exchange program. Members of the Traverse City High School student council were in Charlevoix for an exchange day.

Traverse City and Charlevoix high school student representatives have been observing how the two high schools operate through a Student Exchange Program set up through their student councils.

Several weeks ago, eight Charlevoix student council members: Joe Thumre, president; Wendy Wieland, vice president; Wendy Wright, secretary; and Laura Glass, Sue Miller, Janene Bual, Jerrilyn Goss and Matt Stangis, council representatives, traveled to Traverse City High School for the program. They were given a complete tour of the Class A school, which they found was quite different from Charlevoix.

For instance, all students at Traverse City High School must carry student ID cards with them at all times so that they may be identified as members of the school. Another difference the Charlevoix students noticed was the larger choice of extracurricular activities at the larger school. Among those offered are: Theatricals Club, Chess Club, Varsity Club, Philadephia Club and the students even work their own campus radio station, WRBL.

Last Wednesday, Traverse City student council members came to Charlevoix for a visit. The students were given a tour of the school and a chance to attend classes throughout the day.

The Traverse City students also attended a Charlevoix student council meeting. Several ideas were exchanged between the students of the two schools about Winter Homecoming, or all the Traverse City students call it, Pep-o-Rama Week. Some suggestions made for the week were: a tug of war between classes, a ski competition and suggestions for snow sculptures. Also discussed.

Also discussed was a new idea successfully used in Traverse City called "Cleaner Campus Week," where students pitch in to remove litter from school grounds.

Traverse City Student Council President Larry Pobuda also spoke of a program called PTSA, (Parent, Teacher, Student Association). The program is similar to a PTA only it includes students. It is set up to give equal representation to everyone involved with the school in dealing with school problems.

Although the Traverse City school is larger and offers a wider curriculum, there are a few disadvantages to its size. A letter to the "Crinason Flash," the Charlevoix High School student newspaper, from a visiting Traverse City student, acclaimed the fact that at Charlevoix there is a closeness between the students and a more individual teacher student relationship.

The student also spoke highly of the newspaper itself, stating its whole atmosphere reflects the friendliness of your students, and that although Charlevoix refers to Traverse City as the big city and Traverse City refers to Charlevoix as the small town, thanks to the student council exchanges both know the advantages of each school system. Charlevoix Student Council President Joe Thumre and Vice President Wendy Wieland were also enthusiastic about the exchange program.

"It's the only opportunity for some students to see how other schools operate on a day-to-day basis," Thumre said. "It's a tremendous learning experience to see how a larger school handles some of the same problems we face here at Charlevoix High School. We exchange a lot of ideas at those meetings, too."

And not only do the schools exchange new ideas, but they made new friends.

MEMBERS OF THE Traverse City High School Student Council were visitors at Charlevoix High School last week. They attended a Charlevoix Council meeting and then visited classes to get an idea of how the school runs. Discussing school rules are: (from left to right) Beth Brinkhoff, Bernie Jopko, Wendy Wieland, vice president of Charlevoix council, Larry Pobuda, Joe Thumre, president of Charlevoix council, Scott Keane, Paul Prouty and Ken Soper. 4-H NEWS WITH BOB BELLAIRS

In my last article, I answered questions concerning the organizational structures of 4-H, and about the 4-H member. Most of the questions that I am asked, however, concern 4-H Clubs. How to organize, how to run club meetings, and how to lead a club are all primary concerns of parents and prospective 4-H leaders. So today I'll answer the most common questions about 4-H Clubs.

How do you get a 4-H group organized?

Have a meeting with youths who are interested and the adults who are willing to help. Publicize it through the school or any place where boys and girls and their parents can be reached.

What do you do at the first meeting?

Get acquainted and have fun with a group mixer and/or some refreshments. Show and talk about some projects the group might like (give this some thought in advance and discuss with the county 4-H agent or an experienced 4-H leader). Discuss when and where and how often the group will meet.

What about officers?

4-H clubs may have officers and whatever committees they need to run their own business. 4-H has materials available for president, vice-presidents, secretaries, treasurers, news reporters, and recreation leaders. The club may have other officers too, depending on their needs. It is a good idea to wait until the second or third meeting to elect officers so members know each other and select the most qualified people.

How often do 4-H Clubs meet?

Some clubs meet every week for a month or two and some meet once or twice a month all year long. This depends on the club and what they want to do. 4-H clubs may organize any time of the year. Sometimes members have to enroll in a project by a certain time to be eligible for a specific activity (check this in your county.)

Should 4-H clubs have dues?

This depends on their need for money. There are no state or national 4-H dues. If the club wants money for some activities, they usually charge dues or conduct money-making activities. Members should never be excluded from a 4-H group because they were unable to pay dues.

Where do 4-H clubs meet?

Any place large enough which is convenient for the members of the group. Many clubs take turns meeting in the members' homes. Some meet in a central place such as a school, church or community room. Many meet in leaders and members' homes.

How big should a club be?

This depends on the age of the members, the places they have to meet, the distance to travel, and the leadership available. The ideal club is big enough to have fun together, but small enough for everybody to feel part of the group. The average club in Charlevoix County has 6-8 members and 1 or 2 leaders.

What is a 4-H leader?

A 4-H leader is a person who works voluntarily with a group of 4-H members.

Are there different kinds of 4-H leaders?

Yes, some leaders teach members how to do things and are called "project leaders." They usually have a special interest or skill such as photography, clothing, or gardening. Persons who help a group get organized and run their meetings are called "organizational leaders."

Can the same person be a project and an organizational leader?

Yes - If they have the time and interest. Sometimes big clubs divide these jobs and have several project leaders to meet the variety of interests which 4-H members have.

If a person just helps a few times, do you call them leaders?

This depends on the county's policy. Most counties call these people "resource leaders." They may not get all of the materials and recognition that regular 4-H leaders receive. They may help with local 4-H club programs (e.g., bankers training 4-H club treasurers, editors training news reporters, etc.)

Some counties have project chairmen or "key leaders."

What are these "key leaders?"

These are experienced people who serve as a resource to several 4-H leaders. They might be project "key leaders" (e.g., a veterinarian who serves as a resource to all 4-H dog leaders in the county) or organizational "key leaders" (e.g., a 4-H alumna who helps to organize several new clubs in an area which has not had 4-H and makes himself available for advice and help).

What about teenagers who help with 4-H?

Most counties have teen leaders who are also 4-H members. They work under the guidance of an adult and help with any of the leadership jobs in the club or county. It depends on their abilities and experience. Sometimes older teens decide that they would rather take a group of their own and be a leader rather than a member. Teen leaders are a wonderful help to adult leaders.

How many leaders should a 4-H club have?

That depends on the size of the club and the age of the members. 4-H groups in Michigan try to have an adult for every eight 4-H members.

Where would I learn to be a 4-H leader?

Your main help would be the Cooperative Extension Service in your County - the office secretary, the extension 4-H - Youth Agent, 4-H program assistants and other agents in agriculture, home economics, and natural resources. They would automatically put you on the 4-H leader mailing list, invite you to special training meetings for 4-H leaders and give you the materials you need to organize a 4-H club.

New hockey rink flooded at Mt. McSaubia

Hockey season will soon open in Charlevoix.

City crews have been hard at work at the Mt. McSaubia Recreation Area clearing the ground for a new hockey rink. The backboards have also been erected and a water line is being run over to the area where the rink is located.

Morris said he and recreation Director Ike Boss felt it was important to keep the city recreation department hockey program going so they decided to approach Charlevoix Common Council for approval to flood a hockey rink at Mt. McSaubia.

Council approved the plan during a recent meeting.

The hockey rink has been located at the Charlevoix Middle School in previous years, but with the construction of a new track at the school, the rink can no longer be located there.

"We've spent many years trying to build this program up," Morris said about the hockey league. "It just wouldn't be good to close it down for a year."

Morris said there would also be an ice skating rink flooded on the Charlevoix High School grounds as has been done in past winter seasons. The rink will be equipped with a warming house and restrooms.

For more information about the hockey or ice skating programs contact Boss at 547-4272.

Pvt. Kent Marine receives parachutists badge Army

Private Kent A. Marine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore McNeil, 4108 Bellair Road, East Jordan, Mich., recently received a Parachutist Badge upon completion of the three-week airborne course at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga.

During the first week of training, students undergo a rigorous physical training program and receive instruction in the theory of parachuting. The second week they receive practical training by jumping from 24-foot and 220-foot towers. The final week includes five static-line parachute jumps.

Pvt. Marine entered the Army in June of this year. He is a 1977 graduate of East Jordan High School.

Pfc. Johnson completes course

Marine Private First Class Andrew E. Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew E. Johnson of Route 2, Box 185B, Charlevoix, Mich., has completed the Basic Automotive Mechanic Course.

During the 12-week course at the Marine Corps Service Support Schools, Camp Lejeune, N.C., students received instruction on the procedures to inspect, service and repair the wheeled vehicles used by the Marine Corps.

HOME RULE YES X DECEMBER 12

THE FOURTH CLASS CITIES ACT OF 1895 HAS SERVED THE STATE LEGISLATURE'S PURPOSE.
NOW WE NEED A HOME RULE CHARTER THAT SERVES CHARLEVOIX'S PURPOSE

The 1895 old purpose, mass produced charter engineered by the Michigan legislature for the average small town in the Gay Nineties is just too creaky for the 1970s. Even the state legislature recognized that its Fourth Class Cities Act had become obsolete - and dropped its automatic application to newly incorporated cities. When? Back in 1909!

HERE'S WHAT THE HOME RULE CHARTER CALLS FOR ...
FORM OF GOVERNMENT:	Council-Manager plan. Council has ultimate powers, sets policies, hires Manager to carry out policies. Council delegates to Manager only those powers necessary to carry out Council's directives.
CITY COUNCIL:	Six members-two from each ward. Two nominees elected at separate ward conventions by residents of each ward. One from each ward elected each year for two-year term by citywide popular nonpartisan vote. Each must be and remain a resident of the ward from which he or she is nominated.
MAYOR:	Elected each year by popular non-partisan ballot from the two candidates nominated from among those who have qualified by petition.
CITY MANAGER:	Appointed by majority vote of Council, solely on basis of administrative qualifications. No fixed term of office. Must be or become and remain a city resident. Council sets salary.
TAX LIMITATION:	Annual ad valorem tax levy for municipal purposes not to exceed 15 mills on State Equalized Valuation of all real and personal property in city—same limitation as now in effect under Fourth Class Cities Act.
UTILITY RATES:	Council to set electric, water and sewer rates no higher than needed to cover costs, including depreciation, capital improvements and the creating and maintaining of a $75,000 emergency fund for each utility. Accounting to be according to generally accepted utility accounting practices. No free service - all service to be recorded and charged.
FRANCHISES, LEASES:	No franchise or license to be granted for a period of more than five years. Franchises or licenses, or renewals or extensions thereof, to be granted only by ordinance. No franchise ordinance not subject to revocation at will of Council is to be enacted or operative until approved by 3/5ths of the electors voting thereon.

WE HAVE DONE ALL WE CAN TO PUT TOGETHER A HOME RULE CHARTER THAT WILL BEST SERVE THE COMMON INTERESTS OF THE CITIZENS OF CHARLEVOIX. AS WE WERE ELECTED TO DO. THE CHARTER WE HAVE DRAFTED IS UNIQUE; NO OTHER CHARTER HAS JUST THIS COMBINATION OF FEATURES. BUT THEN, CHARLEVOIX IS UNIQUE, AND ITS CHARTER SHOULD REFLECT OUR UNMATCHED BLESSINGS...AND OUR SPECIAL CONCERNS. WE HAVE TAKEN THE

Corrections for section of new charter

ARTICLE II Section 2.18 Council Limitations

a. Except where authorized by this Charter, no elected official shall hold any other office or City employment during the term for which elected.

b. Neither the Council nor any of its members, individually, shall dictate the appointment or removal of any City official or employee whom the City Manager or his subordinates are empowered to appoint. The Council may express its views and may freely discuss with the City Manager anything pertaining to the appointment or removal of any such officials or employees.

c. The Council and its members shall deal solely through the City Manager with officials and employees subject to the direction and supervision of the City Manager. Neither the City Council nor its members, individually, shall give orders to any such officials or employees, either publicly or privately.

d. The Mayor, as President of the Council, may be delegated by the council to convey to the City Manager its concerns or its orders with respect to the conduct of oficials or employees subject to the direction and supervision of the City Manager, but otherwise the Mayor is bound by the same restrictions as apply to the Council and its members under sub-sections b and c, immediately preceding.

e. All Council members, City officials and employees, when engaging in City business, shall be guided by the conflict of interest laws of the state.

f. The Council shall not have the power to sell, divide, lease, partition, plat, subdivide, or dispose of any City park, or any part thereof, unless specifically approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon at any general or special election, except as provided for in sub-section h of this section.

g. The Council shall not have the power to sell, divide, lease, partition, plat, subdivide, or dispose of any City owned interest in real property which lies within one hundred (100) feet of the water's edge of Lake Michigan, Round Lake, or Lake Charlevoix, or the connecting waterways, unless specifically approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon at any general or special election, except as provided for in sub-section h of this section.

This section. This sub-section does not apply to the normal operation of a cemetery.

h. The Council may, by a majority vote, when it deems it in the best public interest, lease for a period of not more than five (5) years those facilities used in connection with the operation of public parks and/or beaches, City owned docks with freight storage facilities, and buildings used in connection with the operation of the City owned airport. The Council has the power to sell lots and/or plots in any City owned cemetery.

i. The Council may make investigations into the affairs of the City and the conduct of any City department, office or agency, and for this purpose may subpoena witnesses, administer oaths, take testimony, and require the production of evidence. Any person who fails or refuses to obey a lawful order issued in the exercise of these powers by the Council shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be punishable by a fine of not more than One Hundred Dollars ($100.00), or by imprisonment for not more than ninety (90) days, or both. The punitive powers herein stated shall not be exclusive and shall not prejudice the right to remove officers or discharge employees, and the Council shall have the power to institute injunctive proceedings, force to restrain and to enforce performance and observance of the law and ordinances.

ARTICLE XIV Transition

Section 14.1 Purpose
The purpose of this Article is to assist in the transition from the existing Charter to this Charter and it shall constitute a part of this Charter only to the extent and for the time required to accomplish that end.

Section 14.2 Effective Date
Except as otherwise provided herein, this Charter shall take effect and become law on the second (2nd) Monday in April, 1979, at 12:01 A.M.

Section 14.3 Initial Election and Terms of Office
a. The first election of City Council members under this Charter shall take place on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1978. Three (3) Council members shall be elected on that occasion, being one (1) Council member from each of the wards of the City, each of whom shall take office on the second (2nd) Monday in April, 1979, and serve through December 31, 1980. The nomination and election of such Council members shall be in accordance with the provisions of this Charter. The first meeting of the Council under this Charter shall be held on the second (2nd) Monday in April, 1979.

b. The Mayor elected in November, 1978, shall take office on the second (2nd) Monday in April, 1979, and serve through December 31, 1980.

c. The City Clerk elected in November, 1978, shall take office on the second (2nd) Monday in April, 1979, and serve through December 31, 1980.

d. The City Council members elected in November, 1978, shall take office on the second (2nd) Monday in April, 1979, and serve through December 31, 1980.

e. The office of Treasurer under the Fourth Class Cities Act shall be abolished and terminated upon the appointment of a Treasurer as hereinafter provided, such Treasurer to be appointed following the effective date of this Charter.

Betty Jane Trost marries James A. Klooster here

Betty Jane Trost and James A. Klooster exchanged wedding vows November 26 at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Trost of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Hiram Klooster and the late Mrs. Klooster, also of Charlevoix.

Father Ole Magoon performed the afternoon double ceremony before 150 guests. The bride was given in marriage by her mother and father. Music for the occasion was furnished by the church choir with Mrs. Vincent Brewster playing the organ. The bride wore a gown of satin over tulle with a high collar and long sleeves. The bridegroom wore a tuxedo with a white shirt and a white bow tie.

Her three-tier veil of bridal illusion was trimmed with matching lace and accented with seed pearls. Her bouquet was a colonial arrangement of mums, daisies, and baby's breath. Following a trip through Northern Michigan, the new Mr. and Mrs. Klooster are at home in Charlevoix. Guests from Wisconsin, South Carolina, Iowa, Florida, and Ohio attended their wedding.

Smith-Moore

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Smith of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter, DeEtta Lea, to James A. Moore, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Moore, also of Charlevoix.

A February wedding is planned by the couple. The bride-elect is a 1977 graduate of Charlevoix High School and is employed by Dr. Reed Freidinger. Her fiancé is a 1974 graduate of Charlevoix High School and is employed by Oleson's Food Store.

She carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white tipped mums.

Holly Garten, a friend of the bride, and Lynne Trost, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids. Miss Garten's gown was identical to that of the maid of honor with the exception that it was mint green trimmed in forest green velvet. Miss Trost's gown, also of the same pattern, was blue with Caribbean blue velvet. Their flowers were colonial bouquets of green and blue and white tipped mums.

David Kimble served the bridegroom as best man, with Don Trost, the bride's brother, and Bradley Snizek assisting as groomsmen. Bill Trost and Nathan Klooster were ushers.

Following the wedding ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception at the American Legion Hall in Charlevoix. The bridegroom's father hosted the rehearsal dinner at Leutheuser's restaurant on Thanksgiving Day.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Trost wore a long-sleeved royal blue velvet bodice, white and long skirt of polyester chiffon over tulle. Following a trip through Northern Michigan, the new Mr. and Mrs. Klooster are at home in Charlevoix. Guests from Wisconsin, South Carolina, Iowa, Florida, and Ohio attended their wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Klooster

Engaged

Powers-Dekraker

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Powers of Ellsworth announced the engagement of their daughter Patricia to Mel Dekraker of Charlevoix. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dekraker of Charlevoix.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Ellsworth High School and is employed at the Country Kitchen in Ellsworth. Her fiancé is also a 1977 graduate of Ellsworth High School and is employed by Progressive Machine in Ellsworth.

No wedding date has been set yet.

Women's Club plans Mitten Tree at Charlevoix Co. Bank

The Charlevoix Women's Club will once again have a "Mitten Tree" which will be decorated with mittens for needy children.

The tree will be on display at the Charlevoix County Bank from December 12 through 19. Anyone desiring to donate mittens may bring them to the bank during business hours.

Mittens of all kinds and sizes will be welcome. They will be distributed to needy Charlevoix school children by the school nurse.

Big Brothers / Big Sisters of Charlevoix County will donate the tree to the Women's Club for decorating.

Louise Everts joins public library staff

Louise Everts is now working at the Charlevoix Public Library as a Library Technician. She processes books and is available to help people find what they are looking for.

Mrs. Everts lives in Charlevoix with her husband, Grover and children, Greg, 17, Becky, 15, and Reagan, 11.

Employees of Grandvue Medical Care Facility, their families and friends, gathered for a reception November 29 at the facility. Several employees were recognized for their years of service.

Pearl Tausley received recognition for 20 years of service from Vern Whiteford, Social Services Board chairman. Award pins for 15 years of service were presented to Pauline Amott, Rose Nemecek, Mary Ann Stiff, and Grady, a new member of the Board. They are Ruth Bell, Pete Paskey, Emma Libbard, Alice Kooyer, and Joyce Raymond.

The Leaning Tree is a new addition to the library's collection. It is a book about the history of Charlevoix County.

There are 5 and 6 A youngsters in this age group usually has an all-encompassing belief in the story. The wonder and enjoyment the child experiences at these ages offset any temporary disappointment that may come later.

The 5-year olds believe Santa is a real person. They like to write or dictate letters telling Santa what they want for Christmas. They plan to visit Santa and they also start to become interested in giving as well as receiving.

The 6-year olds respond basically the same way as the 5-year olds. However, they begin to hear "doubting talk" from friends. They usually fiercely reject all suspicious and remain firm in their belief. They may imagine every detail of the Santa Claus story and will describe the North Pole and the elves making toys in Santa's workshop.

While it is important to note these stages in your child's development, it is equally important to be aware of the attitude that the adults are helping to foster in children. "If they see our generosity in giving and receiving, our genuine interest in making others happy and our taking time to enjoy this important season, we will do much to make a valued and lasting good feeling about this time of the year for them."

The 3-year olds begin to show a mild interest in Santa, recognizing that he delivers toys. They get excited by the holiday season and are pleased with their gifts.

By the age of 4, children believe in "Jolly, old St. Nicholas" - complete with flying reindeer - and want all the details of the story. At this age, they also confuse the story with the details of Baby Jesus.

BMC RANDY LANGSTON saluted Officer Ronald Freels as he prepares to take over the duties of officer in charge at the Charlevoix Lifeboat Station. Freels has been transferred to St. Ignace station.

BMC Randy Langston assumes lifeboat lead

BMC Randy Langston, a veteran of 12 years in the U.S. Coast Guard, assumed command of the U.S. Coast Guard Lifeboat Station at a Change of Command ceremony held Friday.

He relieved BMC Ronald E. Freels who has been Officer in Charge at the station since Jan. 23, 1975.

Chief Langston comes to Charlevoix from the U.S.C.G.R. Training Center, Yorktown, Va. His other duty stations have been CGC Ivy, Astoria, Or., C.G. Station Neah Bay, Neah Bay, Wa., CG Light Station Slip Point, Chatham, Wa., CGC Wachusett, Port Angeles, Wa., CG Station Grays Harbor, West Port, Wa., CG Port Safety Station, Ogdensburg, N.Y., CG Station Belle Isle, Detroit, Mich., and CG Station Port Huron, CGC Morant, San Francisco, CA and Yorktown, Va.

He was accompanied here by his wife, Julie, and children, Angela and Brent. Chief Freely, a veteran of 22 1/2 years in the U.S. Coast Guard, has been transferred to St. Ignace where he will assume the duties of Officer in Charge at the Lifeboat Station.

The 5-year olds believe Santa is a real person. They like to write or dictate letters telling Santa what they want for Christmas. They plan to visit Santa and they also start to become interested in giving as well as receiving.

The 6-year olds respond basically the same way as the 5-year olds. However, they begin to hear "doubting talk" from friends. They usually fiercely reject all suspicious and remain firm in their belief. They may imagine every detail of the Santa Claus story and will describe the North Pole and the elves making toys in Santa's workshop.

While it is important to note these stages in your child's development, it is equally important to be aware of the attitude that the adults are helping to foster in children. "If they see our generosity in giving and receiving, our genuine interest in making others happy and our taking time to enjoy this important season, we will do much to make a valued and lasting good feeling about this time of the year for them."

The 3-year olds begin to show a mild interest in Santa, recognizing that he delivers toys. They get excited by the holiday season and are pleased with their gifts.

Be careful of pesticides inside

The cooler weather is driving many kinds of pesky little sixteen legged creatures indoors. However, you may not appreciate those cockroaches taking up residence in your cupboard. Fortunately, modern pesticides can usually lick an invasion of roaches as well as flies and other insects. But as you know, pesticides can also hurt children, pets, neighbors or others who may be accidentally exposed.

A free booklet from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, "Pesticides...Read the Label First," gives information to help you protect yourself and your family. For your copy, send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 811F, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Before you buy any pesticide, read the label and be sure you understand the directions for use. Then use the pesticide only in the amount recommended on the label, at the time and under the conditions specified. It's a mistake to think that twice the dosage will do twice the job. It won't, and you may harm yourself or whatever you're trying to protect.

Different pesticides have different degrees of toxicity. The most toxic products will be labeled "DANGER - POISON." The word "WARNING" on the label means the product is less toxic, but still must be used with extreme care. Those products that are least harmful will have the word "CAUTION" on the label.

If someone should be accidentally poisoned, check the pesticide label for emergency instructions headed "Statement of Practical Treatment." The label will tell what to do immediately. Then call or get to a doctor right away. Be sure and take the pesticide (with the label) to the doctor. It will help the doctor prescribe treatment. It's also a good idea to write the name and number of your doctor and the local poison control center near the telephone.

CHARLEVOIX COUNCIL MINUTES

The Common Council of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Hansen presiding. Aldermen present: Morris, Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Erber, and Wallace. Absent: None.

The Minutes of the November 14, 1977 regular meeting were approved as presented in writing and as recorded in the Council Minutes Book.

Allen Sandberg, City Administrator, appeared before Council in regard to his recent dismissal by Mayor Hansen. He questioned the manner in which the dismissal was carried out and stated he would like to meet with the Council in an Executive Session to discuss their reasons for his dismissal. Mr. Sandberg also requested that he be granted two and one-half months severance pay in addition to the one and one-half months severance pay he will receive under his agreement with the City, as he had not been given adequate notice of his impending dismissal to allow him to secure other employment. Dave Fowler, a member of the General Public present, asked that Mr. Sandberg be allowed to resign after a lengthy discussion, Council agreed to allow Mr. Sandberg to submit his letter of resignation later in the meeting, said resignation to be effective this twenty-eighth day of November, 1977.

A Public Hearing was held on the proposed rezoning of the Charlevoix Lumber Company property from C-1 to Marine Industrial as requested by James Hiller, present owner of the property and Mr. Ward Walstrom, a prospective buyer of the property. Mr. Walstrom has plans to build a marina on the site if the rezoning is allowed. Members of the General Public present and owners of property adjoining the proposed site generally agreed that the use of the property should be rezoned from C-1 to Marine Industrial.

RESOLUTION 77-11-2 WHEREAS, the City of Charlevoix recognizes the need for increased boat storage and dockage, and, WHEREAS, the City of Charlevoix recognizes that certain restrictions should be placed on the people building on the waterfront, in order to preserve the esthetics of the area and to protect the adjoining property owners from unnecessary harm.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the City of Charlevoix rezoned the property known as the Charlevoix Lumber Company, and more interest of Mr. Gordon Peterson against the Flying Club building a profit from renting a City building located on City land. Council was in general agreement with the recommendation of the Committee to the City of Charlevoix, to split his property located in the Westport Subdivision to allow him sufficient land to build a garage adjacent to his existing house located on Lot 43.

The following Resolution was offered and moved for its adoption by Alderman Whitley and supported by Alderman Wood.

RESOLUTION 77-11-3 WHEREAS, it is in the best interest of the City of Charlevoix, a citizen of the City of Charlevoix, to split his property located in the Westport Subdivision to allow him sufficient land to build a garage adjacent to his existing house located on Lot 43 will development of this property together with a contract drawn becomes 80 ft. in width as in the time of Site Plan Review presented by Boss binding the use of the land to Engineering.

Resolution was adopted by Council's specific request.

Resolution was adopted by the following yea and nay vote: Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Erber, Yeas: Aldermen Morris, and Wallace. Nays: None. Plumm, Wood, Whitley, Erber, Absent: None.

Council discussed the purchase of a new truck for the General Public present and owners of property adjoining the proposed site generally agreed that the use of the property should be rezoned from C-1 to Marine Industrial.

RESOLUTION 77-11-4 WHEREAS, the City of Charlevoix recognizes the need for increased boat storage and dockage, and, WHEREAS, the City of Charlevoix recognizes that certain restrictions should be placed on the people building on the waterfront, in order to preserve the esthetics of the area and to protect the adjoining property owners from unnecessary harm.

COACH DAVE MOYER has a heart to heart talk with his team during a time out. The Rayders played hard against the Blue Devils but the Gaylord team managed to squeak out a win 64-61 in the season opener last Tuesday.

SOMETIMES YOU'VE GOT TO play low to the ground in order to get anywhere. This Rayder player snuck away with the ball before the Blue Devils knew what was happening.

THE RAYDERS thought they had this Gaylord player surrounded, but he managed to sneak through the middle and down toward his own territory. The Blue Devils beat the Rayders 64-61 last Tuesday.

Rayders even up record, defeat Cheboygan

By BILL MERCER

Charlevoix's basketball team evened their record at one victory and one loss by defeating Cheboygan 47-45 last Friday evening.

Freshman basketball team drops two games last week

The Charlevoix Rayder freshman basketball team dropped two games to opponents last week.

In Thursday's play the Rayders lost to Cheboygan 54-30, and in Monday night's play the team lost to Gaylord 43-34.

In the game against Cheboygan turn overs were a big problem for the young team, Coach Roger Gowell said.

"It's early in the season and the kids need game experience," Gowell explained.

Cheboygan took an early lead and the Rayders would close up the scoring gap only to lose it again. In the first quarter Cheboygan scored 17 points and Charlevoix 5. But during the second quarter both teams added 10 points to make the score 27-15.

In the third quarter, Charlevoix could hit for only four points while Cheboygan dropped in 16 and then both teams added 11 points to their scores in the fourth quarter.

Alray, Tri-City, Wojan post wins in B League play

Alray Cottages, Tri-City Asphalt and Wojan Aluminum all posted wins as the Charlevoix Recreation Department B League basketball got back in action this week.

Alray Cottages defeated Medusa 51-44 in a close battle that saw Vince Left dump in the first quarter with the score at 24 points for Alray and Tom Left added another 10. Dick Putman had 15 points and Bob Holtzman had 12 for Medusa.

Alray started off with a small lead over Medusa in the first quarter, which it managed to keep for the entire game. In the first quarter Alray had 20 and Medusa scored 15 points. In the second quarter the score edged up to 31 points for Alray and 28 for Medusa.

In the third quarter, Medusa came within one point of catching Alray with the score at 38-37, but Alray moved ahead to win the game in the final quarter.

In the second game of B League action last week, Tri-City ran over County State Bank 74-54. Tri-City took off to a substantial lead in the first quarter with the score at 23-10. By the second quarter, the team had moved their margin to 43-25.

By the end of the third quarter the point spread had been changed to 54-37 in favor of Tri-City and they clinched the game with a 74-54 score.

Tri-City had four players in double figures. Leading the pack was Dave Norton with 25 points. Butch Klooster, 16, Leroy Buchanan, 13 and Mike Crain, 10.

Jerry Skippengosh was the leading scorer for County

Kadens, Swanson, Townhouse take lead in A League

Kadens, Swansons and Townhouse came out in the winners circle as the Charlevoix Recreation Department A League resumed play last week.

In the first game of the evening, Kadens defeated Site Planning Development 78-60. It was a close game during the first half. Site Planning Development took off to an early lead 23-17 in the first quarter. But Kadens came back to take a small lead 37-33 in the second quarter.

During the second half, Kadens continued to widen their margin to 56-42 in the third quarter and 78-60 in the fourth quarter.

Kadens had four players in double figures with Chuck Stanek leading the pack at 25 points. Behind him were: Al Loeze, 14, Bob Simpson, 12, and Rob Spencer, 10.

Site Planning Development also had four players in double figures with Terry Blisset taking the high scoring honors at 13 points. Bob Vratnina with 12, Kragg Lieberman, 11, and Dennis Dominic, 10.

In the second game of the evening Swansons buried Bob's Sunco 66-40. Swansons took the lead in the first quarter 14-8 and held onto it throughout the game jumping to 27-18 in the second period, 46-30 in the third quarter and 66-40 in the final quarter.

Bruce Meggison was the high point man for Swansons with 22 points. Dave Moyer made 17 points. For Bob's Sunco, Joel Donaldson had 16 points.

In the final game of the evening the Townhouse poured over Foam Corps 82-54.

Townhouse had four players in double figures with Dan McKenzie leading the way with 19 points.

Spock Coleman had 17, and Ike Boss and Steve Smith both had 10 points.

Now for the first time in history, the people of the City of Charlevoix have had the opportunity to modernize its government, control its taxes and utility rates, and provide full time management for operation of the city, controlled by an elected council and Mayor.

The elected Charter Commission has worked over 2½ years and have invested many thousands of hours in research and formulation of a Charter which is aimed at finally fulfilling the needs of the city now.

Vote yes on December 12.

Moyer's players have yet to smooth out the early season rough edges. Turnovers and fouls were plentiful for both the Rayders and their opponents.

In Tuesday's encounter against Gaylord, Charlevoix fans saw Jim Elzinga and Pat Schmidt both fouled out late in the fourth quarter. Schmidt kept the Rayders in the game with 22 points, but they could not overcome a cold shooting, four-point first quarter.

Kip Cinnamon contributed 18 points and Elzinga added 10 in the losing effort.

Friday night, Coach Moyer was more successful, according to the coach, "The fellows dominated the rebounding, especially Joe Left and that's what kept us in the game."

Charlevoix held a 42-30 edge in team rebounds in the victory.

Cheboygan employed a full court press throughout most of the game. This gave the Rayders trouble early, but they were able to overcome the defensive maneuver.

Even with the victory, Moyer felt turnovers and fouls were an important aspect of the game.

"We had 11 turnovers in the first quarter and 32 fouls in the game," Moyer pointed out.

"Elzinga, Cinnamon and Steve Schuch fouled out with two more players collecting four fouls."

Scoring was again led by Schmidt, this time he tallied 16 points. Cinnamon helped out with 9 points and Neil Datedale collected 6.

Charlevoix hit 15 field goals and 17 of 23 free throws. "It was a good victory, but we need to smooth out our game," Moyer said.

This week Charlevoix travels to Grayling on Tuesday and entertains Rogers City at home on Friday. Perhaps the Rayders can straighten out their mistakes in these two conference games.

play," Coach Moyer said. "We have four tough games coming up against Rogers City, Harbor Springs, St. Ignace and Petoskey and we need to be ready."

In Monday's game Hoffman was also the top scorer with 14 points and Ben Shores had 13 points.

Paul Hoffman was the top scorer for Charlevoix with 16 points. Jeff Daylong had 6 points and Frank Hoffman was good on the rebounds.

Coach Gowell said.

Girls lose tough one in tourney

Charlevoix Rayders lost a tough game to the Elk Rapids girls in their opening appearance in the Class C District Tournament at Elk Rapids last week.

The Elks beat the Rayders 80-55.

"I was proud of the team, they played well," Coach Toni Felter said. "They played good offense and defense and they didn't let it fall apart. They had a good game."

"But the Elk Rapids team was fast and they had good outside shooting."

Coach Felter said the Elks capitalized on some Rayder errors, but the opponents' strength was their shooting.

The Elks also had some height in the Class C District Tournament at Elk Rapids last week.

The Elks got off to a good start taking the lead in the first quarter 19-6. The Rayders came back to add 20 points to their score in the second quarter, but the Elks were there with another 22 points. At the half the score was 41-26.

In the third quarter the Rayders narrowed the lead by adding 17 points to their score and the Elks hit for only 18 points bringing the Rayders

Lena M. Cotton Funeral services for Mrs. Carl (Lena M.) Cotton, 82, who died Nov. 27, at McLaren General Hospital in Flint, were held Thursday, Dec. 1, at Sunset Chapel of the Reile Funeral Home in Flint. The Rev. Bruce W. Pearson of the Faith Missionary Church officiated. Interment was in Graceland Cemetery.

Born at Brynner, Mo., Dec. 9, 1894, the former Lena Mae Louise was to Michigan with her parents as a girl of 15 years. She lived at Hart, Mich., where she met and married William Bradford on April 5, 1915. They resided at Ellsworth for several years before going to Flint where Mr. Bradford preceded her to death in March 1949. In 1964 she was married to Mr. Cotton. She was a member of the Dartmouth Missionary Church and had been a Sunday School teacher.

Besides her husband, she is survived by six daughters, Mrs. Ruth Vount of Hamletta, Mrs. Mildred Fournier of Flushing, Mrs. JoAnn Bourdeau of Davison, Mrs. Lillian Muma, Mrs. Shirley Allison and Mrs. Betty Venable, all of Flint; five sons, Gerald Bradford of Millington, William Jr., at Bradenton, Fla., Jack of Mt. Morris, Harold and Carl of Flint; 47 grandchildren; 46 great-grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Louis DuChene of Kewadin and five brothers, William J. of Weidman, Niley A., Rev. Ted L., Paul F. and Thomas W., all of Charlevoix.

Combined choirs to present cantata

A special Christmas cantata will be presented by the combined choirs of the Atwood Reformed Church, the Charlevoix Church of God and the Charlevoix Community Reformed Church.

The John W. Peterson cantata "Night of Miracles" will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Sunday and on Christmas night in the Community Reformed Church of Charlevoix.

Cindy Hansen will direct the choirs and Gianna Leonardson and Ken Boss will be featured soloists. Francis Boss and Terry Vanderslick will accompany the three choirs and Nathan Boss will be the narrator.

Written in 1958, Peterson's "Night of Miracles" attempts to portray the truth of the birth of Christ in a new and original way.

Searching through the Gospels of Matthew and Luke, Peterson began to weave the thread of the miraculous way in which the prophecy was fulfilled, the way in which the message was given to the shepherds and the way God chose to reveal himself on that first Christmas.

Peterson writes that in within 8 points of their opponents, but in the final quarter the laymen managed to his only another 15 points while the Elks added 23 points to their score.

High scorer for the Rayders was Melinda Klooster, who was brought up from the junior varsity team for the tournaments along with Melanie Kerridge and Theresa Noiro. Melinda had 22 points for a shooting average of 73 percent. She also had five interceptions during the game.

Sherrie Sellisen followed Melinda with 12 points and Chris Lehman had 8.

Top point maker for the Elks was Karen Norton with 20 points followed by Barb Lunday, 15 and Kelly Sanford, 14.

The Elks went on to play Boyne City and Traverse City St. Francis in the district tournament.

'Atlas of Michigan' nearing sell out

"Atlas of Michigan," the first complete atlas of the state in more than 100 years, is nearing a sell-out of its first printing of 12,500 copies.

Produced by the Michigan State University Press, the atlas is printed in full color throughout its 256 pages. It contains 400 maps, 85 graphs, 180 photographs, and 75 original line drawings as well as 50,000 words of text.

"We wanted to produce a book that would invite the general reader to take it home and would also be used by professionals in their offices," says Dr. Lawrence M. Sommers, editor of the atlas. "I think we succeeded."

There are still some atlases left in book stores in the area.

Charlevoix from there in June 1968.

At the conclusion of his four year enlistment he left the service, re-enlisting in January 1960. At that time he returned to the CGC Sandew for two years and then was stationed at Duluth, Minn.; Bayfield, Wis., where he was Officer in Charge of the Lifeboat Station there; Two Harbor, Minn.; Light Station as Officer in Charge; USCG Recruiting Office Duluth from 1967-72; CGC Woodrush in Duluth, Alaska, for one year, and in June 1975, returned to the Sandew here.

He and his wife, the former Noreen Cross, and their children, Rich and Sherrie, will remain at their home on M-66.

ABOUT 43 percent of the voters turned out to express their opinion on the proposed new charter during a special election Monday. Here election workers close up shop and compare the vote tally with their registration sheets. Voters defeated the charter 571 to 511.

About a lot of things
I think there should be a sign at the traffic light in the center of Charlevoix as you approach from the north, saying "No Left Turn", as this holds back a great deal of traffic. Also, there are too many accidents on the highways today because of these double length trucks. They go too fast in the first place, they'll pass a person who's going 55 or 60 mph. There was a traffic accident just today, where the driver said his gas pedal stuck. Well, those big trucks ought to have better maintenance. Can you imagine what the man who was driving a car in front of that truck how he felt when he looked into the rear mirror and saw that truck coming down on him and then passing him up? Then, I think that there should be a law to prohibit these double trucks, no matter what kind of merchandise they transport, whether it's gasoline or other kinds of freight. I am also getting sick and tired of the word "sex". From teaching it in schools, in college down to the first graders. We're getting more and more like the people of Sodom and Gomorrah in Bible times. Sex is so sinful. It's sickening how people continue the use of the word and all it pertains to in discussions and in articles. And Ann Landers answers the most ridiculous questions. It's high time she quit using the word "sex" and talk about something else.

Christmas is Seeing
Thoughts that generate good feelings were meant to be shared. The following is entitled, "Christmas is Seeing." During the Holy Season, when the love and truth of Jesus is most desired and perceived, our minds are open and our hearts are excited and warmed. The living goodness experienced enables us to look at and see one another in a new and warm light. Cards and heartfelt greetings are exchanged, because, in seeing more clearly, we remember persons as good neighbors and friends. Thank you.

P.S.

Jeff Drenth
betcha' never thought you'd make the front page!

Voters turn thumbs down on charter a second time

By PAULA HOLMES
Charlevoix voters turned down a proposed new charter for the city for the second time during a special election Monday.

The proposed charter, prepared by an elected commission of city residents, would have changed the community to a home rule city from a fourth class city.

Election workers cast 475 votes in favor of the new document and 571 votes against it with the absentee ballots casting the decisive lot in the election.

Seventeen fewer people voted in Monday's election than in the July 11 election when the vote was 553 no, 510 yes. Approximately 43 percent of the voters participated in each election. There are 2,481 registered voters in the city.

The charter question was carried in the machine vote Monday with residents casting 401 yes votes and 368 no votes at the polls. However, of the 279 absentee ballots cast on the issue, only 74 were in favor of the charter while 205 opposed it.

In the last election, 194 absentee ballots were cast consisting of 53 yes votes and 140 no votes.

As in the last election, only one ward completely supported the charter.

Residents of the first ward cast 184 yes votes and 89 no votes at the polls and 41 yes votes and 22 no votes by absentee ballot.

In the July 11 election, first ward residents cast 193 votes in favor of the new document and 77 no votes.

Second ward residents cast 88 yes votes at the polls and 20 yes votes by absentee ballot Monday and 165 no votes at the polls and 97 by absentee ballot. In the first election, second ward voters opposed the new document 186 to 119.

Third ward residents cast 129 votes in favor of the charter at the polls Monday and 13 by absentee ballot while 132 no votes were cast at the polls and 86 by absentee ballot. In the first election, third ward opposed the new charter by a narrow 150-145 margin.

"We're sadly disappointed over the outcome of the election," John Michael, charter commission member, said. "I would have been satisfied if we had just brought out more voters, but we didn't even do that."

Mayor Edward Hansen, a strong opponent of the proposed new charter, said he felt vindicated by the outcome of the election.

"I think the result of the election shows support for what we have and for what we've done with it," Mayor Hansen said. "And I think the more people find out about the real issues in this thing, the more support will build for the electorate process."

"I think the real issue is that the voters want people responsible for the city that have to answer at the polls."

"If the people want a city manager, they can have that, too. All they have to do is pass an ordinance. We have the prerogative under the present charter to make out guidelines for a city manager or any other office that might be needed to operate the city."

The mayor said he was also glad to see the proposed charter defeated because of the merger situation with Charlevoix Township.

"Under the present charter, if it becomes advisable and expedient to change the borders of the city, it can be done locally through the county board of commissioners," Hansen explained.

"If the new charter had been adopted that authority would have been transferred to the state boundary commission."

The last investigation that group there were four mergers being considered and they had been in committee for four years.

Hansen said he did think there was room for improvement in city government and he said he would like to see more participation in decision making by the common council members.

"You can only improve government by having more people working at it," the mayor said. "There are other things that we could change and improve in city government, but that's not going to come out of an effort by people who are trying to change things because they were defeated or quit their office when they couldn't get their way at the council table."

Hansen said he hoped the charter issue was dead now because of the turnout it has created in the city. "It's time to free this council and let it get back to work," Hansen said. "Because of the political intrigue going on at the council table with them vying for position because of the charter effort we have lost opportunities in the areas of recreation, housing, and grant applications."

The charter commission has the option to hold one more election on the proposed new charter before the commission is dissolved in April. Commission Chairman Richard Fochtman said the commission would be meeting later this week to decide what steps to take.

Council receives more petitions

A petition signed by 10 Bridge Street merchants opposing the proposed planting of trees in the sidewalk along the street was presented to Charlevoix Common Council Monday night.

The petition, signed by businessmen from Bergsons, Fays, Staley Hardware, Barber Shop, Topside Lounge, Sears, Bill's Fishing Hole, Cass Supply and Literary News Center, said the merchants were very much against the planting of trees through the sidewalks downtown.

"I almost wonder if some action isn't necessary to ease these people's minds," Alderman Ivan Whitley said.

Alderman Jeannine Wallace, who is also a member of the Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission, said the petition situation was getting out of hand.

Santa's coming to town at 1 p.m. Saturday

Santa Claus will make his annual appearance in Charlevoix on Saturday. He will arrive at the parking lot of the First State Bank at 1 p.m., ready to entertain the boys and girls.

Santa's visit is sponsored by the Charlevoix Fire Department.

Get with the holiday spirit, join us at Dec. 22 Carol-In It's time to get with the Christmas spirit. There's only 11 days left until Christmas and that doesn't leave you with much time to get filled with holiday cheer.

So why don't you plan on joining the Charlevoix Courier and WVOY Radio for their fourth annual "Carol-In."

All area residents are invited to join in a community evening of singing beginning at 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 22, in East Park in downtown Charlevoix.

Marina LaBlanc, Charlevoix Elementary School music teacher, once again will lead the singing and Santa Claus himself may even make a special guest appearance at the celebration. Refreshments will be provided following the "Carol-In" and a drawing will be held for a family gift compliments of the Courier and WVOY.

In order to be eligible to win the prize, which will be announced next week, area residents should mail or bring in Christmas cards to the Charlevoix Courier, 301 Michigan Ave., Charlevoix, or to WVOY, 211 Bridge St., Charlevoix, by 6 p.m. Dec. 22.

The cards should contain the sender's name and address. Winners must be present at the "Carol-In" in order to claim their prize.

"Jacquie Merta of the chamber called and said petitions in favor of the trees were being turned in at the chamber for presentation here, too," Mrs. Wallace pointed out.

"Well, I'd like to see theirs," Whitley said. "I've seen plenty of signatures against it and I think action should be taken."

Mrs. Wallace explained that she had met with Billie Smith, and Ken and Roberta Whitley, leaders of the petition drive seeking a moratorium on the tree program, and that she had sent out specs for bids to all the nurseries in Northern Michigan to see if the city could get a better price, at the group's request.

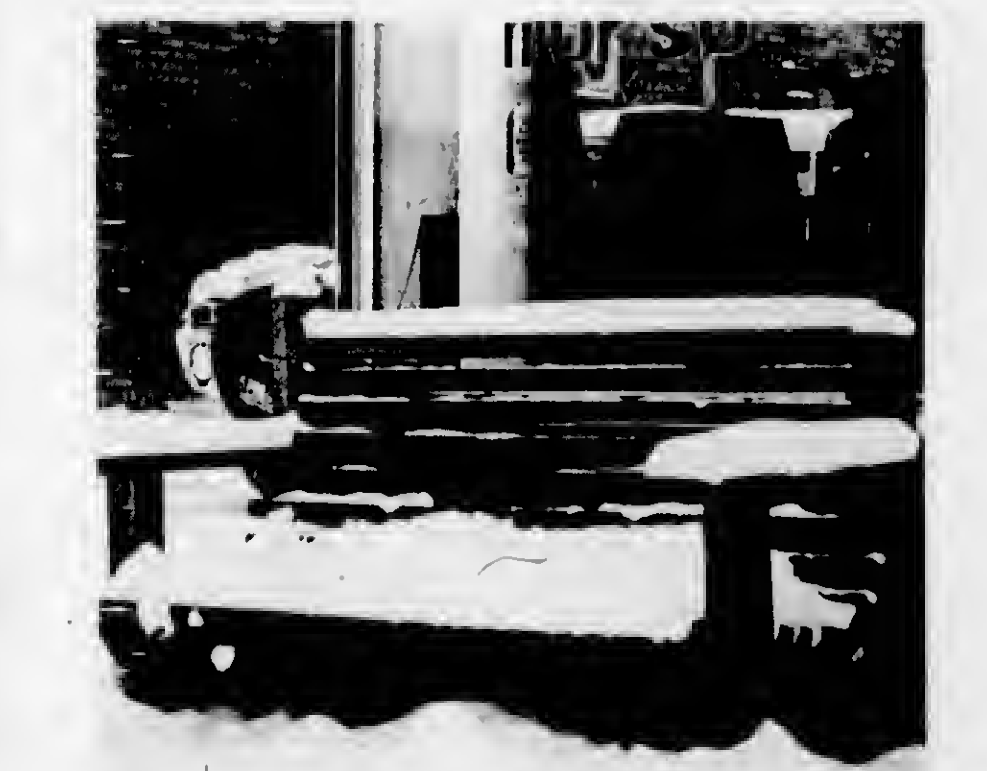

In other action, the council discussed the Charlevoix Housing Commission's request to approve Richard Wiggins as the developer for the proposed senior citizen complex. Mayor Edward Hansen suggested the council or the housing commission investigate Wiggins thoroughly before naming him as the developer.

"I'm uncomfortable without checking him out," the mayor said.

Alderman George Plumm, the liaison between council and the housing commission, agreed that Wiggins should be investigated, but he urged that it be done as soon as possible. "I feel we should pursue this avenue so we can get this thing going," Plumm said.

The council also extended the deadline for truck bids to Dec. 19 and approved a petty cash policy for city employees and a site plan for Midwest Division of Ron Pair.

THIS SNOW covered bench in front of the Heartwood Alternative on Mason Street says it all about the weekend weather. Charlevoix was socked in by heavy snow storms that closed school Friday, cancelled the basketball game and in general slowed the pace down to a crawl.

Christmas bazaar offers something for everyone Sunday

MIKE ROEBUCK, a fifth grade student at the Charlevoix Elementary School, shows off a door decoration that he made for the Christmas Bazaar that the Parents Council is sponsoring Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. at the school.

It promises to be a fun afternoon for the entire family. The Charlevoix Elementary School Parents Council is sponsoring a Christmas Bazaar from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday at the school.
The bazaar will feature an old fashioned cake walk, a visit from Santa Claus and Sesame Street's Big Bird, jolly clowns and the usual bazaar items.
In addition, families attending the bazaar will be able to purchase hot dogs, popcorn and cotton candy to munch on while they look at all of the items available.
Parents, grandparents and children have been working as hard as Santa's elves preparing items for the bazaar. Patty Muma, chairman of the Parents Council Social Committee, which is holding the bazaar, explained.
The students have been making candles, pine cone wreaths, door decorations and Christmas tree ornaments to sell at the bazaar while parents have been working on baked goods for the cake walk, dried flower arrangements, macramé and knitted items and ceramic pieces.
Anyone wishing to donate items to the bazaar can send them to the elementary school this week or on Saturday, Mrs. Muma said. The Parents Council will be setting up the bazaar in the elementary school gym Saturday afternoon. Funds raised at the bazaar will be used to purchase equipment for the school.
Members of the social committee who are working on the bazaar include: Debbie Bartram, Lynn Graves, Shirley Roloff, Donna McGary, Pat Gauthier, Swanne Alden, Marlene Creswell, Betty Coen, Judy LaFave, Anna Darrah, Joyce Frabis, Jean Seymour and Barbara Holmes.

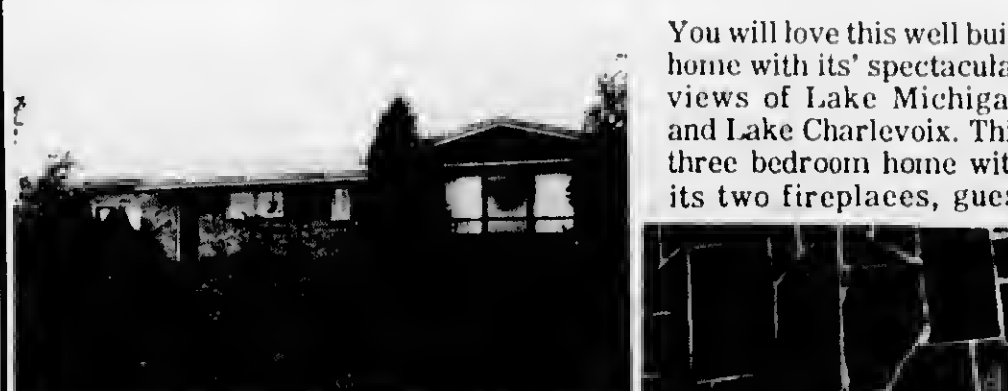

DOUG MAYHEW puts the finishing touches on a pine cone wreath he made for the Christmas Bazaar that will be held Sunday at the Charlevoix Elementary School. Doug and many other students made decorations to sell at the bazaar. Money raised at the event will be used to purchase equipment for the elementary school.

High school holiday concert slated for Monday in gym

The Charlevoix High School Music Department will present its annual Christmas Concert at 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 19, in the high school gym.
In scheduling the concert at the earlier hour, Gary L. Stutzman said he was hopeful that families with school-age children will attend and enjoy the seasonal music.
Highlighting the concert will be a selection from Tchaikovsky "Nutcracker Suite" so much a part of the holiday scene and many of the standard Christmas selections including Leroy Anderson's "Sleigh Ride" and Irving Berlin's "White Christmas". The bands will appear under the direction of Mr. Stutzman. The concert is open to the public. Residents of the school district are invited to the concert that is ushering in the holiday season.
The high school choir, directed by Steven Stargardt, will present a program of traditional holiday music.
Dale Boss Jr., will manage the park for the second year. He will be assisted by Gary Sebe.
Boss went on to say that there is a good base on the hills which will be built up as the season progresses. The marks the first time the back hill was opened this early.
The park will be open from 6 until 10 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday. This marks a change from Tuesday night. On the weekends the facility will be open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. on Saturday and 1 until 6 p.m. on Sunday.
During the forthcoming holidays, however, the slopes will be open daily from 10 until 6 p.m. daily beginning Dec. 23 through Monday, Jan. 2 with the exception of Christmas Day when it will be closed all day and on New Year's Day when the hours will be from 1 until 6 p.m. The park has never remained open on Christmas Day.
The ice rink south of the high school at Carpenter ave. and May St. will be flooded this week in preparation for the skating season if the cold weather continues.

Calling snow days---serious business

As soon as that first snowflake hits the ground and winter sets in, students' minds turn to thoughts of their first "snow day."
Students in the Charlevoix Public School system got their first day off due to the weather last Friday when more than seven inches of the white stuff covered the ground and the road.
While students may find snow days full of fun, deciding whether to hold school or not is a serious business, according to Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren.
The decision making process begins at 4:30 a.m. each day when Vince Olach, school business manager, hops out of bed to check the weather. School buses leave the garage at 6:20 a.m. so the latest decision can be made to close school at 6:15 a.m.
If go by the weather report on the radio or television the night before," Olach explained. "If it says snow or blow, I set the alarm for 4:30 a.m."
When he gets up, he checks to see if it has done either. If it has snowed or drifted during the night, Olach gets ready to drive some key roads on the north and south sides of the school district to see if they are passable.
He uses a four-wheel drive vehicle, a large shovel and a CB radio while making the rounds of Boyne City, Skolt, Pincherry and adjoining roads on the north side and Barnard, Loeb, Marion Center and adjoining roads on the south side.
Van Wieren said the school district also checks with the sheriff's department and the road commission about the condition of the roads, but he believes the school district officials should also check the roads.
"I prefer to check the roads on our own if we can because that way we can be a little more responsible for the decision," the superintendent explained.
Van Wieren said many things go into making a decision about closing school for the day. In addition to a check of the roads, the wind velocity, visibility and the possibility of more snow during the day are also taken into consideration.
Van Wieren urged parents and students to wait for announcements about school cancellations to come over the radio. He said that calling school officials or the radio station only ties up the telephone lines and prevents them from getting information they need to make a decision whether or not to hold school.
The school officials said that school would probably never be held if the buses couldn't get out to pick up students.
"In order to get credit for holding school, 70 percent of the students must be in attendance," Olach explained. "We transport 1,282 out of 1,779 of our students or about 70 percent of the enrollment." After seven snow days, any other days of school missed due to the weather must be made up in the Charlevoix School District.

County Engineer-Director explains plowing policy

By PEG OHLE
Now that the snow season is upon us, there are many questions about the priorities of snow removal throughout the county.
Road Commission Engineer-Manager Irvin Starn answers those questions in the following statement:
"Snow removal and ice control activities will continue during normal working hours and on overtime, if necessary, until county primary roads and remaining school bus routes are passable."
"Snow removal and ice control activities on remaining county local roads will be confined to normal working hours unless otherwise authorized by the superintendent or engineer-director."
"Snow removal from shoulders and clean up of plow routes will be confined to normal working hours."
"When plow routes are clean, outside work will consist of brushing, trimming limbs on plow routes, cutting and disposing of dead elms and such minor maintenance and construction as may be authorized by the engineer-director."
"Trunkline maintenance will be in accordance with the existing Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation policy."
Normal working hours begin at 7 a.m. for the road commission crews.

Money spent on prescriptions growing, passes 1/2 million in county

The amount of money being spent by Charlevoix County residents for drugs - the medicinal kind - is large and growing larger.
It is estimated that no less than $39,000 is being spent annually in the local area for prescription drugs alone.
This is exclusive of such over-the-counter items as vitamins, cold remedies, nose drops, headache pills, sedatives and the like, which are sold without doctors' prescriptions. They add another third, approximately, to the overall drug bill.
The rising cost of prescription drugs, locally and in other parts of the country, is due to increased usage as well as to higher prices, according to a survey made by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and just released.
In Charlevoix County's regional area, it shows, the average amount spent for prescription drugs, is $28.20 per year per capita.
About 10 years ago, when a similar survey was made by the Public Health Service, the annual cost per person was only $15.00.
The increase in the period, 88 percent, compares with a national rise of 81 percent, as expenditures have gone from $15.40 to $27.84 per capita.
Throughout the country, nearly $6 billion is being spent each year for prescription drugs alone, exclusive of those provided to patients in hospitals. That is about double the amount noted 10 years ago.
The increase is attributed to inflation, to the fact that there are more pharmaceutical products on the market today and to the fact that the per capita use of drugs has gone up.
In Charlevoix County's section of the country, prescriptions are being issued at the rate of 6.0 per person per year, total of close to 115,000. Their average price is $4.70.
Back in 1966, there were 4.4 prescriptions per person at a unit price of $3.41.
There is a wide variation, understandably, between the amount young people and old people spend for drugs. Those who are 65 or more have bills of $61.40, on average, while those under 17 spend only $9.10 per year.

Weekend snowfall provides enough for opening of Mt. McSaubia ski area

By FRANK MARTIN
The heavy snowfall late last week resulted in the opening of the Mt. McSaubia Ski slopes north of Charlevoix on Sunday.
Dwight Boss, City Recreation Director, has announced.
Boss said workers packing snow and getting the slopes in shape Saturday made it possible to open Sunday with 100 skiers on hand to enjoy the skiing. The hill was opened on the same date in 1976 Boss said.
Boss went on to say that there is a good base on the hills which will be built up as the season progresses. The marks the first time the back hill was opened this early.
The park will be open from 6 until 10 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday. This marks a change from Tuesday night. On the weekends the facility will be open from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. on Saturday and 1 until 6 p.m. on Sunday.

THIS PICTURE of Ironton was taken from the Sequoia Club sometime in the early 1900's. In the center background is the Ironton church, shown in its original location before being moved to Washington Street. The picture was given to Mrs. Ross Alexander of Ironton by Mrs. Beatrice Tuttle Taggart, whose father was a photographer in Charlevoix. Her husband's father, Reverend Taggart, was the minister of both the Charlevoix Congregational Church and the Ironton church. Mrs. Alexander reports that winter church services were held in the Grange Hall since the church had no shed in which to keep the horses away from the cold and accumulation of snow.

...Glenn Rose, former sheriff

Glenn Rose is a long-time Charlevoix resident and a former sheriff of Charlevoix County. This week the Courier talks with him about memories through the years.

COURIER: Were you born in Charlevoix?

ROSE: No, I was born in Ora, Indiana and moved here with my family when I was 14. I finished grade school here.

COURIER: What was your first job?

ROSE: My dad bought a car and I drove it as a taxi. There was much more need for a taxi in those days because the summer resorters came on trains and needed a taxi to travel around town.

COURIER: Then what did you do?

ROSE: I had several different jobs, then got married and went to work on the Charlevoix police force. I was there 14 years, also serving as a special deputy sheriff part of the time.

COURIER: When were you elected sheriff?

ROSE: In 1954, and took office in 1955. I retired in 1966.

COURIER: How large was the department when you were sheriff?

ROSE: My wife and I were it. If I needed somebody else, I went out and picked someone up and hired him for the job.

COURIER: Were you the only policeman in Charlevoix, Boyne City, and East Jordan as deputies?

COURIER: What was your biggest problem as sheriff?

ROSE: Home brew. We'd pick up a drunk and he would usually tell us where he was breaking and entering, and I don't believe we ever had a murder. One year we did find a suicide in an auto between Charlevoix and East Jordan. He had shot himself in the head.

COURIER: How many prisoners could the old county jail hold?

ROSE: Eighteen comfortably, but we had 30 numerous times, mostly for being drunk and disorderly. In those days, money wasn't so free so they would go to jail for 10 days instead of paying the fine. My first wife, Ida, was a matron of the jail and did the cooking, etc. We lived there and were on duty 24 hours a day.

COURIER: How many patrol cars did you have?

ROSE: Just one. If we got a call from Chandler or some place like that they'd just have to wait for me. In later years we did have an under-sheriff and one deputy to help out.

COURIER: Did you ever have many women in the jail?

ROSE: Very few, and most of those were with booze and home brew. Crime was at a low ebb in those days, but there were neighbors arguing over property lines.

COURIER: Do you remember any interesting cases you had?

ROSE: Well, one night we got a call from the Weatherlane. Three young fellows from Ann Arbor were in town and stopped there for a few drinks. On their way out, they decided to take the cash register. It was an all night chase but we got the register back and put the three in jail. The next morning, a man came to the jail and asked to talk to one of them. It turned out he was a state policeman and a brother of the one he wanted to talk to. I never heard anyone get a bawling out like that kid did from his brother.

COURIER: What do you do these days?

ROSE: I have a small cottage patrol business. The cottages are all fairly close together and I check them regularly. Mrs. Rose goes with me when the snow isn't too deep.

COURIER: What are your hobbies?

ROSE: We like to travel around the north country. We had a travel trailer but sold it this year. We built a little camp in the Upper Peninsula. I like to hunt and have been hunting with the same man for 27 years. I met my present wife on a hunting trip in the Upper Peninsula. She lived in Foster City, about half way between Escanaba and Iron Mountain. The town is about the size of Horton Bay.

COURIER: Do you have any other hobbies?

ROSE: Just fishin'.

COURIER: Tell us about your family.

ROSE: My wife, the former Jennie Krita, and I have been married three years. I have three children, six grandchildren and four step grandchildren. Daughter Donna lives in Ann Arbor and works for Michigan Bell. She has four step children. Daughter Patsy works for a bank in Ann Arbor. Son Charles manages a chain store at Whitmore Lake.

Charlevoix County joins joint junk study group

Charlevoix County Planner John Hess is working with the planning departments of Emmet and Cheboygan Counties in an effort to secure funds for a feasibility study on recycling waste in the three-county area.

The grant is being sought from the Michigan Energy Administration and would amount to between $11,000 and $12,000 if approved. Only four such grants will be awarded in the state, and the three county planners hope that the uniqueness of their approach will result in approval of their request for funds.

If the grant is approved, the actual feasibility study would be made by the University of Michigan Biological Station staff. It would be an effort to determine if the recycling of such products as glass, aluminum, iron, and paper in Charlevoix, Emmet and Cheboygan Counties would be economically feasible.

The application for funds must be approved by the three county boards of commissioners before being presented to the Energy Commission. The only responsibility of the counties is furnishing the planners' time to work up the application.

Hearing set on C & C plans to abandon railway lines

Once again the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad is seeking to abandon service from Manistee to Petoskey, as well as lines from Bates to Elk Rapids and from Traverse City to Northport.

The Interstate Commerce Commission will hold a hearing on January 10 in Traverse City and continuing for several days to determine whether or not this service should be abandoned.

The Transportation Advisory Committee to the Northwest Regional Planning Commission has recommended to the Commission that they oppose the abandonment. They are also busy identifying the current needs of local shippers and coordinating their efforts. Tom Wieland of Charlevoix is a member of the Advisory Committee.

Charlevoix County Planner

John Hess is also busy advising local users of the railroad about the proposed abandonment and working with them in their efforts to prevent it.

Rayders drop Grayling

By BILL MERCER

Charlevoix's Red Rayder basketball squad made its season debut with a 64-53 win last week over Grayling. The Rayder's Friday game was postponed due to weather conditions. School officials said they will try to reschedule the Rogers City contest sometime in February. Fouls, turnovers and good Rayder rebounding were the story of the Grayling contest. Once again, the Charlevoix team saw three of its players foul out, while three more picked up four fouls. Early season errors also were evident as both teams saw turnovers spoil scoring opportunities.

Coach Dave Moyer noted: "The play was still a little rough, but the fellows are improving. We played tough and hit the boards real well."

A 17-point second quarter propelled the Rayders into an 8-point half time lead. Scoring by Pat Schmidt, Joe Left and Neil Dziedzic contributed to this margin. Schmidt once again led all scorers from Charlevoix as he hit for 22 points on nine field goals and for four of six free throws. Dziedzic was second for the night with 12 points in four field goals and four free throws. High scorer for the game was Geoff Stencil from Grayling with 23 points. This week Charlevoix takes on Harbor Springs and St. Ignace, both away games. The teams from Harbor are strong once again and it should be a tough test for the Rayders.

St. Ignace also has a good effect on the standings in the ball club this year and Michigan-Huron Shores Friday's contest will have an Conference.

Site Planning, Kaden Swansons win in A League action last week

Site Planning, Swansons' and Kaden's all posted wins during A League action last week.

In the first game of the evening, Site Planning defeated Four Corps 70-64. Site Planning took an early lead that stayed with them throughout the game. In the first quarter Site Planning was ahead 13-4 and expanded its lead in the second period to 25-19. By the third quarter the score was 55-40 and in the final quarter it jumped to 70-64. Leading the scoring for Site Planning was Tim Carey with 18 points, Kraag Lieberman, 15 points and Paul Osterberg, 11. Mike Streeter was the top scorer for Four Corps with 21 points and Randy Holecheck had 20 points. In the second game of the night, Swansons' downed the Townhouse 57-51 in a close game. Like Site Planning, Swansons' took an early lead. In the first quarter, Swansons' was ahead 18-12 and they expanded their lead to 34-24 in the second quarter. In the third period Townhouse cut the lead to 42-40 but Swansons' surged ahead to take the game 57-51.

In the final game of the evening, Kaden's chalked up another win by defeating Bob's Sunoco in another close game. Top scorers for Swansons' were Mike Hildley with 18 points and Bruce Megglen with 15 points. For the Townhouse, both Dan McKenzie and Bernie Ward had 10 points. In the final game of the evening, Kaden's chalked up another win by defeating Bob's Sunoco in another close game. Bob's took the lead in the first half with scores of 18-12 and 32-30 for the first and second quarters. However, Kaden's came back in the third period to take the lead 48-43 and to keep it to win the game 57-41.

Chuck Stanke led the scoring for Kaden's and for the game with 24 points. Al Looze had 13 points for Kaden's. For Bob's Sunoco, three players had 12 points, Jack Danbert, Jim Danbert and Ken Derenzy. Chuck Pelham had 11 points.

Plans for ski race set by White Pine organizers

Plans are already being made for the second annual running of the state's longest cross country ski race, the White Pine Stampede. This year the stampede, a 50-kilometer or 32-mile race, will be held Feb. 4 and will begin near Hartwick Pine State Park north of Grayling. The race will also feature a shorter course of 20 kilometers or 12 miles. Contestants in both races will follow the same course. However, the longer race will continue through four counties and end in Manelona. Entrants will be divided into

Hospital board keeps agency on course

"There is no other business like a hospital," said President of the Board of Directors of Charlevoix Area Hospital, Thomas Carey. That statement is vehemently agreed with by other members of the board who talked about their hopes and plans for the future as the board for 1977-78 took stock. Being businesslike while serving often unpredictable human needs is the Catch 22 of a hospital board's job. The board must see that a hospital remains financially sound while concentrating all considerations on how best to serve the health needs of the community, board members told an inquirer recently. "This is a community hospital. The job of the Board of Directors is to reflect what the people of our communities want," June Cross, who has served four years on the Charlevoix Area Hospital Board of Directors, said. New director Louis Hollow added, "While the function of the board is to reflect the needs of the community it must help guide the hospital in a businesslike manner toward the satisfaction of medical care provided. The directors reflect both their communities — East Jordan, Boyne City and Charlevoix — and a range of talents. The eleven members of the board are bankers, businesspersons, salespersons, a former hospital employee, and a retired school official, and a physician representing the medical staff. Finances are a constant concern. Hospital department heads and doctors present lists of needed medical equipment and the board, working with the administration, doctors and department heads, sets priorities. When the administration determines a need for an increase in the wage structure the board of directors decides if it is feasible. But the uniqueness of the service of a hospital keeps financial considerations in perspective. "Because this is a community hospital, trying to provide what the people see as needs, we keep the Emergency Room open around the clock. This is not self-supporting. It is financially killing, but it is a service we must provide," Carey illustrated. Board member Max Novak added, "We must see the institution as a whole. We don't look at one department, which might be a loss. We try to balance that loss with a gain in another department." And despite the fact that the hospital is a not-for-profit organization, as June Cross said, "The hospital must realize a profit in order to buy and update equipment, to expand where needed and to be in a financial position to attract and maintain its highly skilled employees. The board is tremendously proud of the medical staff. Several years ago the board and existing staff conducted a search which resulted in the addition of four physicians. To maintain the high quality of practice all physicians review each other and the board participates with the staff in that review. A current search is being conducted by the board and staff for a pediatrician. Hospital Administrator Richard Krueger commented, "The question of whether an excellent hospital attracts excellent physicians or if the physicians determine the excellence is like the chicken and egg question. They are inseparable." Because the board has ultimate responsibility for hospital affairs, its members also discuss such matters as how to continue the excellent safety record, which has meant lower workers compensation insurance; or whether to purchase a new computer for the business office. It also determines which pension plan is best for employees. Max Novak, who has served on the board since 1948, agreed with others who said increasing numbers of government regulations are always on the agenda. "But we must change with the times," Novak stated. "The hospital is twenty-five years old. When we built it we thought it would last a life time. In 1953 it met all government requirements.

Yet this past year all the doors on patient rooms had to be replaced by more fire resistant doors. That cost $4,000." The board banned the expenditure on non-medical equipment, on one hand, yet, on the other, recognized that the new doors would contribute to maintaining the hospital's low fire rating, and thus keep those insurance costs down. "And most important, there is less danger to patients in case of fire," Novak said. The theme each board member emphasized was, as June Cross put it: "We want to maintain the special atmosphere of our community hospital—the care you get, the high quality of the staff and loyalty of employees. "If people care about the hospital, we want them to be involved," Mrs. Cross said. "And joining the Association is one way. Dues are $3.00 a year or $15 for lifetime membership. Members elect the board." The board's message to its public is that it is determined to keep Charlevoix the community hospital it is, with its special atmosphere of friendliness and caring, along with the constant improvement in the quality of medical care. "If people want to maintain our hospital and help it plan for the future, they should use it, support it and give time if they can," Max Novak concluded.

FAITH SEES PROMISE IN THE WHITE WORLD OF WINTER

When winter's sun with slanting rays of light reveals a world arrayed in glistering white, Where barren trees and snow-clad peaks beyond Are mirrored in an ice encrusted pond Some see it only as the year's grown cold, The earth devoid of life, so dead and cold; A dormant land where nothing seems to grow And future hopes lie buried in the snow. But those of faith see beauty in this scene; Through Church they know that one day it will mean A miracle that God will always bring The new rebirth of life that's known as Spring.

Many different customs make up American celebrations

From Atlantic shores to Hawaiian coastlines, the world's Christmas joy and customs enrich the holiday season in the United States. In the Southwest, Mexican traditions create seasonal fiestas. To begin the Christmas season, a mariachi brass band sometimes plays at Roman Catholic Mass in Albuquerque, N.M. Near Las Cruces, N.M., American Indian dances mix with Spanish religious processions. Three centuries ago Canadian Frenchmen known as Acadians grew fond of a German cookie called Lebkuchen. They added a dash of this and that and made it their own. Acadians Save Cookies. In 1755 the Acadians were banished from Canada. They lost a homeland, but they saved precious traditions, including their German holiday cookie, which they continue to enjoy in Louisiana. In rural Alabama even county sheriffs break the law on Christmas Eve. Forbidden firecracker blasts rock the night. The ear-splitting custom reveals noisy Spanish and French celebrations during the rowdy early days of Dixie. A century and a half ago German immigrants brought a treasure trove of yuletide delights—Christmas trees, lights, bright tinsel decorations, fancy cookie cutters, spices, chocolates, mincepie, and dozens of other decorative and tasty holiday items. Among Scandinavia's contributions are dovelskatter, or "devil's cats." These special buns served by Swedes on candlelit St. Lucia day in mid-December recall an ancient belief that evil spirits roamed the earth about the first day of winter. A Christmas Eve lovefeast bridges the present and past in Old Salem, N.C. A tranquil fold of the past set in the heart of modern Winston-Salem, the restored town recaptures the sights and sounds known to hardy Moravians who built it on a wilderness hillside beginning in 1766. Decorated the Lawns. The Moravians who came to America from lands now forming part of Czechoslovakia introduced the custom of decorating their lawns and the outdoors of their churches and houses during the holiday season. The custom soon spread throughout the country. Santa Claus, or Saint Nicholas, arrived in the New World in the 1600s with Dutch settlers who called him Saint Nikolaas and Sinter Klass. Novelty scenes came from medieval Italy, but they can also be found today all over the United States, including Hawaii's Waikiki Beach.

Humane society plans open house Dec. 18

Animals in the County Animal Shelter will not be forgotten this Christmas season. The Humane Society will hold an Open House at the Shelter Sunday afternoon, December 18, from 1 to 5. There will be a decorated Christmas tree for animals and humans to enjoy and refreshments for both animals and humans. Vernice Smith, director of the Humane Society, is asking for donations of cat and dog food to supplement that usually supplied the animals. The food may be brought to the Shelter during the Open House, or any day before, during regular hours, 1 through 6 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Planner to attend special U-M seminar

John Hess, recently-appointed Charlevoix County Planner, will attend a four-day seminar in January at the University of Michigan. Hess has been granted permission by the Planning Commission to attend the meeting, which will stress "Program Budgeting," how to make rational allocations of resources. In citing the need for such a seminar, the University points out that public organizations are experiencing a greater demand for services and an increasing scarcity of resources. The seminar will provide public administrators with the tools necessary to implement program budgeting.

Charlevoix receives 2nd school payment

The Charlevoix school system recently received the second payment of State School Aid Funds for the 1977-78 fiscal year in the amount of $23,065. School business manager Vince Olach says the school system receives state checks in varying amounts every two months to help defray the costs of special education, court-placed children, transportation, vocational education, and vocational education for the educationally disadvantaged. He estimates that state funds this year will amount to about $123,100.

Middle school set to usher in Christmas season with Thurs. concert

The Charlevoix Middle School will usher in the Christmas season with a concert to be presented at the Middle School gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. The seventh and eighth grade bands will present a program of traditional music with the former appearing under the direction of Steven Stargardt and the latter under David Riley, student teacher. The Middle School choir will also offer a number of seasonal selections including favorite carols. Mr. Stargardt will direct to group. The public is invited to attend the concert planned as an introduction to the holiday season.

Two area students graduate from Michigan State

Two Charlevoix County graduates were among 1,622 students receiving degrees from Michigan State University at commencement exercises last Saturday. Karen A. Hinds of Charlevoix received a master's degree in education. She was the principal speaker and presided over her final commencement exercises as president. Dr. Wharton was recently named chancellor-designate of the State University of New York and will leave MSU January 1 to assume that position. administration, with honors. Dr. Clifton R. Wharton, Jr., who has headed Michigan State University since 1970, was the principal speaker and presided over her final commencement exercises as president. Dr. Wharton was recently named chancellor-designate of the State University of New York and will leave MSU January 1 to assume that position.

Homemade gifts can stimulate the imagination and cut down on Christmas costs

These gifts appeal primarily to young children. Fill a "dress-up" box or old men's vests, dresses, purses, beads, scarves, feathers, and bits of old costumes. A crate useful for shipping a piano or refrigerator can become a house, puppet theatre, or hideaway. Big boxes can provide many hours of enjoyment for a child. For older children, put a real hammer and plenty of nails in a box for storage. Include with them an assortment of wood scraps of different sizes and shapes. Put some scraps of yarn, felt and cloth and paper bags in a grocery bag. Include a few samples of paper bag masks or puppets with the materials for making others. Take things that can be

NATURAL RESOURCES COMMISSION ACTION

(under authority of Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended)

OPEN SEASONS AND CATCH LIMITS ON PIKE, WALLEYE, SAUGER AND MUSKELLUNGE

The Natural Resources Commission, at its meeting on August 12, 1977, under the authority of Act 230, P.A. 1925, as amended, ordered that its subject order of August 15, 1975, remain effective through December 31, 1977, and that the following order become effective on January 1, 1978:

It shall be unlawful to take the following named species except within the open seasons and daily limits prescribed (statewide regulations apply unless otherwise restricted):

Statewide open seasons on all waters not otherwise closed to fishing shall be from May 15 through February on walleye, sauger, northern pike, and muskellunge (including tiger muskellunge). The daily catch limit shall be 5 single or in combination for largemouth and smallmouth bass, walleye, sauger, and northern pike; 1 for muskellunge (including tiger muskellunge).

The above regulations apply except that walleye and sauger may be taken at any time from the Detroit and St. Clair rivers, Lake St. Clair, and Lake Erie; and that muskellunge in Lake St. Clair, St. Clair and Detroit rivers may be taken only from the first Saturday in June through December 15 of each year.

Merry Christmas to all

SANTA CLAUS gives a friendly pat and a box of candy to a Charlevoix youngster during the celebration of his arrival in town Saturday.

Christmas Spirit Lives

By PAULA HOLMES

A piece of the Christmas spirit is hiding in all of us.

I found that out this week when I tried to write a Christmas story for adults about a local man who has played Santa Claus to Charlevoix children for more than a decade.

I thought it was with insights about the trials and tribulations of being the jolly old elf might brighten the Charlevoix Courier Christmas issue. But, when I approached the man about the story, he politely refused to be interviewed.

Oh, he had plenty of stories to tell about what it's like to be St. Nick. And he explained how one year he was walking down the halls of the Morris, Mrs. Roloff running, other wards still undecided

Two people have announced their candidacy for the upcoming Charlevoix mayoral and common council race while three more remain undecided.

Alderman Joseph Morris has announced he will seek reelection to his seat representing the Third Ward. Morris, a resident of the Belvedere, is just completing his first term on the common council.

Shirley Holoff, a Third Ward resident, has announced she also will be seeking election to that seat. Mrs. Roloff has been active as a volunteer for the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services.

She has also acted as a representative of senior citizens living in the Charlevoix Apartments on May Street in their attempts to seek relief from a 25 percent rent hike imposed on residents of the complex.

In the First Ward, Alderman Sue Erber said she is still undecided about seeking reelection as is Alderman Jeanne Wallace in the Second Ward. Mrs. Erber is just finishing her first term on the council while Mrs. Wallace is completing a second tour of duty.

Mayor Edward Hansen also said he was still undecided about seeking reelection.

"I haven't made that decision yet," Mayor Hansen said. "There are some things that I've been weighing before making my decision."

"There are a lot of jobs to be done. The city's got a lot of things hanging fire."

"I suppose the easiest thing to do would be to quit, but I feel it is incumbent upon the people in office to bring up something behind them to provide some continuity for city office."

Hansen is completing his sixth year at the helm of the city. He has also served six years as an alderman.

The offices of city clerk and city treasurer are also up for reelection. City Clerk Judy Prybylski said she hadn't definitely made up her mind about running for reelection, but she thought she probably would.

Annette Cunningham, city treasurer, is vacationing in Florida and was unable to be contacted about her candidacy.

The primary election will be held on Feb. 20 with the general election set for April 3. The last date for registering to vote in the primary election is Jan. 23. Voters may register until 8 p.m. in the city clerk's office in Charlevoix City Hall on State Street.

Nominating petitions for either the mayoral or council seats may be obtained at the city clerk's office. The petitions are due back in the clerk's office by 4 p.m. Jan. 3.

People planning to run for a council seat in the First Ward on the Democratic ticket must collect between one and seven signatures on a nominating petition. In the Second Ward, between three and thirteen signatures are needed and between three and eleven signatures are needed in the Third Ward.

Candidates planning to run on the Republican ticket need between two and six signatures on a petition to have their names placed on the ballot in the First Ward. In the Second Ward, Republican candidates need between one and four signatures and in the Third Ward candidates need between one and four signatures.

A Democratic mayoral candidate needs between eight and 31 signatures to get on the ballot and a Republican mayoral candidate needs between four and 14 signatures.

Clerk and treasurer candidates also must gather this amount of signatures. The amount of signatures needed is based on the number of votes cast for the Secretary of State office in the last election.

Reserves tied up in earmarked funds

City doesn't really have surplus

A lot has been said in recent months about the surplus of money in the City of Charlevoix coffers.

Figures as high as $750,000 have been batted around as the estimated surplus in the city budget, but according to city officials, Charlevoix doesn't really have a surplus of money at all.

"We're comfortable, but we don't have so much money that we don't know what to do with it," Annabelle Cunningham, city treasurer, said.

"There's a lot of misunderstanding about what is being called a surplus. It's not a surplus at all. We have a retained balance or reserve of close to that."

William Schroeder, of Hill, Woodcock and Distel, the certified public accountants who performed the city's audit last year, explained that some of the confusion about the surplus may have been caused through the use of the accounting term surplus.

"Surplus is the addition of each account left over at the end of the year," Schroeder explained. "This becomes a part of the fund balance."

But the fund balance isn't made up of just cash; it also includes the value of assets such as land, buildings, the electrical distribution system and other equipment belonging to the city.

"When all of this is totaled up, it equals about $700,000," Schroeder said. "And that's the total fund balance, but it's not all cash."

This type of surplus figure can sometimes get cities into trouble, especially if they over value their assets and under value their liabilities, according to ex-city administrator Allen Sandberg.

"Frequently you find that a surplus doesn't get analyzed and it tends to take on importance for the tax rate. It's important to know the value of property that the city owns, but which doesn't have any value to anyone else," Sandberg said.

This can lead councils to spend the money they should be setting aside in order to run the city," Hansen said. "The city owns, but which doesn't have any value to anyone else," Sandberg said.

Although the mayor and council are using the electric and other utility funds to keep taxes down, Hansen doesn't consider the utility rates a hidden tax.

"These funds are not being used unfairly because we're not charging what the people would have to pay to Consumers Power if that were the alternative supplier of power," he pointed out.

Hansen said he and the council were working to determine what an adequate reserve should be for the city.

Yen for Tom Duke

I have just read Tom Duke's letter. Thanks to the Courier for putting it in this last week. It was really enlightening. I wish that everyone would read that letter. Maybe we could have extras in our school systems like they do in Dearborn. Factories paid for many things in their school systems by paying their fair share of taxes. They have swimming pools, free hot lunch programs, all paid by the taxes of the Ford factories. That could be done here, too. There could be so much done with tax money. I really am thrilled by the letter from Tom Duke. At last, somebody sees and tells it like it is.

I'd like to report that, so far, Big Brothers-Big Sisters have lost 24 trees from the lot by theft. This is not only a financial loss to the organization, but deprives the youth of having benefits that we could not afford otherwise. Thank you, Bill Miller.

Charter Commission Should Give Up

Why is Francis Fichtman unable to accept that fact that elections are won by the majority of votes. The Charter Commission should also realize that even after their smear campaign that the statements sheets of the Board of Election Inspectors showed that the "no" votes cast on Dec. 12th were well over double than the "no" votes cast on July 12th.

Old personal tax statement sheds new light on situation property tax bill from the city sometime last week and a few have even paid it off already, according to Annabelle Cunningham, city treasurer. But probably very few people have ever seen a statement of personal property tax like the one found by R.B. Emmons of Charlevoix when he was looking through an old Bible recently.

The statement, from the County of Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, for the year 1973, was blank except for a list of 10 things for which any person could be charged personal property tax.

The list includes: horses of all ages, neat cattle of all ages, sheep and lambs, swine, wagons, carriages and sleighs, gold and silver watches, pianos and emeralds, merchants' and manufacturers' stock and shares of bank stock.

The statement also provided space for the owner to record the amount of each type of item he owned and his valuation of it. And there was also space for the assessor's valuation and remarks.

Even 102 years ago taxes were a sure thing.

R.B. (BEN) EMMONS displays the 1873 personal property tax form he found while looking through an old family Bible. The form lists gold and silver watches, neat cattle and horses of all ages as taxable items.

Congregational Church plans several services

A series of special Christmas worship services will be held by the First Congregational Church of Charlevoix this week.

Beginning on Friday evening, the Sunday Church School will hold its Christmas program at 7 p.m. in the sanctuary. The junior choir will sing.

Saturday evening the traditional Christmas Eve carol, scripture and candle lighting worship service will be held at 11 p.m. The choir will provide many anthems during the service.

On Christmas morning, worship service will be held at 11 a.m. An informal format will be used. No Sunday school will be held and families are invited to sit together during the service.

The public is invited to all three events.

100 people join VFW at dinner

Members of Charlevoix Post No. 1153, Veterans of Foreign Wars, the Auxiliary and their families, numbering more than 100, gathered at the post home recently for a family potluck dinner.

Following the dinner those present sang Christmas carols. Later Santa Claus arrived to distribute gifts and candy to the children present. The adults also enjoyed a gift exchange.

Mrs. Albert Russell, Mrs. Bert Hazel and Mrs. Kenneth Staley were in charge of the event.

Mrs. Dale Meredith is president of the Auxiliary and Joseph Kortan commander of the post.

High school student joins sheriff in researching department history

A history of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department and its past sheriffs is in the process of being compiled.

Sheriff George Lasater said the department would like to collect as many pictures of past sheriffs as possible as well as any biographical information that can be found. The pictures will be placed in a wall display at the sheriff's department offices in Charlevoix along with plaques containing the name and date that each man served.

Lasater said the county clerk's office was assisting with the project by providing the names of the past holders of the sheriff's office. He said Henkel would also be taping interviews with the three living past sheriffs and the wife and children of two other sheriffs in the county.

Henkel will also be searching through old documents and newspapers for any additional information he can find about the past sheriffs. Lasater urged any county residents with information or pictures of past sheriffs to contact him at the sheriff's department, 547-4661 or to contact Henkel at his home, 547-9335.

Increased use of CB radios creates more interference

What do users of millions of new CB radios, garage door

Here's what might be under the Christmas tree

Only four shopping days are left until Christmas and that's why last minute rush to finish up holiday gift buying is on in Charlevoix stores.

But, many people have finished their shopping and their thoughts have turned from what they are going to buy for others to what they might receive.

To find out what Charlevoix residents can expect to find in their stockings and under their trees and to help those late shoppers with ideas, the Charlevoix Courier made a brief survey of some of the downtown stores.

At the Clothing Company in the Market Mall, crew neck sweaters and fashion boots seem to be the hottest selling items for women and flannel shirts and corduroy slacks are selling the quickest for men. Jim Mabee, store owner, said ski gloves, cow neck sweaters and men's velvet shirts have also been big sellers for this Christmas.

Corduroy slacks are also selling quickly for both men and women at Lieberman's, another clothing store in Charlevoix.

"I get in a big order like this and it's gone in just a few days," Bob Lieberman, store owner, said pointing at a table piled high with corduroy jeans.

"It seems like everybody wants them."

At the Apple Tree, a local gift shop, a special good luck charm called a "Kitchen Witch" has been a popular item with Christmas shoppers. Mike Holmes, store owner, explained.

Mrs. Dale Meredith is president of the Auxiliary and Joseph Kortan commander of the post.

"It's a good luck charm so that food won't burn and things won't spill," he smiled. "We've sold an awful lot of them this year."

Other popular items with Christmas shoppers include: soft board backgammon sets, hand painted crocks and other hand made items.

At the Bridge Street Hardware, snow shoes seem to be the hottest selling item. "We were sort of surprised when snowshoes turned out to be our biggest selling item," Bonnie Hand said. "Many people have been in to buy snowshoes for their wives, too."

Mrs. Hand said skate boards, hunting knives, rifles and hunting socks were also popular items with Christmas shoppers.

At Bailey's Hardware, snowshoes are also selling well along with many appliances, such as yogurt makers, hot dog cookers, crock pots and the "Screw Rail," a ratchet screw driver.

County may lend name to bonds for Medusa pollution equipment

By PEG OHLE
The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week unanimously passed a "resolution of intent" to lend the County's name to a bond issue not exceeding $10 million for the Medusa Cement Company.

The bond program would finance environmental control equipment at the Medusa plant. The new equipment is part of an overall estimated $30 million building program.

In lending its name to the bond issue, the County assumes no financial responsibility either for the bonds or interest on them. The bonds would be issued in accordance with provisions of Act No. 62, Public Acts of Michigan, 1963, as amended, which specifically states that the bonds would not be a general obligation of the County and would in no event be payable from any tax revenues or other general funds of the County.

Charles I. Burleigh, Jr., of the Detroit law firm of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone explained the proposition to the commissioners and was questioned at length by several of them. Also present at the meeting were Thomas D. Poinier, Petuskey attorney representing Medusa;

Elbert Kaiser, Medusa plant manager; Roy Hayes, Charlevoix County prosecutor; and John Salan, Emmet County prosecutor; who told of his experiences in a similar matter with the Penn-Dixie Cement Company.

It was explained that the advantage to Medusa of having the County's name on the bond issue was that under Section 103 of the Internal Revenue Code tax-empt bonds could be issued at a savings of approximately 2.5 percent.

The notice of intent of the County to issue the bonds appears in this week's Courier.

Sheriff's department training nine men for new posse

By PEG OHLE
The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department is now in the process of training nine men for its posse.

Sheriff George Lasater reported to the Board of Commissioners last week that he had selected them from a list of 46 applicants and was in the process of screening for a 10th man.

Those who will serve on the posse are Richard Mitchell, Charlevoix, a heavy equipment operator at Medusa; Henry Lentz of Boyne City, a high school teacher; Herman Stemore of Charlevoix, a business man; Mark Emmons of Charlevoix, a college student; Jeff Alexander of Boyne Falls, a finance company employee with a degree in law enforcement; Greg Grubbaugh of Charlevoix, a college student; John Murray of Newwood Township, a printer; Thomas Duke of Charlevoix, an investor; and Ronald Moore of Charlevoix, a social psychologist.

Formation of the posse was approved by the Board of Commissioners recently to help the Sheriff's Department carry out some of its day-to-day duties.

After completion of their training, posse members will be capable of assisting the department in several areas, Lasater says.

They will be able to assist security officers, communication officers, road patrol officers, marine officers, and snowmobile officers in performance of their duties. They will also be available to help with search and rescue efforts, direct traffic of rock festivals and other large gatherings, and

Head of state police department defines role of patrolmen for public

By PEG OHLE
So that citizens may be informed of the role of the Michigan State Police, Director Col. Gerald L. Hough has defined their duties and responsibilities.

According to Hough, the State Police will carry on work in the following fields:

They will place greater emphasis on patrolling in rural areas, they will continue to take proper action, as they are legally obligated to do.

They will continue to provide full support services, upon request, to all government agencies at all levels. This will include continuation of crime investigation, accident investigation, and all "back-up services" now provided. Hough's definition of State Police duties were contained in a letter read to the County Board of Commissioners last week.

Charlevoix County has been attempting to get a Lein Terminal Computer since 1971. It will be used many ways in law enforcement. Within minutes the Sheriff's Department will be able to get information on such subjects as driver's licenses, driving records, outstanding criminal warrants, criminal history, data on stolen cars and other vehicles, data on stolen property, and registration information on vehicles and weapons. The checks can be made both statewide and nationwide.

Help make spirit of Christmas felt year 'round in Charlevoix

Christmas is a wonderful time of the year. As the holiday season draws closer, smiles on the faces of Charlevoix residents seem to grow broader as the Christmas spirit grows in each person.

And the town takes on a festive appearance, too. The lights put up by the city street crews brighten the streets and East Park and the city Christmas tree makes the whole town look like it's celebrating Christmas.

The merchants seem to be in the spirit of things, too. Most of the windows artfully intertwine products and Christmas decorations marking the season. It turns the downtown area into a kind of wonderland.

Even the Charlevoix Courier and WVOY Radio get into the swing of things by sponsoring a "Carol-In" for area residents. This year it will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday in East Park.

And as Christmas approaches, almost every service group in town has special projects to help make Christmas a little brighter for those families less fortunate than others. These are well supplied through donations by Charlevoix residents with clothing, toys and food stuffs so that their Christmas will be merry, too.

It warms the heart to see how generous the city is to those in need at Christmas time. And city residents should be congratulated for their concern about the less fortunate people in the community.

But these people are not less fortunate just at Christmas time. They also need help throughout the rest of the year when there is no Christmas spirit to remind the rest of us that some people need help.

And there are many ways that area residents can help those less fortunate people at other times of the year. The Charlevoix County Department of Social Services has a volunteer program that always needs more recruits to work in its various programs.

Big Brothers, Big Sisters of Charlevoix County, the service clubs and many other organizations also need members and volunteers to help carry out year 'round programs that assist those in need.

And even if you aren't a joiner, you can help make life brighter for the needy person. Look around your neighborhood and see if there isn't an elderly person who would appreciate a phone call, an invitation to dinner or just some conversation from time to time.

Perhaps there is a young mother who can't afford a babysitter, but would like to have a free evening every now and then. How much effort would it take to be a babysitter once a month?

The opportunities for helping other people are endless if you just look around. This month let's make the Christmas spirit last all year in Charlevoix. Together we can do it.

Letters to the editor

Supports Tom Duke on Medusa stand

To the Editor: I found Tom Duke's letter in the December 14th Courier enlightening and disturbing. It seems he has certainly done his homework and presented many valid points on the Medusa expansion proposal.

I agree with his major points and feel that many other people of Charlevoix who will be directly affected in their pocket book would be also. I am wondering why we have not heard more or had a chance to give our opinion on the "subsidizing" of the Medusa expansion to the tune of $425,000 a year over the next 12 years?

In addition, it would appear vital that the air quality that affects our daily health and our crucial tourist trade be investigated.

I'm sure that everyone would appreciate the Courier's keeping the citizens of Charlevoix informed on this important matter.

At last someone has spoken out re: Medusa. Our thanks to Mr. Tom Duke. Before the plant was opened representatives came to the people of Charlevoix to gain our acceptance. Let us not forget that that acceptance could have been denied despite their owning the property. We could have said, "No." We blew it. Now, are we going to blow it again?

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

It's funny how a simple news story can turn back the clock a generation or more.

Take, for example, the obituary of the celebrated military aviator S.A. Marshall which appeared in Sunday's newspapers.

If you lived in Detroit during World War II, S.A. Marshall was a household word. Or one word and three initials, if you prefer.

Marshall was employed by the Detroit News to interpret the war to its readers and his word was gospel. When things were bad, Marshall made no bones about it. And when our GI's won a round, Marshall was always there to tell you how they did it.

As a military historian, Marshall had no equal and he was much in demand by civic and fraternal groups as an after-dinner speaker.

That is why I was jubilant when my father announced that none other than S.A. Marshall was to speak at the next dinner meeting of the Young Men's Bible Class at Scovel Memorial Presbyterian Church.

The name of the club was strictly a misnomer, because most of the young men were in service during World War II. The membership consisted largely of gentlemen on the rather side of 50, including one old fellow who used to entrance me with firsthand stories about the battle at Gettysburg.

Occasionally to swell the ranks, a few kids of my age were invited to attend Men's Bible Class functions. And Dad, knowing I was a fan of S.A. Marshall, invited me to join him for the Marshall speech.

As I recall, the speaker arrived in uniform, complete with medals and campaign ribbons. He also was tall, with magis showing the major battle theatres in Europe and the Pacific. I couldn't have been happier.

After disposing of Europe, Marshall turned to the worsening situation in Asia. At the time, the Japanese clearly had the upper hand. They had swallowed the Philippines and were busily working their way up the Aleutian Islands toward Alaska.

And Marshall believed the situation was worse than grave; it was desperate.

He pointed out how the enemy undoubtedly would hopscotch up the entire chain of islands until they had secured an air base on the Alaskan mainland. From there it would be no trick to dispatch bombers to the industrial heartland of America, including Detroit.

Furthermore, time was running out. He projected that the first incendiary bombs would drop on city homes within weeks. He recommended that we all go home and put buckets of sand in our attics to extinguish the fires.

I don't have to tell you that I didn't sleep that night. And the next morning I begged my father about finding a supply of sand somewhere in the clankbans of Wayne County.

Dad, who worked for Ford Co., remembered seeing a sand pit on one of Mr. Ford's parcels of land in Dearborn, so we filled the car with scrub buckets, a coal scuttle and a superannated laundry boiler and headed for Mr. Ford's sand pit.

Before nightfall, a veritable mountain of sand was stashed away in our attic between rusty dress forms and dusty steamer trunks. I even took the garden spade from the basement and put it in the attic to be ready when the bombs fell.

But they didn't fall, even though I listened to Gabriel Hatt on the radio every night and hoped for the worst. I contemplated rooting for the Japanese, but somehow that didn't seem kosher, even though I wanted desperately to heap sand on an incendiary bomb.

Of course, Hirohito's troops never made it to Alaska and Detroit was never attacked by Japanese bombers. The day the war ended, my mother made me take the sand out of the attic and give it to the cat, who was forever grateful to S.A. Marshall.

If it Fitz

by Jim Fitzgerald

Dear Cousin Al: Thanks for sending me that newspaper clipping about the telephone poll that asked the loaded question: "Are you afraid to spend a night on the town in Detroit?"

I don't want to start a fight with you so near Christmas. Al, I know you're seeing you over the holidays, and our wives always get mad when we get into it. In fact, I really wanted to write you about the nice time I had at a Detroit Rotary Club meeting the other day. Pat Paulsen spoke, and I know you like to hear about celebrities.

So I won't say anything real bad about the results of that poll, which said almost 75 percent of the people who answered would be afraid to come to Detroit for a good time. These Lapeer people live only 65 miles from Detroit, but probably none of them have been here in 20 years, if ever. I suppose they're afraid they'll be mugged in front of the Renaissance Center, which is a lot of baloney. It's safe here, but I won't play that old time again. Stay in the barn and miss the fun. Our saloons are getting too crowded anyway.

However, Al, I did think it would be fair for me to take the flip side of that poll. As a 25-year resident, I certainly know as much as anyone about night life in Lapeer. So I described it to a fair sampling of Detroit residents and then asked them the same question that your newspaper asked Lapeer residents.

The description didn't take long. After dark in downtown Lapeer there is one thing to do — go to the Pix Theatre. As you know, there are movies at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. but the most excitement is at the 9 o'clock show. That's because the agonizing suspense. You never know if the show will go on.

I know it's happened to you, Al, and it has certainly happened to me, dozens of times. You get dressed up, drive downtown for a good time, buy a ticket and sit down in the theater. But if enough other people don't also buy tickets, the manager will announce that he can't afford to show the film. He gives you your money back, and you go back home, exhausted from another wild evening in the city. 99 percent of the Detroit people polled said they'd be afraid to spend a night on the town in Lapeer. They were afraid

The jingle of sleigh bells, the smell of pine boughs and cookies baking, the glitter of colored lights and tinsel, the laughter of friends and family — these are the things that Christmas memories are made of.

Everyone has stored away in their minds memories of a Christmas that is more special than any other. It's a Christmas that marked a change in the approach taken to the holiday or even to life.

My fondest memories come not from a Christmas of my childhood, but from the first Christmas I spent as an adult. I had graduated from college just six months before and moved 200 miles north of my hometown, the farthest I had ever lived from my family.

I was looking forward to going home for a two-day holiday with them, especially since I hadn't been able to go home for Thanksgiving. That was the first holiday I had ever been away from my family and on that day I came to the sobering realization that it wouldn't be the last one I would miss.

Although I was excited about the upcoming holiday, I knew Christmas wouldn't be as happy that year because my grandmother had suffered a stroke and was recovering slowly in the hospital. But my mother phoned one day with the good news that grandmother would be allowed to come home for the holiday if she kept quiet and rested.

The only problem was that the day she would be home was a work day for me and even if I left early from work I might not be able to make it to grandmother's house in time to see her before she had to go back to the hospital.

Knowing how disappointed I was, mother made light of the fact that I might not make it, saying that I wouldn't be able to see grandmother a bit. Grandmother was a very practical person who didn't even allow ruffles on her aprons because they didn't serve a purpose. She knew the importance of a job when compared to a mere family dinner.

But I was determined to make it to dinner on time even though it meant driving close to 300 miles straight, partly at night and on snow covered roads.

It was a long, emotional drive. It had been a long day at work and I was tired even before I started out on the journey. And the fear that I would miss everything kept knocking away at me as I drove on.

Finally, after what seemed to be years, I arrived at grandmother's house. Everything was just as I knew it would be. The decorations were in the windows and the tree was lit. The house was spread evenly with relatives, some working in the kitchen, some playing the piano and singing and some reading.

But I bypassed them all and rushed to grandmother's bedroom door. As I peeked in the room I saw she was still there. Her complexion was pale and her face drawn, but I could see a fierce love of life sparkling in her eyes as I threw myself down on the bed to hold her. Tears flowed freely down my cheeks.

"What's wrong," she queried gently patting my back.

"I thought I wouldn't make it, that I would miss you," I replied sobbing.

"Oh, I knew you would," she answered and then, whispered, "I love you."

It was the last Christmas I ever shared with her, but it was the best. And every year I remember Christmas warmed by what she shared with me that year.

Miles and even death may separate you from friends and family at Christmas time, but love will be there in their place. And after all, isn't that what Christmas is all about?

Erma Bombeck

You're called Capricorns.

You were born between Dec. 22 and Jan. 20.

A goodly number of you were born on Dec. 25.

Today is your birthday. Few will have cakes with candles. Few will have presents wrapped in birthday paper. Few will have the star on top of the cake. Happy Birthday, but it will sound like, "Merry Christmas."

What's it like to share your birthday with the most commercial holiday of the year? Most of you say it's less than a religious experience. It's a day of listening to "I Hopped your birthday and Christmas present together into one big gift."

Not so with this column. It is not a Christmas column. It's a Happy Birthday to all of you born on December 25. I envy you. How special it must be for you to sit and reflect why you were chosen to make your appearance into the world on the exact day of a small baby boy in Bethlehem nearly 2,000 years ago.

You guys raise money are quiet and unassuming and, because you are sensitive to disappointments, put up a good front.

You enjoy adoration and people who will listen to you, but have difficulty and must put on a mask of self-confidence. You often succeed as great orators.

What an insight you must have of people who don't really know how to celebrate a simple birthday...who don't realize that a small, singular, personal gesture could bring such joy to your day.

The many times you must have reflected on the man's birthday you share and what he would have thought if someone had jammed a hair dryer in his hands and said, "So, you had the bad luck to be born on Christmas! Tough!"

We tend to forget Christmas birthdays. They get lost in a sea of Santa Claus arriving in a helicopter, mistletoe, dalgairis, dolls with bionic eyes, microwave ovens, and stores open on Christmas until 3 p.m.

If it is of any comfort, sometimes I imagine another Capricorn with large brown black/green/blue eyes, wearing a robe and sandals, being bumped and jostled in the traffic of the city, lamenting, "They forgot my birthday too."

Teacher Feature

... Rebecca Berg

By PEG OHLE
"First grade is the nearest grade there is."

That's how Rebecca Berg feels about her assignment of teaching first graders in the Charlevoix Elementary School.

The enthusiastic young woman is a native of Charlevoix, a graduate of Charlevoix High School, class of 1970, and a graduate of Central Michigan University with a major in mathematics and a minor in elementary education.

Mrs. Berg has taught first grade for three years and served as an aide for a year before that. She has 23 students in her class this year. Right now they are busy with their Christmas play. There are two casts, one of which will appear before the kindergarten today and the other before the rest of the elementary school tomorrow.

The play is called "Santa's Surprises." The teacher explains. It has to do with a group of elves who find some Christmas packages and think Santa has forgotten them, but it turns out that they were really surprise gifts for the elves. The children also made all the props and part of their costumes in which to show off their dramatic talents.

While the Christmas season is especially exciting for the first graders, other parts of the year are also filled with wondrous experiences. They learn to recognize numbers up to 100, they learn simple addition and subtraction (no borrowing or carrying), and they work on telling time (hour and half hour).

In the field of living things, they learn about woodland animals, sea animals, and farm animals. They learn about animals as pets and how to care for them. They are introduced to community helpers — to policemen, firemen, doctors, nurses, etc. All of this is done with the use of films, discussions, field trips, and stories and pictures by the children.

"First grade is a rewarding grade because most of the students who come in can't read and leave reading," Mrs.

Berg explains about the first grade reading program. She uses a system combining phonetics and word identification. Both reading and arithmetic are divided into groups based on student ability. There may be from three to five reading classes and two or three arithmetic classes.

Of all the accomplishments of first graders, Mrs. Berg believes the most important is the development of a positive self image. She tries to bring out the positive things her students do, but at the same time doesn't ignore the negative.

"Children try to live up to the expectations of their teachers," she says.

Mrs. Berg is one of a growing number of teachers who use newspapers in their classroom. She and her students cut out articles about children in the class and members of their families and put them in the bulletin board. She asks her students to cut out words beginning with the same letter from newspaper stories. Soon the students will be cutting out numbers from newspapers to use in their arithmetic lessons.

"What can parents do to help their first graders?"

"It is important for them to go over their children's papers with them every night," the teacher replies. They should praise them for the things they have done right, try to build the children's self-image.

"Reading to the children is important, as is letting them read to you." Finally, the teacher says, "Parents should attend school functions of all types." There are four first grade classes at the Charlevoix Elementary School. "We have a close first grade unit. The teachers work well together," Mrs. Berg says of her school situation.

Mrs. Berg and her husband, Daniel, raise polled Hereford beef cattle on a farm in Hayes Township. They were classmates in high school and college and were married shortly after graduation.

When not teaching, Mrs. Berg sews, bakes, and helps with the farm work. In the summers she takes classes at North Central Michigan College. She is the former Rebecca Hansen.

Have a happy holiday season and remember that we are here to serve you.

Family is important

Marsha Rice shares Christmas thoughts

By MARSHA CHASE-RICE
So it is with many of us that we leave our families and homes to begin our own lives.

The holidays and especially Christmas, tug at the heart for it seems that the past held warmth and joy felt love.

The never lost memories of Christmas preparations in the warm, country kitchen as my Mother set about making pies, lemon bread, and all the goodies taught to be by her own Mother. The humming of the all favorite Carnis as the fireplace glowed with bright colors and crackling glee. The snow lying each branch as it fell so perfectly and dressed for the celebration of Our Lords birth. The real meaning of Christmas was the love shown each day.

Dad's favorite tug at us was trying to guess what special gift of love Mom brought. We'd try to give hints in the opposite direction. He caught on real fast. Daddy was like a big kid himself. The excitement grew as each day brought us closer to making a celebration of love.

Christmas was and is more than just getting things. Christmas is a joyful celebration of the birth of our Lord and Savior, and gift giving is an expression of love. Just as the wise men gave to Jesus, we give.

Christmas Eve, as I remember, started with Dad getting home from work early.

The tree stood tall and glistened with all its tinsel. Bright colored lights placed ever so carefully reminded me of the largest, most beautiful birthday candle I had ever seen. The aroma of kitchen smells and the freshness of piney never had changed, from year to year. There was a joy, a freshness, as the excitement grew. We as a family, went to Christmas Eve church services. The love was nearly bursting in everyone's eyes. The music, so powerful and exciting, as we would sing "JOY TO THE WORLD." We would leave church and sing songs as we'd go and deliver gifts to family and friends.

Christmas morning, bright and early we all anxiously awakened to give our gifts love to one another. The joy, the happiness, the warmth of family and friends gathering together, those are the reflections mirrored of Christmases past.

TYING UP THE BALL with this St. Ignace player are Pat Schmidt (34) and Jim Alger (22). Schmidt posted 31 points for the game and Alger added another eight to the score.

KIP CINNAMON (54) moves in to help teammate Pat Schmidt (34) during the Rayders game against St. Ignace. The Rayders had an off week last week losing to both St. Ignace and Harbor Springs.

Rayders lose two tough games

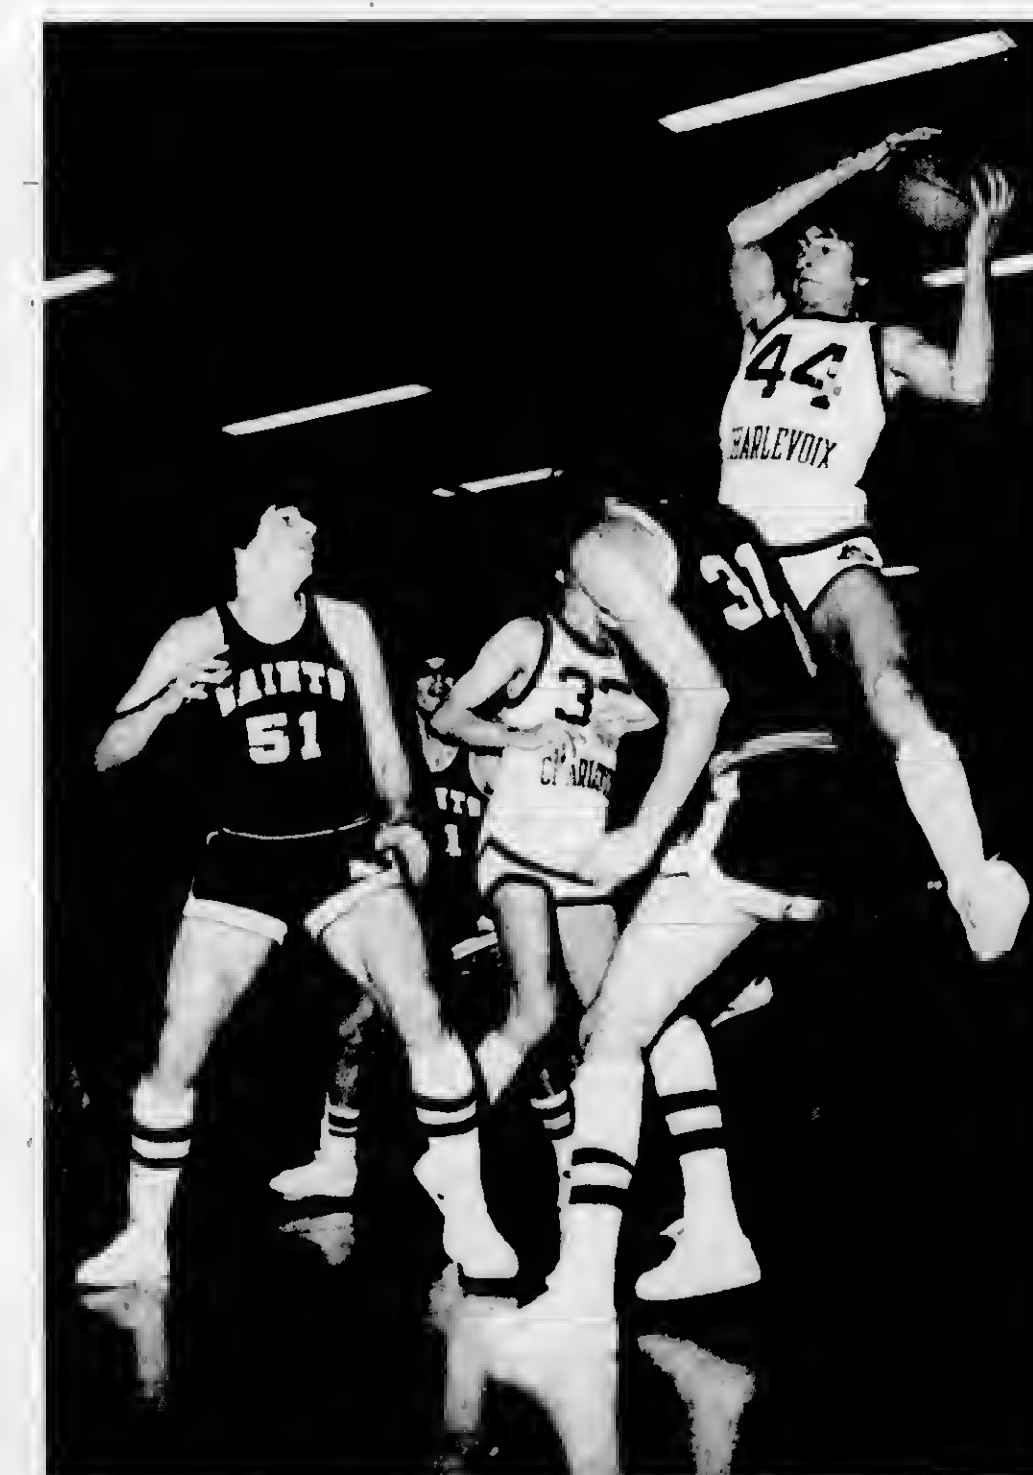

JOE LEFT (32) reaches above the head of this St. Ignace player to grab a rebound during Friday night's game. The Rayders lost to St. Ignace 85-67.

STEVE SCHUCH (44) was head and shoulders above the St. Ignace squad in this play. But even with Schuch's height combined with other members of the team, the Rayders dropped the game to the Saints.

JUNIOR KEVIN KRATT (20) sparked a small scoring rally during the final quarter of the Charlevoix-St. Ignace game Friday. Kratt added four points to the scoreboard to help narrow the lead held by the Saints.

Rayder hoop record bent, but not broken

By BILL MERCER
Charlevoix's 1977-78 basketball season was bent, but not broken during the past week as the Rayders suffered defeat at the hands of always-tough Harbor Springs and surprising St. Ignace.

The losses, a close 74-70 count in Harbor Springs and a wider margin 85-67 defeat across the bridge bring the Rayders record to two wins and three defeats early in this year's basketball season. Charlevoix must defeat Boyne City on Tuesday to go into 1978 with an even record.

In the loss to the Saints, Charlevoix had difficulty putting the ball in the basket. The Rayders shot a meager 36 percent from the floor and a similar 36 percent mark from the free throw line.

St. Ignace was dropping its shots in at a 66 percent clip during play while shooting 61 percent from the charity stripe.

The 18 point margin was accounted for by the difference in free throws — Charlevoix made five, St. Ignace 23. Both teams tallied 31 field goals.

Part of the reason for the disparity in free throws made was the 29 personal fouls called on Rayder players. The Saints had only 14 fouls whistled against them.

Pat Schmidt was the leading scorer for the Rayders with 31 points, his high of the season. Schmidt made shots from numerous locations on the court and played an aggressive game for Coach Dave Moyer.

Neil Dziedzie, Jim Alger and Joe Left each pumped in eight points with Kevin Kratt and Bob Plumm scoring four points apiece.

Junior varsity drops two games

The Charlevoix Junior Varsity basketball squad dropped two games during action last week.

Rayder Wrestlers take tourney title again

Charlevoix High School grapplers took the Holiday Invitational Wrestling Tournament title for the third time over the weekend.

With a total score of 243 points, the Rayder wrestlers claimed the crown in the fifth annual tourney hosted by the high school and sponsored by the Charlevoix Police Department and the Charlevoix Wrestling Club. Charlevoix was the defending champion for the tourney title.

In second place of the Class C division was Grayling with 223.5 points. Duway was third with 131.5 points. The only other area school placing in the tourney was Boyne City in 10th place with 45 points.

Marion captured the Class D division title with 162.5 points. It was the third win for Marion at the tourney.

The meet, held in the Charlevoix High School gym, began at 10 a.m. Saturday with finals beginning at 6:30 p.m. A total of 332 bouts were held on five mats throughout the day with 196 boys competing in the meet.

Sam Matthews, 145 pounder from Kalkaska was named the most outstanding wrestler of the meet. Burt Partello, 105 pounder, from Grayling had the most pins in the least amount of time taking four pins in 4 minutes 34 seconds.

In second place was Pete Ashby, heavy weight from Marion, who had four pins in 7 minutes 25 seconds.

Fred Dempsey, 191 pounder from Onaway had the fastest pin with a record 12 seconds and Steve Bryce, 132 pounder from Grayling had the largest score recorded on a decision with a score of 27-2.

Crooked Tree gets art grant

The Crooked Tree Arts Council has received a $2,500 Arts in Education grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts.

The grant will be used to bring arts experiences to students in ten school districts in Emmet and Charlevoix Counties and to expand the Headstart and Senior Citizens programs where area artists will visit classrooms and host studio trips which will be recorded audio-visually.

The project is designed to explore ways in which arts and artists can be integrated into the education process. Grants are made to organizations for projects involving people of all ages in arts activities which go beyond the traditional school arts curriculum.

County state bank names two new members to board

Two new directors have been named to the board of the Charlevoix County State Bank.

Gordon R. Wellman, bank president, announced the appointment of Russell C. Henderson and Anton Rizzardi.

Henderson is the chairman of the board of Yale Rubber Manufacturing Company of Sandusky, a company he has been affiliated with for more than 33 years. He has also been associated with several Detroit area banks and the Fisher Body Division of General Motors.

Henderson attended Wayne State University and graduated from Walsh Accounting Institute.

Rizzardi, a native of Iron Mountain, is president of Yale Rubber Manufacturing Company of Sandusky. He is a graduate of Michigan State University and served in the South Pacific during World War II with the U.S. Army.

Wellman said the appointments fill one vacancy on the bank board which had been in existence for some time and a second vacancy which was created by the resignation of E. Darrel Dinwiddie earlier this year.

Dinwiddie resigned due to a potential conflict of interest between his position on the bank board and CPA audits he performs for Charlevoix businesses.

Jean Van Wieren joins sales staff of Ski and Shore Charlevoix

A new sales person has joined the staff of Ski and Shore Charlevoix, Inc.

Jean Van Wieren became a part of the residential sales staff of the company last week. Mrs. Van Wieren, the wife of Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Gordon Van Wieren, is a former teacher and reading specialist. She worked with teachers and students in the reading field for 12 years.

Although Mrs. Van Wieren has been working as a teacher, she has also been involved in real estate field through the rental property she and her husband have owned and managed. Because of this involvement and interest, the new Ski and Shore sales person took a real estate class last spring to learn more about the topic.

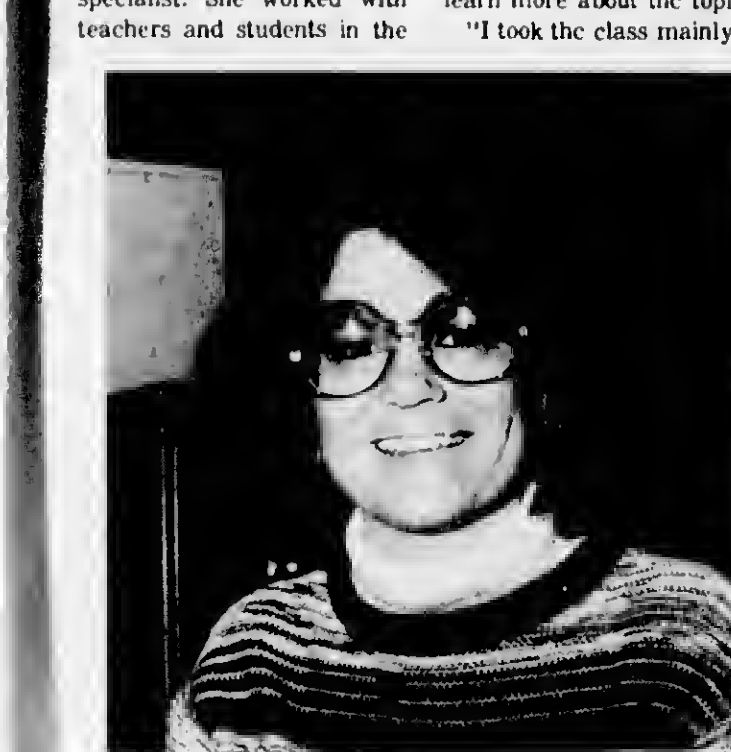

"I took the class mainly for my own information so that I would know what was going on at our own closings," she explained.

Then after moving to Charlevoix in August, she decided to try her hand at sales. She finds it a very exciting field.

"Buying a home is one of the most important things people do and it's exciting to be in on it," she said.

While Mrs. Van Wieren is new to Charlevoix, she did live in Indian River for several years, and she is originally from Cadillac. She feels this background has made her familiar with the types of property that are available in the area.

Mrs. Van Wieren and her husband have four children and reside on Pa-Ba-Shan Lane.

Woodsy Owl new forest symbol

Have your kids come home from school recently shouting, "Give a hoot! Don't pollute!"? Did they tell you what Woodsy Owl says? Whoo is Woodsy Owl, anyway?

Wise in the ways of the outdoor world, Woodsy is the official anti-pollution symbol of the Forest Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture. Your children may be getting acquainted with Woodsy at school, but there are some free tips, a poster, and a coloring sheet you can send away for. Just drop a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 651E, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Here are some of Woodsy's tips you'll be hearing from your kids:

When you go hiking, fishing, or camping, carry out everything you carried in.

Metal Lids from cans can be hazardous to animals. So don't throw them on the ground.

Start an "ecology cup-board" to store things that can be used again, such as plastic bags, string, ribbon, etc.

Return bottles to the store, and take nonreturnable bottles and cans to the nearest recycling center. Take old newspapers to the recycling center, too.

Take used clothes and furniture to organizations that can reuse them.

Return leaves and clippings to the soil as mulch or compost. Start a compost pile.

Finally, give a hoot about energy conservation: Lower your thermostat several degrees in winter; turn off unneeded lights and appliances; form car pools or use public transportation.

Jean Wallace marries Robert A. Stebe here

Jean R. Wallace became bride of Robert A. Stebe during ceremonies at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix Friday.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Timothy W. Smith of Charlevoix and William H. Wallace of Baldwin and Mr. and Mrs. John Stebe, Jr., of Charlevoix.

Rev. Raymond Griffin officiated at the double ring ceremonies attended by more than 80 guests from Baldwin, Elk Rapids, Boyne City and Charlevoix. The bride was given in marriage by her father William Wallace.

For her wedding, the bride chose a floor length A-line gown of cerule blue with soft blue flowers made of polyester. A chiffon cape collar and flounce at the hemline also decorated the gown.

The bride carried a nosegay bouquet of white and blue carnations, white roses and baby's breath. She wore a white picture hat trimmed with blue ribbons.

Dana McKenzie served as maid of honor. She wore a floor length yellow polyester knit gown with a high neck line and long tapered sleeves.

She carried a nosegay of white and yellow carnations with baby's breath.

Gary Stebe served his brother as best man and Jay Wallace, brother of the bride from Baldwin, and Kerry

Speer of Charlevoix were ushers. Mrs. David Sluiter was the organist. She played traditional musical selections and accompanied Vince Chew, who sang, "You Light Up My Life."

A reception given by the bride's mother and stepfather followed the wedding. A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at Ricard's.

Following a trip to Canada, the new couple will make their home in the Lake Terrace Trailer Park in Charlevoix.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Charlevoix High School and is employed by the Charlevoix Enroute Intermediate School

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Stebe

District. The groom is a high school student and is employed by Zupin Oil Company of Charlevoix.

High school students prepare for competition

By LAURAGLASS

"All the world's a stage, and all the men and women merely players."

The old masks of comedy and tragedy are showing their faces again at Charlevoix High School as practice for the one-act play competition has begun.

This year the play is "Lilies of the Field," a story about a group of nuns who through faith and will obtain their goal of a chapel. The tale also shows how other people are indirectly drawn to that same goal.

Tryouts for parts in the play were held last week and after a great deal of consideration and even further tryouts, the cast and crew were finally chosen. Since there were limited parts available in the play, the competition was tough.

The following students were chosen for the cast: Geoff Nelson, Scott Swanson, Craig Boss, Ann Marie Watson, Matt Stangis, Chris Pulek, Louise Caldwell, Tammy Helms and Lauren Helms.

Sue Miller is lighting director, Wendell Wright is prop designer and Carla Sizemore and Kristy Mathews are costume designers. Laurie Dussal is stage manager.

The theme for play competition alternates each year between comedy and serious pieces. This year's theme is serious. Last year the play was a comedy, "The Mouse

That Roared," by Leonard Wilberly. Charlevoix students placed second at the district and several members of both the cast and the crew received individual awards for their parts in the production.

District competition this year will be Jan. 28. Charlevoix High School will host the competition at Petoskey High School. Six plays are scheduled for the competition from Elk Rapids, Gaylord, Gaylord St. Mary's, Manistee Catholic Central, Traverse City and Charlevoix High Schools.

But the cast and crew of Charlevoix's entry in the competition is looking beyond the districts to the state finals. See Students page 17

Elementary school bazaar provides fun for everyone

It was quite a sight to behold.

Much to the delight of children and adults alike, Santa Claus, Sesame Street's Big Bird, a clown and a walking, talking, Christmas tree were all at the Charlevoix Elementary School Parents' Advisory Council Christmas Bazaar Sunday.

The bazaar was packed with elementary school children and parents and other community members as well from 2 to 5 p.m. "It was really, really great," Patli Muma, an organizer of the event, said. "The response was wonderful. I can't begin to tell you how many people were here, but the gym was packed."

Others estimated as many as 300 people attended the bazaar throughout the afternoon.

The newly formed Parents Council held the bazaar to raise funds to purchase equipment for the elementary school. Parents and students alike made items to sell at the bazaar along with cotton candy, hot dogs and pop.

The bazaar also featured an old fashioned cake walk that was quite a favorite of the students.

In all, the group raised $902.40 from the sale of various items.

In addition to the social committee of the Parent's Council, which organized the bazaar, Bob Frabis served as Santa Claus, Pinky Hebel as Big Bird, Debbie Bellinger as the clown, Mrs. Muma was the Christmas tree, and Rebecca Berg's first grade class dressed up as elves to help out.

Humane Society

THE CHARLEVOIX County Humane Society celebrated Christmas with an open house Sunday. Humane Society offices in Charlevoix are decorated for the holiday season complete with a tree trimmed with dog bones. Here Jennine Keeney, humane society member, shows the tree to a kitten.

County celebrates Christmas following 15-year tradition

By PEG OHLE

People passing by the County Building recently have been treated to colorful Christmas decorations on the various office windows.

It's a tradition that goes back about 15 years to the days of George Hutchison in the Social Services Department. Present-day County employees say that Hutchison created beautiful window paintings for his department and employees of other departments began to follow suit.

The many windows of the Equalization Department are alive with paintings of Charlie Brown, Lucy, Snoopy, and Sesame Street characters. Carla Spencer and Lynette Webb shyly take credit for these works of art.

The County Clerk's office windows portray a snow scene complete with sleds and skis. Kathy Drewa was responsible for the artwork.

The manger scene in the Treasurer's office was created by Debbie Kimble and Joan Balch.

Steve Pond of the Register of Deeds' office was responsible for the cutouts and pasteups on the office windows there.

A group of elves are shown cutting down a Christmas tree in the office of the Prosecutor and Friend of the Court. Mary Lee Towles and Nancy Wojan were the artists on this project.

A snowman graces the offices of Probate Court. Sally Taber created it.

The windows of District Court are bright with Christmas tree ornaments and tinsel, put up by all the employees assisted by those from the Probation Department.

There is a Christmas tree in the office of the Planning Department and tinsel and cutouts on the door and the decorator.

On Thursday of this week, the courtroom will be decorated for the County employees' annual Christmas party. There will be hot dishes, soups, crackers, cheese, cookies, candy, and nuts for all to share during coffee breaks and lunch hour.

CARLA SPENCER directs Lynette Webb as the two women decorated the county Equalization Department windows with Sesame Street characters for Christmas time. The women were following a tradition started at the county building 15 years ago.

Grey Gables offers holiday dinner to area visitors

Holiday visitors to the Charlevoix area won't be left out in the cold if they are planning to eat out this Christmas.

The Grey Gables Inn on Belvedere Avenue will be holding a Christmas turkey buffet from 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday for those who prefer to eat

Christmas dinner in a restaurant. However, none of the other restaurants or grocery stores in town will be open on Christmas day. Charlevoix merchants said that Christmas is the one day of the year they feel their employees should be able to spend with their families. Most businesses will be open on Saturday and after noon on Sunday.

Last year, visitors to the Charlevoix area were out of luck if they planned to eat out on Christmas day. Not one restaurant or grocery store was open.

George Heckendorn honored for sales by Daubert

A Charlevoix resident was recently honored by the Daubert Chemical Company. George Heckendorn, sales representative for the ECP Division of the Daubert Chemical Company, was named a member of the "President's Club" at the company's national sales meeting. He was presented with an engraved silver trophy in honor of the occasion.

Robert Necks, national sales manager, presented the award to Heckendorn for his outstanding sales achievement. Heckendorn, who has been a sales representative for Daubert for several years, was also the winner of a recent sales contest.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO ISSUE INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT REVENUE BONDS BY THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX, MICHIGAN, AND RIGHTS OF REFERENDUM THEREON

TO ALL ELECTORS OF THE COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX:

TAKE NOTICE that the County of Charlevoix intends to issue industrial development revenue bonds in the principal amount of not to exceed Ten Million ($10,000,000.00) Dollars, extending for not more than forty (40) years and bearing interest at not more than 10% or such higher rate as may be permitted by law per annum, for the purpose of financing all or part of the cost of acquiring and installing air pollution control equipment (including buildings, structures, facilities, equipment and their appurtenances together with to the extent necessary lands or interests in lands thereon), as defined in Act No. 62, Public Acts of Michigan, 1963, as amended, and included as part of the aforesaid air pollution control equipment all portions of cement manufacturing facilities which qualify as air pollution control facilities under Section 103 (c) (4) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended, in or near, and for use in connection with the Charlevoix Plant of Medusa Corporation (including costs incidental to the issuance of said bonds). Said air pollution control equipment is to be sold under an installment sales contract or contracts to Medusa Corporation.

Said bonds are to be issued in accordance with the provisions of Act No. 62, Public Acts of Michigan, 1963, as amended (The Industrial Development Revenue Bond Act of 1963). Said proposed bonds may be issued by the County in one or more series.

SOURCE OF PAYMENT

Said bonds will be issued in accordance with the provisions of Act No. 62, Public Acts of Michigan, 1963, as amended. Said bonds and the interest thereon will not be a general obligation of the County of Charlevoix and will in no event be payable from any tax revenues or other general funds of the County of Charlevoix, but will be payable solely and only from revenues derived from payments to be received as purchase installments from Medusa Corporation.

RIGHT OF REFERENDUM

This notice is given to and for the benefit of the electors of the County of Charlevoix, in order to inform them that said bonds will be issued without submitting the question of their issuance to the electors of the County, unless within 45 days from the publication of this notice, a petition signed by not less than 5% of the registered electors of the County, requesting a referendum upon the question of the issuance of said bonds, is filed with the County Clerk of the County of Charlevoix, in which event the bonds will not be issued unless and until approved by a majority of the electors of the County voting thereon at a general or special election.

THIS NOTICE is given by order of the Board of Commissioners of the County of Charlevoix, Michigan, pursuant to the requirements of Section 12 of Act No. 62, Public Acts of Michigan, 1963, as amended. Further information with respect to the Project to be financed, the revenue bonds to be issued and the right of referendum may be obtained from the undersigned.

New cross country ski trail opens in Jordan River Valley

So here you are, faced with 10 days of Christmas vacation and nothing to do.

Why not grab your cross country skis or your snow shoes and go on down to a section of the Jordan River Valley off of M-32 and try out the new Warner Creek Trail for cross country skiing and hiking.

The new trail was just opened last week, when the Forest Management Division of the Department of Natural Resources, put up a sign marking the beginning of the trail and published maps showing its location.

The trail was designed by William Mittig, area forester. "The problem with the Jordan River Valley is finding a place where a cross country trail can go in," Mittig said. "It's hard to find a place that is fairly flat."

Mittig described the Warner Creek Trail as a novice trail of about four miles in length. It winds down toward Warner Creek and O'Brien's pond. The trail is marked with blue dots and crosses to help guide the skier or snow shoe along.

The Warner Creek Trail is one of three cross country ski and hiking trails designed by the Forest Management Division in this area.

The other two are located at Bells Bay just south of Charlevoix and at Springbrook in the Walloon Lake area.

"The Bells Bay trail was built about 15 years ago and used for a hiking trail," Mittig explained. "But it can be used for cross country skiing, too."

"The Springbrook trail was built about 10 years ago as a hiking trail, but it received very little use as that. When cross country skiing became more popular, it was used for that."

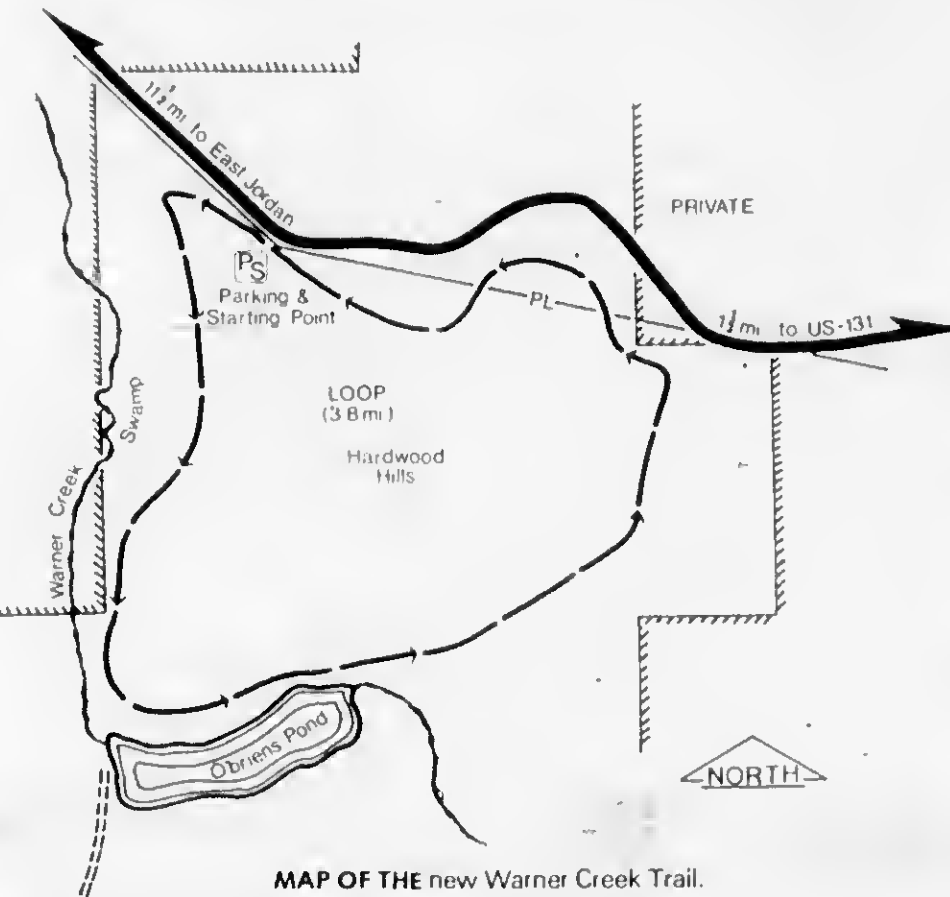

Of the three trails, Bells Bay is the easiest and Springbrook the hardest, Mittig said.

The forester said the trail was constructed this summer by CETA employees working for the DNR. He said the funds for the trail came out of the regular forestry budget.

"There was really very little cost in the construction of the trail," he explained. "All we had to do was clear some of the brush and mark the trails. And of course there was the cost of the sign and the maps." See Ski Trail continued on page 17.

BILL MITTIG TALKS with a cross country skier about the new Warner Creek Trail in the Jordan River Valley. The trail, a four-mile path wandering through the valley, opened last week to skiers and snowshoers.

SANTA CLAUS CAME to town Saturday riding on the back of a Charlevoix Fire Department truck. With the assistance of the volunteer fire department Santa handed out boxes of candy to all the good little girls and boys who came to see him Saturday.

Santa's in town

THE VOLUNTEER FIREMEN for the City of Charlevoix packaged more than 1,000 pounds of candy and peanuts for Santa Claus to give away to area children last weekend. Participating in the candy packing were: Dewey Bruce, Bob Geer, Jerry Meggison, Dan Geneit, Bob Hamilton, Bill Lusk, John Martin, Charles Bergmann, Karl Rothenberger, Doug Bergmann, Al Bergmann, Don Meggison, Hondo Geer, Barry Wood, Fire Chief John Curtis and Police Chief Jack Mol.

The following cases were heard in Charlevoix and Boyne City during the week ending December 16 by Magistrates Marilyn Blumman and Howard Talbot:

Sтивен M. Паловод, 17, Boyne City, entering without owner's permission. Plead guilty. Ten days in county jail, $205 fine and costs, restitution to injured party, and one year's probation.

Clinton R. Blanchard, 22, Charlevoix, impaired driving. Plead guilty. $165 fine and costs.

Richard Ulrich, 17, Boyne City, trespassing. Plead nolo contendere. Five days in county jail.

William E. Downey, Jr., 22, Kewadin, speeding. Found guilty by jury. $45 fine and costs.

Julie Spence, 17, Boyne Falls, minor in possession of alcohol. $65.

Russell Pirtlow, 17, Boyne Falls, minor in possession of alcohol. $66.

David L. Pierson, 20, Charlevoix, open container of alcohol in vehicle. $65.

Joe R. Moore, 20, Charlevoix, open container of alcohol in vehicle. $65.

Michael J. Callahan, 23, Melvindale, open container of alcohol in vehicle. $65.

Carl L. Cavich, 42, Charlevoix, transporting unlicensed gun. $45.

Athola A. Evans, 30, Vanderbilt, snaggling. $45.

James L. Butterfield, Highland, hunting with rifle before season. $25.

We extend our warmest wishes for the Christmas Season and the coming year. May He fill your heart with joy.

Dear Santa,
I feel everyone has spent a lot of money on me and now I've got almost everything I need. So, I thought I would give you a list of the things I don't need.
I have a small Christmas tree made up of an out rigger canoe, thirty six wish bones, and a television set. If I could ask for anything more which I can and I will I would ask for a cabin near the sea and a free trip to Los Angeles guaranteed no refund.

Dear Santa,
I would like a stereo with a tape player and with some tapes and records. And then I would like a new pair of ski poles so I can go skiing this year. Then I would like a new sled so I can go sledding with my friends. I would also like a new pair of pants and shirt and belt. I would wear them to school and to restaurants.
Then I would like a new basketball so I could play basketball.
Yours truly,
Jim Morridge
98 Oak St.

Dear Santa,
I want a football, a set of drums a bike a snowmobile, a tool set to build a fort and a tape recorder. I would also like a Shetland pony, football suit a pool table, a pet hamster, a pet mouse, a pet rat, a pet dog and a pet cat.
And for my brother he wants a shooting gallery a typewriter, a football, and an organ. My mom wants a toaster and refrigerator. My dad wants a knife.
Yours truly,
Jeff Heim
Clark Road

Dear Santa,
I've been really good this year. I hope you come to my house. I will give you milk and cookies. Here are all the things I want your elves to make me for Christmas:
1. Barbie doll
2. Skate board
3. Easy Bake oven
4. Stationary
5. Farrah doll
That's all I want. I love you.

LEUTHEUSERS OF CHARLEVOIX

Merry Christmas to all our friends and patrons. For the holiday season from now until New Year's Eve - A special treat, from 5 P.M. to 8 P.M.; in our new, remodeled Charlevoix room, a different dinner nightly -
ALL YOU CAN EAT FOR $3.25.
Happy Hour daily, Monday through Friday 5 to 7 P.M.

Christmas traditions alive at Charlevoix Area Hospital

Newborn babies in stockings, carolers in the halls, wreaths, holly and Christmas boughs, bright colored lights, Santas and present, trees gayly decorated, candy canes for the kids, and that special turkey dinner with family, are a Christmas tradition at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

An extra effort is made for patients during the holiday season by hospital personnel, the medical staff and community.

Every newborn baby is sent home swaddled in a large red felt Christmas stocking, during the Christmas season.
The stockings are a creation of members of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Women's Guild.

To add cheer to their departments, employees have decorated when we go to Cleveland, Ohio. And when we go there I hope we can go to all of our aunts, uncles, grandmas and grandpas.
Yours truly,
Jeff Engler
Squantola Road

Carolers who will stroll the halls serenading patients are from local scouting groups, 4-H Clubs and churches.

The Emergency Room is ready with candy canes for small patients. As a matter of fact, candy laden wreaths around throughout the hospital and already show signs of being depleted by the staff's generosity to youthful patients.

Saturday, when Santa made his annual visit to Charlevoix, he had one special side trip - to the hospital.

On Christmas day the hospital is serving a traditional turkey dinner free to two guests of each patient.

The special trays for Christmas dinner will be laden with decorations and favors, hand made by the Charlevoix
Hangers 4-H Club and by the Charlevoix Area Hospital,
Charlevoix Garden Club.

Patients who are well enough to go home will be discharged or given day passes so they can spend Christmas with their families.

The spirit of Christmas fills Charlevoix Area Hospital, making the holidays as happy and festive as possible for people who find themselves hospitalized during the holidays.

Little Brian Robinson was safe against the winter weather when he got his first peek at Charlevoix recently. Brian, the new son of Chris and Andrew Robinson of Waukon Lake, was bundled up in a warm sock made for all Christmas babies at the Charlevoix Area Hospital by the Women's Guild.

A SPECIAL Christmas display decorates the Learning Center at Charlevoix High School. The students constructed a manger scene for their room complete with a manger made out of logs and cardboard and hay and figurines made out of Readers Digests and styrofoam balls. Hay covers the tables where the figurines stand and completes the manger scene. Some of the students who worked on the project were: (from left to right) Karen Klooster, Karen Bairidge, Cindy Elliot and Robert Kalmbach.

Rayder grapplers defeat St. Ignace, Manistique

The Charlevoix Rayder grapplers added two more victories to their record last week. The Rayders defeated St. Ignace and Manistique in a double dual meet at St. Ignace.

The Rayders record for dual meets now stands at five wins and two losses. St. Ignace is 2-4 for the season and Manistique is 2-2.

Hearing on tax break for Medusa slated Jan. 10

A hearing on a proposed property tax break for the Medusa Cement Company addition is expected to be held Jan. 10 at the Charlevoix Township Hall, according to Thomas Poirier, local attorney for the company, and Joanne Plamka, township clerk.

Under Public Act 198, governmental units are allowed to create an industrial development district which provides property tax exemptions for manufacturers proposing to expand or rehabilitate their plants.

The law was passed by the state Legislature in 1974 to encourage industry in Michigan to expand and to make it lucrative for the company to do so. The law is a means of combating the competitiveness of other states in attracting business away from Michigan.

Window Winner

BOGGS PASTRY SHOP on Bridge Street, was the winner of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Christmas Window Contest this year. The window, which depicts elves decorating a Christmas tree, was painted by John Olach, an employee of the bakery. The pastry shop will receive the window contest trophy which they will be able to have on display for the entire year. Windows receiving honorable mention were Dapper Dick's Deli, Pouskey Avenue branch, Haggards Bath and Bed Shop, The Lodge, and Metters by the Bay. Judges for the contest were Jacques Merta, chamber director, Carol Stephan, Georgia Hufford and Lois Hordyson.

Worst Christmas Decorations

I want to say something about Charlevoix's Christmas decorations. We are the worst decorated town around the country. What is the matter with Charlevoix anyhow?

City-Township Merger

A Charlevoix Township leader recently came up with a plan to bring about an orderly merger, between the township and the town (or city). Among other things he wrote that both the city and the township each have three council men. The city with 4,000 people would have as much leverage as the township with 800 people. Evidently, the one man-one vote rule does not apply. It is contrary to the American precept of equal representation.

The winter has a much simpler solution for merging. It would be done in two phases.

Phase 1 - The northern part of the township would annex the First Ward of this consolidated unit would then be named "Stroudland."

Phase 2 - The second and third wards or our city would then annex the south portion of the township. Happily this newly created municipality would hence forth and forever be known as "Hansenville."

This ideal merger would be accomplished first by a special election. It is predicted that the citizens of our city would approve of this proposal by a majority of 20 votes. Estimated results would be as follows: No votes, 460 (23 percent), Yes votes 480 (24 percent), not voting, 1,180 (53 percent). The no votes include 70 absentee, the yes votes 280 AV.

Note: The 1,180 people not voting would stay home to watch television, etc.

Petitions favoring shade trees prepared for common council

The battle over the proposed planting of shade trees in downtown Charlevoix is well as throughout the city was expected to heat up this week as supporters of the project begin to show their colors.

Representatives of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, the Charlevoix Garden Club and the downtown merchants were expected to turn in the signatures of more than 150 people and downtown businessmen on petitions in favor of the proposed shade tree program to Mayor Edward Hansen and the Charlevoix Common Council Tuesday night.

This is the first time common council will receive petitions favoring the shade tree planting program. In the past six weeks, the council has received petitions containing the signatures of 88 city residents and nine downtown businessmen asking for a moratorium on the planting program and opposing the planting of trees in the downtown sidewalks.

Billie Smith, the organizer of the drive seeking the moratorium, said the group would like a complete evaluation of the cost of the program and would also like to see if the trees in the city nurseries and along the roadside are going to survive before any more trees are purchased for the program.

Supporters of the program feel it is important to keep planting the trees according to schedule in order to replace the dying trees and to put trees in areas of the city that have none. The supporters would also like to see trees planted in the downtown area as has been done in many surrounding communities.

Supporters feel the planting of trees in the downtown area will make it more attractive for residents and tourists.

Jacques Merta, director of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, said she will be presenting council with the results of a poll conducted by the chamber directors.

In response to the question, "Do you support continued planting of trees in downtown Charlevoix?" 50 chamber members replied yes and 10 replied no.

Mrs. Merta said the questionnaire was sent only to dues paying voting members of the chamber.

"The ballot only went to people who are concerned about the community—at least concerned enough to belong to the chamber and to support the city through it," Mrs. Merta said.

In addition to the signatures of numerous city residents and property owners, the following businesses also signed a petition supporting the planting of trees in downtown Charlevoix: County Seal General Store, Charlevoix Properties, Charlevoix Floral, Roseann's, Dapper Dick's Deli, Marty's, Tropical World, Aartvark Studio, Harper Barber, Reusch Jewelry and Capelli Salon.

Other businesses signing the petition included: Topside Lounge, Charlevoix Agency, Charlevoix County State Bank, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Leathbeuers, Colwell Real Estate, Murdie's Fudge, Wharfside Market, The Clothing Company, Treasure Chest and Muna's Suncos.

In addition the following businesses signed the petition: Models and Things, WWOY Radio, Metters by the Bay, Haggards Bath and Bed Shop, Shop of the Gulls, Ski and Shore Properties of Charlevoix, Iless Furniture, Finn Sports, Mardeous, Kadens, Family Federal Savings, Lieberman, Town House, Appletree, Stone Shoppe and Alee Jane Dows.

From Charlevoix area merchants First baby of new year greeted with gifts

The first baby to be born in 1978 at the Charlevoix Area Hospital will be welcomed by a stack of gifts furnished by local merchants participating in the Charlevoix Courier's First Baby of the Year Contest.

In addition, there will be several gifts for the parents.

To be eligible, the parents of the baby must submit a written statement from their attending physician noting the exact time of birth. The statement must be received by the Charlevoix Courier, 201 Michigan Ave., by January 9.

If there have been no births by that time, the contest will be extended until a baby arrives.

The first new baby of the year and his or her parents will receive a total of 20 gifts from Charlevoix area merchants.

For the baby there will be a silverware gift set from Housch Jewelry and a food warming dish from Staley Hardware. To go with the dishes is a case of Gerber baby food from Olesons Food Store.

To keep the new baby warm, the Chelsea Cloth Shoppe is offering a handmade quilted baby comforter and Olesons Family Center is supplying $10 worth of Buster Brown Clothing and Russell Shoes is offering Buster Brown shoes.

Two $25 savings bonds are being offered to the new baby by Thomas Real Estate and the Charlevoix Area Hospital and two $10 gift certificates are being offered by Kit Carson planter and the Appletree is supplying a cuddly teddy bear. The Radio Shack of Pictetco is offering an AM portable radio for the family's listening pleasure.

Aartvark Studio is offering a free 5 x 7 color portrait by Terry Salomonson and the Appletree is offering a lovely picture frame to go with the picture.

For the parents, Wharfside Market is supplying a bottle of champagne while Helene's Beauty Shoppe is offering a free hair cut, set and wash for the new mother.

Hess Furniture is offering a $25 gift certificate toward the purchase of a rocking chair for baby and mother. The certificate will be increased to $50 if it's twins, $75 if it's triplets and soon up to a limit of 10!

And for the entire family, The Charlevoix Courier is offering one year's subscription.

STUDENTS FOR THE Learning Center at the Charlevoix Elementary School presented the school with a check for $117. The students earned the money by selling pine cone wreaths they made. Here two students present the check to Principal Ralph Raymer.

Learning Center students give gift to K-5 school

Students from the Learning Center at Charlevoix Elementary School presented the school with a Christmas gift last week.

The Learning Center students presented Principal Ralph Raymer with a $117 check. The students made more than $200 from the sale of pine cone wreaths they had made as a class project and they split their earnings with the school.

The students made the wreaths to be sold at the Parents Advisory Council Christmas Bazaar, but most of the wreaths were sold before the bazaar was held. The remaining wreaths were purchased by visitors to the bazaar.

The check the students presented to Principal Raymer will be combined with the other funds raised at the bazaar to purchase equipment for the school. The Learning Center students will use their portion of the money to take a trip at the end of the school year, Pat Carland, Learning Center teacher, said.

The 16 students started working on the wreaths just after Thanksgiving when they began gathering the pine cones. Their search for pine cones took them to the Brookside Cemetery in Charlevoix and the Winter Sports Park in Petoskey. In all the group made 19 wreaths. It has been a busy Christmas in the Learning Center at the elementary school. In addition to making the pine cone wreaths, the students' gifts have also been busy making gifts for their adopted grand- parents. Mrs. Carland said.

Last Christmas, the students adopted 15 elderly people in Charlevoix as grandparents. Throughout the year the students remembered their new grandparents on various holidays by making different things for them and this Christmas is no different.

Special session on financial aid set for Jan. 9

"It's going to cost how much to go to school?" is a phrase often heard in the homes of college bound high school students.

The cost of going to college has nearly doubled in the last decade bringing the price of a university education to an all time high. But help is available to deserving students.

The Charlevoix High School Counseling Staff will hold a program on applying for financial aid at 7 p.m. Jan. 9 in the high school study hall.

"The program will be devoted to assisting students and parents with the complex and often frustrating process of applying for financial aid for post-secondary education," Chuck Bentley, high school counselor, explained.

The counselors will discuss the types of financial aid available to students interested in a college education. Parents will also be given an opportunity to follow the step-by-step completion of a financial aid form and to estimate their expanded contribution to a student in college.

A question and answer period will follow the presentation.

Interested parents may contact Chuck Bentley at 547-2811 for additional information.

Bentley said the program was geared to seniors and their parents, but juniors and their parents are welcome to attend.

Rep. Ruppe announces candidacy

U.S. Rep. Philip Ruppe, R-Houghton, has thrown his hat in the ring for the U.S. Senate seat being vacated by Robert Griffin, R-Traverse City.

In an unofficial announcement of his candidacy, Ruppe said that he would be making a formal announcement of his intentions in January. At that time he would also be outlining his initial platform.

"After looking over the race, Rep. Ruppe felt that he had a lot to offer the people of the State of Michigan and so he decided to run," the aide explained.

County makes sizeable economic gain of 57% during last five years

Charlevoix County's economy made sizeable gains in the last five years, the latest figures show, notwithstanding the problems that plagued the nation as a whole.

The extent of that growth, since the beginning of 1972, is brought out in surveys made by the Standard Rate and Data Service.

They show that the volume of retail business in the local area, a principal indicator of business vitality, was relatively strong.

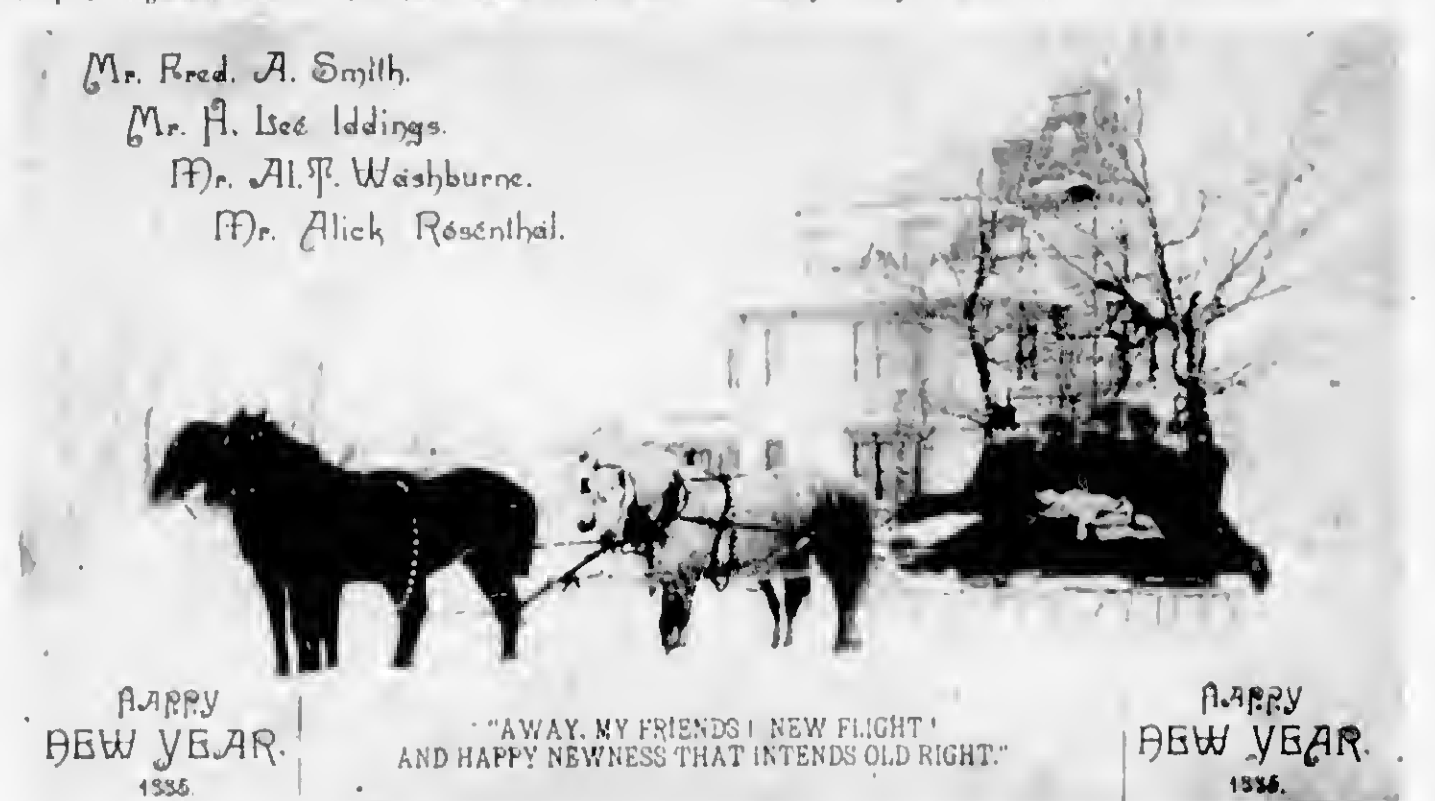

Despite the general concern regarding inflation, higher taxes, unemployment, crime conditions, political uncertainties and the like, consumer spending per family was at a better level than in many communities.

It reflects the fact that the majority of local families, with steadily rising incomes, had more money available and were willing to spend more.

As a result, the amount of business done by retail stores in Charlevoix County in the past year reached $47,145,000.

The net earnings of the local population, after payment of taxes, hit a high in the past year of $81,096,000, well above the amount available to them five years ago, $52,183,000.

Just how long the economy will continue at its present level and how well it will perform in the year ahead are anyone's guess.

Six major issues will face council, mayor in new year

Throughout the year the Charlevoix Courier has been urging the Charlevoix Common Council and Mayor Edward Hansen to take action on various issues within the city.

The Courier had asked council members to make the necessary studies, set up planning groups and to seek citizen input so that they could make the decisions pertaining to many issues. Some of these issues were resolved during the year and some were not.

As the new year approaches, there are six major issues—the proposed new charter, the proposed merger with Charlevoix Township, the proposed new zoning ordinance, downtown parking, the Beaver Island Boat Co. lease and the proposed shade tree plantings—which face the council and mayor and which should be resolved within the next year.

Perhaps the biggest issue still facing the council and city residents is the proposed new charter. Common council and the mayor should work with the Charlevoix Charter Commission to resolve the issue as soon as possible.

Mayor Hansen's observation that the charter has hindered progress on many projects is a sound one. By working with the charter commission to bring about the necessary changes in the charter to get it approved by the city voters, the council would be doing the city a great service.

The issue must be resolved before April 1 by law and setting it by an earlier date would be more beneficial to the community.

The council and mayor and the Charlevoix Township Board should also get together to work out a plan for a merger of the two units. Some proposals have been made and should be studied to make sure that both communities will be represented fairly.

A citizens advisory group made up of both township and city residents may be a helpful tool to the council and township board in working out a merger plan. But a merger plan should be worked out in 1978. It is an idea whose time has come.

The taxpayer can't afford to continue paying for the duplication of services now experienced in both the township and the city. Also the two units are so interdependent and interrelated that it only makes sense for the two to merge.

Adopting the proposed new zoning ordinance with the proposed marine zone classifications should also be accomplished by the common council this year. Council has dilly-dallied on the issue for far too long now.

The city is growing up around the council and an adequate zoning ordinance that can handle all of the types of development that are occurring is needed.

True the proposed ordinance is not perfect, but it has been thoroughly researched and would be a good starting point for the city.

Downtown parking still has not been addressed by the council. Some talk has been made about buying the Elmer Auto Co. for parking or swapping with the Beaver Island Boat Co. It is important to do some planning for parking.

Bridge Street is severely congested in the summer time and it is only a matter of time before the Department of State Highways and Transportation prohibits any parking on the thoroughfare.

The city would really be in a jam if that happened and no additional parking had been provided for. This problem might be resolved in conjunction with efforts by the downtown merchants.

Another issue which created quite an uproar in the City of Charlevoix this year was the proposed swap and then the proposed lease of land to the Beaver Island Boat Co. Common council should find out just what the limitations on long-term leases are under the Fourth Class Cities act and follow them.

It is not fair to either the Beaver Island Boat Co. or to city residents to leave the problem hanging fire indefinitely.

Lastly, the proposed planting of shade trees downtown and across the city has created questions in many people's minds. While the Courier supports the continued planting of trees throughout the city, it also urges the council to break down the costs and to show the people exactly what they are spending for the plantings.

The project should be completed in the most economical manner possible.

The Courier also urges citizens to plan for the future of Charlevoix and to support the tree program.

City residents should also vow to become more active and informed about governmental affairs this year so that the best things can be accomplished for Charlevoix.

...Speaking Her Mind

I sat down to write my New Years resolutions the other day just as I do before the start of every new year. With pen and paper in hand, I plodded through the usual list, writing down each resolution with little or no enthusiasm.

When I finished, I surveyed the list to make sure I hadn't inadvertently left some important resolution out. Nope, I thought to myself, they're all there, all the good old standbys.

The list ran something like this: 1. Lose 20 pounds. 2. Keep better track of the budget and the checkbook. 3. Keep up with correspondence. And, 4. Keep up with my reading.

As I went over that dull, but necessary list of goals for 1978, I decided to add one more resolution. 5. Don't give up on keeping your resolutions until July 1.

But still the list did not seem complete and as I pondered it I was reminded of a woman I met a few years ago in Petoskey. I had met her in September and our friendship had grown closer so that we were pretty good friends by the end of the year.

Yet, when we talked, there were still those pauses in our conversations that needed to be filled up. So, during one of those pauses, I asked her what her New Years resolutions were, expecting to hear the same old thing that everyone always says.

"I really hadn't thought that much about it," I answered truthfully and mentally chucking my usual list of resolutions.

"But I really like your ideas and maybe I should try some of those resolutions myself."

I only stuck with all of the resolutions for a few weeks that year, but I think I'll give them a try again this year and maybe add a fourth resolution vowing not to give up for the rest of my life.

Verily, there is something about warfare that prompts our brave leaders to say unadorned excrement when they mean pure crap.

I was reminded of this recently when the 1977 winner of the DoubleSpeak Award was announced. It went to the Pentagon for describing the neutron bomb as a "radiation enhancement" weapon.

Isn't that gorgeous? You remember the neutron bomb. It was in all the newspapers last summer when the Senate was debating how many millions of your dollars to spend manufacturing it. The neutron bomb is special, because its intense radiation kills people while doing minimal damage to buildings and vehicles.

This is of great strategic importance. It means victorious armies will not have to rebuild bombed cities. A neutron bomb dropped from afar will kill a youngster while leaving his tricycle unharmed, ready for immediate use by occupying forces.

The effects of the neutron bomb upon a person have been fleshy: "The body convulses, limbs shake, the nervous system fails so that all the automatic body functions, even breathing, are affected. Death comes within 48 hours."

But the Russian tank factory will still be standing, untouched, ready to roll again as soon as the dead bodies are swept up.

Have you ever known radiation to be more richly enhanced?

The DoubleSpeak Award is given by the National Council of Teachers of English. The teachers scan newspapers and government documents, searching for the most deceptive euphemisms, the ones that conceal the most truth beneath the thickest veneer of baloney.

There is no denying that "radiation enhancement" deserved to win. The Pentagon used the euphemism when asking Congress for funds to develop the neutron bomb. Some congressmen probably supported the project under the impression that they were buying a defensive weapon that would make energy more enchanting to the taste.

As noted earlier, the most gorgeous euphemisms are created by military leaders who wouldn't say "kill" if they had a mouthful of blood. Through the

As a professional pessimist, the end of 1977 leaves me at loose ends because I can't recall another year in my lengthening lifespan when things generally have looked so bright.

Take the situation in the Middle East, for example. Although negotiations between the Arabs and Jews are still in delicate balance, the outlook for peace—eventually—is more real and alive than ever before. Much, of course, depends on the outcome of the holiday talks between Anwar Sadat and Menachem Begin, but at this point all signs indicate that a reconciliation of many of the major differences between Egypt and Israel may be at hand.

And if those two old enemies can come to terms, it can happen anywhere at any time to anyone.

The racial situation in South Africa and Rhodesia is not quite so encouraging, but there is hope in the very fact that things don't seem to be getting much worse. The practice of apartheid is abominable and it appears that the weight of world opinion may be having some effect on the hardliners who have held black Africans in spiritual, if not physical, bondage for generations.

At home, I believe the nation has survived the alternating hesitation and exuberance of the first year of the Jimmy Carter administration in fine shape. He has neither met our highest expectations or fulfilled our worst fears, but he has held us together and I think Americans think better of themselves for having put him in the White House.

Whenever a new chief executive takes over, I think most of us sort of hope for a miracle worker—a man who can achieve full employment without accelerating inflation; a man who can stimulate the economy in a way that will not squander resources or harm the environment; a man who can keep peace at home and abroad without taking us to distraction or alienating our neighbors.

Carter has made progress on all these fronts, and although he still has a long way to go, he is moving in the right direction with all possible haste.

The general economy certainly looks better than it has for years, despite rising prices. The auto industry set 18-day and monthly sales records throughout most of the year and prophets in the Motor City see even more production next year.

The late G.E. Wilson, as secretary of defense, once drew no end of criticism when he opined that "What's good for General Motors is good for the nation."

Although the concept is still abhorrent, Mr. Wilson knew where he spoke. And if he had limited his observation to Michigan, he would have been even closer to the mark. When the auto industry does well, we all benefit.

The stock market's performance in the second half of 1977 has been disappointing, but seasoned observers don't appear particularly concerned. The general feeling seems to be prices are seeking a level that more accurately reflects their true value in relation to other segments of the economy. If this is so, our present market should become a lazy, friendly ball before too many weeks pass, registering solid and substantial growth.

In all, it looks like a Happy New Year.

Erma Bombeck

A woman in the neighborhood who has chosen to remain childless announced the other day that she and her husband had found a solution to their empty nest. "Since children are so expensive and make such demands on your time, we've decided to adopt a doll. After all, they do everything a baby does and you don't have all the responsibility."

We stared at her in disbelief. Is it possible someone could be so naive?

"Look, Kay," I said, "I don't know how to tell you but dolls today are not your dimpled, soft rubber, huggable cuties that you take off all their clothes and sling them under the bed. Dolls today move, and demand, and nag and nag and nag. There's Baby Comeback. When you turn her arms down, she walks away, but when the arms start going up she returns to you with arms outstretched and cries."

There's Baby Telephon. who yells, "Ma!" until you squeeze her to shut her up. There's Baby Won't-Let-Go that greets tablecloths, fingers, walls, toys, people—anything, when you turn her arms down, she walks away, but when the arms start going up she returns to you with arms outstretched and cries.

"Baby Alive eats and fills her diapers all day long. Her brother comes with all the parts and you'll have to worry about their playing doctor."

What did he say?

years I have collected many of these outrageous euphemisms, sticking them in a file folder labeled "Silly Syllables."

Last week's DoubleSpeak Award prompted me to reach into the file and pull out my favorite double-talker.

He is Melvin Laird, who was our defense secretary during part of Richard M. Nixon's administration.

One day in 1962 he explained the Vietnam situation to a Senate committee: "Our orientation seems to have been more on operations than on assisting the South Vietnamese to acquire the means to defend themselves."

Can you think of a daintier way of saying that the United States is doing the fighting while the South Vietnamese watch?

More from Laird: "It is apparent that successful infrastructure effort will thus require a substantially higher enemy rate of attrition than has yet been realized."

What the man meant is that we must kill the bad guys faster than they are being born.

Laird also said the United States had not yet achieved "the development of indigenous forces which would be

Meet Charlevoix

... Barbara Fels

Barbara Fels is secretary to the Charlevoix County Planning Department. This week the Courier talks with her about her job, her philosophy, and her family.

COURIER: How long have you worked for the Planning Department?

FELS: Since it was organized about six and a half years ago.

COURIER: What are your duties?

FELS: I work as assistant to the planner and attend township meetings, sometimes in the absence of the planner and sometimes with him. I attend meetings of the Northwest Regional Planning Commission. I do research for the Planning Commission as well as the County Board of Commissioners on various subjects.

FELS: Because without adequate planning, things happen that can be in effect for years and years. We can't always change them. With planning we can direct growth without changing the things we love in the area. Zoning is a tool of planning. We need it because not everybody is a good neighbor.

COURIER: Do you think the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township should merge?

FELS: Absolutely, because of the duplication of services we now have to provide. It costs the taxpayers extra money. You can't tell where the city ends and the township starts. There is no room for the city to grow. As one unit they could provide better units and state agencies. I make studies such as the county house numbering system for the Board of Commissioners and the area wage scale study for the county.

COURIER: Have you had any other jobs?

FELS: Just one. I worked at the central office of General Motors in Detroit after going to Central Michigan University for a semester.

COURIER: Why are zoning and planning necessary?

FELS: Because without adequate planning, things happen that can be in effect for years and years. We can't always change them. With planning we can direct growth without changing the things we love in the area. Zoning is a tool of planning. We need it because not everybody is a good neighbor.

COURIER: Do you think the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township should merge?

FELS: Absolutely, because of the duplication of services we now have to provide. It costs the taxpayers extra money. You can't tell where the city ends and the township starts. There is no room for the city to grow. As one unit they could provide better recreational and other facilities, and utilities.

COURIER: How do you feel about a city charter?

FELS: I'm sorry it didn't pass. After at least four years of turmoil in the city, the charter would have helped to give definition and description of who does what in the city. We need a city manager, but under the present form of government he can't operate efficiently. The city also needs a planning commission because without one it is impossible to make sound long range plans for the city. It becomes a mess. The council doesn't have time to look at every building or zoning request, but a planning commission would. If decisions are made without looking at the overall picture, it isn't going to be "Charlevoix the Beautiful" too long.

COURIER: You like your job, don't you?

FELS: Yes, because of all the people I get to work with. Many of them have become my friends. I ran the office for three months between planners. I did everything the planners do. I received letters of appreciation from both the Planning Commission and the County Board of Commissioners.

COURIER: You have a

good-sized family, don't you?

FELS: My husband, Jack, and I have four children. I met Jack when he was going to General Motors Tech. He's an engineer at Courter's in Boyne City. Our oldest, Patty, is a freshman at the University of Michigan majoring in medicine. She was a candidate for Venetian Queen. Lori is in the 11th grade. She works at Dapper Dick's and wants to go into business. She's studying bookkeeping and shorthand but doesn't know where she wants to go to college. She likes cross country skiing. Billy is in the 10th grade and on the ski team. Mike is in the 7th grade and is a basketball player and skier. The boys both ski at Mt. McSaubia and Boyne Mountain.

COURIER: How do you manage a responsible job and large family?

FELS: I didn't work until Michael, the youngest one, was in school. The house runs well because whoever is there at a particular time does the chores. The kids are responsible for keeping their own rooms clean and also picking up the house, vacuum, etc. They often do their own cooking.

COURIER: Do you have any hobbies?

FELS: I bow in a league and do a little skiing, but my family and my job take up most of the time I have.

State police, DNR divers comb

Round Lake in training session

The shores of Round Lake at the end of Mason Street looked like a scene out of the old television program "Sea Hunt" last week.

Five divers from the Michigan State Police Department and from the State Department of Natural Resources held a training session in Round Lake, and they also recovered some stolen articles for the Charlevoix Police Department.

The divers had been in Charlevoix for a training session in Lake Michigan last summer and they told Police Chief Jack Kousky that they would come back this fall and check out Round Lake.

"There were too many boats here last summer for us to dive in this area," one of the divers explained. "So we decided to come back this fall. While we do look for things for the city police department, this is mostly a training session."

Met said the divers like to come to Charlevoix to train because of the variety of places to dive. The divers can practice in the current in the Pine River Channel, in deep water in Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan, and in the shallower Round Lake.

"It's beneficial to us, too, because they usually recover things that we've been looking for," Met said.

In Tuesday's session, the divers found several stolen bicycles that had been pitched in Round Lake and they also recovered a cash register that had been stolen from Muma's Sunoco in 1974.

Last summer, the divers recovered some things that had been stolen from the county.

Veterans Administration (VA) pensioners, that is spouses of men or women who served in the armed forces, who are receiving pensions, are advised to return the questionnaires they received recently by Jan. 1, 1978.

Ronald Geer, Veterans Counselor in Charlevoix County, who issued the warning said it was imperative that the questionnaires be returned in order that the pension will continue.

Failure to comply with the warning will result in automatic suspension of payment.

"This means a hardship on the pensioner because it takes months to complete the paperwork and return the name of the pensioner to the computer list," Geer continued.

Anyone having questions or needing help may contact or see Geer in his office at the county building.

PAT SCHMIDT drops in two of his 27 points with this shot during the Boyne City-Charlevoix game last week. Hot on Schmidt's trail are Dale Tims (52) and Dan Schmitt (50).

BOYNE CITY PLAYER Tim Hartwick (24) ducks as Steve Schuch (45) reaches for a rebound during the Rayder-Rambler game last week. The Rayders came out fighting and ran over the Ramblers 82-60.

It's a Rayder Victory 82-60

TAKING ADVANTAGE of this misplaced Rambler pass is Rayder Bob Plumm (41). Plumm had a great game against the cross county rivals last week and the Rayders took the battle, 82-60.

BOB PLUMM helped spark the Rayder machine in the game against the Boyne City Ramblers last week. Plumm stole several passes, blocked many shots and dumped in 10 points.

RAY GREENE (5) of Boyne City jumps up to block this shot but he was unsuccessful. The Rayders ran over the Ramblers 82-60 in last week's Michigan-Huron Shores Conference action.

JIM ALGER (23) twists around Dan Schmitt (50) and Dale Tims (52) to get this shot off. Alger put in 10 points during the game along with Neil Dziedzic and Bob Plumm.

JOE LEFT lets loose with a shot despite the efforts of Dan Schmitt (50) of Boyne City. The Rayders beat the Ramblers 82-60 in last week's play. That evens up the Rayders record so far this season at 3-3.

Rayders on victory trail, defeat Ramblers

By BILL MERCER
Charlevoix's basketball team evened its record for 1977 by downing cross county rival Boyne City 82-60 last Tuesday in Charlevoix.

The win marked the teams most decisive victory of the young season and served as a warning to other members of the Michigan-Huron Shores Conference that the Rayders can play high scoring basketball.

Coach Dave Meyer's squad looked dismal in the first quarter as Neil Dziedzic drew three quick fouls and his teammates managed to commit 13 turnovers in the early going.

After the first period ended, Charlevoix found itself trailing Boyne City 18-12.

From the beginning of the second stanza, however, the visiting Ramblers saw a different team. Led by Bob Plumm, in for Dziedzic after his third foul and Pat Schmidt, Assisting on the boards were Dziedzic and Senior jumper Joe Left. Coach Meyer noted after the game, that, "The Rayders poured in 30 points to lead at the halfway point, 42-30.

Plumm not only blocked two Boyne City shots, but the Junior forward stole errant passes, setting up fastbreak opportunities for Schmidt and Jim Alger and went to the boards for key offensive and defensive rebounds.

From a defensive standpoint, the Rayders played man-to-man during most of the game. Coach Meyer switched to a zone late in the game after Boyne City began to locate avenue to the basket.

The Charlevoix hoopers also employed a full court zone press to start the second half. This confused the Ramblers and enabled the Rayders to score a quick eight unanswered points.

On the dark side of the victory, Charlevoix committed 37 turnovers. They also had one man foul out (Dziedzic) and carried five additional players with four personal fouls.

Reacting to this Coach Meyer pointed out, "The hurl us as they have throughout the season. We will work on our turnovers and the foul situation over the holidays.

"Mostly what the fellows need is more playing time so we plan to scrimmage a lot before the Potoskey game."

Scoring for Charlevoix was led by Schmidt with 27 points, followed by Dan Schmitt (12), Tim Hartwick (8), and Dean Hicks (8).

Charlevoix's next opponent will be Potoskey. Currently the Northern share the conference lead with Gaylord, with Dziedzic, Plumm and Alger each tallying 10 points. The Rayders could edge closer to the top with a victory in Potoskey on Jan. 6.

Sherri Selissen named to all conference team

Sherrie Selissen, Charlevoix High School junior, was named to the first Michigan-Huron Shores All-Conference Girls Basketball team selected Monday night at a meeting of coaches and athletic directors held at Gaylord.

St. Ignace and Rogers City won three berths each on the honor squad.

Gaylord, Cheboygan and Boyne City two each and Potoskey one. Four other players, one each from St. Ignace, Cheboygan, Gaylord and Grayling received honorable mention.

Coach Tom Feller and Dale Burge, athletic director, represented Charlevoix at the meeting.

Rayder wrestlers ran over Rambler squad, 50-26

The Charlevoix Rayder wrestlers added another victory feather to their caps with a 50-26 defeat of Boyne City last week.

The Rayders met the Ramblers in Charlevoix for a dual meet Thursday. The Rayders season record in dual competition now moves to 6 wins and 2 losses.

The results of the match were:

98 pounds: Kerry Kruezel of Boyne City defeated Don Mol in 3:02.

106 pounds: Jeff Drenth of Charlevoix over Mike Abel in 3:22.

112 pounds: Charlevoix forfeited.

119 pounds: Ron Hilton won by forfeit.

126 pounds: Lee DeMittell of Charlevoix pinned Kevin Moore in 38 seconds.

132 pounds: Mike Kitley of Charlevoix defeated Kevin Fineout in 3:19.

138 pounds: Craig Golovich

Special cross country ski clinic set Friday for 6-13 year olds

A special Cross Country Ski Clinic for boys and girls between 6 and 13 years old will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. Friday at the Potoskey State Park.

A Bill Koch Cross Country Ski League is being set up by Gary Hice, youth activities coordinator. Students will learn how to cross country ski, games on skis and will have the opportunity to race during the clinic and through the league.

Students should bring their own equipment or they can rent them from area ski shops. Students should meet at the camper registration booth.

For more information contact Bill Koch at 547-4471 or 538-6388 or LeCycliste Enterprises at 347-2861.

A limited number of rental skis will be available at LeCycliste. Parents are welcome to the clinic, too. There will be no charge for the clinic.

RESOLVE TO START THE NEW YEAR WITH FAITH

The New Year for many of us usually brings an occasion of festivity, followed by a well-meaning but generally short-lived list of drastic personal resolutions. However, one resolution is all you'll ever need, if you will let faith strengthen your determination to become a better person. Let the first page of the new calendar represent that new leaf you are turning over, and if you will resolve to attend the Church of your choice regularly throughout the coming year, all the other items on your list will undoubtedly take care of themselves.

"Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me."
— Psalms 51:10

I see not a step before me as I tread on another year.
But I've left the past in God's keeping... the future His mercy shall clear.
And what looks dark in the distance, may brighten as I draw near.

First graders entertain at K-5 school

MRS. BERG'S first grade class at the Charlevoix Elementary School entertained their school mates with a play during an assembly Thursday. Here some elves talk with Santa Claus and Mrs. Claus.

IN ADDITION TO the first grade class's presentation, the other students at the K-5 school also gave musical presentations. These students assisted the music teacher by announcing the various Christmas carols and other songs so that everyone could join in the fun.

School district tries energy experiment

An experiment in energy saving will soon be conducted at Charlevoix High School.

During Christmas vacation, representatives of Energy Reduction Systems of Exeter, N.H., will be installing energy reduction equipment on the high school furnace. The Charlevoix Board of Education approved the experiment at a recent board meeting.

The company guarantees at least a 10 per cent reduction in the amount of fuel used by the furnace, Vince Olach, business manager for the school district, explained. If the gadget doesn't save the school district 10 percent in fuel costs, the company will remove it at no cost to the school.

"It will take about 11 months for the device to pay for itself if it saves us only 10 percent," Olach explained. "But the device has been saving school districts between 15 and 25 percent in fuel use."

Olach said there were many other advantages to the device, which acts like a catalytic converter for the furnace. It also reduces the soot buildup in the furnace and thus lowers the maintenance costs.

Olach said he had investigated four gadgets that would reduce fuel use, but settled on this particular model because it had a written guarantee and was the only one with a written guarantee.

Olach said the school district had budgeted about $49,000 for fuel bills this year and that figure included a 10 percent increase in the cost based on last year's $42,560 bill.

However, next month fuel prices are going up 15 percent instead of the expected 10 percent.

"So the new device won't put any money in our pockets," Olach said. "But it will help us keep at the same level."

Olach said if the energy experiment at the high school is successful, he hopes to install the gadgets called "Vapormid" in the middle and elementary school next fall.
